Theater Confab

Paramount Bringing In District Managers and Important Managers for Four-Day Meeting

Harold B. Franklin has summoned theater district managers, and managers of the more important of the various theaters controlled by Paramount to attend a convention in New York, beginning Tuesday and terminating on Saturday.

A number of topics will be discussed, among them the booking situation, balancing of programs, advertising and preparations for the Summer season.

In connection with the booking situation there will be brought up for discussion and analysis, the class of productions for the individual theaters and the days on which certain types of pictures are best suited. This will naturally establish the class of pictures not wanted with regard to the demands of the individual house. It will also provide a wide scope for the discussion of short subjects, serials, and states rights pictures. Leases and renewals furnish two more important topics. Relations with exchange man-

Hearing Next Month

One-Day Session in New York Likely First and Then Will Be Resumed in Atlanta

Counsel for the Government will shortly hold a session lasting one day in New York and then the hearing of the Federal Trade Commission into the affairs of Famous Players will be resumed in Atlanta. This will probably occur the second week in March.

Important testimony is to be taken by the Government investigators in town. In the interim, Bruce Bromley, on the staff of Robert T. Swain, who represent Famous in the case will leave for Atlanta to line up a large number of witnesses that the respondents intend bringing before the examiner when the sessions are resumed. It is understood that the Government has practically finished its case. The testimony gathered by Famous in Atlanta will be in the nature of its defense.

January Tax Report Indicates Finest Business Since June, 1921

Admission Returns in That Month Reached $7,576,991, an Increase of Over $500,000 Since December, 1923, and an Advance of $810,783 Over January of Last Year.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The Internal Revenue Bureau yesterday made public admission tax figures for the month of January, placing the total at $7,576,991. This represents an increase of over $500,000 as compared with the returns for December when the total reached $7,047,876.

The January total, according to the records, shows that business at the box office throughout the country was better during that period than at any time since June, 1921. Reports for the past few months, have in the main, indicated a decided up-trend in theatricals, the figures, of course, including both pictures and other forms of amusements.

When comparison is made with like months of 1922, the increase for the latter months of 1923 becomes pronounced. The following chart shows comparative figures for current months and the corresponding period of last year:

October	$6,999,867	$5,396,461
November	6,849,212	5,484,790
December	7,047,876	6,825,249
January	$7,576,991	$6,766,208

Collections from the seating tax for January totaled $27,707 against $37,035 collected for January, 1922.

The House of Representatives has accepted the clause in the Mellon bill doing away with the ten per cent tax on admissions when they amount to fifty cents and less, all above that sum to pay the present ten per cent levy.

Hampton Buys Five Scripts

Hollywood—Jesse D. Hampton has purchased five new stories for production in the Spring. Hampton holds the screen rights for four more Rex Beach stories.

Williams Coastbound

Los Angeles—J. D. Williams is due momentarily from the East. There is some talk that his visit concerns additional product for Ritz-Carlton Pictures.

Denies Trouble With First National

Richard A. Rowland declared yesterday that First National had experienced no difficulties with Richard Barthelmess over the showings of his pictures. He added that if Barthelmess was involved in a disagreement over his contracts it must be with Inspiration, the producing company.

It was denied indignantly that the First National franchise holders were shelving any of the Barthelmess pictures. "We consider them fine attractions," said Rowland, "and it is silly to assume that pictures of that calibre would be put on the shelf."

Discard "Heart Trouble"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Joseph M. Schenck has ordered work stopped on "Heart Trouble," the current Constance Talmadge vehicle and has dismissed the company because the story was found to be an inferior one. Al Green will direct "Connie" in the new story which has not as yet been decided upon.

The companies in the Mecca Bldg., 1600 Broadway, received a shock yesterday when they were informed by the Fire Department that licenses to store more than the usual five reels of film allowed in an office building had been revoked and that the letter of the law would in the future be strictly adhered to. All of the tenants in the building, which houses Universal, Warner Bros., C. B. C., Pathe, and Apollo will probably work in unison to have the restriction lifted.

You have to sit through them in order to see the feature, and they keep many people away from the movies. Personally, I will not go to see any picture where there is a Larry Semon comedy on the same bill. If he is funny, then our sense of humor is missing. I do enjoy Harold Lloyd to the utmost.)

Daughters of Today Breaks records in New England's Largest Theatre

Five other big features recently presented by this theater averaged only 63% of amount grossed by "DAUGHTERS"

Mr. C.R. Seelye,
Selznick Pictures Corporation, 729 Seventh Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Seelye:--

DAUGHTERS OF TODAY took Providence by storm. We played to capacity business in the EMERY MAJESTIC, standing them up every day both afternoons and evenings. The business steadily increased each day. To take care of the crowds we opened an hour and a half earlier on Friday and Saturday. There was a long line in front of the box office at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. Our regular hour of opening is noon.

DAUGHTERS OF TODAY is one of the best money-getters that has ever played in Providence. It broke all records for attendance and I am sure it will do so wherever it is played, because the picture is a splendid production. It is just sensational enough to cause a lot of talk without offending anyone. The story is unusual, timely and well handled, the cast is excellent, direction exceptionally good and there is a jazzed-up atmosphere about the picture that is contagious and stimulates an audience.

Its phenomenal success can be repeated here and I want to bring DAUGHTERS OF TODAY back for another week shortly. You are certainly to be congratulated on a big winner in this most satisfying picture.

With best wishes

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Alton C. Emery,
Emery Majestic Theatre.

All attendance records broken despite blizzard for two days and exceptionally strong opposition in picture, vaudeville and legitimate theatres.

"Daughters of Today" is clean. It creates unprecedented discussion by newspapers and by word of mouth because it deals with one of the most vital phases of life today. Ask the Exhibitor who has played it.

"Daughters of Today" will have the influence for good that characterized "Over the Hill."

HUNCHBACK O

Ask Walter Hays, Pres., Syracuse Strand Theatre Co., Inc.,
Syracuse, New York.

All records for any picture that has ever played Syracuse either at a legitimate theatre at a $2.00 top, or a picture theatre, have been broken with the Hunchback. We are holding the picture over next week—a rare occasion in Syracuse, and expect record-breaking business the balance of the engagement.

Ask Peter Wilson, State Theatre,
Sacramento, Calif.

Hunchback of Notre Dame is a powerful picture. Lon Chaney's characterization of Quasimodo is marvelous. The picture made a tremendous hit at advanced prices. Business increased with every showing.

Ask John H. Kunsky, Enterprises, Adams Theatre,
Detroit, Michigan.

Opening day Hunchback, Adams Theatre, broke all records by $1200.

P. S. Second day's business again broke house record.

Ask Louis J. Santikos, Rialto Theatre,
San Antonio, Texas.

Packed house night and day. Receipts exceeded those of any since we opened the Rialto. Everybody well pleased.

Ask Harry C. Arthur, Gen. Mgr., West Coast Theatres,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Real $1.65 picture. Thousands who have seen same unanimous in their opinion of Hunchback as a great picture, wonderfully produced. Appeals to all classes young and old. Great love story.

Ask J. C. Sutphen, Mgr., Brandeis Theatre,
Omaha, Nebraska.

I consider this production the last word in screen achievement. Opened Brandeis Theatre to biggest Sunday business in the history of the theatre.

Ask J. Henry Handesman, Jr., Oliver Theatre,
South Bend, Indiana.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame has broken all house records established at the Oliver Theatre, South Bend, for the past fifteen years. Kindly call and see me as I would be interested in a second run of the Hunchback.

Ask Oliver Edwards, Mgr., Palace Theatre,
New Haven, Conn.

Hunchback enjoyed greatest opening performance of any of the big features at advanced prices. Capacity in a house seating 3200. It is a magnificent production and a great picture.

WHO PLAYED

NOTRE DAME

Ask A. G. Talbot, Mgr. Dir., Bishop-Cass Theatres Co.,
Denver, Colorado.

For a number of years we have been seeking a film production worthy in our estimation of a reserve seat policy at advanced prices, two shows per day, at the American Theatre. The only picture for us, so far, that in the opinion of the writer, meets with the requirements above stated, is the Hunchback of Notre Dame. We wish to congratulate your company in producing such a masterpiece and wish your company every success in the exhibiting of the Hunchback of Notre Dame throughout the world.

Ask R. J. Stinnet, Pres. & Gen. Mgr., Capitol Theatre,
Dallas, Texas.

It was necessary to have eight policemen handle the crowd in front of our theatre awaiting the second show. We have been in theatrical business in Dallas for fifteen years and never before have there been such crowds. The Hunchback is the talk of all Dallas. Not a single person has complained that our admission price was too high.

Ask Alexander Frank, Plaza Theatre,
Waterloo, Iowa.

Hunchback opened today to complete sell-out both matinee and evening. Turned away another capacity house. Expect to reach the highest guarantee ever offered a picture here tomorrow, the second day. We still have five days left to cash in. There is nothing in sight for a long time to come to equal the opening record of the Hunchback.

Ask W. F. Clarke, Charlestown Theatre,
Charlestown, S. C.

It has been a great pleasure and privilege for the Directorate of this theatre, to play the Hunchback of Notre Dame. We had record houses for all performances. The film in question is the finest that has ever been made. We shall appreciate very much if you can arrange an early return date.

Ask Charles F. Truman, Academy Theatre,
Meadville, Pa.

Just closed three biggest days my house ever knew with the finest picture ever produced.

Ask H. L. Hedger, Mgr. Dir., Community Playhouse,
Meriden, Conn.

I consider it the best thing you have done in pictures. Satisfactory not only to the patrons but likewise to the management by the box-office returns, even at the greatly increased prices.

Ask Donald Knapp,
San Bernardino, Calif.

You are right on the Hunchback. It took San Bernardino like Grant took Richmond. All audience records surpassed. Hunchback is sure-fire winner. It is one of those "glad I came" pictures. It makes them talk. We turned them away.

Putting It Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Read along your ideas. Let other fellow know how you managed up.

Fast Boosts Murray Run

Cincinnati—A newspaper contest put over at the Walnut for "The Doll," by Albert P. Kaufman.

Called for newspaper cooperation, a costume-designing contest which the theater gave away small and other inducements under auspices of the local paper. It was over big in Cincinnati and elsewhere it has been done.

Every day the Times-Star appears with a lead story outlining the contest. The name of the picture, the date and play date were prominently put up at all times. The judges selected the best of the designs submitted and these were later displayed in the lobby. The final selection was on the basis of the greatest approval by the Walnut patronage. Prizes of $25, $15, and $10, in gold given away besides additional exhibition prizes.

Scores on "Boy of Mine"

Indianapolis—An unusual advance advertising campaign was conducted by manager Ace Berry of the Circle, "Boy of Mine."

Several days space three by was used in the papers. One advertisement of the series played up throughout the week. Another was a statement by J. K. McDonald saying he had only one ambition—make good, wholesome, clean and amusing pictures. This was aimed directly at the home folks and drew them out. There followed a statement by the theater designer, "Boy of Mine," to be the "Greatest Human Drama." The persistent hammering along this was unavoidable.

Two cross words: "running up and down along adjacent borders topped the page. "Yes, even if it is raining you can't afford to miss Norma Tallie in 'Smilin Through' at the Pastime."

'AMERICA' SMASH HIT

"Scaramouche," the Metro special, smashed all existing box-office records at the Capitol last week by running up gross receipts of $67,960. The picture on Washington's Birthday alone drew $14,520. That is now the record for one day's taking at the big picture house.

As against "Scaramouche," the Strand held "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the Universal picture, but it did not have the draw that the presentation at the bigger house held. "The Hunchback," however, is also held over for the current week. The Capitol yesterday got another smashing day for the second Sunday, $12,290 gross, with the outlook being that business will be in the neighborhood of $50,000 on the second week.

The record for one week at the house was formerly held by "Robin Hood."

 will be considered. Federal attention is also on the program. Meetings in the New York office are amassing data pertaining to the topics scheduled for discussion during the convention. Also final solutions to any of the items named have been decided. The executives have prepared resolutions subject to the approval of all the delegates to the convention. This is on general matters concerning the independent theaters it is expected that the managers and their assistants will provide the food for discussion.

The "bugaboo" has been passed by the statistical department and the reports of their research in this field ranks this among the important topics as one form of "profit." It is hoped that a decision can be decided upon which will reflect unfavorably on the independent but will in some way disseminate aggregate free admissions over the period.

Proposals for the Summer will be group requirements so that when purchasing is done, it can be done through bulk purchasers cutting to a minimum the pro rata cost of theater sharing in the buy-outs thought at this time that a number of exchanges may be effected in matter of draperies and other expenses for the decoration of the theaters during the hot season, thereby saving expenditures for a period every dollar spent shows only a few returns that it would at any season. One of the most important matters which this convention is, the type of pictures required by the theaters certain days of the week. Discussion on this point will result in several changes being made in the policies of theaters with more or less performances.

There will be addresses by Adolph Laude Saunders, A. M. Botsford, advertising, and Hugo Ries. The evenings will be devoted to entertainment, with theater parties on Tuesday and Thursday, and the ball on Friday.

Blames Exhibitors

Joe Brandt Says They Fail to Give Independent Producers the Proper Financial Support

Joe Brandt of C. B. C. is out with another open letter, this one addressed to exhibitors. He blames them for failing to give the independent producer the proper financial support and says:

"I warned you last year that in refusing decent financial support to the independent producer you were encouraging the producer-theater combinations to increase rentals to the exhibitor. This is exactly what happened and you got more or less what I said you would get—a healthy increase in national exhibition by all the important national distributors. The only thing that saved many of you was the unusually good business year, which permitted your paying these unhealthy increases and still survive. As a prominent exhibitor said to me the other day—

"Everytime I pay a big organization a fancy price for their product I lose money on it, but I make up the loss from my cheaper 'buys' over the balance of the season."

"Is this fair? Don't you owe it to yourself to cut down on exorbitant rentals and to increase on your average rentals so that the independent producer may become a permanent factor in the business—in your service?"

"And now let me voice my appreciation of the exhibitor who has consistently supported independent product, paying for it the best prices he could in order to keep the Independent producer in business. This exhibitor has witnessed the steady increase in the quality of the independent product—he has seen independent exchanges in many territories become strong factors (in these territories) frightening the theater-producer combines in many instances. Within the last sixty days he has noticed the entrance into the business of an organization especially created to encourage the best producers to go into the independent field.

Brandt concludes by saying that C. B. C. will increase its output for 1924-1925 from eight to twelve and possibly sixteen pictures.

BULLETIN

A NEW name will have to be invented for the kind of picture James Cruze has made in "The Fighting Coward."

It is a terrific drama—the drama of a pretty boy being turned by scorn into a man-eater! But it is drama blown across by gale after gale of laughter, absolutely uncontrollable delight at seeing milk curdled to blood!

This picture kids the whole tradition of risking your life for a hasty word.

There are so many well-calculated insults and guns pulled that you feel sure you won't be able to draw four more breaths before somebody passes out!

Get This!

(1) James Cruze will go down in history as the director who could make a reverberating, world-beating success such as "The Covered Wagon," and then have the versatility to create an entirely new genre in high-voltage satiric drama.

(2) However much you may have enjoyed Ernest Torrence in the past you will know for a fact, after seeing this picture, that he has the film world by the tail in any part he cares to undertake. Torrence is the world's finest fancier of grotesqueries, mild or murderous!

(3) Let this picture once circulate a bit and the name Cullen Landis will mean the same as Money to you. He's the gentle lad who learns to eat 'em alive and order ham and eggs between homicides.

(4) When the footage is showing that contains Noah Beery people will be scared to blink their eyes for fear of missing a fraction of an inch. He hurts your ribs with laughter.

(5) Mary Astor and Phyllis Haver provide the feminine charm about which all these heroes circulate.

And pass out they do, with the audience's motometer showing ever higher temperature.

"The Fighting Coward" not only opens a great new vein of drama and comedy drenched with a new kind of nervous excitement and surprise, but it absolutely convinces you that Cruze and all the cast had a wonderful time making it!

If after seeing it, any exhibitor can place his hand on his heart and honestly swear that he did not enjoy it like beef-steak after a day's fast, why, we will buy him the most expensive derby on Fifth Avenue.

"The Fighting Coward" will create its own audiences everywhere after one showing.

Get 'em in once and Human Nature will do the rest!

From Booth Tarkington's play "Magnolia." Screen play by Walter Woods.

Court Action Reveals What International Spent on "Knighthood"—Jose Rubens Sues

The fact that "When Knighthood Was In Flower" cost $1,426,000 is set forth in a judgment roll signed by City Court Justice Walsh in favor of Jose Rubens against International Film, for $2,000. The court also found that Rubens was not at fault when he did not arrive at the studio on April 18, 1922, when directed to do so in order that scenes could be shot in which his appearance was necessary, because he had an accident to his eye on the way.

Rubens sued on a contract by which he was engaged at $500 a week for four weeks. He started work April 17, and alleged that he was discharged on the 19th. The defense was that his discharge was justified because he did not arrive at the studio and kept the entire cast waiting.

Assemblymen Will Not Be held to Party Lines in Voting—Action Next Week

Albany—The repeal of the censorship bill continues bright. The situation, if anything has improved.

Speaker Mac Hold announced yesterday that he would hold no conference with leaders of the Assembly to determine the attitude of the Republican party on the measure when it reaches the lower house. This is significant. It is also learned that party lines will not be adhered to when the measure comes up in the Assembly, with each legislator voting as he thinks.

Russia Wants Help

Semi-Official Representative Here to Take Technicians Back—No Financing

Joseph L. Malkin, former commercial director of Prolet Kino, a producing and distributing company in Russia and now in New York as a semi-official representative for the Soviet Government, in film matters, stated yesterday that his visit here had to do with the acquisition of technicians and production experts to go back with him.

He said Russia was anxious to develop its own film business, not only in production but in distribution. For that reason, a selected group of men familiar with American producing methods is sought to educate Russian artists in the technique of the motion picture. There will be no financial aid offered. What ever pictures are to be made there will be self-financed. The Government, Malkin explained, will offer every aid in production and later in seeing that the pictures get the widest distribution possible. The point seems to be that the organization that first gets a foothold in Russia will be in a position to establish a trade-mark prestige that will be valuable in the future.

In The Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—Declaring that he had been discharged without cause in violation of a contract, Emil Offerman has filed in the Superior Court a suit against the Robertson-Cole Studios and the Film Booking Offices asking damages totaling $183,685.69. The plaintiff stated that on Feb 4, 1922, he entered into an agreement whereby he was to become general manager for three years of the studios at a salary of $500 a week. Offerman alleges he was to receive 10,000 shares of common stock in the R-C Pictures Corp., valued at $10 a share. Offerman declared he was discharged Nov. 24, 1923. He admitted receiving a credit of $12,600, but asserted there was $34,400 due him for services rendered and $31,000 due on the contract. F. B. O., was said by Offerman to have succeeded the Robertson-Cole studios and was therefore made a joint defendant in the suit. In a separate answer the studios admit they had engaged Offerman, but stated that he was employed on a week-to-week basis, and denied in their entirety the charges which named them a joint defendant. The case has been set for trial June 3.

An attachment for $5,213 has been obtained in the Supreme Court against the W. M. Smith Prod., an Oklahoma corporation, by the W. I. Film Service Inc. The suit is based on a previous judgment obtained by default in Marion county, Indiana, against the interest of the defendant in the films, "White Masks" and "Gold Grabbers."

The New Amsterdam Credit Corp. has sued the Standard Film Service in the Supreme Court for $10,597 due on an agreement by which the defendant took over the lease of four films, agreeing to pay $15,000 for the first twelve months for each, and owes the sum stated on "Darling of the Rich."

The board of directors is composed of President, Frank L. Talbot; first vice-president, Albert P. Ternes, of the Ternes Coal & Lumber Co.; second vice-president, Julius Porath, contractor; secretary-treasurer, Frank S. Cooke; directors, James P. Trudell, Edward Leszozynski, H. F. Yatzek, Fred Guenther, C. C. Starkweather, Joseph A. Walsh, F. B. Holmes, C. N. Ray, W. A. Sanders, Howard H. Colby and J. M. Earle.

Talbot came to Detroit in 1921 and floated the company. Detroit and Grosse Pointe society became interested.

The Detroit News says that between scenes "work" was set aside for the clink of tea cups and chatter of bridge, and the studio took on the scene of a vast drawing room * * *.

"Visits stopped," says the News "when the studio was closed shortly after Christmas, and today the studio is guarded by a watchman.

"In answer to the report that minority stockholders of the company were hastily seeking to dispose of their interests, it was announced today at the offices in the Stroh Building that only three per cent of the original stockholders have sold their holdings.

"Payroll figures at the office list the salary expenses of producing

"Mary" as $10,000 a week. Kenneth Harlan drew the largest salary, $2,000 a week; Tyrone Power was paid $1,000 a week; Alan Hale, $750; Stella Day, $500, and Florence Billings, $250. At times the company employed as many as 50 artists, with 20 and 30 extras."

Talbot returned from New York the other day and so firmly convinced the directors of the progress he had made that they pledged to raise immediately enough funds to carry the company through. Talbot said he was assured in New York that "Mary" was a $600,000 production with a profit of not a cent less than $200,000.

Harry Edwards will assume charge of the Jack Earle comedy unit at Century.

Difficulties Over?

Barthelmess-Robertson Unit Leaves for Spain Next Week—"Romeo" Later

Despite the fact that there has been a flood of reports concerning the alleged strained relations between Richard Barthelmess and Inspiration Pictures and despite the fact that officials of the producing company have maintained a strict silence, developments on Friday indicated that matters have not reached the point where their settlement is beyond all hope.

It was learned Friday that Barthelmess and John S. Robertson, who has been directing him in the last few pictures, sail for Spain and Italy next week to shoot exteriors for a new vehicle for which Josephine Lovett did the scenario. Some of the scenes may be made in Spain. Later on, the company will go to Italy to make "Romeo and Juliet" in which Barthelmess and Lillian Gish will co-star.

Davis Sues T. O. D. C.

Seeks Receiver and Accounting—Cohen as New President, Replacing True, Denies Claims

Harry Davis of Pittsburgh, a vice-president of the M. P. T. O. A. and an organizer of the Theater Owners Distributing Corp., stated Friday that his attorney, Charles E. Thorn, of 27 Williams Street, had filed an application for a receiver against the latter corporation with a claim of $6,400.

Davis was one of the group of men that formed the exhibitor distributing company in Chicago and was later elected a member of the board of directors as well as vice-president. He stated Friday at the Ritz that he had gone to court on the matter because he had made demands on the officials of the T. O. D. C. for the return of his money without securing any satisfaction. He said that he first asked for a return of his money several weeks ago, acting through a friend in New York, but that instead of getting anywhere in

The immediate organization of the independent producers and distributors on the West Coast will be undertaken early in March, following the arrival in Los Angeles of Joe Brandt, vice president of the I. M. P. P. D. A.

All those eligible to membership will be invited to attend a meeting to be called by vice-president Brandt. At this meeting the aims and purposes of the Association will be fully explained, followed by a report of the organization's accomplishments since its inception in December. It is not improbable that a branch office of the association may be established in Los Angeles.

D. W.'s America!

What between the Daughters of the Revolution; the Colonial Dames; at least 3,423 historians and every descendant of the Revolution who lives in New England, Griffith must have had his troubles in deciding just what to do with "America." The chances are that if the truth were known DW added grey hairs to his collection; and the chances are in addition that "America" as made is far different from what DW would like to have had it. And incidentally, no matter how he made it. Or what he did with it. Someone would like to see something else. You cannot tackle a job as big as the one DW did with any idea of pleasing all of the people all of the time. It simply cannot be done.

Personally I would like to have seen much that isn't in "America" instead of a lot that is. And this isn't highbrowism, either. In my very humble opinion—and not setting up against DW as a showman—because he is the daddy of them all when it comes to that—if the crossing of the Delaware had been shown I believe it would have been one of the greatest box office kicks ever put into a picture. It would have cost much to do it—much in money, energy and ability. But what a kick it would have been! Compared with the thrill that arrives with the ride of Paul Revere, the Delaware crossing would have been a riot.

The matter, T. O. D. C. officials urged him to carry on in the organization.

Just what were the seeds of his dissatisfaction were explained by Davis when he said, for one thing, that despite the fact that important exhibitors had originally promised to contribute sums of money toward the maintenance of the organization until it could become active in the distributing field, he (Davis) and Sydney Cohen were the only ones who had put up any money. Davis declared that the members of the board were to pass on all pictures secured by arrangement with Carl Anderson on behalf of the T. O. D. C. but stated he was ignored when action on "After the Ball" was decided upon. "I asked them to send me along a print of the picture," said Davis, "but something or other happened and I didn't get a look at the picture."

"The matter simply resolved itself to this. Certain promises were made by responsible exhibitors and never kept. When I go into a thing, I do it whole-heartedly and those associated with me must do the same or I won't play. That's what has happened in this instance."

It likewise became known on Friday that an entire reorganization of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp., had been put through about ten days ago. The election was held very quietly and without the knowledge of the trade in general. It resulted in the election of Sydney S. Cohen to the presidency, to replace William A. True, while the latter was elected chairman of the board of directors and treasurer, succeeding Cohen. Davis was dropped from the personal entirely and was succeeded as vice-president by Carl Anderson while R. F. Woodhull who was elected secretary of the organization will have Davis' vote as a director. Cohen stated that he will not assume duties as president of the T. O. D. C. until his term as head of the M. P. T. O. A. expires.

W. A. True could not be reached for a statement, but late Friday, Cohen decided to issue the following: "My attention has been called to the application for a receivership filed by Harry Davis of Pittsburgh against the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. This action is a surprise to all concerned in view of the fact that the corporation is in splendid shape and in a formative period where it is moving along the lines which brought about its formation."

Clark Back From Coast
Ralph Clark is back in town from San Francisco.

"We are now releasing pictures and making moves in conformity with our corporate purposes. We have arranged for additional pictures and propose to put these into the hands of exhibitors as soon as the same are finished and other arrangements completed. At a recent meeting of the board of directors, Mr. Davis was not re-elected to the board and is not now an officer of the company. Mr. Davis unfortunately took the position that the will of the majority should not prevail and that his ideas should be given special attention."

"This of course, was not agreeable to the others and resulted in differences which we believe culminated in his present action. The company has no outstanding indebtedness except advances made by the directors. The only purpose of this action is to embarrass the operation of the company which was formed for the purpose of affording the theater owners special service along film lines."

Later, Carl Anderson phoned THE FILM DAILY and requested publication of a statement which follows:

"The Theater Owners Distributing Corp., doesn't owe any money except a loan made by Harry Davis and some of the other directors. He was dropped from the board because of his arbitrary manner and look upon this action merely as a reprisal."

D. W.'s America!

But you can't have everything. And you sure have a lot in "America" as it stands.

SMALL TOWN STUFF

They say the backbone of this business is the little theater in the small town; that while you get your cost perhaps, or almost your cost, from the first and second runs, that the real profit comes from the small town showings; those 8,000 or so houses. And it costs somewhere from 40 per cent up to do business with these houses.

ANY TIME IT COSTS 40 PER CENT TO DO BUSINESS IT ISN'T HEALTHY. OR SANE.

So it would seem that this infant (?) industry might consider this end of the business, and try in some way to lessen the cost of selling; which, in the end, would mean the exhibitor would pay less. (Chorus from sales managers—"Less than $7.50?—!-* * *—!!!—Whadda y'a mean!")

Now just how to do it occupies the time of some people who think. And want to change conditions. And from time to time varying ideas have been printed. Smallwood of Pyramid has recently printed a lot about his ideas. Incidentally the Smallwood idea of varying the cost of distribution dependent upon the price the picture brings isn't new. It was worked out—in a triflingly different way—back in the days of the old General Film Co.

HERE'S AN IDEA

You can do anything with a flivver. Incidentally, you can reduce sales costs a lot in those small towns you hear so much about. But you cannot do it for any individual concern. Suppose, however, three or four concerns worked out a plan that for towns of 3,500—or even 5,000—and less, they agreed on joint distribution, (Right off the bat this may be impossible.) And then suppose that instead of sending a salesman out every four weeks or so to grab business they put in the flivver. That flivver would be a moving exchange; loaded with as many varieties of subjects as the body would hold—and one would hold a lot. And then, in a given territory, make weekly or semi-weekly visits, picking up the film used and leaving the next to be shown. A flivver would be needed probably for every 200 miles of territory; in thickly congested sections perhaps less territory would be covered.

100 $7.50 TOWNS IN 150 MILES

Between New York and Albany—a distance of about 150 miles—there are approximately 100 towns which pay on an average $7.50 a booking. No more. They are visited by salesmen of the more important companies once a month. These salesmen, with traveling expenses, cost about $150 a week and if they do $400 to $500 in business each week they are going strong. A motor truck, loaded with film, could reach these same exhibitors every other day, supply film, save expressage, and reduce the cost materially. And this could happen anywhere else—except in the very sparsely settled sections of this country.

LITTLE HOPE FROM THE OLD LINE CONCERNS

From the well regulated old line concerns little can be hoped for. Some of them do not know just what their distribution costs. Surprising? Don't believe it? All right. But it's true, nevertheless. They have figures; reports, yes. But definite knowledge—no. Not by a big jugful. So if any relief is to come for distribution it must start elsewhere.

Suppose you were told that Pathe Exchange handles on an average 185,000 reels of film a month; would you believe it? Probably not. But it does. That means, averaging four weeks to a month, that each week Pathe handles approximately 800 or more reels daily in its various exchanges. That's some record.

A concern which handles such an amount of product should know distribution. And if you think Elmer Pearson hasn't his data down pat just take another think. It might prove a liberal education to some distribution executives to know the way Pearson has his data assembled.

It would mean very little additional in the way of help, for Pathe to handle over 200,000 reels a month. And it is some such neutral distributor that one must look for the development that must come, in time, in this business. Of course grouping together of independents would bring about the same result—if they could be grouped. But vanity alone will keep old line concerns from making a joint move.

THE BOOKING OFFICE IDEA

The difficulties of bringing about such a combination naturally reverts to the booking office idea, in which Harry Schwalbe and Sam Katz are a unit in belief, and which is one of the pet ideas of Jules Mastbaum. These men are convinced that sooner or later something like a booking office must eventuate. They believe it is the certain way of bringing out of the existent chaos something like order, and changing a loss to at least a reasonable basis of business.

AHEM!

Said one of the picture wits: "I wouldn't produce a costume picture not even if you would provide the costumes." Business of costume company managers weeping.

FROM THE OTHER SIDE

Little ol'e England. Where there has been a merry hullabaloo over prices. And the claim that American distributors chiefly First National—have been slashing. Relative to which F. N. asked the trade papers to look over their books. "Bioscope" did. And then printed a long article. Which, in part said:

"As to prices charged for block-booked or franchise-booked pictures, our representative was given every opportunity of noting them, and they vary from £300 to £3, but in every case were prices consistent with the "run" and the town. The rumor that First National were accepting giving-away prices is not proved. Our representative was asked not to disclose the prices, but was perfectly satisfied that any other firm would be very glad to accept those which were seen on the contracts.

"The form of contract used is that in regular use by First National and has no special clauses which would embarrass the exhibitor further than such contracts usually do."

NOT AN EXPLOITATION STUNT

Every Tuesday at the Astor. There is a Brothers' Luncheon Club. At which the younger brothers. Of a group of well known film men. Have their lunch and talk. For example there is Harry Brandt, brother of Billy. And Henry Echma, brother of Sam. And Clarence Cohen, brother of Sydney. Then too, there is Phil Zierler, brother of Sam and George Steiner, brother of Charlie.

They are all in the business. And they all deny that the club is an exploitation stunt. For "Big Brother" or "All the Brothers Were Valiant."

RESTING

Down Bermuda way. Not going to think of pictures, or picture people for a whole, full week if it can be done. Want to look at the lilies. Bye, Bye.

"Big Brother"—F. P.-L. Capitol, Cincinnati

INQUIRER—A pronounced humanitarian—the spirit of brotherhood and sympathy prevent it from becoming sordid, and gracious, if not very subtle sort of humor t it from ever becoming melodramatic. But by far the most agreeable trait "Big Brother" is the way it teaches a great lesson without straining to do so. RES-STAR—Rex Beach's "Big Brother" is a made-to-order story, written for the Big Brother movement. * * * Moore is happily cast as the young leader, making it the best of his recent Little Mickey Bennett as "Midge" shares stellar honors with Moore.

Crystal, Indianapolis

RES-STAR—Action and heart appeal of the film made "Humoresque" an outstanding success are the chief elements of "Big Brother," * * * with * * * a new child Mickey Bennett, who is sure to have a bright future.

Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * we are quite sure that Moore will take it good naturedly when that little Mickey Bennett fairly runs with "Big Brother," a picture that will warm your hearts.

"Call of the Canyon"—F. P.-L. Mall, Cleveland

RES-STAR—It drags almost to the point of tiresome, this "Call of the Canyon," many of the modern-day "shicks" and much of what is called gay, society life in New York and other points east. Both Richard Dix and Lois Wilson work hard to make the film across, but their task is almost impossible.

RAIN DEALER—* * * a successful and interesting treatment of the theme of contrast between the east and west. * * * The picture is well done, the story holds the interest and with two pretty girl principals and a wealth of fine scenic effects, the film is generally endowed with beauty. We liked it.

RES-STAR—* * * one more picture of the kind that opens spaces where men are either heroes or villains, where people are rewarded or punished according to their deserts and where the cordial greeting of the native is, "Welcome glad to meet you." * * * The picture seems an unsuitable vehicle for Lois Wilson and, thru no apparent faults of hers, she is denied her laurels. It gives a better opportunity to Richard Dix * * * Marjorie Main as Flo, * * * Noah Beery * * *

"The Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Rialto, Chicago

HERALD—* * * belongs to the roman-comedy type, but unfortunately it isn't so romantic and its comedy is as lean as an old friend Jack Spratt. * * * there is nothing surer in the world at this moment than that Connie Talmadge belongs in the picture. Some of the most refreshing moments of my life have been spent in her presence, and I trust that she will flourish in "The Dangerous Maid" (as I shall, naturally) and make another "Dulcy" for us.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L. Palace, Montreal

HERALD—The story is well told, and if it lacks originality, it certainly possesses romantic interest, enhanced by notable settings and by artistic photographic achievement.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Pictorially, "The Eternal City" is a gem. In addition * * * the film is a drama in the form of swirling mobs that defy defiance to government and civilization on the very piles of the eternal city's ruins, or civilization, and a throbbing love story. But it is only the latter and the title are left of Hall Caine's book, * * *

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhib. Merrill, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—The comedy at times verges on the slapstick but it is clean slapstick, in the kind that will especially appeal to children and those adults who have never forgotten how to be kids again. Mabel Normand is the whole show but there is a competent cast in the background nevertheless.

"The Great White Way"—Gold.-Cos. California, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 23)

DAILY NEWS—Highly seasoned with thrilling moments; touched here and there with heart interest; sprinkled with bits of comedy for relief, "The Great White Way" * * * undoubtedly go down in the records as a whale of a box-office-money-getting-masterpiece, despite the fact that the plot is extremely thin and weak-kneed.

EXPRESS—* * * from a box-office point of view it must be admitted entirely satisfactory. * * * The story is a long-drawn-out melodrama.

HERALD—For downright good entertainment "The Great White Way" would be hard to surpass.

RECORD—The plot is delightful and rollicking, with just enough melodrama to contrast with the comedy.

TIMES—It is an interesting story, but has been padded with such an over-abundance of propaganda and advertising that the approximately two hours required to show it occasionally proves tiresome.

"George Washington, Jr."—Warners' Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 23)

DAILY NEWS—* * * clean, wholesome fun, and worthy of patronage.

EXAMINER—* * * is excellent comedy entertainment. It stars Wesley Barry by act of Warner Brothers, who made the picture, but it features to a fare-ye-well Charles Conklin, * * *

EXPRESS—Now don't look for anything artistic in "George Washington, Jr." Neither is there any subtlety. Just broad burlesque.

HERALD—Made to order for Wesley Barry. * * *

RECORD—There is plenty of opportunity for the screen prodigy to show his ability as a finished actor in "George Washington, Jr.," and Wesley makes the most of it.

"Half-a-Dollar Bill"—Metro Capitol, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—There are many dramatic moments in "Half-a-Dollar Bill," * * *

NORTH AMERICAN—Very "mellow" melodrama. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * bound to have a popular appeal. It does not claim to be a super-super spectacular film. It tells a simple story in a splendid fashion.

RECORD—* * * is a good story with lots of sea scenes, the photography of which is excellent. The titles or captions which help to explain the action are rather careless in their writing and some of the minor incidents which are needed in the way of developing the plot are unduly prolonged.

"Happiness"—Metro State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Good direction, capable acting, excellent sub-titles and good photography combine to produce a picture that holds the attention and gives a great deal of pleasure, in spite of the fact that the plot has no complications, there are no "big scenes" and no shooting or stabbing bees. It is remarkable but true, and the credit must be divided between Miss Laurette Taylor, King Vidor and J. Hartley Manners.

"The Heritage of the Desert" F. P.-L.

Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending Feb. 23)

BULLETIN—There are times when one almost forgets to follow the thread of the story in watching the great scenic panorama. If nothing else, realistic background has been brought to this picture * * *

CALL—Zane Grey never wrote a better western thriller * * * There are thrills. There is comedy. And there is a pretty love theme throughout.

CHRONICLE—* * * a vigorous, meaty and vastly entertaining photoplay with plenty of fighting for the most rabid admirer of melodrama, a nice love story and much very beautiful scenery.

DAILY HERALD—Lloyd Hughes * * * does the best he can with the most unreasonably stupid hero role ever perpetrated upon a supposedly stellar artist in such a photoplay. And, in the majority, the story is commonplace. * * * The climax is a winner * * *

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—Universal—Adams, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Never before has there been shown such massive sets, such superb directing, more beautiful photography, and never before have so many actors passed before the camera in a single production. * * *

But greater than all the massive sets and colorful scenes of mobs numbering thousands is the remarkable portrayal of the Hunchback by Lon Chaney. * * * and to him alone is due the honor for much of the success of this screen version of Victor Hugo's classic.

NEWS It is Chaney's hideous yet sympathetic part in this fast-moving tale of the Middle Ages that sears itself into one's memory to remain long after the more stirring and spectacular passages of the picture have come and gone. * * * Altogether Chaney's performance is one of the greatest single characterizations the screen has ever known.

TIMES—Story, acting, direction and production—all four points stand out * * * When these four elements get together and blend as they do in this picture entertainment can't help but result. * * * Without an exception, this "make-up" affected by Chaney is the most marvelous bit of "stage-craft" we ever have witnessed. It's a work of art.

"Innocence"—C. B. C. Regent, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—It is interesting if somewhat overdrawn and at times illogical. The star is capably supported.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—It has been transferred to the screen with great fidelity.

"Jack O' Clubs"—Universal Cameo, San Francisco (Week ending Feb. 23)

CHRONICLE—The story is very much the same thing that is printed in the kind of magazines that the news butchers sell on the local trains. "Jack O' Clubs" is not a bit more true to life than they, nor is it one whit less exciting.

DAILY HERALD—* * * affording very good entertainment.

DAILY NEWS—The tale moves briskly, with lots of action, * * *

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"—Vita. Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—"Let Not Man Put Asunder," impresses each spectator according to the individual ideas and ideals, for there is no preachment in the picture. * * * There are tense moments * * * absorbing bits of character study here and there and a touch of humor there renders the whole a work of art.

POST-DISPATCH—The fine screen presence and acting ability of Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen give an air of unusual distinction * * * The cast, the acting and the general atmosphere of the picture are on a par with the outstanding personalities of the stars and the result is a well-balanced production which compares favorably with the stage version. * * *

STAR—There is so much grief and hand-wringing in "Let Not Man Put Asunder," at the Kings, the play becomes delirious.

TIMES—For the first time in their long careers, Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen are co-starred in the same photo play.

"The Love Master"—1st Nat'l Metropolitan, Los Angeles (Week ending Feb. 23)

DAILY NEWS—Cleverly directed, beautifully photographed, with some magnificent cloud effects and snow scenes very well done. * * *

EXPRESS—But the big thrill of the picture is the dog race, in which fully 12 long dog teams speed across the snow and ice-bound mountains and valleys. No fake stuff this.

HERALD—* * * Strongheart, * * * steps up on the high places reserved for the emotional stars and seems perfectly at home in the high altitude.

RECORD—Never before, perhaps, have dogs been featured in a large screen production as leads over human actors. The picture from that standpoint itself is a pleasing novelty. * * * There are thrills aplenty.

TIMES—And if you want to get a real thrill—feel the blood tingling through your veins as it hasn't tingled since your first horse race, * * * go see Strongheart, the canine Campinini, and his wife, Lady Jule, race like mad in the dog-team race staged in "The Love Master."

Metropolitan, Washington

STAR—* * * Strongheart, the police dog, and his bride, Lady Jule, a fascinating canine blond, display remarkable intelligence. * * * Thrills are given by the picture in the dog sled race that traverses picturesque expanses of Canadian mountain scenery.

"The Marriage Circle"—Warners Modern & Beacon, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—* * * watch Mr. Lubitsch's film reel off. Note how, from the opening glimpse of a bare toe protruding through an untrimmed sock to the fading view of a dignified medico pursuing at full speed down an avenue the vision of a pretty woman, the narrative finds form in visual symbol and dumb-show. Scarcely more than a dozen or two sub-titles besprinkle the picture.

"Maytime"—Preferred Karlton, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—* * * has lost some of its beauty and effectiveness in the screen version * * * but it still retains the original elements of sentiment and interest.

NORTH AMERICAN—Both are enacted in beautiful and costly settings and costumes. * * * the action moves entirely too slow to provide much exciting entertainment. Its chief value lies in its picturesque quality, but after all, a little picturesqueness goes a long way.

RECORD—Ethel Shannon is charming and appealing in the leading feminine role and Harrison Ford plays the opposite role effectively. The picture is greatly helped by the recurrence of the music of "Sweetheart" heard during the showing of the picture.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Mc Vickers, Chicago

TRIBUNE—Costumes, sets and scenery are all you could desire. It seems to me they usually are in pictures that Sam Wood directs. All the work is marked by a fine sense of repression.

Palace, Washington

STAR—The production is a colorful story of a youthful and gullible wife who portrays the moth and narrowly averts a singeing of her wings.

TIMES—Seen in the light of the first two or three reels, nothing can be discerned but perfection, after which comes a reversion to true Hollywoodian style. * * * Miss Mack-aill proves her right to a place in the sun by her splendid performance * * * Nor is Ricardo Cortez, a comparative newcomer, to be denied his deserved praise.

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P.-L. Walnut, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—* * * it is one of those films that are enjoyable without being great, and weak without being mediocre. Its weakness seems to lie not so much in the fact that it has many defects—for it hasn't—as in the fact that it lacks any overwhelming and outstanding merits.

TIMES-STAR—* * * Meighan finds himself in a most congenial role and plays it with that whole-heartedness which has made the Meighan personality famous.

State, Cleveland

NEWS—Tom Meighan scores another triumph in the "Pied Piper Malone." It is a picture in which pathos and comedy are intermingled. There comes a lump in your throat one moment and the next you're smiling. * * * The cast * * * is well balanced.

PRESS—Meighan has a splendid screen personality and acting ability. One might suppose the picture would be particularly good. We did, and found it wasn't. Certainly there seems to be no Tarkington touch in "Pied Piper Malone."

Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—This is a trifling, although entertaining confection, made interesting by the star and the author. Meighan is one of the most likeable of the screen's leading men. He never fails to draw attention, even in material so unsuitable to his talents. * * *

STAR—Mr. Tarkington has written a story for Meighan that possesses a rare charm and a great quantity of human interest. * * * There is a great deal of humor and freshness in "Pied Piper Malone," which should add much to Meighan's popularity and which are more than likely the results of the fine work by both Mr. Tarkington and Mr. Geraghty.

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—Booth Tarkington and Thomas Meighan have made a most happy combination in "Pied Piper Malone," * * * it is a delightful production, full of natural pathos and humor, interspersed with thrilling scenes.

"Reno"—Gold.-Cosmop. Fox, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Yet there is nothing shown that was not known before, and various bar associations have not only indicated what the conditions are, but how they may be remedied. Perhaps the author will give the remedy in another scenario.

NORTH AMERICAN—There are only flashes of the characteristic Rupert Hughes. * * * The best thing about the picture is the cast, which is an excellent one.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * It has many dull stretches during which facts and information are being imparted to the movie fans who wish primarily to be entertained and not informed. It is such a vast subject that it is not surprising if there are several breaks in the continuity.

"Rosita"—Unit. Artists Eastman, Rochester

JOURNAL—Mary Pickford's "Rosita" is quite different from Pola Negri's "The Spanish Dancer." The most outstanding difference is that it is much less serious and picturesque. Mr. Lubitsch has put a lot of fun in the tale. * * *

TIMES-UNION—* * * Another of Ernst Lubitsch's triumphs of direction. * * * The story moves with celerity and is always amusing, there being no attempt to stress any serious note of passion or emotion.

"Thy Name Is Woman"—Metro Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—For those who like film theme depending almost entirely on a sex basis this picture will meet with approval. "Thy Name Is Woman" is heavy with love scenes which at times become so violent that they almost border on brutality.

The plot is somewhat weak, I believe, but the almost perfect acting of Ramon Navarro and Barbara La Marr carry it over the rough spots.

PLAIN DEALER—The method of developing the plot and penetrating views into the characters and their growth are those rarer touches you find on the screen. The picture was directed by Fred Niblo from a foreign play. He selected Ramon Navarro, Barbara LaMarr and William V. Mong for sides of his triangle. Too, all of the important action takes place in one set which is unusual—but not cheap. * * * Navarro, the beautiful man, is this time in splendid element. * * * Miss LaMarr, without her beautiful togs, displays great emotional powers.

PRESS—It is adroitly directed. But this adroitness and suavity are expended on no fresh observation of life. * * * The whole play, the old-fashioned drama in the movies as it was on the stage, is so cleverly presented that the picture may be of general interest, (But a man who sat behind us snored, so we had to change our seat.)

TIMES—* * * in straining for a rosy ending, they spoiled what would have been a magnificent tragedy, but that is small matter, most film patrons dislike tragedy. * * * is not by any means a poor picture, despite its obviously weak ending, and a series of platitudinous sub-titles varying the first word of the title with other terms such as "misery" "enigma" and "hope."

By far the fines tacting in the picture is done by Barbara LaMarr, who portrays with admirable deftness all the wiles and depth of feeling of a woman in love. Ramon Navarro falls considerably below the standard he set in "Scaramouche," William V. Mong does a commendable piece of acting.

Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—The play, built about the oldest plot in the world, that of the so-called eternal triangle, nevertheless has received a highly original treatment and the outcome of the melodrama is an unsolved problem until the final scene has flickered out. * * * The whole thing is beautifully filmed and marked by extraordinary attention to detail.

NEWS—* * * a Latin romance enclosed in the Eternal triangle. * * * audiences found it interesting * * * and they discovered a good deal to admire in the department of players who seemed greatly in character. Ramon Navarro, * * * looks national enough to have come from Seville, and Barbara LaMarr, * * * is a believable senorita, dark, subtle, graceful as a mountain cat though somewhat oversize.

Delmonte, West End, Lyric & C. tol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—The popularity the stars is drawing big crowds to all theaters and their followers are not disappointed in the picture, as it surpasses last effort. * * *

POST-DISPATCH—Barbara LaMarr Ramon Navarro do some of the tensest a in their careers. * * *

STAR—Ramon Navarro and Barbara Marr are always well cast when they portray Latin characters. * * * The flaming passion here is very flaming indeed.

TIMES—* * * Story, acting and a tions combine to make this photoplay interesting. * * * The story is a departure the usual run of photoplay plots, and as is worth seeing. The supporting cast is quite and there are plenty of thrills for who must have spectacular effects. * * *

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l State, Los Angeles (Week ending Feb. 23)

DAILY NEWS—Sparkling with youth mantic to a nicely with a generous portion adventure thrown in for good measure, "Twenty-One" is a joyful, human photoplay. * * *

EXAMINER—A good picture, this Well made it is, simple, plausible and, or whole, an honest piece of work.

EXPRESS—There are no more magnet able young folk in the cinema realm Richard Barthelmess and Dorothy MacL and any picture having both of them in it be graded well above the average.

HERALD—* * * Is an unusual sto and one in which the first love depicted in story is the permanent love. Probably the why the picture, or rather the story, is usual.

RECORD—A delightful story of young is "Twenty-One." Not intensely dram * * * But there is quiet drama, situation natural and true to those almost everyone periences one time or another that they a chuckle of recognition. And for these picture is delightful.

TIMES—Youth has its victory and the sults, while not altogether convincing, are least refreshing. * * *

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold.-Cosmop. California, 'Frisco (Week ending Feb. 23)

BULLETIN—Barrymore dominates picture throughout, while Miss Owen g a delightful performance. * * *

CALL—"Unseeing Eyes" has beauty, tion—and more important perhaps than a thing else, a star.

CHRONICLE—* * * interesting eno for an evening's entertainment, altho there have been better pictures than the ture, which is rather aimless as a plot. * * *

DAILY HERALD—* * * contains con erable action, but not all of which is exa plausible.

DAILY NEWS—We thought Lincoln Carter's "Midnight Mail" rather full of tion and speed, but it's a slow train al side * * * "Unseeing Eyes."

EXAMINER—The production is amaz ily dramatic and the scenes are full of majesty and beauty of the snowclad No ern mountains.

Regent, Rochester

JOURNAL—The story is strong, vigor type which has an almost universal app The presence alone of Mr. Barrymore in cast marks it as a picture worth seeing. * * * And, again we must mention it, the scen is truly glorious.

TIMES-UNION—* * * is cramped so of realistic detail that there are times w the story almost is lost from sight. Some this realistic detail is extremely interest and beautiful, while, at other times, the rism becomes rather repellant.

"Woman To Woman"—Selznick Gifts, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—* * * glittering product dealing with the night life of London : Paris. During the first part of the pict it seems shallow and artificial, but inter gradually is heightened, and toward the it acquires much more emotional fervor : dramatic power.

TIMES-STAR—* * * provides an h or so of fairly good entertainment. The tertainment probably would be better, ho ever, if the film did not bear witness to artistic incisions of the censor. * * *

"The Law Forbids"
Universal-Jewel

As a Whole.....NOT NEARLY ENOUGH CHANCES IN THIS OR BABY PEGGY. TOO LITTLE OF THE STORY ACTUALLY REVOLVES ABOUT HER BUT SHE'S DARLING IN INCIDENTAL BITS.

Cast....A cute youngster and clever as well. Present vehicle not nearly as appropriate or well suited to her as her last—"The Darling of New York." Role doesn't give her a prominent enough place in story. Cast....Elinor Fair, Robert Ellis and Winifred Bryson make up the eternal triangle and handle parts ably enough.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama. If it were not for Baby Peggy's appearance in the picture and her cute little incidental bits, there wouldn't be very much to "The Law Forbids." It contains a very conventional plot of the eternal triangle variety with the familiar "a little child shall lead them" twist. Of course this part gives Baby Peggy a chance to put over some of her genuinely adorable playing and her efforts to "see her Daddy," including her spectacular ride to New York unaccompanied, followed by her unexpected entrance into the stage play in which her Dad is appearing, all affords the youngster opportunities to win over the audience. But the story itself is of such a familiar formula that you merely wait for Peggy's entrances and when she's not on the set, the picture falls quite flat. There are not as many laughs in Peggy's latest feature as there was in "The Darling of New York." Nor is she required to work quite as hard. Her adventures with Alexander, a pet chicken, supply some amusing bits, as well as the little star's cute mannerisms and facial expressions.

Box Office Angle.....Baby Peggy's appearance will probably prove a saving grace in this instance. Although they may be disappointed in the story, they'll be pleased with the little star's work.

Exploitation.....If you played the star's "The Darling of New York" and it made a hit you should easily be able to bring them in by recalling that picture and announcing the title of her latest. Be sure and use a trailer showing Peggy with her pet chicken, Alexander. If you care to acquaint them with the story, catchlines would do. Say: "He was ready to leave his wife for another woman but see how Baby Peggy brings her father and mother together again in 'The Law Forbids.'" A youngster who resembles Baby Peggy could be driven about in a pony cart and give the picture a good bit of publicity.

"Poisoned Paradise"
Preferred Pictures

As a Whole....HAS SOME FIRST RATE BOX OFFICE ANGLES AND WILL LIKELY PLEASE THE AVERAGE PICTURE GOER. NEEDS CUTTING TO SPEED UP SOME SLOW SPOTS.

Cast....Clara Bow the most interesting member. Makes a cute little French kid who'd rather be Kenneth Harlan's sweetie than his "little sister." Kenneth Harlan suitable hero and Carmel Myers in her glory as the dazzling vamp. Others in the cast: Raymond Griffith, Joseph Swickard, Andre de Beranger.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama. Exhibitors will probably find "Poisoned Paradise" a first rate box office attraction for it has many angles usually considered to represent good audience appeal. The production is good, settings at times lavish (some of them look very much like Von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives" sets) and Carmel Myers supplies a vamp sequence that won't be missed by many of your folks if they are given half an idea of the picture. Clara Bow's contribution in a characterization that she does splendidly will also please them. She helps in no small measure to make the picture interesting. The story itself holds some good situations, many of which would have been much more effective if director Gasnier hadn't distributed them over so much footage. He holds scenes and small bits of business far too long for their relative importance thus dragging the interest on more than one occasion. The idea in which the professor works his mathematical formula for sure winning at Monte Carlo offers interesting material and leads the plot to a climax which finally makes Clara Bow the wife of hero Harlan.

Box Office Angle....Undoubtedly a good box office number. Has fine exploitation angles and should bring you in good returns providing you handle it properly.

Exploitation.....About the best advertising angle in connection with "Poisoned Paradise," the picturization of Robert W. Service's novel, is the claimed fact that it is "the forbidden story of Paris and Monte Carlo—made from a book that is banned by Continental Police because it tells too much." Use a trailer showing some of the bits in which Clara Bow and Kenneth Harlan are working at their house-keeping plan. Stills showing Monte Carlo, others including shots in which Carmel Myers appears in her various gowns will also interest them. Preferred offers a very complete press hook with further suggestions.

Direction....Gasnier, good but holds scenes way too long.

Author..... Robert W. Service Scenario..... Waldemar Young Cameraman..... Karl Struss Photography..... Good Locale ..... Monte Carlo Length ..... 6,800 feet.

Laurette Taylor in "Happiness"
Metro

As a Whole....LAURETTE TAYLOR IN "HAPPINESS" A KEEN DISAPPOINTMENT AFTER HER SUCCESS IN "PEG O' MY HEART." NEITHER STAR NOR STORY CAPABLE OF GETTING THE PICTURE OVER.

Star....Doesn't equal her performance in Peg. Not as pleasing nor interesting but much of her failure to repeat the favorable impression of her former portrayal, may be credited to poor direction. King Vidor has missed badly on this one, especially in the handling of the star and her supporting company. Certainly didn't measure up to his success with "Peg."

Cast....Fairly well suited types but have little real work to do. They include Pat O'Malley, Hedda Hopper, Cyril Chadwick, Edith Yorke, Laurence Grant, Patterson Dial.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama. After the success that King Vidor and Laurette Taylor made of J. Hartley Manner's "Peg O' My Heart," it was to be expected that "Happiness" would prove at least comparatively good but unfortunately such is not the case. And it is somewhat difficult to place the blame. The theme, in the first place offered nowhere near the possibilities of Peg, consisting, as it does of a very slight, cinderella sort of plot. In order to round it out and make it suitable for screen purposes, it has been padded and filled to the limit. And eight reels chiefly of padding can hardly be counted on to hold an audience, even with Laurette Taylor at times putting over her inimitable comedy business in fine style. But she has no variation to her playing. It's either a pucker of her lip, a wink of her eye, or a kick; and she fits them in as often as possible. The development is mostly incident, and seldom interesting enough incident to hold an audience.

Box Office Angle...."Happiness" is a sad name in this case. Shears aplenty may help make it "happier" but in its present conglomerate mass of by-play, it fails to measure up to good entertainment.

Exploitation....You had better see "Happiness." If you think it's widely separated laughs or scant heart interest touches will be sufficient to satisfy, you'll have enough to talk about in the name of Laurette Taylor and the fact that she appears in the adaptation of her husband's stage play, "Happiness." The title lends itself readily to "Pollyanna" stunts and "Smile Week" slogans that would naturally afford good advertising.

Direction....King Vidor; capable of far better things than this.

Author..... J. Hartley Manners Scenario..... J. Hartley Manners Cameraman..... Chester A. Lyons Photography..... Usually all right Locale ..... New York Length ..... About 8,000 feet.

"America"
D. W. Griffith

As a Whole...ONCE AGAIN THE CHARGING HORSEMEN GIVE THE THRILL. ONCE AGAIN GRIFFITH TRIUMPHS EVEN THO A GREAT EPIC SUBJECT HAS BEEN ALLOWED TO DWINDLE AT TIMES TO SHEER MELODRAMA. BUT THE PUBLIC WILL PROBABLY EAT IT UP.

Cast....Large, but few well known to fans. Carol Dempster sweet as the heroine; Lionel Barrymore a regular villain, Charles Mack excellent. No others have any box office value, but keep an eye on Neil Hamilton, a find, who will be heard of considerably unless all signs fail. Excellent as the hero.

Type of Story.....America in the making. Many scenes of Revolutionary period bring historical value and through it is intertwined the love story of the daughter of a Tory for an American lad. Of course it ends happily when hero brings the cavalry to the aid of the fort in which heroine and her father have taken refuge from the villain's murderous crew. The sort of picture which will be acclaimed as having great interest to all, with notable shots of Paul Revere's ride and the suffering of the American soldiers at Valley Forge. But the scenario makes far too much of the acts of Walter Butler, who, dreaming of conquering an Empire, dominates the picture, and will cause many to re-read history to see just how important Butler really was. Notables of the Revolutionary period presented, including Washington, Patrick Henry, Samuel Adams, and George King.

Box Office Angle.....Likely to appeal to all Americans. Those who may dispute some of the activities of Butler will only cause discussion and want others to see it. Of general interest.

Exploitation....You have so much to use with this that if you are only half a showman it should be easy. It will be some time, however, before it reaches the picture houses and meanwhile you can keep an eye on what is done for it in the big cities where it will be road shown.

Direction....D. W. Griffith; the old Master again assumes his leadership. So much is expected of D. W. that when he fails to give all that he might he is criticized. But at that he does so much more than almost any other director that he stands out conspicuously. In this, however, he had so much to handle that at times it looks as if the big dominating idea got away from him.

Author..... Robert W. Chambers Scenario by..... Chambers and D. W. Griffith

Art Director..... Charles M. Kirk Cameramen .. Henry Sartov, G. W. Bitzer, Marcel Le Picard, H. S. Sintzenich

Photography..... Gorgeous. How does Griffith get it?

Locale .. America in the Revolutionary period; a few shots of King George' court.

Footage .. Still being cut; at present about 14 reels.

"No Mother To Guide Her"

For

As a Whole.....OLD SCHOOL VARIETY OF DRAMA THAT OFFERS DULL, DRAGGY PICTURE. WELL WORN SITUATIONS WITH DEVELOPMENT ILLOGICAL AND UNCONVINCING.

Cast....Genevieve Tobin featured in role which she does very nicely but which offers her little chance to gain a foothold as a screen player. Dolores Rouse a cold type but rather well suited as the girl shielded by Miss Tobin at the sacrifice of her own reputation. Jack MacLean is the cad and Jack Richardson a short-lived villain. Ruth Sullivan, George Dewey and Katherine Downer capable youngsters in proglogue.

Type of Story....Melodrama, strictly old-fashioned—the kind with the wronged girl, one who had a mother to guide her but wouldn't be guided, and the good little girl who had no mother but knew right from wrong and in return for the kindness bestowed upon her by the other girl's mother, is willing to sacrifice her own reputation and claim the child as her own. And then it all turns out lovely when it is discovered that the marriage was legal and the girl can announce that she was the rightful wife of the cad who deserted her but was killed in his last attempt to prevent the marriage from becoming known. Of course the girl never thought of looking up the validity of the marriage. It would have ended the picture too soon. Instead they take the popular roundabout method of arriving at a happy ending and after they've touched on what they probably concede to be a good variety of entertainment elements, the very simple conclusion straightens the tangle out nicely.

Box Office Angle....Not likely to be favorably received if your folks are schooled to expect good, logical stories with strong, sensible situations. Pretty poor entertainment.

Exploitation....The title is enough to suggest just what the picture is. Unless you think your folks' preferences still run along dime novel lines, don't make any promises. There are no names to entice them in. Genevieve Tobin is known for her stage work but is not familiar to screen fans. None of the others in the cast are familiar either. You know best whether or not you want to capitalize on the title with catchlines. It can be done if you want to bring them in. A trailer of the bit in which the cad husband, trying to prevent the girl from announcing that he is the father of her child, is killed when the machine is struck by a train, would promise a good thrill. Catchlines might be used to give an idea of the story if you think they need to know something about it but the title should take care of it amply.

Fred Thomson in "North of Nevada"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....NOT MUCH TO THE STORY BUT ACTION AND STUNT THRILLS OFFER SOME SURPRISES FOR A GOOD MAJORITY OF THE "FAN" CROWD.

Star....Will please the admirers of cowboy stars. Does his stunts ably and supplies pep and action where the story needs it, and that is most of the time.

Cast....Ample. Hazel Keener the girl, George Magrill wily Indian villain and Taylor Graves makes attempts at being a comedian. Chester Conklin in unimportant bits. Others Josef Swickard, Joe Butterworth, Wilfred Lucas.

Type of Story....Western. Another instance where if it were not for the good action and stunts the picture would be lost. The story itself is without original situations and has a plot which suffers from lack of unity and logic. There are the usual familiar twists and the development holds no suspense whatever, that is as far as the eventual finish is concerned. Of course there are several instances of suspense in the customary hero-villain fights on the edge of cliffs, etc., but even then, the "movie-trained" audience knows well enough that hero will never be the one to go over. They do make one variation, however, in the final plunge with hero landing in the water below. His trained horse, after stamping the villain to death, leaps off the cliff and rescues his master. Fred Thomson, a pleasing enough western hero, does much to make the picture satisfy. He works hard and his stunts consisting of rescues, fights, daring leaps and bounds will please the average "fan" crowd—those that favor action and thrills in preference to the other entertainment elements.

Box Office Angle....Good average picture. Not strong on story end of it but you can likely count on action and stunt thrills to satisfy your people. No names that mean anything.

Exploitation....Since there are no players' names to count on, nor a title that will attract them without your playing it up in an unusual fashion, your best means of bringing them in will be to show a trailer of some of the better bits such as hero Thomson's spectacular ride on a cable, any of the fights, stopping the runaway, or where his horse rescues him from drowning. Let your folks know that "North of Nevada" is a western and where you know this will bring them in talk about the action and thrills.

"The Night Message"

Universal

As a Whole... CONVENTIONAL PLOT DEALING WITH POPULAR SOUTHERN FEUD FORMULA BUT GOOD PRODUCTION AND SPLENDID LOCATIONS, PLUS SOME EFFECTIVE CHARACTERIZATIONS SHOULD GET IT OVER.

Cast... Gladys Hulette pleasing as the heroine; Charles Cruze fair hero. Howard Truesdale first rate as old Southerner. Others Robert Gordon, Edgar Kennedy, Margaret Seddon, Norman Rankow.

Type of Story... Drama. Perley Poore Sheehan is responsible for both the story and direction of "The Night Message," a plot that on the whole consists of very familiar situations, leading up to an equally trite climax in which the suspense hinges upon the very well known threatened execution of an innocent man and the refusal of the governor to grant a reprieve. Director Sheehan has used all the contrivances for piling on the suspense and increasing the dramatic action. This serves readily to furnish excitement for the average audience. The Lefferts accuse young Longstreet, the last of their enemies, of killing Harney Lefferts. Lem Beeman, the guilty one, who shot Harney by accident, readily allows Longstreet to be blamed since he is jealous of the latter who has won the love of pretty Elsie Lefferts. The remainder of the story deals with the efforts of Elsie and Longstreet's mother to prove his innocence and the eventual dramatic confession and death of the guilty one, followed by the marriage of Elsie and Longstreet.

Box Office Angle... Pretty good entertainment for the average audience. If they want action, suspense, romance and like good small town atmosphere, they'll be satisfied.

Exploitation... You have some rather effective exploitation angles that should be used to advantage. Play up the dramatic action of the climax and talk about the suspense that it contains. Use catchlines such as: "The jury said he was guilty and must pay the penalty. See how a mother fought for the freedom of the son she knew was innocent. Did she win? See for yourself in 'The Night Message,' Universal's latest release at the blank theater." The title could be used effectively as a teaser—"Watch for The Night Message on (using showing date)". Gladys Hulette is the best known of the players. You might use her name. Display stills in the lobby and a trailer to give an idea of the feature's pictorial appeal. The locations are beautiful.

Direction... Perley Poore Sheehan; usually all right.

"Floodgates"

Lowell Film Prod.—State Rights

As a Whole... LITTLE THAT'S ENTERTAINING IN PICTURE WITH IMPROBABLE STORY AND WILD MELLER SITUATIONS. TRITE PLOT THAT CAN HARDLY BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Cast... John Lowell sincere and tries very hard to get the picture over but his efforts alone are insufficient to make up for the many shortcomings of both story and production. Evangeline Russell amateurish and does not screen well. Jane Thomas capable but not given very much to do. A long list of unknown people—names that won't mean a thing at the box office.

Type of Story... Melodrama; starts off with promises of being really interesting but soon drifts into commonplace, improbable situations that fail to hold the slightest conviction. Deals with one of those trusting small town heroes who is looked upon as the leader of the townfolk and when he agrees to sell his property to a man, the villain naturally, they all follow suit. But when, later, they discover they have been defrauded he assumes the responsibility and by way of revenge, blows up a dam, the flood from which will wash away villain's home. It happens that the avenger's little daughter is undergoing an operation in this very house. Of course she is saved and the villain seeks the forgiveness of the man he wronged. To tell this fairly simple story, there is a continuity that beats around the bush, dragging in much unnecessary and irrelevant business and consequently causing a slow, tedious development. There is a resultant poorly sustained interest and unless you can count on the few thrills such as the motor accident, the flood and rescue, to satisfy them, there isn't very much left in the picture to entice them.

Box Office Angle... Not especially prosperous; picture rather amateurish in its making and not big enough in story to make it attractive. Nor are there any names to work on.

Exploitation... When the meller is laid on so thick, and is so improbable, that it verges on the point of comedy, it isn't likely to satisfy. And that is what happens with "Floodgates." The director has tried so strenuously to be melodramatic that he has overdone it, to the point of making it funny. If there were some names with box office values, a little more action and thrills, the story might pass. As it is there is little for you to talk about and certainly nothing to make promises for.

Dustin Farnum in
"Kentucky Days"

Fox

As a Whole... DRAMA OF COLONIAL AND GOLD RUSH DAYS THAT OFFERS SOME GOOD ACTION AND FAIR DRAMATIC SUSPENSE EVEN THOUGH THEME IS OF FARFETCHED VARIETY.

Star... Has the sort of role that he seems to glory in. A most unconvincing characterization called for but Farnum succeeds rather well in getting it over. Required to do some outlandish things.

Cast... Ordinary. No one very important nor giving any outstanding performance; includes Margaret Fielding, Miss Woodthorp, Bruce Gordon and Wm. P. DeVaul.

Type of Story... Drama. Whether or not the author, John Lynch, aims to show the difference between "then and now," in regard to the old triangle isn't disclosed but it does appear that he aims to contrast the unfaithful wife of Colonial days with the frivolous lady of the present, as well as to show you how a husband who found his wife in the arms of another would act in 1853. Instead of politely retiring and picking himself another mate, the hubby of those times ordered the duelling pistols and promptly did away with his enemy. Next he proceeded to order his wife from the home, freed all his slaves, then grasped a burning log from the grate and destroyed his home. As further punishment for the wife he took her on a wagon train journey to the West, ignoring her until she was lost in a sand storm. At this point he realized he still loved her, went after her and they lived happy ever after. Except for a realistic sand storm and the few thrills and action bits in connection with the wagon train episode, there is little to recommend this latest Farnum picture, a trite, improbable piece that is farfetched almost to the point of being ridiculous.

Box Office Angle... An average picture. Where the star is popular they may accept it and the improvement in the latter reels over the first may serve to send them out satisfied.

Exploitation... Indicate that the story transpires in old Colonial times and is a drama of the old South during the gold rush days. You might use catchlines reading: "What did husbands do in the old days when they found their wives unfaithful? Divorce them? No. See for yourself in 'Kentucky Days,' the latest Fox feature starring Dustin Farnum." Use trailer of the desert sand storm, or shots of the fire if you know they want some thrills to interest them.

"Three O'clock in the Morning"

C. C. Burr—State Rights

As a Whole... MAKES IT A MIGHTY INTERESTING PICTURE WITH THE FLAPPER JAZZ PERIOD WELL PLAYED UP. SHOULD DO VERY WELL IN VIEW OF THE CRAZE FOR THIS MATERIAL.

Players... Constance Binney excellent in the leading role. Great pity that she doesn't appear oftener. Gives a likeable performance and is easy to look at. Mary Carr as her mother—and gives the usual Mary Carr performance. Edmund Breese as the hard father; and he's hard. Richard Thorpe is hero. Others little Russell Griffin, William Bailey, and Edna May Oliver.

Type of Story... Regulation jazz; with heroine who wants to step out and meets the inevitable villain. A Sunday morning breakfast in the prim home of her prim parents leads to the smash and she starts to make her own living. Villain lands her a job as a dancer and then wants to exact pay. You know the kind. In the end the little heroine discovers—not too late—that hero's love is clean and fine and he swims ashore from a South American liner to put his arms around her. There isn't a lot to the story but the treatment makes it stand out unusually for this type of material. The suspense is well handled and the jazz parties and the Sunday breakfast in the prim old home is all to the good, plus some rather well worn but interesting situations.

Box Office Angle... Little better than the average, but good material of its kind. Few on the state right market meet the demand of this jazz type better. Only pity that Constance Binney is not better known with a greater following. This might mop up if it has the right kind of aid.

Exploitation... You have several good things to help out. The title is attractive and can be used to advantage. It is the title of a popular melody and while tie-ups with music concerns can easily be worked you can use a big cut out of the face of a clock, place it attractively in the lobby and use some photos of the cast on the big face of the clock. Of course use the melody in your orchestra. There are innumerable ways of using the title in throw-aways and one that might be used to advantage is to get the old litho of the girl kicking, with the face of a clock in the background. This is unusually interesting. Catchlines like this might be used: "Would you like to dance at three o'clock every morning, and then pay the piper? See how Constance Binney played and paid, at the blank theater."

Direction... Kenneth Webb; very good as a rule. Some nice touches.

Short Subject

"The National Rash"—Grantland Rice Pathe

Great for the Golfer

Type of production.....1 reel sports
Here's a reel to delight the golfer as well as the goofer. It goes way back to the beginning and shows how the game was originated in Scotland by a shepherd lad who hit a stone with his shepherd's crook. Coming down to the present date, a number of celebrities are shown in action, including Sarazen, Sweetser, Jones and Hagen. Last but far from least is a study of the "duffer who plays and pays" and his troubles in a sand trap and the rough will bring forth much sympathetic laughter, while his delight when a wild drive really lands the ball in the hole, will get a chuckle from anyone.

"Keep Healthy"—Universal

Mediocre Comedy

Type of production 1 reel comedy
Slim Summerville and Bobby Dunn are the featured players in this Universal short reel. They run around a lot, and work hard but the laughs aren't as frequent as they might be, although it may be considered satisfactory entertainment by a great many audiences. The comedians are gardeners in a sanatorium but are sent to get some trade by the boss. They pretend to be patient and doctor and work a fake cure in front of a crowd. Then, after securing a number of patients they pretend that Bobby has smallpox and so force the "guests" to leave, making sure that they pay before leaving.

"The Buccaneers"—Our Gang— Pathe

Another Humdinger

Type of production....2 reel comedy
The beloved "gang" has full opportunity to display its variations of histrionic ability and at the same time have as much fun as possible in Pathe comedy. They're all dressed up in pirate clothes, boots and unfortunately, their cherished vessel sinks the first time it is launched; is seen no more. Nothing daunts the pirate crew are playing in a sailing vessel that is moored near when its moorings become looser and they are really cast adrift. Picked up by a U. S. battleship, the kids are scared to death, but they escape from the sailors into the arms of awaiting parents who have been sent for by government launch. The laughs are many. The kids, a joy forever.

"The All Star Cast"—Aesop Fable Pathe

Good Cartoon Comedy

Type of production...1 reel animated cartoon.

This is a diverting number of Pathe's animated cartoon fables showing all the different acts of vaudeville show at the Animals' Open House. Should be good for a number of laughs, especially for the children in your audience.

"The Cake Eater"—Will Rogers— Pathe

First-rate Entertainment

Type of production....2 reel comedy

As a whole one of the funniest of the Will Rogers comedies yet to be released by Pathe. Will is seen as a typical messy-looking cowboy but two spinsters who have recently come West think he is "just grand." Believing that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach" they make him eat doughnuts and cake much against his will. There are some typically Rogeresque sub-titles that occasion many of the laughs. Thoroughly entertaining. We were sorry when it was over.

Adverse Bills In Ky.

Measures Would Sponsor Censorship and a Ten Per Cent Tax on All Amusements

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Louisville, Ky.—Fifty-two representatives of 100 Kentucky theaters have organized for a fight against the general Assembly bills which would create a State Board of Censors and would place a 10 per cent State tax on all amusements.

Tom Russell, Maysville, J. B. Stout, Danville, E. J. Wiseman, Harrodsburg, and W. R. Patti, Frankfort, were appointed members of a legislative committee to represent theater owners at Frankfort.

Special opposition was voiced to the proposed tax on amusements. It was pointed out that the tax would be an additional burden to the public and was declared to be unfair and inopportune in view of the fact that the Federal Government now is considering the removal of amusement taxes. This bill was introduced in the upper house by Senator H. F. Green of Mitchell.

One of the censorship bills is a Senate measure introduced by Senator Hiram Brock of Harlan while the other is a House bill introduced by Representative C. W. Ryans of Louisville. Both of the censorship bills have been reported favorably, it was said at the meeting, and have been read into the calendar.

The Ryans bill would provide that no "motion picture machine shall be operated except by hand power."

William Vogel Signs New Contract for Distribution of Hodkinson Output Abroad

William M. Vogel, who has been handling the Hodkinson product in foreign countries, has closed a new contract with the organization which vests in him the disposal of all foreign territories for a period of several years.

The contract is understood to be a large and important one, running into a considerable amount of money. Under the terms of it, there will be no lapse in the sale of the product since the agreement provides that Vogel is to begin disposing of the new line-up where he left off under the previous agreement.

Vogel has been operating one unit of his various enterprises under the name of the Young Pictures Corp. Notice of a change in name to the William Vogel Dist. Corp. has been filed with the Secretary of State in Albany. It is likely that it is under this new corporate name that he will handle the Hodkinson foreign sales.

Aid For Small Towns

Goldwyn To Investigate Needs of the Little Man—Bonns Starts in New York

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan is about to introduce an innovation in exhibitor service, according to home office executives. New York State has been selected as an experimental field in order to secure first hand knowledge of what the needs of the small exhibitor are.

Eddie Bonns, special sales representative, is in Buffalo this morning on the first leg of an intensive tour of the state. He intends visiting towns with a population as low as 1,000 for the definite purpose of learning what exhibitors want in the way of service. He will inquire about the conditions of prints; exploitation aids and in general, endeavor to ascertain what his organization can do to help.

Bonns will, of course, take in the larger cities, but his trip is essentially on behalf of the usually neglected little fellow.

Later, Bonns will travel in different territories throughout the country. His tour through New York State will take from five to six weeks alone.

In The Courts

In the dispute over "Der Galileer," "Passion Play of Jesus Christ," Supreme Court Justice Wagner has denied an application by Erwin Ostermaier for an injunction against Theodore Kreiner, Astoria Prod., Richard Schwartz, the Central Film Corp., Berlin, Charles Reinking, and others. The Court stated that if an injunction was granted, it would practically amount to an adjudication of the controversy before the trial and in such a case the truth must be heard and convincing, which in this case it is not.

Ostermaier contended that he made arrangements to buy the film, which was represented to be another "Ten Commandments," in behalf of the Astoria Prod. of which he is an officer, and that after the defendants found out how to go about it, they bought the picture for themselves and brought it over here in January.

Robert Schwobthaler, managing director of Express Film of Berlin, said in an affidavit that the film is owned by his company, and by George and Adolph Fassnacht, and that they are the sole distributors. He said that all Ostermaier ever did was to get an option on the film but he failed to make a payment of $5,000 at the time required and the deal was called off.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Blizzard"—Fox
Liberty, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—The story of "The Blizzard" is not particularly well done in the film version. There are wide gaps to interfere with a convenient following of the plot, if such it may be termed. The story itself, however, is romantic, out of the ordinary rut, and on the whole the picture is well worth seeing.

TIMES—Pictures taken during scientific explorations in the North have been incorporated into the story. They include a spectacular view of a reindeer stampede. * * * an interesting photoplay has been made of the materials.

"Boy of Mine"—1st Nat'l Lyric, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Few indeed are the motion pictures that have achieved, * * * so emphatic an emotional appeal, without the least tendency toward excess sentimentality. Genuineness of feeling and simplicity of treatment make this production one of the artistic gems of the current season. * * *

"By Divine Right"—S.-R.
Crandall's, Washington

STAR—It is a story which gets well out of the beaten path and affords entertaining silent drama. Mr. Dexter is cast in the role of a man who possesses something more than human perception and thereby is enabled to adjust the differences of those with whom he comes in contact.

"The Country Kid"—Warner's Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—* * * it is, * * * an attempt to make a feature photoplay out of a few simple incidents and some pleasant hokum. * * * Wesley Barry himself is a good deal more pleasing in this picture than in several of its predecessors. * * * But Wesley in many places plays only "second fiddle" to a younger lad named Bruce Guerin, a chubby, pleasant little fellow of 3 or 4. * * * This little fellow is always interesting.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"
Asso. Exhib.
Stanley, Philadelphia

ENQUIRER—* * * done with meticulous attention to all the details. Yet, as a historical picture it is not entirely satisfactory. In spite of the care with which the picture was evidently done and the amount of historical research * * * the picture lacks the spirit which actuated the Pilgrims.

NORTH AMERICAN—Ray, in the role of John Alden, makes the character a very lovable one. * * * Two outstanding faults of the production are the fact that there is not one ray of humor to relieve the seriousness of the entire film, and also that many of the scenes were so palpably faked that it had the effect of cheapening the production.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * may quite rightly be called one of the first American epic pictures. * * * The entire picture is an artistic justification, and Mr. Ray deserves no end of credit for the painstaking care he put on the film. It will live, and it will be more than successful. All glory to him.

RECORD—This extremely well-made photo-drama, in which Ray has the role of that romantic character, John Alden, should send every American back to his history. * * * Ray as John Alden is superb. He makes of him a clear-visioned, clean-minded and adventurous youth, to whom honor and friendship were, next to Priscilla's smiles, the greatest treasures of life.

"Daddies"—Warner's Rialto, Washington

STAR—The story is refreshingly different from the usual complicated problem or love tale. There is a group of charming youngsters that play important parts in the unfolding of the story and Claude Gillingwater is excellent in the leading comedy role.

TIMES—Though a theme fraught with untold possibilities for fun, it is also one which can be spoiled by unskillful handling. It is, therefore, an impossible task to place responsibility upon any one person for the successful result achieved. * * * William A. Seiter chose and directed the splendid cast without which it would have been a "flop."

"Flaming Gold"—1st Nat'l
Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—If it is excitement, suspense, swift action the thrill of red-blooded men in fistic battles "Flaming Gold" will come as a treat, because it possesses in abundance every element that goes to make up a capital story. It has some comedy, too, and as sweet a romance as any woman would wish to see.

"Flowing Gold"—1st Nat'l
Madison, Detroit

NEWS—* * * a thoroughly entertaining picture. * * * Being a sort of melodramatic picture, it has several thrilling scenes. Among these are the burning oil well, the river of flame and a cloudburst.

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Grand Central, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—* * * everything from melodrama to the most blatant slapstick comedy.

STAR—Once under way, the picture, "Her Temporary Husband," brings uproarious laughter. Syd Chaplin, as a light comedian with slapstick tendencies, is almost as funny as his brother, Charlie.

TIMES—* * * a thoroughly entertaining comedy photo play * * *

"Mile A Minute Romeo"—Fox
Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * The picture is a typical Mix production with plenty of two-gun men, lots of shooting and some good riding * * * The action is sure fire and continuous.

STAR—* * * is replete with the usual thrills found in Mix productions.

"Name The Man"—Gold-Cosmop.
Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Victor Seastrom, a foreign director, has made the film, * * * and by his capabilities and gifts for injecting life where it is not, has lifted the offering from the realm of the too-obvious to the realm of the more-or-less entertaining.

STAR—* * * aside from providing fine entertainment, is interesting because of the promise it withholds for several men and women connected with its production. Seastrom, the director, reveals a flare for the epic quality that is one of the features of his first production on this side of the Atlantic. He is a real artist and he handles lights and shades as deftly as he handled people and objects. Conrad Nagel likewise comes out of this picture with prospects that are unusually bright. His performance * * * highly sincere. Mae Busch, * * * reaches heights she has never before indicated she might touch.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Family, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Norma Talmadge's beauty and charm are shown to the best advantage in "The Song of Love." Unfortunately, it does not offer similar advantages for her dramatic talent.

TIMES-STAR—Its chief claim to attention is the fact that it presents the beautiful Norma as an Arabian dancing girl. The story is neither new nor convincing, and all in all the production affords an unsatisfactory starring vehicle for Miss Talmadge.

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L.
Missouri, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—Tully Marshall gives a performance in "The Stranger" * * * that can be compared favorably with some of the best screen work * * *

TIMES—Betty Compson is pleasing and sincere, although Richard Dix is a somewhat weak hero. * * * Tully Marshall handles a character part excellently. The story is drama, topped off with romance and a murder trial as a climax. The plot is not particularly original, but good directing and acting make of it acceptable screen entertainment. The conclusion is unexpected, and adds to the story.

Columbia, Washington

STAR—A signal triumph in motion pictures * * * is a distinct departure from the usual lot of screen dramas foisted upon a helpless public. * * * and while it has a most tragic finale, it is so utterly different so superior to the general run, that it promises to rank well up among the leading productions of the year.

"Thundering Dawn"—Universal
Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—A picturized drama of passions, set in an elemental background of the tropics where the worst from white man's civilization congregate, and great typhoon storms destroy as with a breath. * * *

NEWS—It is melodrama of excellent proportions. * * * One leaves the theater with an intense feeling of satisfaction at having enjoyed a really good movie.

TIMES—The story recalls that famous play "The Bird of Paradise." It's an instance of where a white "blue blood drinks the dregs of south seas filth and comes back" because the girl he loved "back home" had the courage to come to him and help him fight his way. * * * The rapidity of action amazes.

"Tiger Rose"—Warner's
B'way Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * has been made into a screen play of transcendent beauty. * * * contains every element that stamps a masterpiece and a story that "grips" from opening scene to final fadeout. * * * Much credit is due to everyone connected with the production. The direction is particularly artistic, and some of the most attractive exteriors to reach the screen form an effective background.

NEWS—The film drama loses the charm of Miss Ulrich's voice and accent. It loses the vividness of her interpretation of the little French-Canadian girl. But it gains in scenic effects.

TIMES—It's a typical melodrama. * * * Lenore takes to the screen like a kitten to milk. It seems to be a plaything for her.

"Under The Red Robe"—Gold.-Cos.
Century, Baltimore

SUN—Starting with 13 reels it has been cut to 10. Three more reels lopped off and dropped into the waste-basket would still further improve matters in our very humble opinion. The picture has cost much money. This is easily apparent.

"The Wanters"—1st Nat'l
The Chicago, Chicago

POST—* * * this story will appeal to everyone, for it is a most human one of every-day life and every-day people, and at some time or other you have all experienced a feeling of longing for nice things similar to that which consumed Myra Hastings.

TRIBUNE—The film is not cleverly produced, so all the triteness of the plot about which it is huilt sticks out at every turn. The best that can be said for it is that the really good players afflicted with the roles wished upon them bear them with a patience which is not job-like, because, apparently, they utter no lamentations.

"When A Man's A Man"—1st Nat'l
Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—* * * shows how truly interesting this type of motion picture can be made if a little common sense and discretion are shown. Considering that it is a story of the West, a remarkably economy of gunpowder was observed in the making of the film, but despite this there is no lack of dramatic intensity.

TIMES-STAR—As "westerns" go, it is considerably above par. * * * The story is interesting and plausible. It presents the "he-man" motif without overdoing it.

"The White Rose"—Unit. Artists
Piccadilly, Rochester

TIMES-UNION—Many of these virtues he still retains and has put to use in the film "The White Rose." * * * Therefore it is the more irritating that the faults that always accompanied his virtues have grown apace until they threaten to completely counteract the good points of his work.

"The White Sister"—Inspiration English's Indianapolis

STAR—Lillian Gish, who is featured, adds in no small measure to the distinction she enjoys of being one of the screen's finest artists. * * * In fact, there are moments in "The White Sister," when she comes nearer achieving perfection than ever before. * * * There is more real and powerful drama in "The White Sister," than in any of the so-called films of the day.

Mission, Los Angeles

(Run beginning Feb. 18)

DAILY NEWS—Conceived with rare imagination, elaborately constructed, and spectacular in every sense of the word, "The White Sister." * * * may easily be classified as one of the few outstanding photoplay successes.

EXAMINER—Settings which are superior in their natural or architectural beauty. * * * make a fitting background for a story which has little of joy in it, but much of that breathless wonder which is inherent for us moderns, in a tragic but beautiful love.

EXPRESS—For "The White Sister" no only is the most exquisitely beautiful thing pictorially throughout, but it marks one of the few artistic milestones in motion-picture annals in which pure tragedy is adequately and entertainingly handled, by director Hear, King and Miss Gish.

HERALD—From the pictorial standpoint "The White Sister" is most beautiful, its scenes being taken in Italy. It is one of the very rare screen dramas which has dared to end other than happily and deserves to be classed as one of the season's outstanding successes.

RECORD—The grandeur of church ritus and pageantry, especially the ceremonies of the novitiate in the marriage to the church are beautiful and impressive.

In "The White Sister" the producer justify their name—Inspiration Pictures.

TIMES—* * * one that in many of it poignant and dramatically exquisite qualities promises to be among the rarest of attraction of the season.

"White Tiger"—Universal
Garden, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—If you will recall "The Wildcat of Paris" and similar early productions starring the vibrant Priscilla you will understand why we consider "White Tiger" the best thing that Miss Dean has done for Universal in many months. It is a cool story, original and absorbing, with less tendency to overdone melodrama than most tales of the kind, and a decided leaning toward subtle comedy now and then.

Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * is undoubtedly the finest crook play brought out since "Outside the Law," was produced. * * * I depicts many realistic and strong elements seldom seen in a play of this character. The cast alone commends it as a picture that is surpassing worth while.

POST-DISPATCH—Those who like crook plays with startling plot complications and revelations of certain phases of underworld life, will find much enjoyment * * *

STAR—* * * in detail at least, is off the beaten track of crook melodramas. Some unusual situations develop.

W. W. Hodkinson Rarely Seen at Company's Offices—Still Retains Stock Interest, However

Despite the fact that W. W. Hodkinson is chairman of the board of directors of the company bearing his name, it is understood his active interest in its affairs has practically ceased. As a matter of fact, he has only made a few appearances at the headquarters since the new regime came into power the beginning of the year.

Hodkinson retains his stock interest in the corporation and, of course, is still interested in its doings but his share in the organization's activities is very slight. He is spending most of his time at his Port Washington home and comes into town usually only to attend the monthly meeting of the directors.

F. C. Munroe and Harry Richards are due in town from the coast tomorrow. Announcement of several new deals is looked for.

Eaton on Hodkinson Staff

Jack Eaton will represent Hodkinson during the company's nine week management of the Cameo. The first picture, "Love's Whirlpool," opens today.

"The Public Speaks"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Cecil B. De Mille, in a statement dealing with the future of motion pictures, says, in part:

The point is plain that we have at last reached the much-to-be-desired stage, where the public as a whole speaks its desires and makes possible the diversity of entertainment which the motion picture industry needs in order to rise to the still higher artistic heights which await it. It is very fortunate for the business of making motion pictures when the voice of the public can be heard so loudly and so clearly that the producers felt safe in trusting the expenditure of millions to its decision rather than in relying entirely upon the judgment of a comparatively few men who might or might not strike the correct keynote."

Two More Under Contract

Los Angeles—With the shipment of "A Boy of Flanders," Jackie Coogan has two more pictures to make for Metro. The third will be produced from an original story by Willard Mack. The Coogans are now reading scripts for the final production.

He was also questioned concerning negotiations by the defendants with Barton A. Proctor and Charles F. Cox concerning patents for projection machines, and the payment of $5,000 to each of the defendants.

Hallberg testified that they negotiated for the plaintiff a three-fifths interest in the Proctor Machine Co., and that the $15,000 was a payment for debts of the machine company for factory work.

There never was a production like this one. It is perfect. Exquisitely portrayed, with fidelity to each detail of the renowned story, "Three Weeks" will crowd any theatre where it is played. And by theatre we mean seats, standing room, lobbies, and sidewalks!

Trophy For Best Ads

Famous Encouraging Its Theater Managers to Turn Out Better Copy

George E. Brown of the Imperial, Charlotte, N. C., has won for the second time, the silver trophy awarded by the Famous Players theater department, for the best newspaper advertisement printed during the month of January.

This contest, as announced in "Close Up," the official publication of the Department, of which Mort. Blumenstock is editor, is to foster the use of small space. Writing in a recent issue Blumenstock said:

"The contest is now open. The rules are basically simple. Novelty counts as much as space. A good ten word slogan will get more credit than a hundred words of copy. In the opinion of this department, the more thought that is given a display, the less space is required to tell your message. The judges of the contest are the members of the Theater Advertising Department. The contest will be open until Jan. 1, 1925, unless the trophy is finally won before that time. The cup becomes the property of the winner, for one month. It does not become his permanent property unless he wins it three times during the period of the contest."

Every winner is given a parchment certificate of award stating his right to possess the cup for one month. This certificate is signed by Harold B. Franklin, Director of Theaters for Famous Players.

The entire contest is conducted in "Close Up," which is issued twice a month. No award is made without a full explanation of the merits which made the winning selection superior to all the other advertisements during the same period.

For instance, Charles A. McFarland won the first inning of the contest with an ad for the Queen, Houston, which ran three inches over one. There was no art work, just a simple arrangement of type and rules with lots of respect for the effects of white space.

"While very few advertisers," said the Close-Up, "know what the page is going to look like before the paper is printed, nevertheless McFarland knew that his opposition was going to run heavy black ads designed to kill the page, and defeated them by falling back on white space. When you looked at the page on which this ad ran, all you could see was a mass

J. P. Harrison of the Hippodrome, Waco, was close on the trail in this instance, failing to win only because his display did not pack the same force. Brown won again in the period just closed by his excellent use of stock material for "To the Ladies." Again Harrison was on his heels.

theaters could afford an artist had the facilities for making plat

Although only three months of the effects of the contest are noticeable in the efforts of the theater managers to tell the story in small space, and to plan their layouts with consideration for plenty of white. is expected by Lem Stewart, agent head of the theater advertising department, that by the time the contest is over, the time, trouble and expense of its inauguration will more than justified.

"Why Get Married?" is a March release on the Associated Exhibitors schedule. Andree Lafayette is featured.

of black and a little patch of white. The little white patch was the Queen theater ad. This coupled with the fact that McFarland had made his appeal in small space won the cup for him in the inning which ended Dec. 15.

The next month George E. Brown won with a sensational treatment of the William S. Hart picture, "Wild Bill Hickok." Brown intelligently treated the "wild west angle" with a little grain of humor. He didn't make it too serious, which doubled the appeal of the ad, since it promised entertainment to those who were simply looking for a good show, and to those regular line Bill Hart fans. Although Brown did not satisfy the judges in the amount of space he used, a quarter page, his treatment of the material was so good it placed the display head and shoulders above all contributions for the period, and he won the cup.

It is interesting to note that the winners have all won with stock cuts. The judges, in order to make the contest fair, and not to give the big houses an edge over the small houses, ruled that first consideration would be given to the ads using stock material as only a small percentage of the

Here is winning ad. "Close-Up" says it suffers a little under poor reproduction, but is distinctly a fine piece of newspaper advertising.

These figures are compiled from reports of 1,668 architects reporting projects actually under construction. The "Architectural Forum" explains that a careful analysis of the proportion of architects reporting, together with an examination of the volume of work done through various offices as recorded in the Architects' Registry would indicate that to establish a grand total of construction for 1924, the amount should be multiplied by the index figure 3.1 which was established for the publication's 1923 survey and proved to be a close, approximate measure. This would raise the total amount involved in theater construction to $179,821,700.

It is interesting to note that Illinois leads the nation in theater projects with a total of 25, aggregating $20,520,000. The group of states known as the Middle States, composed of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, and Kansas will spend a total of $26,130,000 on theaters alone.

An extremely interesting parallel can be drawn between this business and the automotive industry with which pictures are often compared. The survey shows that the automotive industry will spend $146,323,100 during 1924 as compared with $179,821,700 for picture theaters.

The following table draws a comparison between theater expenditures for 1924 as compared with 1923.

tion picture raw stock market is a very peculiar one, since manufacturers of domestic raw stock, by price cutting and a tariff of 4/10 cents per foot, are attempting to eliminate our quality competition.

"Some people suggest that a price war is on. We disagree. A war of quality is on. In spite of our present lower selling price, we will uphold the unsurpassed quality of Goerz Raw Stock, and not sacrifice the quality of either the base or of the emulsion, as some manufacturers are now doing. Goerz stock still has the strongest base and two more points of graduation.

"Besides, on all Goerz stock used for prints for exports, a refund of 4/10 cents per foot (which is the duty now imposed), or of $3.96 per reel of 1000 ft. can be secured."

There have been a number of reports in circulation since the cut in price was made public by Eastman. Some of the rumblings indicated that importers of foreign raw stock would find it impossible to compete with Eastman in the sale of the positive. The Fish-Schurman statement is the first to emanate from a source concerning foreign production.

has the support of the M. P. T. O. of New York State.

The measure would allow each community to decide for itself whether or not juveniles should be permitted to attend picture shows without parents or guardians, provided they are segregated in a special part of the theater, located on the street level. Minors would be admitted, providing their attendance would not conflict with school and was confined to shows terminating not later than six o'clock.

The bill is the same as the Miller measure which is designed to include houses in New York City, only the new statute covers the entire state. It has been referred to the Committee on Cities.

Assemblyman Louis R. Schoffel of the Bronx yesterday introduced another measure which would make it a misdemeanor for a parent to purchase a ticket for a child under sixteen years of age.

In The Courts

Abraham Flashberg has filed suit in the Supreme Court against Murray Weiss and Leo G. Juskowitz to compel them to return $3,750 paid for the 50 shares of stock in the Kelwyn Amusement Corp., owners of the theater at 7 W. 110th St., on the ground of misrepresentation. He alleges that they told him that the theater grossed $600 a week and the expenses were $425, and that each had a drawing account of $75 a week with a substantial net profit left. He alleges that the statements were false and that the corporation had a number of debts.

In the suit of House Peters against Charles O. Baumann, questions have been filed in the Supreme Court in behalf of Baumann which are to be asked in the cross-examination of Philip Cohen, a Los Angeles attorney, Arthur F. Statter, director, and John Jasper, of the Hollywood Studio, in behalf of Baumann. Among the questions to be asked of Cohen are the following:

Cohen is also to be asked whether the defendant did not allege that Peters had repeatedly broken his contract, and if Cohen did not say that he had wired Peters to take any engagements he could secure, and felt that he was right from a legal standpoint in giving him the advice.

The questions to be asked of Jasper bear on the lease by the defendant of space in the Hollywood studio, while the questions to Statter relate to his employment to direct a film based on the novel "Q" by the defendant, in which Peters was the plaintiff, but which was abandoned.

Suit was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Loew's St. Louis Film & Amusement Corp. against the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. for $3,000 damages on the ground that the defendant agreed for $500 to write three bonds aggregating $300,000 to owners of property in St. Louis on which the plaintiff was erecting a theater, guaranteeing that improvements would be made, but then refused to write the bonds, making it necessary for the plaintiff to pay $7,500 to the National Surety

"Thy Name Is Woman"—Metro Lyric

AMERICAN—In "Thy Name Is Woman" Mr. Niblo has built from an inconsequential play a pretentious screen drama. A woman's defenses and offenses are pictured by Barbara La Marr in a manner that must appeal to the imagination. Miss Marr is a splendid looking woman, and has never been seen to better advantage. In fact, I can conscientiously recommend "Thy Name Is Woman" to any one in search of good entertainment.

EVENING JOURNAL—A very deftly handled piece of characterization. There is a great deal of subtlety in the situations. The theme is elemental, and, as would naturally follow, compelling. But sustained interest depends entirely upon the emotionalizing of the three players. And one's interest is well sustained.

EVENING WORLD—goes down on a list of good things in the cinema art. It is a photoplay well worth going to see.

HERALD—It is a supremely silly story and one which, in its tensest moments, moved its night's audience to explosions of untimely but thoroughly explicable mirth. Mr. Niblo has treated the drama far better than it deserves. He has devised a great many striking scenes, has composed them effectively, and has set them against beautiful backgrounds. Thus, the picture is not deficient in its superficial pictorial qualities. But wasted it is. "Thy Name Is Woman" is bunk—and decrepit bunk, at that.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—A striking example of a really fine, strong picture going wrong before a first night audience. Up to a given point, in photography, direction and in the acting of Barbara La Marr, Ramon Novarro and William V. Mong, it led the audience in a vise-like grip. That point was the climax, and then, instead of the tensity one had every reason to expect, in the house there was tittering and some cases laughter.

POST—A slow moving, well-acted, overacted and excellently staged production. Barbara La Marr is the woman and more beautiful one it would be difficult to find. The man, for whom a few tombstones might have well been erected, was, nevertheless, given sincerity by Ramon Novarro.

SUN—just misses being a very creditable photoplay.

TELEGRAM—The film at the Lyric is a creditably beautiful one.

TIMES—There is undoubtedly some excellent drama in this production, but the narrative is no more convincing than it is sympathetic. Pictorially, this film is beautiful. Mr. Niblo every now and again shows the spark he struck in previous productions, but for the most part there is too much wrangling, quarreling and preaching in this picture.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—As a picture production in this day of real specials, "Thy Name Is Woman" fails to measure up to that classification, though taking through an engagement in a legitimate house. It is a program picture.

TRIBUNE—Fred Niblo has done a remarkably splendid piece of work in putting Carl Schoenherr's play on the screen and "Thy Name Is Woman" should be listed with the very few fine productions of the year.

WORLD—In the new picture play, which about half pretty good acting, based on sex or something, and half terrible by virtue being based too much on sex or something, Miss La Marr is a great deal better actress than she ever has been before, and Mr. Ramon Novarro is just about a perfect lover. made largely for the purpose of exhibiting what in the films they chuckle over as being sex-appeal the titles are at times sickening.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop. Capitol

AMERICAN—"Wild Oranges," from the standpoint of direction and photography, is deserving of the most superlative language.

With the possible exception of "One Exciting Night," I have never seen suggestion conveyed with more subtlety than Mr. Vidor gives us in "Wild Oranges." The blowing of a loose shutter, the eerie DAILY NEWS—The picture is charmingly photographed, and different. It's padded, here and there, with the bats and owls and creaking boards I mentioned before, but you won't mind that.

EVENING WORLD—real screen entertainment.

King Vidor has taken a story with but five vital characters in it and has brought forth a film of intense interest and charm.

HERALD—This highly unusual offering is called "Wild Oranges," and it is deserving of rank among the silent drama's finest achievements. "Wild Oranges" is his (King Vidor's) first serious bid for greatness.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—King Vidor has done some remarkably fine work.

Mr. Vidor has succeeded in creating a very definite atmosphere for this tale and he has spared none of the details of some of its gruesome aspects.

POST—cast excellently chosen, relieve the scenes of despair and hope, death and beauty that make this a fascinating tale of warring languor and action.

TIMES—Fear is a dominant factor of this rather sketchy story, from which King Vidor, as the director, has obtained some really excellent effects. If Vidor had had a more fluent vehicle this picture would have been even better than it is. Some of the last sequences of "Wild Oranges" are strong enough to impress themselves upon one for some time.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—With no necessity for either interiors or exteriors of imposing dimensions and minus any need for "dressing," the film must rely upon the actual narrative to interest the picture really belongs to Post, who, as the insane "heavy," turns in a performance which will be remembered by those who see it.

TRIBUNE—"Wild Oranges," at the Capitol, is undoubtedly a good picture, but it interested us only slightly. In the first place it is depressing.

WORLD—Mr. Vidor has made a good movie. Still there is nothing great in it, and nothing which even suggests invention. There is only a very slight question about "Wild Oranges" being a picture play which will be generally liked most everywhere.

"Icebound"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—Clara Beranger has been as true to the play as such a translation will permit. William de Mille has utilized his skill, which we all know is considerable, and yet "Icebound" is, in plain language, mediocre.

EVENING WORLD—is a corking good picture—as good a picture as it was a play, if not better, and it has been splendidly directed by William de Mille and is finely acted by Richard Dix and Lois Wilson.

HERALD—It is thoroughly typical of his (Wm. de Mille's) best work—being intelligent, restrained, simple and expressive.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—William de Mille has done a beautiful piece of work in "Icebound." Sincerity seems to have been the keynote which he endeavored to strike, and he has succeeded in making the picture ring true, even down to the smallest detail. There is not one false note.

POST—Here once again is a great moving picture! Unheralded and unspectacular it is reality and it is acted realistically.

TIMES—Solemn New England characters are astonishingly well pictured. Interest in this picture grows gradually but surely. This entertainment is well worthy of Mr. de Mille and one which will be compelling to all those who see it.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—while interesting as a film entertainment, well handled in direction and capably acted, seems to lack in box office punch.

TRIBUNE—"Icebound" is another feather in the cap of William de Mille, or a jewel in his crown sounds more like it. Mr. de Mille has taken the Owen Davis play and put it on the screen intact.

WORLD—"Icebound," as it was revealed upon the screen, does not reach that point of perfection where the motion picture critic may sit back and say, "My work is done. The movies have achieved the ultimate." But it goes a long way beyond average standards.

Mac Lean Film on Coast

Bogart Rogers of Douglas Mac Lean Prod., yesterday sent this publication the following wire from Los Angeles:

"Douglas Mac Lean in 'The Yankee Consul' opened at the California Saturday, playing to heavy business. The original music was played as the overture and during the film. It caught on strongly and sent the audience out whistling the old melodies."

Next Week on Broadway

Gloria Swanson in "A Society Scandal" will be the feature at the Rivoli next week.

Laurette Taylor in "Happiness" will come to the Rialto.

Alyce Mills has been signed by Fox to play the lead in a new Elmer Clifton picture, production on which will start within a week.

Action On "Outline"

J. R. Bray to See H. G. Wells While in England—Former Has New Projector

John R. Bray, president of Bray Prod. Inc., sails for England Saturday on the Berengaria for a four weeks' trip. While there, he expects to visit H. G. Wells, author of "The Outline," which the former has held controlled for pictures for some time.

Bray and Wells will probably discuss the actual production of "The Outline" which the former has held since May, 1922. It has been reported at various times that Bray intended producing the work in cartoon form. He has perfected what he calls the Brayco, a compact projector that is said to be smaller than a desk telephone. It would come as no surprise to learn that the making of "The Outline" and the sale of the Brayco will be closely connected.

"Meredith" In Fall

Production Work Will Run Through to June—Delaware Episode to Be Included

Early promises made by Cosmopolitan that "Janice Meredith" will be the organization's maximum production effort will apparently bear fruit. The picture is now entirely under way and has been for some time. The schedule provides that the final shooting days will occur in the first weeks of June.

With actual production carried on right into the summer, the release of the picture will be tided over to the fall. It is interesting to observe that the crossing of the Delaware by George Washington will be part of the completed production and it seems likely that certain other Revolutionary War episodes omitted from the Griffith production will be embodied in the new Davies film.

Miss Lewis stated yesterday that in Ontario and Quebec, the M. P. T. O. has a total membership of about 225 exhibitors. A delegation of forty will attend the annual convention of the M. P. T. O. A. in Boston in May.

Canadian Educational has arranged to allow members of the M. P. T. O. a fifty percent discount on future bookings upon the return of mounted paper in good condition, Miss Lewis explained. The plan has passed the experimental stage and is said to be working out in an extremely satisfactory manner. Educational handles F. B. O., Hodkinson and some English pictures. There is a possibility that several other Canadian distributors will adopt the same plan in order to aid the small exhibitor.

Miss Lewis said conditions in Canada were satisfactory and that business generally was good.

Virginia Unit Plans Picture

Sargent Pictures, of Old Point Comfort, Va., headed by Harry R. Sargent are coming to New York to make the interiors for a five reeler here. Headquarters will be maintained at Ruby Film Co. and Irving B. Rubinstien will act as general manager of the company.

Produced by Demand of the Great American Public!

FACTS

"Three Weeks" has sold more than fifteen million copies.

It has been translated into every language of the world except Spanish!

There is never a year that "Three Weeks" isn't a contemporary best seller in America. Last year it sold 100,000 copies.

It has been read by forty million people. Twenty-five million are women.

With the exception of the Bible it is the best-seller of all time.

Popularity is king in this business. When the public wants something it's got to have it. The consistent interest in Elinor Glyn's undying romance heralded the great motion picture that is now ready to be shown. And what a glorious showing it will be, for the production is a classic, a gem of artistic portrayal. Can you think of a title off-hand that has the popularity of "Three Weeks?"

Elinor Glyn journeyed all the way from her beautiful manor in England to superintend the filming of her great story in Los Angeles. She picked the cast which represents her imagination's ideal. And they performed her miracles. We'll deliver some reels of celluloid to you in tin film cans, but it's just like handing you a gold nugget on a silver platter.

Hoffman Sees Prosperity
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—In an interview in the Daily News, published on his return from the coast, M. H. Hoffman says, in part:

"More people will attend motion picture performances this year than in any previous year."

"Just as much money can be made in making one picture today as could be gained from twenty pictures, such as were the average product of a few years ago."

"Although the big pictures like 'The Ten Commandments,' 'Scaramouche' and others are here to stay, I found a greater demand than ever for what is generally called 'the program' picture, which is a five or six-reel screen narrative, as compared to the ten and twelve-reel 'super-specials.'"

"A record-breaking attendance for the year, and possibly years to come if the quality continues to improve is obvious."

Uses Clothiers' Decision

Cleveland—The Ohio Retail Clothier's Ass'n met here recently, and, during the course of the convention, Ramon Novarro was chosen "the best dressed man in the movies." This appeared as a news item in the Press, Plain Dealer and News.

Novarro appears in "Thy Name Is Woman," which was due to open at the Allen within a few days after the convention. The theater management began a newspaper contest with prizes to winning letters of agreement or disagreement with the clothiers' decision. All three papers that ran the news item played up the contest, and the showing.

Recently, the 13 houses played "Dulcy" and each helped each other in exploitation.

Newspaper Opinions
"Daughters of Today"—Selznick Strand

AMERICAN—I admit "Daughters of Today" taught me much. I thought I knew all about our modern girls, but I find I am in primer class, if one is to take this picture seriously. To me it is much like a sensational story to be seen and forgotten. As a serious drama, we cannot even consider it.

EVENING JOURNAL—"Daughters of Today" is a lavishly dressed, hectically assembled flapper frappe. It may not teach a lesson, or solve a difficulty, but it is irresistibly amusing, and for any one who likes this type of picture consistently entertaining.

EVENING WORLD—Frankly, we did not like "Daughters of Today," a little bit.

HERALD—*** it will reflect no particular credit on its makers, with the possible exception of within their own little set where they will be extolled for having turned out a great box office bet. *** There's no doubt about it. "Daughters of Today" is a great box office attraction. So was Fatima and Muscle Dancer.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Like other attempts at sensationalism, the yarn is filled with exaggerated incidents, but the audience don't seem to mind this defect; at least those present seemed to enjoy it.

POST—*** weak and unsatisfactory. *** The players do the best they can and some of them *** deserve a better film.

SUN—"Daughters of Today" isn't as good as "Flaming Youth," which it closely resembles, but its pretty good at that.

TELEGRAM—The photoplay is intended to be entertaining in its revelations of the girl the period rather than to cause blushes to mount to the cheeks of the unsophisticated.

TIMES—There is nothing particularly original about "Daughters of Today," *** it one sees many of the overworked situations and old ideas presented years ago in a similar type of picture. After sitting through a great length, hoping for the welcome end to appear, one is impressed that it is utterly absurd waste of time.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is probably money-getter at that, being a synthetic cocktail of the sure-fire young sex hoke, *** looks to the knowing like a hastily constructed thing to use some standing sets before they were cleared to make room for a new picture.

TRIBUNE—Perhaps "Daughters of Today" is not the worst picture we ever saw. Perhaps time has softened the memory of the anguish which we have ere now experienced sitting through one of those "sure-fire" box office reproductions. *** There is absolutely no story, it being a very feeble imitation of "Flaming Youth," and it is done in the cheapest and most tawdry manner.

WORLD—We gotta admit "Daughters of Today" is the epochal epic in filmdom. For six hours since seeing it we have combed the dictionary for adjectives and they just ain't here. Gay, glittering, gorgeous, with a moral for everyone, man, woman and child, this peerless drama of the silent screen is the cow that jumped over the moon.

"Fools' Highway"—Universal Broadway

AMERICAN—"Fools' Highway," as a pictorial description of the Bowery and its people is very good entertainment but it would have been infinitely better if some one had cut out about two reels. *** Mary Philbin as Mamie Rose, the orphan seamstress, is a delight. *** "Fools' Highway," in spite of its silly name, offers good entertainment for those who care to enjoy a good, old-fashioned melodrama with the three requisites, a hero, a heroine and a villain.

HERALD—*** cannot help but strike a responsive chord in the hearts of those who sincerely love and really know New York. ***

"My Mamie Rose" is generally acknowledged as being one of the most powerful stories ever written. Certainly, it has all the elements needed for a great motion picture. And in the opinion of this writer, "Fools' Highway" is nothing less than great. ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—"Fools' Highway" is one of those rare highway treats that once in a long while slip into town and reveal an almost perfect co-ordination of acting continuity, directorial and title-writing talents.

TRIBUNE—*** Mary Philbin *** is a delight, as well as a thing of beauty. We shall never tire of Mary Philbin.

So we enjoyed the picture in spite of the heat and the point of disadvantage from which we viewed it.

New B'way Theater

A. E. Lefcourt to Build on Site Adjoining the Strand—A $4,000,000 Structure

A. E. Lefcourt, at one time president of the now defunct Pioneer Film Corp. and now an active builder in the Times Square section plans a picture theater on the southwest corner of Broadway and 47th St. on a site immediately adjoining the Strand.

The property, which was purchased from an old estate through William Sussman, Inc., adjoins the Strand on the north side, with a frontage of 52 feet on Broadway and a depth of 140 feet on the south side of Forty-ninth Street. To the west of the parcel just purchased is the Longacre theater.

At present there are old five-story buildings on the property. Louis Haas and Charles C. Peters represented the buyer in the transaction. The approximate cost of the land and the proposed new building on this site will be between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, depending upon the size of this new structure.

3 Cornered Deal

Philadelphia Exchangemen Invade Washington Territory—Form Trio Prod.

Ben Amsterdam of Masterpiece Film Attractions, Gene Marcus of 20th Century Films, and Tony Luchese of De Luxe Films, all Philadelphia exchanges have formed Trio Prod. Inc. a company that will serve the Washington, Delaware and Virginia territory. Offices have been established at New Jersey Ave. and K. St., Washington.

Amsterdam, who was in town yesterday explained that until now, individual operation in Washington has not been very satisfactory. For that reason, Masterpiece, 20th Century and De Luxe decided on one exchange to handle their pictures there. Max Milder, formerly with Selznick in Philadelphia will manage it and will have a part interest in its operation. Fifty-four features will be available and a number of short reels.

The opening will be marked by a dinner to be given at the Washington Hotel, in Washington next Wednesday night.

Preferred has disposed of its Washington territory franchise to Trio Prod.

Zukor's Name Appears In Reports Regarding United Artists' Future

"Big Four" Listening to Propositions from All Quarters—No Definite Tie-up But Paramount's Ability to Roll Up Gross Bookings Is Said to Interest Fairbanks

Out of the maze of reports that have been published in the past few days concerning United Artists and the future of that company, one appeared to take definite form yesterday. This concerned the reported interest of Adolph Zukor in the company.

It was stated yesterday in one quarter that is usually well-informed that Zukor had made a proposition to the "Big Four" group concerning distribution. This was denied by an official at Paramount and laughed at openly by Dan O'Brien, general counsel for United Artists and personal attorney for Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

"Beaucaire" Next

To Follow "Covered Wagon" in Criterion—Change to Occur in June

Present plans provide that "The Covered Wagon" will remain at the Criterion until the Democratic convention is held in New York. This will occur in either the latter part of May or the first part of June.

"Monsieur Beaucaire" is slated to succeed the Cruze picture at the Criterion for a summer run. No date has been set for the opening but will occur sometime in June. "Beaucaire" will not be completed before the end of May.

Hart Vacationing

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—William S. Hart and "Scoop" Conlon are both on a vacation. No one at their office will discuss Hart's future production plans, in view of the fact that he will no longer make pictures for Famous.

No Deals for Future Murrays

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Robert Z. Leonard stated yesterday that he and Mae Murray were now making their last picture for Metro and that no future distributing arrangements had been made. He declared he knew nothing about a deal with First National.

It has been reported locally that the Murray pictures were to be released by First National upon completion of the Metro contract.

The impression seemed, to be, however, that the intensive distribution that Famous can secure on its product holds a strong appeal for Fairbanks who is the dominant figure in the rumblings and talk of the many changes afloat regarding the company.

The problem of operating a nationwide distribution machine with so few pictures as United has had during the past few years, is, moreover, admittedly a difficult proposition. Especially is this true in view of the fact that of the product they have had many of the more important pictures have first been road-shown, thus delaying the arrival of the prints in the exchanges, and barring income from being received through selling this product.

During 1923 United released one from Chaplin, "A Woman of Paris," carried over "Robin Hood" from the preceding year and had nothing else from Doug, "Rosita" from Mary, and carried over "Tess" in the early part of the year. From Griffith came "One Exciting Night" and excepting for the older pictures running through the organization nothing else aside from the Allied Artists product, which included "Richard the Lion Hearted" "Loving Lies" and "No More Women," Jack Pickford's "Garrison's Finish" and "The Hill Billy" as well as "Paddy-the Next-Best Thing."

Exchangemen well posted as to conditions declare that the operation of a national organization with so few pictures must prove burdensome, difficult and expensive.

Zukor in Deal?

Despite what has been published—and certainly a number of wild reports have appeared in print—it can be stated with an assured degree of accuracy that the "Big Four" group will listen to offers relative to distribution from anyone and everyone. It also seems certain that the group will act as one, in whatever course is decided upon.

It is believed to be true that John C. Flinn of Hodkinson has sat in with Fairbanks, regarding the exploitation of "The Thief of Bagdad" and that Hodkinson would like to handle the physical distribution of the United Artists product, the smaller pictures included in order to get the more important ones. This is similarly true of other companies in the business. The various factors in United Artists have not held any joint meetings since Fairbanks and Miss Pickford arrived in town. Probably there will not be any for a week or two.

So much has been published that Fairbanks has now adopted the attitude of refusing to talk to anyone, because what he has said has been so badly garbled. Hiram Abrams yesterday refused to talk about a published report which declared his contract had expired in November. He would say nothing, further than to point out that he was still on the job.

Concerning the Zukor report, Dennis O'Brien declared yesterday that Zukor had had Fairbanks, Miss Pickford and Mrs. Pickford as his guests at dinner Monday night but that business was not discussed. They are all living at the same hotel, the Ambassador.

In The Courts

A suit by Dr. Edwin Leibfreed against George Kleine for $13,250 in connection with the Helen Keller film "Deliverance" came before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich on an application by the plaintiff to strike out part of the answer. The court granted it, on the ground that the parts struck out were argumentative and conclusions and the court left in the answer only the denials of the allegations of the complaint.

Leibfreed alleged that the Helen Keller Film Corp., was formed in 1919, and that the defendant got a contract for three years to market the film "Deliverance." He alleged that Kleine agreed to pay the plaintiff $500 a month salary as secretary of the corporation during the term of the contract, and that the amount sued for is due.

In portions stricken out, Kleine alleged that in addition to expenses of $13,467 he paid the plaintiff $4,750, making a total of $18,217 which he is entitled to have repaid. He said the film has grossed to date only $15,163 and he will be compelled to pay $8,723 more because of the failure of the Helen Keller Corporation to furnish pictures and accessories without any cost to him.

In another claim stricken out, Mr. Kleine alleged that he has advanced to the corporation $49,000, no part of which has been repaid, and that there is now due him $57,902 in addition to the expense of handling the picture.

An application has been filed in the Supreme Court by James Aubrey, who was sued by George H. Callaghan for $1200 for services, to vacate an attachment against his property, obtained by the plaintiff on the ground that he is a resident of California. The attachment was served on the Chadwick Pictures Corp., but no property of Aubrey's was found. He states that the papers have never been served on him, and for that reason wants the attachment vacated.

Charles H. J. Dilg has filed suit in the Supreme Court against Effanem Photoplays for $5,000 on a note signed by Anton E. Meyer as vice-president and Arthur E. Reinhardt as treasurer. He also filed a default judgment for $1,161 against Effanem, in the City Court on a note, while judgments for $2,301 by Henry Hahnenfeld and for $1,161 by Arfthur E. Reinhardt were also filed in notes.

In a suit of Haring & Blumenthal against Herbert Brenon for services, an application was filed in the Supreme Court to restore the case to the calendar for trial because it was overlooked by the plaintiff's attorneys when it first appeared.

John F. Pell filed a summons in the Supreme Court yesterday in a suit against the Pathe Exchange for $2500. The attorneys are Joseph and Demov.

“What a Relief!”

No matter how excellent the dramatic feature, it needs the “relief” of a good comedy to make a thoroughly pleasing program.

Grace Kingsley, reviewing the program at Clune's Broadway in the Los Angeles Times, says:

“Neal Burns disports himself in a thoroughly delightful Christie Comedy called ‘Fool Proof’. ***

“What a relief these bits of nonsense are after the heavy emotion of the ‘features’! Why don't the larger houses follow the common sense plan of putting in a snappy two-reel joy-pager, instead of their everlasting grand opera?

“It is always a joy to go to Clune's. You don't have to watch any second-rate steppers prance, any third-rate singers warble, nor get a crick in the neck looking up at the high-brow grand opera tabloids.”

No better relief from the “heavy features” than

Studio Held Up

g Island Residents Opposing Hurst's Plan—Hearing Scheduled Shortly

Hearing scheduled to be held shortly before the Board of Estimate of Newton, Long Island on the location of the Windmiller Estate rezoning the property in Ward 2 of the Borough of Queens, bounded Middleburg and Woodside Aves., St., and Matthews Place into the restricted class so that the studio project planned by William O. Hurst be launched.

Residents of Newton and Woodside, have filed objections to the studio on the ground that it will inject business plant into the residential district. One hearing has already been held before Benjamin Marvin, Commissioner of Public Works of Queens. Hurst has received a letter from Borough President Connelly in which the latter says he is in favor of the proposed studio.

The property on which the studio to be built involves little excavating. First figures that it will take about six months to complete the structure and have the equipment installed. It is ready to go ahead as soon as zoning restriction is lifted.

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—About as full of giggles as "The Hairy Ape" and "The Emperor Jones," by the same parent. But for those who go in for the reelism (excuse it) of the back room and the stokehole, this * * * will prove no pallid entertainment.

Pretty Blanche Sweet as the Swedish Anna does very well indeed, but the outstanding bit of character work is contributed by George Marion. * * *

INQUIRER—As good as the screen version of such a play could possibly be.

Of course it is devitalized to a certain degree. It must be, * * *. The picture, however, has been excellently done, and has followed the play as closely as possibly. * * * George Marion is splendid as old Chris.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Philadelphians will not be able to appreciate the film version of "Anna Christie" in full, because the State censors have with entire lack of vision and foresight, cut and hacked certain parts beyond all recognition. They have attempted to make of poor Anna a pure and undefiled jily, instead of the poignant bit of human wreckage conceived by O'Neill.

However, despite this unjust maceration, "Anna Christie" is a fascinating picture.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—But in spite of the deletions, "Anna Christie" is well worth seeing because of the excellence of George Marion's performance in his original role and that of Blanche Sweet's as the disillusioned Anna.

"Black Oxen"—1st Nat'l New Aster, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—Corinne Griffith is delightful as usual. The difficulty in portraying the dual role does not hamper Miss Griffith from displaying her usual charm.

Conway Tearle as the cynical newspaperman, Clara Bow as the flapper, Kate Lester, Thomas Ricketts, Tom Guise and Claire MacDowell enhance interest in the story by their vivid portrayals.

"Cupid's Fireman"—Fox Rialto, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—* * * is replete with adventure and romance, * * *. Not a complicated story, but interesting.

Charles Jones performs the title role with Marion Nixon as leading woman and from little Eileen O'Malley.

"Daddies"—Warners' Strand, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—* * * a lightly moralizing comedy, * * *. Claude Gillingwater * * * is delightful. Harry Myers, * * * a perfectly civilized and ardent lover. Mac Marsh is a demure orphan with far too many woes. The play never becomes heavy and the comedy is always dominant.

"The Daring Years"—Equity—S-R Monroe, Chicago

HERALD & EXAMINER—It has caught the spirit of youth—the hot whirlpool of those "daring years" when we discover the world, its people and ourselves. Played admirably by Charles Emmett Mack (save his slight imitation, at times of Barthelmess), the hero becomes a vivid expression of all young men at a certain period in their lives. * * *

JOURNAL—Mack, by D. W.'s training or by natural penchant, belongs to the simplicity school of playing, and as an erring youth in "The Daring Years" he is most effective. * * * There is frank melodrama in the picture as an added box-office inducement, but the shine of earnestness covering it makes the Monroe a pleasing place to park for an hour.

"Drums of Jeopardy"—Truart—S-R Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * The picture is from the novel of the same name from the pen of Harold MacGrath. * * * The picture is well produced and cast and while it is not a great production is satisfactory entertainment, within the limits that impose themselves on stories about Russian jewels.

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors Palace, Washington

STAR—* * * contains a definite warning to young girls who are "movie-struck" and think they can easily become stars in the pictures.

Mabel Normand's methods in comedy are decidedly individual and effective, * * *

TIMES—There is nothing new in the theme—a country girl's adventures in Hollywood—nor in many of the situations, and it does not offer the opportunity for Mabel to display her talent at its best. This latter may be partly the fault of direction, * * *

In spite of these flaws, however, "The Extra Girl" is recommended as a sure cure for blues.

"The Fighting Blade"—1st Nat'l Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * it is another vehicle worthy of the expression of the unmistakable gifts he (Richard Barthelmess) possesses.

HERALD—It is the usual thing. A combine of vengeance, love, fighting and historical incident. The acting, outside of the two principals is mediocre, and, including them, is not exceptional. But in costume setting and lighting the presentation is little short of marvelous.

JOURNAL—The picture is a kaleidoscope of characters, plots, counter plots and mass action. * * * Richard is heroic and uses his sword with effect, but the role seems odd for this soulful and serious young actor.

"The Fighting Coward"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 1)

DAILY NEWS—Once more James Cruze hits entertainment bulseye and scores another screen success. * * *

EXAMINER—It's altogether delicious entertainment * * *. Cullen Landis is splendid in the leading role. Ernest Torrence gives another new-minted characterization in this film that you'll love. Mary Astor is utterly charming her part, and Phyllis Haver does very well too. Noah Beery gives good flavor to his role. * * *

EXPRESS—James Cruze has displayed his characteristic genius again. Once more it is in the direction of fine comedy, as gay and lightly speaking as "Ruggles of Red Gap," so nicely shaded that everyone is bound to be amused.

HERALD—The play is satisfying in that it portrays that which it sets out to portray. It is a period play in which detail of costuming and settings leave nothing to be desired; besides that, it is a thing of action, much action.

TIMES—* * * directed by James Cruze—and that's a double recommendation for its entertainment value. It has that in huge measure, too, you may believe me, and though it may not be as much of a knockout as some of Cruze's other pictures, it is far and away more interesting than the usual line.

"Fools' Highway"—Universal Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending March 1)

CALL—* * * a gripping, enthralling romance called "Fools' Highway." Heart interest, bigness of treatment and something different than the ordinary fills "Fools' Highway" with entertaining features rarely seen on the screen.

CHRONICLE—It is a wistful and appealing little heroine that Mary Philbin makes * * *. Just why the title was changed it is hard to understand, but * * * the story, however, is still there.

DAILY HERALD—Utterly devoid of a plot worth mentioning, and tediously lacking in dramatic values, it does not justify the footage it consumes.

EXAMINER—Perhaps it is the director's fault that Mary Philbin doesn't rise to what was expected of her * * *. "Fools' Highway" is a story highly entertaining and thrilling in spots, with long interludes of bore-someness and dragging.

"The Great White Way"—Gold-Cosmop.—Strand, San Francisco

(Run beginning Feb. 23)

CHRONICLE—The picture runs to nine fat reels, but there are so many picturesque details in the way of real, honest-to-goodness celebrities introduced that one is apt to forget all about the passage of time.

DAILY HERALD—* * * might be called a Broadway revue set to pictures if it were not for the fact that there is a genuine old time melodrama plot to it.

DAILY NEWS—* * * E. Mason Hopper, * * * takes all these materials and makes spectacular but coherent drama that will delight every one not afflicted with a high brow. Wherefore many thousands of movie fans will applaud it as one of the finest pictures made by the Cosmopolitan or any one else.

"The Heart Bandit"—Metro Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—The tiny star is always to be depended upon for an entertaining film, and "The Heart Bandit," we can safely say, not only holds up to the very high average she has set in her series, but goes the rest of her releases one better.

POST-DISPATCH—It is all melodramatic and improbable, but it moves swiftly and is entertaining.

STAR—There is nothing new in the plot, but it makes fair entertainment.

TIMES—First, we are bored with crook plays. Secondly, we do not like Viola Dana. And third, Milton Sills, as a youthful lover, has worn thin.

"Her Reputation"—1st Nat'l Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * an entertaining story of the so-called evil of the extreme sensational newspapers of today. * * * May McAvoy excellently interprets her role * * * Lloyd Hughes, although a bit lacking at times, gives her adequate support.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Most film directors are satisfied if they can put over a picture with one or two big moments, but "Her Reputation," * * * has no less than a dozen.

"Icebound"—F. P.-L. Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Around these simple country folk * * * DeMille has built up a story that will appeal because of its heart interest, and will touch the emotions as few pictures of recent weeks has done.

NEWS—It offers some of the best film entertainment this city has seen in a long time. * * * The picture offers an insight into human nature, into its smallness and its greatness, which is searching, and makes one understand why "Icebound" was awarded the Pulitzer prize as a drama last year.

TIMES—With virtually no actionable drama to work with De Mille has given to the screen one of its best works. And he has done so by very clever direction.

"In Search of a Thrill"—Metropolitan, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Search of a Thrill," with Viola Dana just another melodrama of the Parisian underworld. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—melodramatic to the nth degree. * * * suffers in the same respect that other pictures of the underworld suffer. It lacks verve. There is little suspense. One can tell of time just what is going to happen.

"Ladies To Board"—Fox Liberty, St. Louis

STAR—There is plenty of action, comedy and sentiment of sorts. It is a Mix picture.

TIMES—* * * not on a par with previous comedy efforts.

"Lies of the Field"—1st Nat'l The Chicago, Chicago

AMERICAN—* * * Miss Griffith, is more entrancing than ever, if that be possible, in this variant of the gold-digger type. * * * Sets, photography and similar features are excellent. And thereby the film is from the box office point of view. * * * will be inclined, very likely, to find the wanting in many respects, such as originality in the first half and credibility in the latter half.

TRIBUNE—It has color, pretty women of the sort of men such pretty women good direction, the right kind of background and one of the dearest youngsters I ever seen on the screen—wee Dorothy L. Sayers. * * * You will be greatly taken (if I'm mistaken) with the work of Miss G. Conway Tearle, and Myrtle Stedman. * * * the acting you will admit is good.

"Long Live The King"—Metropolitan, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—The precocious ability of little Jackie Coogan heightens interest every scene—and that is most them—in which he appears * * *. It's very impressive or convincing story, it is picturesque, well done and elaborately visualized.

INQUIRER—Jackie Coogan is as lightful as ever * * *. The story of the picture, both trite and complicated, is essential on a background for Jackie's smiles and escapades. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The story of the lonely little Prince of Livonia told by Mrs. Rinehart, was unforgettable interpretation given by Master Jackie most immortal.

"Wild Oranges"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole... DISTINCTIVE DIRECTION MAKES HERGESHEIMER MELODRAMA INTERESTING; POSSIBLY A TRIFLE DISTASTEFUL IN ONE OF ITS CHARACTERIZATIONS BUT NOT OBJECTIONABLE.

Cast.... Frank Mayo and Virginia Valli fine romantic pair who will please a vast number of feminine screen patrons. Charles A. Post does good work as the half-maniac but it is in connection with his portrayal that the picture may seem a bit unpleasant at times. His tantrums brought about through fancied wrongs and because of his infatuation for the heroine who fears him, border on the state of gruesomeness occasionally. Ford Sterling is forced to repress his comedy desires in the role of Mayo's pal.

Type of Story... Melodrama; Hergesheimer's "Wild Oranges" gets well out of the beaten path of meller and offers an entertainment that will undoubtedly appeal to a majority. With King Vidor's capable direction it becomes an interesting and quite absorbing picture. His little knacks of handling situations through clever suggestion are not to be overlooked in summing up the picture's good points. The interest holds from the very start when, without even an introductory sub-title he gives you a close-up of a piece of paper fluttering about, next a shot of a horse and carriage coming along in the wake of the bit of paper. The horse is frightened, starts at a gallop and the episode closes with the woman occupant meeting her death. Then it is that a title says John Woolfolk's wife's death starts him on a long wandering in search of forgetfulness. There is a fine climax with effective, even if somewhat mechanical, suspense that brings the story to a good conclusion. The production is excellent and the acting very good.

Box Office Angle.... A particularly good entertainment if you know your people like melodramatic offerings. You can appeal to them from the standpoint that it is different from the usual run of melodramas.

Exploitation... Should be worth your while getting them in. The title naturally suggests stunt advertising and tie-ups should be easily arranged. Most any fruit concern would be willing to cooperate by advertising their particular brand of oranges and at the same time announcing that "Wild Oranges" is at the blank theater. The title doesn't give any idea of the type of picture so you might use trailers, stills and catchlines to give them the necessary information. Use Virginia Valli's name, recalling her work in "The Lady of Quality."

Direction..... King Vidor; wholly effective.

Author ..... Joseph Hergesheimer
Scenario ..... June Mathis
Cameraman ..... John W. Boyle
Photography ..... Excellent
Art Director ..... Cedric Gibbson
Locale ..... Georgia
Length ..... 6,837 feet.

"Fools Highway"

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole... ATMOSPHERE OF NEW YORK IN THE DAYS OF THE BOWERY VERY GOOD AND QUITE INTERESTING IN DETAIL BUT DRAGGY, UNEVENTFUL STORY FAILS TO MAKE GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.

Star..... Very pretty and wholly pleasing. Does very good work and is especially well suited and capable of putting over a role of this sort. Poor vehicle for her rise to stardom.

Cast.... Pat O'Malley badly directed. Is allowed to continually overact. William Collier, Jr. very good as Max, the tailor's boy, but they forget all about him toward the close and he's allowed to drop out of the story. Max Davidson typical and offers splendid character bit as Levi, the clothes man. Bowery types greatly exaggerated.

Type of Story..... Comedy-drama. Folks in New York, those who remember and were participants in the events of the Bowery in olden days, may be keen enough in a sentimental way, to be thoroughly pleased with the story of "Fools Highway" as pictured by Irving Cummings. But what folks outside of New York, where the Bowery means little, will find in the picture, is merely a slow, draggy story, containing a series of incidents loosely connected and with little or no sustained interest. All Cummings' efforts at detail and atmosphere fail to make the picture entertaining. After nearly seven and a half reels of atmosphere and incident, plus an occasional good comic twist, "Fools Highway" reaches a good ending but too late to send them out pleased. Kildare's theme deals with Mamie Rose's love for Mike Kildare, fighter, and the ups-and-downs in their romance, finally ending with their marriage, Mike's retirement from the ring and his joining the "force."

Box Office Angle... May get by satisfactorily in New York. Outside of the city will hardly hold them, unless it is cut and re-edited to give it a better sustained interest.

Exploitation... New York exhibitors will be able to capitalize on the atmosphere. Anything indicative of the metropolis in the days of the Bowery will prove interesting. Have your ushers dressed after the fashion of that period and, of course, the popular melodies of that time will play a prominent part. Use Mary Philbin's name and recall her work in "Merry-Go-Round." The title can be used with street signs reading: "Warning! This is No Fools Highway. Drive Carefully."

Direction..... Irving Cummings; handled story poorly.

Author ..... Owen Kildare
Scenario ..... Harvey Gates
Cameraman ..... William Fildew
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... New York
Length ..... 7,431 feet.

"Daughters of Today"

Selznick

As a Whole... ANOTHER GIRL OF TODAY STORY WITH A MORAL. HAS SOME GOOD HEART INTEREST TOUCHES. JAZZY ENOUGH TO SATISFY THE JAZZ HOUNDS. AT TIMES DARING.

Cast.... Fine array of flappers and college boys who seem to find it easy enough to live up to the strenuous pace the author and director set for them. Includes Ralph Graves, Patsy Ruth Miller, Edna Murphy, Zasu Pitts, Edward Hearn, Truman Vandyke, Phillips Smalley, H. J. Hobart, Philo McCullough, Fontaine La Rue and Marjorie Bonner. George Nichols and Gertrude Claire the typical small town mamma and papa whose little girl goes to the big city and almost "to the bad."

Type of Story... Drama; will surely please those who like to see how the flapper spends her time, with plenty of wild parties, including a liberal display of jazz, wine, petting, midnight bathing parties a la natural, strip poker games and other "innocent" pastimes. Little country girl's love for jazz leads her to the city where she becomes a member of a flapper band, is attacked by villain and faints. Her little country mother appears on the scene, the crowd keeps the real truth of the illness from her, she nurses her daughter back to health and her simplicity and righteousness reforms the whole crew. Moral is obvious but fairly weak.

Box Office Angle.... Probably first rate box office attraction. Will go big with sensation lovers and those who get a "kick" out of pictured jazz life.

Exploitation.... Suggestions offered for some of the "modern girl" pictures that have preceded "Daughters of Today," also go for this one. You can play up the jazz angle by securing the services of a jazz band to go about town playing the popular numbers and advertising the picture. It all depends upon how much money you want to spend to get them in whether or not this would be a good idea. A tie-up with a music shop would be a fair stunt. Have a display of instruments used for jazz with announcements that "Daughters of Today" follow the tune of the saxophone, or whatever instrument is on display. It should be easy to get local flappers to advertise the showing. Have them ride about in an auto, throwing away cardboards in the shape of hearts with the suggestion: Follow the dictates of your heart and see the modern girl as she really is in "Daughters of Today" at the blank theater."

Direction... Rollin Sturgeon; plays to the box office; carries jazz business too far at times.

Author ..... Lucien Hubbard
Scenario ..... Lucien Hubbard
Cameraman ..... Milton Moore
Photography ..... All right
Locale ..... Small town-city
Length ..... 7,400 feet

"Icebound"

Paramount

As a Whole... STAGE PLAY ADAPTATION SERVES VERY INTERESTING STORY, SPLENDIDLY PRODUCED BY WILLIAM MILLE; ABSORBING CHARACTER STUDY.

Cast.... Lois Wilson thoroughly suited as the girl who moulds Richard Dix from a dissatisfied idle fellow to a real he-man. May Oliver offers good character sketch as housemaid and typical small town types excellently portrayed by Ethel Wales, Day Murphy, Mary Foy, Joe Depew.

Type of Story..... Drama. There is not a great deal to the story, a lavish production, no thrills, no especially outstanding performances, and almost six at half reels of film—and yet "Icebound" is an absorbing picture, really interesting one. It is William DeMille's skillful direction makes it so. He has taken Owen Davis' play, for which Clara Beranger provided a splendid scenario, and moulded it into a really worth while screen entertainment. There isn't a great deal to the theme, still it has a certain degree of originality and strength in its situations that have not been lost in transition. Through remarkable careful application there is brought out a study of character and contrast that cannot fail to prove interesting. You see so clearly the workings of the minds of the characters, the cow-buzzards, who bring about the death of the mother to get her money, their chagrin when it goes to Jane, the old lady's companion, and later their "soft-soaping" around the youngest brother Ben when Jane turns it all over to him. Of course he realizes that he loves Jane. "Icebound" is undoubtedly one of the best studies of small town life ever offered. True to life.

Box Office Angle... Should go very big where they actually appreciate a good entertainment. Not the usual called office success probably a genuine entertainment.

Exploitation..... Paramount's picture sheet offers a good thought: "Don't let your patrons get the idea that this is just one more story of the frozen North. 'Icebound' offers to feelings rather than to weather." And it's not a hunch. Let them know that this one is different. Boost the title, talk about it as the Harvard play. Use Lois Wilson's name instead of that of Richard Dix in your announcements. Stunt advertising and tie-ups should be effective and easy to arrange.

Direction... William De Mille; particularly good.

Author ..... Owen Davis

"Discontented Husbands"

C. B. C.—State Rights
As a Whole.... ANOTHER CASE OF A WIFE WHO FAILS TO ADJUST HERSELF TO HER HUSBAND'S SUDDEN WEALTH WITH THE USUAL CONSEQUENCES; TRITE PLOT BUT FAIRLY WELL WORKED OUT.

....James Kirkwood featured in a picture that doesn't give him any unusual opportunities. Not difficult for him to measure up to its requirements. Cleo Madison suitable as the wife. Carmelita Geraghty pleasing as the romantic daughter. Vernon Steele and Grace Darmond a contrasting couple.

Type of Story.... Domestic drama. A popular screen formula is again brought into play in this latest C. B. C. release—the story of a man named Mike who wants his wife to call him Michael once he acquires a fortune. The fact that his faithful mate cannot adjust herself to the new surroundings, adapt herself to social duties and leave her household work in the hands of servants is good enough excuse for Mike to seek the society of a young matron who wants just the things Mike's wife fails to appreciate. The theme revolves itself into one of those "other woman" plots with Grace Darmond vamping Kirkwood to the point of his planning to ask his wife for his freedom. Vernon Steele, as Miss Darmond's husband, has done some planning of his own and frames an elopement with Kirkwood's daughter. This brings the plot to a fairly good conclusion and offers a little different twist. Miss Darmond accuses Kirkwood of allowing his daughter to wreck her home and he retaliates with the fact that her husband has wrecked his home. An accident stops the elopement and Steele explains that it was merely a trick to spoil his wife's romance. It ends happily for both families.

Box Office Angle.... There's always a certain majority of any audience that can be pleased with these domestic dramas. If you think your folks like this type of story, you shouldn't go far wrong on exploitation.... Here's a title that can probably be counted on to bring them to the box office. Women folks especially will be attracted by it and if you play it up properly, it will likely bring you in very good returns. Post the town with the title and use throw-aways liberally. Catchlines can read: "Wives, Attention! Adapt yourselves to the times if you would hold your husbands. See an example of it in 'Discontented Husbands' at the blank theater." Use James Kirkwood's name. A trailer of the auto accident might serve to bring many back.

Direction.... Edw. J. LeSaint; ample.
Author..... Evelyn Campbell
Scenario..... Evelyn Campbell
Camerman..... King Grey
Photography..... Good
Scale..... Country place
Length..... 5,421 feet.

Jack Hoxie in
"The Phantom Horseman"

Universal
As a Whole..... AN AVERAGE WESTERN MYSTERY MELODRAMA WITH NO OUTSTANDING MERITS SO FAR AS ACTING, DIRECTION OR STORY IS CONCERNED; CONTAINS PLENTY OF ACTION AND FAST RIDING FOR THE WESTERN FANS.

Star..... Manages to get his personality across despite the fact that he is hampered by the poorly developed plot.

Cast..... Neil McKinnon overacts in many of his scenes; Lillian Rich, as the girl, does somewhat better, but the acting of the entire supporting cast is stilted all the way through, with the exception of Ruby Lafayette, who, unfortunately, appears in only one sequence. Includes Wade Boteler as the hard-hearted villain, who holds the too-familiar mortgage over the heroine's head; Ben Corbett and George A. Williams.

Type of Story..... A western mystery melodrama in which the audience is really mystified as to the identity of the marauder called "The Hawk," but in the effort to make the mystery element effective the development of the story has been made improbable at times and jerky. Things happen with no apparent cause leading up to them. In one sequence Hoxie returns home to find his mother dead from no cause evident to the spectator. It is never referred to again and the very next time Hoxie appears, supposedly the following morning, he is smiling broadly with no hint of his recent loss. The action in many of the climaxes is mechanical and stilted, although there is plenty of action and fast riding to satisfy those who enjoy this type of picture.

Box Office Angle.... An average program picture, but where you know your following likes westerns containing an element of mystery or having to do with bandits and their pranks, or where Hoxie is liked particularly it should satisfy.

Exploitation..... Don't make too much fuss about this one despite the fact that exploitation would be easy, unless you are certain that they will be satisfied with what they'll see. In that event you could have a white robed and hooded rider on a white horse gallop through the streets with suitable reading matter displayed prominently on his back. The title will give an idea of the sort of thing it is, and a good display of posters in your lobby together with some stills should be sufficient to attract attention.

Direction..... Robert North Bradbury; could have been much more effective.

Author..... Isadore Bernstein
Scenario..... Isadore Bernstein
Camerman..... Merrit B. Gerstad
Photography..... Good
Locale.... Western ranch and village
Length..... 4,399 feet

"The Lone Wagon"

Aywon—State Rights

As a Whole..... SMALL SCALE IMITATION OF "THE COVERED WAGON" OFFERS RATHER SCATTERED PLOT BUT PROBABLY HAS ENOUGH ACTION AND THRILLS FOR THE CASUAL PICTURE GOER.

Cast.... No box office names. Vivian Rich, Earl Metcalf and Matty Mattison have principal roles which they play satisfactorily. Mattison has the most to do and is a hard working hero; he's kept busy fighting Indians and bandits for the sake of the girl he loves.

Type of Story.... Western of pioneer days. "The Lone Wagon" is an infant brother to the famous "Covered Wagon," infant both in production and story. There is a very ordinary and weak plot in comparison with the Hough theme and a fairly meagre, small scale production compared to the gigantic efforts of James Cruze. And with all that it is possible that there will be enough who'll find the action and thrills of "The Lone Wagon" sufficient to entertain them. This state rights offering contains no prominent players whose names can be used to attract business but if you can interest them through the regulation exploitation channels, it may do adequately for the usual one day showing. Matty Mattison provides most of the excitement in his one man fight with the Indians, his escapes and adventures. The romantic angle is weak and the plot, on the whole, is somewhat disjointed, but where they figure that "all's well that ends well," "The Lone Wagon" will fit in. There are good locations but no attempts to use them for staging a big Indian raid, etc. A native Californian guide is discharged by the leader of a wagon train because he dares to make love to the latter's daughter. Sometime later he comes upon them again and is in time to save the girl he loves from an attack by the Indians.

Box Office Angle.... Should suffice for one day showing. If you know they like westerns and you can count on action and thrills to satisfy, regardless of story, you can use it safely.

Exploitation.... Best stunt for this one is to have a typical old prairie wagon driven about with the title of the picture prominently painted on the canvas top. Distribute throw-aways reading: "Follow 'The Lone Wagon' to the blank theater and see the West as it used to be." There are no names to use in connection with the picture so stick to trailers, stunt exploitation, stills and the usual routine advertising.

Direction.... Frank S. Mattison; fair.

Author..... Frank S. Mattison
Scenario..... Frank S. Mattison
Camerman..... Elmer Dyer
Photography..... All right
Locale..... The West
Length..... 4,800 feet.

"A Woman Who Sinned"

Producer: Finis Fox

As a Whole.... HAS GOOD BOX OFFICE VALUE AND SHOULD PLEASE PICTURE PATRONS EVERYWHERE. COUNT ON YOUR WOMEN PATRONS TO ADVERTISE IT FOR YOU.

Cast.... Splendid cast., Morgan Wallace good as typical "man of the world" and Irene Rich pleasing as his wife though she could have been more prominent. Mae Busch excellent, first as the wife of a small town minister and later as the hardened, avenging mistress of the rich man. Lucien Littlefield and Rex Lease good also.

Type of Story.... Drama. Finis Fox has taken as a basic theme, one which, even he will concede, is not new but through original treatment, unusual twists and skilful direction, it takes on a new perspective, with the result a good entertainment, besides being a profitable box office attraction. His production is splendid. Given a locale, that of a small coast town of the typical New England kind, he introduces the home of his heroine, the wife of a minister and content with her surroundings, her baby and her husband. Contrasting with this you view the luxurious quarters of the rich Randell, a spender who neglects his wife and hates children. He lures the minister's young wife aboard his boat. Rather than return, disgraced, she leaves the town. Again she meets Randell, becomes his mistress apparently, and avenges the wrong he did her by exposing his frauds to the government. Again a lapse of time. Her son, now an evangelist is the means of her redemption. A meagre outline can hardly do justice to a theme that may sound trite but isn't. There is nothing objectionable in the situations which might readily have served for purposes of sex appeal only.

Effective direction, good production values and splendid acting make "A Woman Who Sinned," worth while.

Box Office Angle.... Will undoubtedly satisfy all box office demands. Your women patrons will advertise it for you once they've seen it. The picture is best suited to adult audiences even though there is nothing actually offensive or over suggestive in its situations.

Exploitation.... The title will serve to bring in many without any exploiting at all. Play it up prominently and use catchlines to give them an idea of the story. Talk about the dramatic climax and use a trailer of it. Stills in the lobby and the names of the principals, particularly Mae Busch, should also interest your patrons.

Direction.... Finis Fox; very good; could edit it out a little more toward the close.

Author..... Finis Fox
Scenario..... Finis Fox
Camerman... Hal Mohr-Gene Smith
Art Director..... Robert Ellis
Photography..... Excellent

Elaine Hammerstein in "Drums of Jeopardy"

Quart Pictures—State Rights
As a Whole....INTERNATIONAL CROOKS AND CROWN JEWELS FIGURE PROMINENTLY IN HAROLD MCGRATH STORY; PRETTY WHITE MATERIAL BUT MEL-DRAMA TWISTS MAKE IT SUITABLE FOR CERTAIN CROWD.

...Pleasing, as usual, and does good work but it does seem that she might have given her a vehicle which would permit her to appear to better advantage. Not many good openings offered her in the case of girl who possesses Russian emeralds sought by band of crooks.

...Wallace Beery capable villain and Maude George his able assistant. Jack Mulhall one of those sacrificing heroes who risks life and limb for the girl he loves.

Type of Story...Melodrama. The Russian crown jewels once again serve as excuse for a screen plot in "Drums of Jeopardy." It's all about two beautiful emeralds, once referred to their owner, a Grand Duke, by hero Hawksley, and willed to Hawksley by the Duke. It happens that Karlov and his band learn that hero is to receive the famous jewels and plan to get them. In escaping from Karlov hero is befriended by Dorothy, the daughter of Barrows, the banker in whose care the jewels were left for Hawksley. Complications pile on with Barrows' death at the hands of Karlov, Hawksley's mysterious disappearance, and the eventual trick by which Dorothy traps Karlov and his band and frees Hawksley, whom she loves, and who has been held prisoner by Karlov. There are some good melodramatic twists that furnish excitement and thrills which can be relied upon to please a certain crowd of picture patrons, those that favor melodrama for their entertainment. They won't mind that the development isn't always consistent or logical as long as it keeps moving—and supplies them with thrills.

Box Office Angle...Depends on the people you cater to. You know best whether or not they relish melodrama.

Exploitation...You can probably get up considerable interest in this film by employing the title with prominent advertising. Have two men dressed as Hindus going about playing a typical Hindu tune on drums. This can be worked first as a teaser stunt and then have them display the title and showing the jewels. A jewelry store tie-up would help—a display of emeralds with a sign reading "Emeralds play an important part in 'Drums of Jeopardy' at the blank theater." Use Elaine Hammerstein's name. She's pleasing and her admirers will want to see her in this.

Charles Jones in
"The Vagabond Trail"

Fox PRESENTS JONES IN ANOTHER OF THOSE GRAND AND GLORIOUS HERO ROLES; AN IMPROBABLE YARN AND WITH A GREAT DEAL OF HOKUM BUT ACTION WILL LIKELY MAKE IT SATISFY.

Star...Takes and gives battles in fast and furious fashion from start to finish; will go big with hero worshippers; needs to check up on himself for posing too often.

Cast...L. C. Shumway, Charles Coleman, Frank Nelson make up part of Jones' fighting staff; Marion Nixon suitable heroine; others George Reed, Virginia Warwick and George Romaine.

Type of Story...Western meller. Fox presents Charles Jones in another of his typical screen offerings in which he is a born hero from beginning to end. The plot is of the usual variety and affords Jones the customary business of fighting, rescuing, protecting and with the conventional romantic twist included, of course. There is enough action and thrills to make it a satisfying number for the admirers of westerns and director Wellman has succeeded in distributing the exciting moments and sustained the interest creditably between times. Theme deals with the mysterious Donnegan, apparently a tramp, but different from the rest. He's tossed from a freight train and picked up unconscious by the heroine, Lou Macon, bound for a mine owned by her father. Donnegan appoints himself guardian of Lou and upon reaching their destination Donnegan finds plenty for him to do. Lord Nick, Lou's fiance, has cheated her father and is preparing to run off with a dance hall girl. Donnegan interrupts the plan, is shot by Nick who then discovers Donnegan is his brother. They are reconciled and Donnegan wins Lou.

Box Office Angle...Average western entertainment. You know best whether they like them. If they do you can count on Jones to satisfy them. There's enough action and thrills for anyone.

Exploitation...You know best how to get them interested in the regulation western feature. Where Jones is popular boost his name conspicuously and tell them he furnishes plenty of excitement in his latest feature. Fox's press sheet suggests plenty of interesting tie-ups if you care to give the feature extra advertising. Gas station signs can read: "Air is Free on 'The Vagabond Trail.' Park Your Car at (blank's) garage while you watch Charles Jones at the (blank) theater, in his latest Fox production." Other equally suitable tie-ups are explained in detail and could be used very nicely.

"Under Orders"—Educational
If They Don't Laugh They're Sick

Type of production 2 reel comedy
Here's a comedy that will have your folks giggling, laughing and finally roaring. Clyde Cook is a most ludicrous henpecked husband. In addition, he has the art of being funny without resorting to knock-about methods. He builds up a situation, and this together with his facial expressions is enough to send the spectators into howls of mirth. About the funniest sequence in this very amusing comedy is that in which Cook who has enlisted in the army to escape his wife, is forced to drill with the men under a sergeant who is his deadly enemy. It's the funniest thing seen this season. Don't miss this one. Get it sure. Clyde Cook and Albert Austin wrote the scenario and directed.

"Song Cartoons"—Charles K. Harris and Max Fleischer Well Handled Novelty

Type of production 1 reel novelty
Here's a new idea in song reels, presented by Charles K. Harris, the music publisher who is responsible for the songs and Max Fleischer whose animated cartoons skip nimbly from word to word of the song and lend much charm and some laughs. There is no picturization of the action described in the song—simply the words which run along the screen in large single-line type that moves slowly from right to left in time to the music and on which the tiny cartoon figures dance. The songs included are "Mother, Mother, Mother, Pin a Rose on Me," "Come Take a Trip in My Airship" and "Goodbye, My Lady Love."

"Rivers of Song"—Fox Educational Novel and Interesting

Type of production 1 reel educational
This latest Fox educational reel containing interesting subject matter treated in a novel and attractive manner. It consists of views of various well known rivers of the United States, famed in various songs. For instance, there is the Wabash, glorified in "On the Banks of the Wabash," the Suwannee, of the renowned "Suwanee River." Others very beautifully photographed and pictorially attractive, aside from their song connections, are the Hudson, Potomac, Ohio, Columbia, Sacramento and Mississippi Rivers.

"Reno Or Bust"—Christie—Ed'cal Good Situation Farce Comedy

Type of production 2 reel comedy
Bobby Vernon certainly does his best to make "Reno or Bust" a success and really succeeds very well. The action is very rapid and in spite of the fact that the chase stuff in comedies is as old as the movies themselves, it just goes to show what good direction will do for an old idea. Bobby's new wife, played by Duane Thompson, is spirited away to Reno by her mother—Lila Leslie, who incidentally is a very good-looking-mother—and the rest of the picture is devoted to Bobby's strenuous efforts to recapture his wife and remarry her while evading the law in the persons of several troops of policemen who have orders to arrest him on sight. Very amusing, as well as entertaining.

"Love's Reward"—Dippy Doo Dad—Pathe

One of the Best in Series
Type of production...1 reel all animal comedy.

This time the highly educated monkeys and ducks which comprise the Dippy Doo Dad troupe enact a domestic comedy that is highly interesting and entertaining. There is more plot to this one than is usual in the series and the animals exhibit almost human intelligence. This is a fine novelty reel, which will help you make up a varied program. The kiddies in your audience will just love it and the older folks marvel at the intelligence exhibited by the players.

"Be Your Self"—Fox
No Big Laughs

Type of production 2 reel comedy
Al St. John directed and appears in a dual role in this Fox comedy, cleverly called "Be Your Self." St. John's work is good and he offers many new comedy gags that provide good amusement but, for some reason or other, there are no really uproarious moments. The second reel brings in the picture studio business with the comedian playing double for a star. There are some first rate tricks in this and thoroughly amusing. Even though the number isn't a knock-out it furnishes a satisfying comedy that will fit adequately on most any program.

"Getting Gertie's Goat"—Christie—Educational Peppy Action—Well Directed

Type of production...2 reel comedy
Nothing new about the plot of this one, just the familiar chase stuff with the eloping couple running away from the girl's irate father, but director Sydney has Dorothy Devore and Jimmy Harrison do their chasing on motorcycles and by this method secures some first rate thrills, sustained interest in the action, and a degree of pep that is high in the extreme. The couple borrow the motorcycles for the cops and the marriage ceremony is performed while riding, but they are finally arrested and spend their honeymoon in jail while father, who is a judge, gleefully parades outside their cells.

"Lucretia Lombard"—Warners' atol, West End Lyric—St. Louis
GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a drama of

NEWS—Many capable players have been geous. The photography is particularly ellent. Conway Tearle is the suave somet bored husband * * * Dorothy Mackaill

POST-DISPATCH—Here, the so-called "sex problem," "eternal triangle," and common bedroom phase of the picture drama finds its most indelicate expression.
STAR—"The Next Corner" is an excellent picture well directed and staged and extraordinarily well acted by a fine cast.
TIMES—* * * falls short despite its excellent cast.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l
Walnut, Cincinnati
COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Colleen Moore makes "Painted People," * * * one of the most amusing photoplays that has come this way in some time. Certainly this little star, in a vehicle to her liking, is capable of a performance that is hard to beat.
Circle, Indianapolis
NEWS—Miss Moore is almost constantly amusing, which is saying something, for the story is not worthy of the capabilities she has revealed of late. Be that as it may, however, the spectator will doubtless shout with glee at her antics, at her droll facial expressions, at her quick changes of emotion, which are as humorous as anything seen on the screen this year, and at her general air of recklesness. * * *

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P.-L.
Eastman, Rochester
DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * will please the average motion picture patron more than some of the more finished and elaborate productions which sometimes cost their makers a small fortune. The play is well acted and well photographed; * * *
HERALD—It is what one might call a family picture, real old home stuff, with the thrills of a ship wreck for the youngsters, a very pretty romance for the daughter of sweet sixteen, and a genuine old fashioned family group for the old folks to beam upon.
 * * *
"Pied Piper Malone" one feels will not break the box office records. It is too wholesome. It is not high drama, but it is rather a comfortable, old fashioned thing to watch.
JOURNAL—Mr. Tarkington did not extend himself in making the story for Mr.
 Meighan. He hit upon a delicious title and starting in to sketch a character that looked promising. But he soon lost his interest in characterization in building up a plot of banal intrigue.

"Pioneer Trails"—Vitagraph
Victoria, Rochester
HERALD—* * * a moving picture with several angles of interest, including the historic, the dramatic, the melodramatic and that of characterization. It is good entertainment more or less conventionally made.

"Richard, The Lion Hearted"—Allied
Broadway, Los Angeles
(Week ending March 1)
DAILY NEWS—To be sure there is action —plenty of it—and suspense has been well sustained in certain sequences by Director Withey, but being called a sequel to such an attraction as "Robin Hood," one who expects to view a spectacular photo-entertainment, with elaborate battle scenes, will be greatly disappointed.
EXAMINER—Chet Whitey directed the film, which has been cut with too much haste, and occasionally titles and action do not quite tie-up but the sparkle and massive action of the drama goes on, * * * HERALD—* * * there are all the requisites of a fine costume picture of a period when romance was rampant * * * Many of the court scenes are truly magnificent, and for those who crave action we can assure a great deal of convincingly staged clashing of halberd and arrow on armor.
RECORD—But, Beery as the lion-hearted Crusader, would make a worthy picture were he the only one in the cast. * * * A star of the first magnitude who can mix grim tragedy with deft humor is Wallace Beery.
TIMES—Taking up the story of third crusade where "Robin Hood" left off,
 "Richard, the Lion Hearted," * * * hasn't the fast action, although there seems to be an endless series of fights and intrigues * * *

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L. McVicker's, Chicago

HERALD & EXAMINER—* * * La Negri is the screen's First Actress, shining even in bad plays—which "Shadows of Paris" is not. It isn't a wonder-play, but the Polish countess and Charles de Roche make it almost that.

I could paw through Roget for an hour and not find enough jeweled words to portray, adequately, the delight of beholding the passionate Pola in her latest effort.

POST—Pola Negri will fascinate you * * * as she never has before. * * * Again Pola proves she is a distinctive class by herself. * * * Adolphe Menjou repeats his success of "A Woman of Paris," in a very similar role of the slick villain.

As in most of Pola Negri's stories there is a strain of tragedy running thru this one, but the ending loses none of its dramatic power by leaving you happy.

Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Pola doesn't come away with many honors. The fault is the story's. * * * "Shadows of Paris" nags even your credulity raw. * * * Pola's role in this film compared with "Passion" and "Gypsy Blood" is synthetic; verily sub-synthetic in so far as the kick is concerned. Better days when Lubitsch becomes her director next June.

Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—The story is a wild one, with no contact anywhere with reality, but, somehow, the chief performer and her supporting cast all do so well that one forgets how extravagant are their posturings. * * * Miss Negri * * * is more like her old self in this film than she has been for a season or two.

Columbia, Washington

STAR—"Shadows of Paris" is notable for Apache scenes that smack strangely of the Bowery, * * * it is difficult to conceive why the artistic Pola should submit to the many "close ups" of herself, with a sneering smile and a cigarette dangling loosely from the corner of twisted lips.

There is plenty of action in the picture and the supporting cast does well with its improbable and unreal characters and situations.

TIMES—* * * Pola Negri, at the head of the list, came through with the best of her American efforts, * * * She's good—no doubt of that; but the spark of her ability is burning almost to an ash, and it's going to take some strong blowing to fan it back again. One sighs at the thought of what a glorious picture this would have been had Lubitsch directed Pola through its mazes in the Paris where its scenes are supposed to have been laid.

"Shadow of the East"—Fox Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * elaborate production and the story is of the type that holds one spellbound from the first reel to the conclusion. It is rich in Oriental atmosphere, beautiful in its sets and photography and splendidly directed by George Archinbaud, * * * An excellent cast * * *

NEWS—* * * While every effort has been made to surpass the dash and romanticism of "The Sheik," the picture fails to impress, no doubt because this class of film has had its day. There is, nevertheless, some remarkable acting and gorgeous scenery, far richer in some instances than its predecessor. The big scene is a desert fight with an enemy tribe.

"Sporting Youth"—Universal Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—Denny's personality is the right sort for the role given him, and there will be, very likely, a few thousand more female worshippers present at his shrine as a result of his violent heroics on the screen.

HERALD—"Sporting Youth" packed the Regent yesterday and undoubtedly it will do so throughout the week. It is distinctly a picture made for the box office, and, if athletics, auto racing and swimming are acting then it is supremely well acted.

JOURNAL—The picture contains not a single serious moment, and its concern for plausibility is at times negligible. It makes no pretense of being designed for anything but to entertain, on which score alone it is entitled to a vote of heartfelt thanks.

"Stephen Steps Out"—F. P.-L. New Lyric, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—* * * young Fairbanks * * * displays much promise of establishing himself as a screen luminary, * * *

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L. Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Joseph Henahery, * * * has, * * * woefully blurred the outlines of his theme; grossly misplaced the accent in almost every sequence. The picture possesses a powerful plot. Mr. Henahery could not entirely nullify that, * * *

Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—* * * is replete with suspense, tense, dramatic action, and a charming romance.

"Through the Dark"—Gold.-Cosmop. Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—The picture is frankly for entertainment purposes, and as such, it seems to the reviewer, it is good. It would have been better without the moral appended at the conclusion, but one must not be too captious, * * * Miss Moore is agreeable as the heroine, although the role demands almost nothing of her capabilities. Forrest Stanley is a believable Blackie. * * *

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l Palace, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—* * * It is a picture that will please the average fan because of its sentimental tone. Barthelmess is quite convincing in his portrayal and Dorothy Mackaill is excellent as the little factory girl. * * *

"Thy Name Is Woman"—Metro Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The feature proves a thoroughly entertaining one, excellently directed and skillfully acted. The picture was produced by Fred Niblo, whose ability as a director has put him in the front line of successful movie makers.

Warfield, San Francisco

CHRONICLE—It is a tragic poem of love, in which the soul of a woman is laid bare. * * * There is an uncanniness about the character of Guerrita as played by Barbara LaMarr. It is like having the soul of a woman on the dissecting table, where the scalpel has been used ruthlessly. * * * admirably played by Ramon Novarro. The acting is almost flawless. The support rendered the two stars is far above the usual.

From the standpoint of acting and picturization, "Thy Name Is Woman," is, indeed, a triumph for the cinema.

DAILY HERALD—It is a compellingly interesting production. * * * it contains all the ingredients of a really big picture—plot, scenery, setting, direction, superb acting, and a story that grips relentlessly. * * * Novarro acquires himself splendidly, despite the fact that he has done better work in other films. Mong's characterization is excellent; but Miss La Marr takes the honors. She achieves stellar distinction in this absorbing screen drama.

DAILY NEWS—Turning from spectacular things of popular appeal, * * * Fred Niblo turns his hand to real photodrama, and with considerable success in "Thy Name Is Woman." * * * His direction is sophisticated; yet the play is instinct with drama and its tensely, maintenance of suspense and abundance of local color set it apart as one of the excellent productions of the year.

EXAMINER—Barbara La Marr * * * almost makes the Warfield screen itself, vibrate with the pulsating and conflicting moods through which a woman in love must pass. Miss La Marr and Novarro a pair of ideal lovers. But the medal for the best and most difficult impersonation in "Thy Name Is Woman" should go to William Mong. * * *

"Under the Red Robe"—Gold.-Cos. Bway Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * will go down in screen history as one of the few pictures worthy of the title of "great." * * * Its settings are massive and gorgeous and the costumes, jewels and ornaments worth a king's ransom. Indeed, nothing more lavish or magnificent in the way of settings has been seen on the screen.

TIMES—* * * The picture is there and it holds a lot of entertainment in store for you. Don't take the word of any one person. See for yourselves.

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold.-Cosmop. Garrick, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—Some of the filming of the snows of Canada is excellent and the ride taken in a nose spinning airplane is thrilling.

"The Whispered Name"—Universal Cameo, San Francisco

BULLETIN—King Baggot's faultless direction brings out every point and the cast he selected makes the story a live, true-to-life one in every detail.

CHRONICLE—* * * an intricate story handled with commendable smoothness and interest, and the acting in the whole is of a very fair order.

DAILY HERALD—King Baggot directed the picture. The reproduction of a great newspaper office * * * makes a newsroom of remarkable accuracy, something in which the screen has failed repeatedly. Also, his handling of the dramatic climax * * * is smooth and even. The cast is specially good.

"The White Sister"—Metro New Lyceum, Baltimore

AMERICAN—All things considered, it is an amazing photoplay, a silent drama containing no small amount of pictorial and spiritual beauty, with some of the finest acting achieved by Lillian Gish since "Broken Blossoms." * * *

NEWS—It is a beautiful and most worthy photoplay. Taken in Italy, the exterior scenes are particularly lovely. * * * There is genuine pathos in this story, and Miss Gish's acting as Ange'a will wring your heart. Ronald Colman, a young man new to me on the screen, is especially good * * *

SUN (EVENING)—Miss Gish's work is beyond praise. * * * She is tender, sympathetic, completely alive to all of the part's emotional possibilities. * * * There is little of the absurd face-making and finger twiddling that Miss Gish was forced to indulge in under the direction of the "wizard of Mamaroneck." Ronald Colman forms a fit counterpart for the superb acting of Miss Gish. This young actor is a new one to us, but, let us add, a great one. * * * a tale for lovers the world over. It is a romance that will never die. We called it a picture of the ages once before and we call it that again.

SUN (MORNING)—While the film play as a whole has several points of general excellence, it is to Miss Gish and the noteworthy direction of Henry King that the major portion of the glory must be awarded.

National, Washington

STAR—* * * undoubtedly reaches a high mark of excellence among recent photoplay productions. * * * well handled in transferring it to the screen, losing none of its dramatic power and gaining much through the pictorial effects. * * *

Henry King's fine touch is seen throughout the picture, not only in the artistry of scenic beauty, but in the realism of the situations and the simplicity with which he has told the story, at the same time making the most of its highly emotional possibilities.

TIMES—Miss Gish is one of the most appealing of actresses on stage or screen and in this tragic story of the mesh made for two young lovers by laws, solemn vows and the military machine, she has a role admirably suited to her. * * *

"A Woman of Paris"—United A. Palace, Montreal

STAR—* * * herein lies the appeal of the picture. It tells the truth, and it does without any exaggerations either emotional or otherwise. * * * Mr. Chaplin has tried to no popular shibboleths. He has been tent to depict life as he has seen it. The result is in the highest degree promising, shall look for bigger and finer work from in future.

"Woman to Woman"—Selznick Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is an appealing picture and Betty Compson's delineation of the heroine, Deloyse, is an artistic triumph. STAR—Betty Compson looks her best, is guilty of overacting probably due to directing. There is an English humor in the picture.

TIMES—The story, in the main, is interesting, and succeeds in holding the attention.

"You Can't Get Away With It"—California, San Francisco

CALL—The picture aims to be, and is, a very large measure is, true to life. Marmont renders a very fine performance the man, as does Miss Bouton as the villain in the case.

CHRONICLE—This Betty Bouton to be the real thing. She is a competent newcomer, but she gives a performance fine and so sincere that even Percy Mearns fails to overshadow her. * * *

Coming from the Fox studios, the picture of course, had to have a certain amount of most abject hokum. In the main, however, the psychology is true to life, and holds the interest all the way through.

DAILY HERALD—The picture is entertaining, * * * no detail was omitted scenes or acting, which would weaken the original plot.

Deals at Metro

Disposition Awaiting Attention of Marcus Loew, Who Returns from South Today

Marcus Loew returns from a vacation at Palm Beach today. Among the matters that have accumulated during his absence are two deals concerning the distribution of a new series of pictures.

The director is Hobart Henley, who recently signed a contract with Louis B. Mayer. The other is Robert Signola who has formed his own producing unit and has purchased "The Paramount," by Louis Joseph, as his possible first story. The negotiations with the latter have been going on for some weeks.

Loew will head a party that will attend the opening of the State theater at White Plains tonight. The theater will operate under a vaudeville picture policy. The Strand in White Plains is scheduled to open on Thursday with a straight picture policy.

Zukor Angling For Doug and Mary; Chaplin and Griffith in Doubt

Paramount's Power as Producing Unit Pointed Out to Fairbanks—Tie-up Would Eliminate Worry of Finance—Indications Point to Scrapping of United Artists

On excellent authority it can be stated that the final disposition of the United Artists situation will be made in the following manner:

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are expected to enter upon a producing alliance with Famous Players.

Charlie Chaplin is expected to continue his present method of sporadic production, paying little attention to actual distributing arrangements until his pictures have been completed.

D. W. Griffith may go abroad to produce there for a time. His future plans are perhaps the furthest from settlement of any of the entire "Big Four" group.

It seems likely that United Artists will be scrapped. Hiram Abrams' contract expired last November, it is understood, and despite the fact that he made two trips to the coast relative to a renewal, this fact has not occurred.

In the discussions understood to be under way—and there are discussions despite the complete reticence of all parties concerned—the tremendous power, financial and otherwise of the Paramount organization is said to have carried some weight with Fairbanks.

He is said to have experienced the same difficulties that have beset practically every other independent producer of motion pictures: the problem of proper financing. It is understood on unquestioned authority that "The Thief of Bagdad" cost close on to $1,900,000 to produce. This high cost does not include what Fairbanks would ordinarily draw in the way of salary for his services. The tie-up on exploitation made with Morris Gest will run into an additional sum of money that is far from insignificant.

It has been pointed out that all of these worries will be eliminated were he to work in conjunction with Famous Players. The publicity and exploitation angle has caused the "Big Four" members much concern. They feel that their pictures have not been handled the way they should. The point has been made that finances, advertising and complete aid in production would be vital factors in a production alliance with Zukor. The

Charles S. Goetz has filed suit in the Supreme Court against Warner Bros. for $12,625, alleging that the defendants were financially interested in the W. B. Film Exchange, and that on Aug. 1, 1922, he was employed as general manager. He alleges that he was also to get 5% of the net profits. Goetz states that the contract was terminated July 7 and that the net profits were $100,000 of which his share is $5,000, and $2,625 salary is also alleged to be due.

On a second claim Goetz alleges that he was employed in October, 1922, to obtain contracts for the distribution of "Ashamed of Parents," "Parted Curtains" and "Your Best Friend," and was to get 25% commission on the net earnings. He alleges that the earnings were $20,000 and that his share was $5,000.

No one at Warner's cared to comment on the action.

A judgment for $2,567 has been filed in the Supreme Court against Charles O. Baumann by Abraham J. Levy of the Friars Club, who got a note for that sum from Baumann last September, but it was not paid.

Buddy Messinger has been added to the cast of "Relativity" at Universal.

U. A. Meeting Soon

Directors to Meet Within Ten Days—Mary Pickford in "Peter Pan"?

An important person closely connected with United Artists declared yesterday that there was not the slightest truth to the reports linking the name of Adolph Zukor with the affairs of the Company. He said that no mention had been made of the suggestion that Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford might form some sort of a producing alliance with Famous.

No meetings of United Artists' directors have been held since the arrival of Fairbanks and Miss Pickford. One will be held, however, in about ten days or shortly after the opening of "The Thief of Bagdad." It was maintained yesterday that all of the reports in circulation were not founded in fact and that nothing of any definite nature had been determined about the future of the organization.

It was reported again yesterday that should the Fairbanks-Pickford arrangement become a fact, Miss Pickford might appear in "Peter Pan" for Famous.

Geraghty to Make Three?

"The Times" also states that Geraghty will make three pictures for Allied.

Rowson Closes Deal

Buys MacLean Prod. for England
—Sails for Home Next Week

Contracts were signed yesterday by Harry Rowson, president of the Ideal Films, Ltd., and J. S. Woody, general manager of Associated Exhibitors, Inc., by which the British rights to all Douglas MacLean productions were taken over by Ideal.

Rowson is taking prints of "Going Up" and "The Yankee Consul" back with him when he sails next week. He is making an effort to have MacLean come to London for the premiere of one of the pictures, and it is possible that the star will accept. Rowson hopes that he can then induce MacLean to film "Charley's Aunt" in England.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—The Theater Owners Dist. Corp. of Manhattan has been formed here by T. F. MacMahon. The papers list 1,000 shares of common stock, no par value.

The Theaters Owners Dist. Corp. was originally formed in Delaware with a capitalization of $5,000,000. W. A. True, chairman of the board stated yesterday there was no special significance in the formation of the new company.

T. N. T. Popularity Contest, Astor. March 29.

Anniversary Luncheon

In anniversary of the year's run of "The Covered Wagon" at the Criterion, officials of Famous Players yesterday tendered a lunch at the Ritz to critics of the fan, general and trade press.

A. M. Botsford acted as toastmaster and proved unusually witty. Among the speakers were Ernest Torrance, Dr. Riesenfeld and Jesse L. Lasky, who recounted some of the experiences of the troupe in making the famous picture, ending with a delightful tribute to James Cruze the director. Much of what he told the crowd was related in an article which appeared in this publication some time ago captioned "The Inside Story of the Making of 'The Covered Wagon.'"

Revamping T. O. C. C. Constitution

The T. O. C. C. constitution is being changed to meet changed conditions in the organization. Plans are progressing for the acquisition of a clubhouse in the film district which will be thrown open to everyone connected with the industry. One class of membership will take in exhibitors, another group will embrace exchange-men, architects engaged in theater construction, trade press and the like while a third will include out-of-town exhibitors whose membership will entitle them to use the clubhouse while in New York.

Inspiration Won't Star McAvoy

The original plan of Inspiration to star May McAvoy, following her appearance in support of Richard Barthelmess in several pictures will not be carried out. Miss McAvoy is at present on the coast to appear in "The Inside Story," William de Mille's new picture and will later appear in "Tarnish" for Samuel Goldwyn.

"J. D." After Lloyd?

His Coast Visit Revives Reports of a Deal for Distribution of Harold Lloyd's Pictures

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—J. D. Williams is here from the East.

The visit of Williams to the coast has revived gossip of a possible deal between him and Harold Lloyd concerning the distribution of the latter's pictures. The report has been talked about occasionally for some time past.

However, in view of the fact that Ritz-Carlton has not announced its own releasing plan, it is not held likely that any tie-up between the two will result.

It is understood that Lloyd has two more pictures to make for Pathe. John C. Ragland, Eastern representative for Lloyd, is now on the coast where he will probably remain for some weeks.

"Girl Shy," the new Lloyd picture will be released nationally on Easter Sunday, April 20.

Deny Affiliation With Famous

The denial made by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford of any affiliation with Famous Players which arrived too late for publication in yesterday's issue points out that neither one is considering making any new alliances. The statement declares that Miss Pickford has been conferring with Adolph Zukor relative to her old Arcraft pictures of which she still owns a fifty per cent interest.

Will Split Affect "Potash"?

Victor M. Shapiro of the Samuel Goldwyn organization said yesterday he was uninformed of the effect of the reported split between Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr on the production of "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood" for which both were slated. The team is said to have come to the parting of the ways because of differences in temperament.

Principal Has New Releases

In The Courts

A jury in the City Court has awarded a verdict for $2,037 in favor of Charles K. Harris against Warner Bros. The suit was based on a contract made in 1922, by which the plaintiff gave the defendant his story "The Bridge of Sighs" to be made into a film, and gave the defendant the right to select three other scenarios, for which he was to get $15,000. He alleged that "The Bridge of Sighs" was later returned to him, and he substituted "The Tie that Binds". He alleged that $2,000 was due under an agreement to pay him $1,000 a month.

The defense was that the plaintiff failed to finish any other scenarios suitable for the use of Warner Bros. and for that reason they rescinded the contract. They counterclaimed for $8,000 already paid. The counterclaim was dismissed.

Los Angeles—Federal Judge James has returned a verdict in favor of Miss Georges Lewys against whom Eric Von Stroheim, filed suit for injunction charging infringement of copyright.

The action arose over the publication by Miss Lewys of a book based on the "Merry-Go-Round." Judge James found for the defendant because the plaintiff had failed to file within a prescribed period an amended complaint setting forth the court's jurisdiction in the case.

In his bill of complaint Von Stroheim declared he had written the script for the picture story and that Miss Lewys, associated with him in that work, later infringed on the copyright by making a book of the production.

Los Angeles—Thomas H. Ince, Mack Sennett, J. Parker Reed, Maurice Tourneur, Allan Dwan and Marshall Neilan, are defendants in a stockholders' liability suit for $50,000 damages, brought by F. L. Hutton.

The plaintiff alleges that in the past three years, Associated Producers, Inc., became indebted to the plaintiff for $50,000 and that each of the defendants was the owner of one-sixth of the capital stock of the corporation. He also declares that each of the defendants is indebted to him for $8,333.33. Attorney W. T. Van Pelt.

Tie-Up With "Happiness"

The Metro exploitation department has made arrangements with the manufacturers of "Happiness" candy to cooperate for exploitation purposes.

The candy people have made up special boxes with a photograph of Miss Taylor on the cover and the name of the picture and her autograph under it. In addition, the manufacturers have designed a special window display card which has been mounted on it a still from the production and Miss Taylor's autographed endorsement. Room has been left for the theater imprint.

These window cards are being supplied by United to all its stores throughout the country with instructions for their managers to get in touch with the local exhibitors when "Happiness" is set to play. Where a city does not have a special United candy store, the United Cigar Store in that city will be supplied with a full order of "Happiness" candy and the special window display so that the tie-up may be effective there when "Happiness" plays.

500 Enter Jackie Coogan Contest

Bangor, Me.—A successful "Jackie Coogan contest" was put over by Arthur W. Pinkham, manager of the Park, when he played "Long Live the King."

Over 500 contestants took part, the winner receiving a suit of Jackie Coogan clothes. Pinkham held nightly parades of the contestants in make-up. He also used window displays in the most prominent clothing concern of Bangor and a street ballyhoo consisting of a pony cart with three 3-sheet cutouts which was driven about town during the run. In addition, and as part of the contest, two dozen pairs of "Jackie Coogan Peanuts" were given out.

Bank Books Help Box-Office

New Haven, Conn.—Tod Browning, manager of the Olympia, tied up with the Congress Bank and Trust Co. to increase his box-office receipts.

Coupons were issued under the auspices of the theater, crediting the bearer of such a coupon, when presented with one dollar at the savings bank department of the company, with a two dollar account. Only one coupon was allowed a person and that had to be presented by a specified date.

Open Book as Advance Exploitation

Reading, Pa. — Declaring that "Ashes of Vengeance" was an open book for all lovers of good pictures, the Capitol, managed by Joel Levy, used an open book for its advance lobby advertising.

A huge book was opened on the platform. The blank pages had been hand lettered with the name of the star and title on one side and descriptive selling copy on the other.

Candy Makers Cooperate

Toronto—The McCormick Company, candy makers, have started a big tie-up in the Dominion on "Boy of Mine." A chocolate bar, called "Boy of Mine" is being placed on the stands and stores.

A heavy advertising campaign is accompanying the new candy bar. Twenty-one reduced stills are being supplied with the wrappers and when boys or girls get a complete collection of all twenty-one, they receive an autographed photograph of Ben Alexander.

The combination of the "Boy of Mine" bar, the publicity and the novelty puzzle, furthered by the active cooperation of the McCormick agencies in advertising with the theaters and the added inducement of offering quantities of these bars at cost to theaters wishing to distribute them free at special children's matinees, is making the campaign quite successful.

The tie-up was arranged by Clare Appel.

Real Effect With Lobby Card

A lobby card calculated to arouse curiosity and which can be used as an effective exploitation aid is being issued by Educational for use with the Ives-Leventhal Plastigrams, the so-called "third dimension movie."

The card is 11 x 14 inches, and contains an illustration printed in a manner closely approaching the printing process used in making the picture. Two images differing only in the optical angle in which they have been photographed, are superimposed in red and blue ink. A pair of red and blue glasses accompanies the card, and by viewing the card through the special glasses a startling stereoptical effect is obtained.

The card is intended for use in a lobby frame, with the glasses suspended near it. It gives an idea of the effect obtained in the picture in a realistic manner.

Flower Dealers to Help

"Lilies of the Field" will have widespread cooperation from the Florist's Telegraph Delivery Ass'n, an organization with 3,200 members in every part of the country.

Corinne Griffith's photograph, as she appears in the picture with a corsage of flowers, will be the centerpiece of an attractive card to be roto-gravured and delivered to association members for display in their windows.

The step is the beginning of a new campaign inaugurated by the Floral Association to educate the public in the facilities offered in delivering flowers by wire.

Capitol Artists to Tour

The Capitol theater staff of broadcasting artists, numbering 30, leaves on Saturday for a tour of the larger cities.

HUNCHBACK

"THE PICTURE BEFORE IT came to Santa Cruz was in demand by the public who showed their welcome by a phenomenal attendance during the opening performance and who showed their appreciation of the great artistic worth and entertainment value by a tremendous business done throughout the engagement. 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' is an example of a big picture properly exploited."—W. J. Citron, Louis R. Greenfield Theatres, San Francisco, Cal.

* * *

"I HAVE JUST CONCLUDED a successful week's engagement of 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame,' a week in which new records, both attendance and receipts, were established. This is all the more remarkable when one realizes that I am operating a suburban theatre, a theatre with an established admission price of 35 cents. I was very sceptical about raising my prices, especially to 55 cents—83 cents—$1.10 and $1.65. But results proved that this was what helped put the picture over. Our net business for the week was $5034.25. Oh, Boy, what a week! Sure could stand a few more like it."—Jack H. Roth, Isis Theatre, Kansas City, Mo.

* * *

"'HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME' opened here today Majestic Theatre and smashed record of house by over five hundred dollars. Capacity business and hold-out crowds all evening. Most successful opening in history of theatre. Excellent advertising campaign. Congratulations."—Consolidated Theatres, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich.

* * *

"'HUNCHBACK' OPENED here to tremendous crowds at advanced prices. It is a great picture and a great business-getter. Have heard nothing but enthusiastic comments. Give us more like it. Congratulations."—V. H. Waldron, Broadway Theatre, Haverstraw, N. Y.

—a sensational engagement!

"FOR THE FIRST TIME IN the history of the Allen Theatre, London, the usual policy of continuous performance was suspended for the engagement of 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame.' Two shows daily at advanced prices. Business exceeded our greatest expectations. We sincerely congratulate Mr. Laemmle on this wonderful production. It is one of the very few pictures that backs up its advertising."—T. W. Logan, Allen Theatre, London, Ontario.

"WE HAVE JUST FINISHED the first week of our engagement of 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' at our Syracuse Strand Theatre. Although we were handicapped by very bad weather conditions our record for any picture that has ever played Syracuse either at a legitimate theatre at two dollars top or a picture theatre have been broken with The Hunchback. We are holding the picture over next week a rare occurrence in Syracuse and expect record breaking business for the rest of the engagement.—Syracuse Strand Theatre Co., Inc., by Walter Hays, Pres.

"'HUNCHBACK' WONDERFUL success here played to one third entire population knocked em dead all house records in town shattered at stiff advance admission scale."—Tom Brown, Iowa City, Iowa.

"'HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE Dame' enjoyed greatest opening performance Sunday night of any of the big features at advanced prices playing the Palace period capacity in a house seating thirty two hundred 'Hunchback of Notre Dame' is a magnificent production and a great picture."—Oliver Edwards, Manager Palace Theatre, New Haven, Conn.

"WISH TO CONGRATULATE your company as having the best picture I have ever shown in Cheyenne in the last ten years namely 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame.' From a box office standpoint the receipts were nearly three hundred dollars better than any other picture we ever ran at advanced prices for three days. Trusting that you may make many more pictures equally as good as 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame.'"—Earl Nye, Carl Ray's Princess Theatre, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Newspaper Opinions

"A Society Scandal"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—"A Society Scandal" develops a hand from the standpoint of directing and production. The story is light and frothy as whipped cream, and such for those who like serious photography, but I should like to have the revenue that will bring into the Famous Players' coffers. Gloria's fans are going to cheer up, and even those who are not self-satisfied Swanson fans are going to agree that she does some very good work.

DAILY NEWS—"A Society Scandal" is, in what I call a vurr' dressy piece, designed to tickle the ladies. The Swanson particularly will draw long breaths on it. I drew a long one myself at the close-up.

EVENING JOURNAL—Lavish settings and particularly stunning costumes, and an interesting story, give Gloria the background she has to have.

EVENING WORLD—Gloria was never so glorious as she is in "A Society Scandal."

HERALD—Nothing in a long while has had the peculiar talents of Miss Swanson as well as this Suture story. "A Society Scandal" finishes "high." That is to say it is better as it goes along and the last part is a most delightful moment in it. The excitement is.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Under the direction of Allan Dwan she has full opportunity for the display of her particular talents. It seems these days to be developing in new directions. She is careless and light-hearted, betimes, sad, frightened, desperate, outraged, cynical, most emotional, and melting in all of which, she appeared to the hearty approval of her audience.

EN—* * * if you saw the play Rivoli is a good place to stay away from this week. For "A Society Scandal" has changed not only the story of "Laughing Lady," It has thrown away every delightful flavor and spirit of the TELEGRAM—The film play depends for success on its melodramatic pictures of life and the big scene by means of Miss Gloria Swanson as the divorced woman wins another husband by a trick which is worthy of the brilliant woman.

MES—This is an entertainment well played by of better class pictures, and one to which one can look forward as an evening light. Mr. La Rocque is composed and as the young lawyer. Ricardo Cortez gives a pleasing performance of the lovelorn young man, and Allan Simpson is able as Colbert.

TRIBUNE—* * * it is the very best thing Allan Dwan ever has directed, and there are moments when it reminded us of "The Stage Circle." Everybody is at his very best and the picture abounds in delightful scenes. Gloria Swanson is remarkably good as heroine.

WORLD—Miss Swanson's last previous play was "The Humming Bird," and good one, too. But the young woman and employers evidently felt a consuming urge to hurry back to silks and dramatic inanity. It is accomplished to a remarkable degree by Rivoli. * * * There is no use coming further upon an exhibit so dull and full of junk as this.

"Love's Whirlpool"—Hodkinson Cameo

AMERICAN—"Love's Whirlpool" with Lila and Madge, while typical of the stuff, will nevertheless interest the world and his wife. Principally because all world loves a lover and a crook melodrama.

EVENING WORLD—* * * has about the thing in it we've ever seen in pictures is based on the original theme of the generation of a master-crook through the of a good woman.

HERALD—* * * a fairly well done "crook picture." At times it is especially exciting at others highly entertaining. In and there is no restraint, the old hokum is entirely emptied and the picture comes out with a touching close-up of a lover's clinch and a shadowed cross. Entertaining to some no doubt, but the brilliant Mr. Kirkwood is deserving of better stuff than this.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—This is pretty much of a hackneyed tale, but it is made possible by several ingenious twists. However, the Kirkwood-Lee series are deserving of better material, and it would be more pleasurable to view them in tales of modern matrimony, which always have their appeal, and would be admirably suited to the talents of the two.

TELEGRAM—The picture was well filmed and the thrills were all there. When the liner went down the mad rush for boats, the plunges to death, were realistic.

TIMES—There is such a thing as a bad picture which is interesting. This belongs to that type. There is not a hope of following the story in "Love's Whirlpool," but some of the reckless ideas are interesting, as is also the daring of the director, Bruce Mitchell.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—All things considered, it is a program picture made at a price that will get by in a lot of houses that it is especially designed for.

TRIBUNE—The photography was excellent, the play was well directed and the continuous melodrama afforded many thrills. That is, if one can forget the improbability of a play's plot and enjoy the thrill that an isolated situation can afford.

WORLD—* * * is one of the few entertaining stories screened in the last six months. It is purely a melodrama. It makes no pretensions whatever.

"Flowing Gold"—1st Nat'l Strand

AMERICAN—"Flowing Gold," as a novel, has all the Beach flare for action, suspense and adventure. Not one item of this is lost in its union with the screen. One of the best films of this kind I have seen in a long time.

EVENING JOURNAL—Rex Beach's novel, on the screen, is a highly enjoyable adventure, for Richard Walton Tully, in his production of the picture, puts romance and suspense into the thrilling fights, humorous situations and interesting theme.

EVENING WORLD—But it's a good picture, and would have created a lot of talk and interest even if the papers hadn't been all oiled up for weeks past.

HERALD—The comedy relief somewhat eases the pain caused by the generally irritating production of "Flowing Gold," * * * In spite of its artificial situations, the worn characterizations and the offensively red blooded Mr. Milton Sills' "Flowing Gold" had its qualities.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * proves that Richard Walton Tully has the singular knack of providing entertainment that entertains whether his medium be the screen or the stage. * * * contains the satisfying ingredients of suspense, laughter, thrills and human interest, and is most capably acted by the cast, which features Anna Q. Nilsson and Milton Sills.

SUN—Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold," at the Strand, is a fairly good picture. "Flowing Gold," will please you if you are "hell-bent" on a melodrama some time this week; otherwise it is only so-so.

TELEGRAM—* * * the film play is based. It is a stirring picture full of excitement and thrills, and has the advantage of being the result of Mr. Beach's personal experiences.

TIMES—"Flowing Gold," fills one with amazement at the amount of movie hokum that can be packed into eight reels. * * * Improbable as it is, the first half of this picture is entertaining, as the atmosphere is fairly well depicted. * * * Those who can bear with hokum may find this picture an average entertainment.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is an interesting story of the Texas oil fields becoming mellowly melodramatic at the climax with the hero caught in a derelict cottage in a cloudburst.

WORLD—In the movies, "Flowing Gold," is a motion picture which shows that everybody concerned with it worked mighty hard to make it a howling thriller.

"Happiness"—Metro Rialto

AMERICAN—"Happiness" is a glorified slapstick comedy. * * * For those who like their film mixed with generous hunks of Keystone comedy injected in a drama, "Happiness" may be just what they are looking for. It has its amusing moments.

DAILY NEWS—It's a pity, but true, that charm on the stage is not always charm on the screen. Take Laurette Taylor, for instance. * * * take Laurette in the movies, "Happiness," for example. Terrible! Painful to look at! Full of inescapable boorishness and tiresome to a serious degree!

EVENING WORLD—We have never seen this star look better either on or off the screen. * * * We thought "Peg O' My Heart" a wonderful picture with Miss Taylor in the title role, and couldn't believe it was really she playing the part, but go and see "Happiness." She's even better; and that's saying a lot.

HERALD—"Happiness" is a routine affair, conforming in every respect to the conventional musical comedy plot. * * * It is palpably a vehicle for Miss Taylor. Fortunately she needs no such mechanical contrivance; she can travel on her own motive power.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The charm of Laurette Taylor is enough to put any picture over. * * * The theme of the story is slender, but it has an ideal cast and has been well directed by King Vidor.

TELEGRAM—There is the same wistful charm in the heroine or "Happiness" that made "Peg O' My Heart" so irresistibly appealing.

TIMES—* * * While "Happiness," is far from being an effort that will create any stir in the movie world, it has certain ideas that will make it entertaining to many of the younger element of cinema enthusiasts. * * *

Through her presence, and not always her acting, Miss Laurette Taylor, who plays the part of Jenny Wreary, saves the film from being a most ordinary picture.

TRIBUNE—"Happiness" will calmly please if not startle you.

WORLD—* * * Miss Taylor goes blithely through a badly told story to the crystal coach and the golden palace. The direction is unspeakable, Miss Taylor being constantly before the camera, exhibiting her hair.

"Memories of Lincoln"—DeForest Rivoli

HERALD—Chauncey Depew appeared in De Forest Phonofilm and the result was amazing. Every word was clearly heard and synchronized perfectly. It was easy to imagine, after the film had run awhile, it was Mr. Depew himself sitting there in the theater and talking of Lincoln as he knew him in quiet conversational tones.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Among the other striking features of the Rivoli program this week is a De Forest Phonofilm, in which Chauncey M. Depew, nearing 90, gives his recollections and summing up of Lincoln in perfect synchronization with the picture.

TIMES—* * * not perfect, but at the same time most interesting. Chauncey Depew * * * proceeds to talk for about four minutes on "Memories of Lincoln." One can hear every word he utters, which is remarkable considering the age of this statesman. It was interesting to note that when he coughed it was also heard from the screen. The voice is well synchronized with the action of Mr. Depew's lips. In fact the chief weakness of this remarkable invention is that the sound comes from the sides of the screen, and not from the lips. However, there are moments when one loses sight of this defect by the sheer interest one feels in what the speaker utters.

"The Hill Billy"—Allied Prod. Broadway

AMERICAN—* * * "The Hill Billy" is about the best thing that young Mr. Pickford has made for the screen since "Seventeen" and those long ago films when, as a juvenile hero, he had a big following.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * thoroughly delightful and refreshing. * * * Jack Pickford is very much at home in the part. He is natural and unaffected, and brings a seriousness and poise to the role which is effective.

The line up looks imposing. One of the notable productions to be "Peter Pan" by Fanny. The Barrie classic. In Maude Adams triumphed years. Lasky and staff all. Can't determine on who is to play Peter. Realize need of a definite touch here. Otherwise possibly difficulties—no failure.

Of course there is one sure fire bet on the part—Mary. But how to get around the problem. Possibly Zukor talked exclusively of those old times when he met Mary at tea. Perhaps he has hinted of Peter Pan. It is not. But if Mary could be secured in to do it—what a picture would be! Not getting Mary—and getting don't look too good at the moment—then who? Swanson has suggested. Barred. Too much appeal. They have no other star on their list who might do it—no one who could dare attempt it.

Suggestions have poured in. Barants a boy to do it. Mickey Benjamin might do admirably. If a boy is secured upon. Vivian Martin played on the road some time ago. Her name has been passed along. So Pauline Garon's. Also May McAvoy. Also a flock of others. And they are still trying to figure it out.

An interesting point in the famous financial statement: $1,500,000 invested in the German studio wiped out. Off the date. Business of tears. And weeps.

Gov'ts Make Offers

European Countries Interested in Financing Big Productions—Approach D. W. Griffith

It is understood that four European countries: Norway, Soviet Russia, Germany and Italy are interested in the financing of large and important productions in order to show to their own film industries what can be done in the way of production.

Representatives of two of these Governments are now in New York: one representing Soviet Russia and the other representing Italy. It is figured that were these Governments to sponsor a large production, handled by an acknowledged leader in the making of pictures it might have a stimulating effect on their domestic producing factors. In this connection, it is learned that David W. Griffith has been made four different offers by representatives for the foreign countries mentioned above. In each case, he has been assured that the Governments will finance the pictures to the necessary amount.

The Italian offer has been discussed in various phases for about two years. The representative here is anxious to have Griffith sail on April 2 for an interview with officials of the Mussolini government and inspect studio facilities. If this deal were to go through, the subject to be made would be "The Last Days of Pompeii."

Griffith is undecided over his plans. He would like to make a sequel to "America" but whether or not that plan goes through is largely dependent upon circumstances developing in the next few weeks.

Claim Record Price

"The Hunchback" Sold for Germany—Universal Says French Objections Are Now Silenced

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" has been sold by Universal to Bruchman's of Berlin for Germany at a figure which is said to be a record price for that territory. While the terms were not made public, the price, if correct as reported, is unusual. Bruchman is handling a number of the more important Universal releases in Germany, including "Merry-Go-Round." The deal involves $52,000, but includes several productions other than "The Hunchback."

Word from Paris indicates that considerable opposition has developed there over the proposed showing of "The Hunchback" which will probably be released in France as "Notre Dame de Paris." The issue raised is that the picture is a desecration of Hugo's famous novel and as such, should not be permitted to be shown. As a matter of fact, the matter reached the stage at one point where societies to oppose the picture were formed.

At Universal, it was said yesterday, however, that changes had been made in the picture that would appease the anger of those who had originally objected to the picture.

South Carolina Tax Stands

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Columbia, S. C.—The House has vetoed the measure introduced by the Ways and Means Committee seeking to repeal the present 10 per cent seating tax on theaters in the state, and instead substitute a more equitable form of taxation for the exhibitors.

It is claimed that lack of exhibitor cooperation defeated the repeal.

Coast Arrivals

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood — Paul Mooney and Charles Rogers have arrived from the East.

Inspiration Let-Out

Leads to Reports Regarding Future Production Activities of Duell Concern

A number of changes were authorized in the organization of Inspiration Pictures, Inc., yesterday by Charles H. Duell before he sailed for Italy. They were made in order to bring about economy in the operating expenses of the company.

The fact that certain eliminations had been decided upon caused the circulation of the report late yesterday that Inspiration was about to cease all production and that Duell had again set out for Italy to wind up producing activities there. It was reported that all but several unimportant people had been let out, these including Josephine Lovett, scenario writer for the John S. Robertson unit; Shaw Lovett, studio manager, Lewis Levenson, director of publicity and Gertrude Chase, head of the scenario department. It was recalled that the old Universal plant which Inspiration had been using had been given up and will be used by Nighsmith Pictures for the production of "The

Purves, manager of the Sydney office of the Hoyts De Luxe chain of theaters in Australia, arrived in New York yesterday from the coast where he spent three weeks looking over the production end of the business. ### Baker Here

George D. Baker is here from the Coast. He finished a new version of "Revelation" for Metro, with Viola Dana, before coming East.

Vignola Signs

Closed Deal Yesterday with Metro for Series of Pictures—May Be Made on Coast

Contracts were closed yesterday between Robert G. Vignola and Metro, whereby the former will make a series of pictures for the distributing company.

In all probability, actual production will be centered on the Coast. Vignola has purchased "Mrs. Paramour," a novel by Louis Joseph Vance. This will probably be the second of the series.

Tumbleweed." As a matter of fact, as noted at the time, some of the studio force used by Inspiration has been taken over by Nighsmith.

The report that Inspiration would cease production temporarily was given credence in some quarters, in view of the difficulties the company has had with Richard Barthelmess. At the company offices, it was explained that the eliminations had been made because there was no immediate work for certain members of the organization to do. "Romola," it was said will take several months to prepare for the market while a new Barthelmess picture will take some time to make.

It is more or less common knowledge that Barthelmess has been dissatisfied because Duell has paid so much attention to the Lillian Gish unit and has absented himself from New York for so long. It is the claim of Barthelmess' friends that Dick's pictures have thereby suffered.

American Public!

FACTS

"Three Weeks" has sold more than fifteen million copies.

It has been translated into every language of the world except Spanish!

There is never a year that "Three Weeks" isn't a contemporary best seller in America. Last year it sold 100,000 copies.

It has been read by forty million people. Twenty-five million are women.

With the exception of the Bible it is the best-seller of all time.

Popularity is king in this business. When the public wants something it's got to have it. The consistent interest in Elinor Glyn's undying romance heralded the great motion picture that is now ready to be shown. And what a glorious showing it will be, for the production is a classic, a gem of artistic portrayal. Can you think of a title off-hand that has the popularity of "Three Weeks?"

Elinor Glyn journeyed all the way from her beautiful manor in England to superintend the filming of her great story in Los Angeles. She picked the cast which represents her imagination's ideal. And they performed her miracles. We'll deliver some reels of celluloid to you in tin film cans, but it's just like handing you a gold nugget on a silver platter.

Halt Sale Of Stock

Missouri Revokes Permit of General Film Mfg. Co.—New Hearing Granted

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Jefferson City, Mo.—Deputy Finance Commissioner B. T. Hurwitz, in charge of the "blue sky" department, has summarily revoked the permit granting the General Film Mfg. Co. the right to sell its stock in the state.

Hurwitz did not give the company a hearing before revoking its permit but claimed that he took such action because he was dissatisfied with the financial statement for 1923 and that while the original application showed that the company had started with proper intentions his department had been forced to conclude that it has degenerated into a mere stock-selling proposition.

St. Louis—On protest of officials of General Film Mfg. Co., Deputy Finance Commissioner Hurwitz has agreed to re-open the case against the company. The hearing was scheduled for yesterday.

Officials of the company point out the company has just finished "The Love Power," a feature. "A Child's Problem," a 3-reel drama, is now finishing also "A Dog's Tale," the first of a series of ten 2-reel comedies, and has started work on "The Toll." The company is also producing industrials for St. Louis concerns.

PRINTS

By DANNY

When Eastman announced a cut in the cost of positive. And as followed by many other raw stock concerns. It meant a tremendous saving to producers. Something like $100,000 a week. Or, in round figures, $5,000,000 a year. There isn't any indication that this saving is going to be passed on to Mister Exhibitor. There probably will be none. Producer's don't think that way.

There is no reason, however, why his cut shouldn't benefit the Exhibitor—and at the same time help the producer, or distributor. And that, by a very simple process—more prints for each picture. This will aid materially in many ways. It will bring the subject to the smaller exhibitor more quickly, so that he can have the advantage of the national or early advertising which the picture receives—it would enable the sales department to get a higher rental proportionately from the smaller exhibitor, and it would stimulate things all around.

Star Stuff

Duell sails. Barthelmess loafs. Everybody's happy. And the silent battle wages. Dick don't like things. Duell holds the contract. So another Valentino case looks like it's coming. And you can lay your bet either way. Know nothing of what's why—except that Dick isn't satisfied. But these contracts are contracts, even if they do run for five years. Duell refuses to be worried. Dick isn't. So there you are. Meanwhile Barthelmess fans will wait. And the star will suffer accordingly.

Outside of Saturday and Sunday nights Wednesday is the best business night of the week, says Marcus Loew. Who should know. Thursday tough—all the servants and maids go off and everybody has to stay at home—at least those who depend on servants. But the latter go to the neighborhood house shows, even if the downtown houses suffer.

Bob Vignola had lunch with Marcus yesterday. Right in the open at the Astor. That's the way the Metro

Hart Seeks Amity

Hopes to Patch Up Trouble with Famous—In New York for That Reason

William S. Hart is in town from the coast, accompanied by "Scoop" Conlon. Hart intends remaining here for about three weeks, during which time he expects to confer with officials of Famous Players relative to his future relations with the company.

He explained yesterday that it was true that there had been a business misunderstanding with Famous but that he was anxious to seek an amicable adjustment. As noted, he has made "Wild Bill Hickok" and "Singer Jim McKee" for Paramount.

The indications are that he will not make any more for the company although nobody at Famous will talk about it.

Darmour Assisting Doolittle

L. J. Darmour has been appointed assistant to President W. C. J. Doolittle of Selznick. Darmour's duties will be concerned with the acquisition of new product. He has been active head of Standard Cinema which releases short stuff through Selznick, and will probably handle those duties as well for the present.

Kolker Returns

Henry Kolker is back in New York following an extended stay in England where he produced several pictures for Ideal, among them "I Will Repay" and "The Great Well." Kolker has brought back with him a number of stories written by Claude Serere for disposal in this country.

Clem's Ocean Stuff

On Board the Tuscania.

Dear Danny:

Well, here we are, Mrs. Deneker and me, out at sea. It's a great ocean this Atlantic and not a bit over rated. I've got so used to exaggeration, I thought sure this ocean would be a flop, but it's a big one. Here I been out two days and can't see any land anywhere and they tell me it's two miles to the bottom.

I'm sort of sorry I am on this boat, though, for I see a notice posted that they are going to show a picture Thursday night in the main saloon. I knew something would come up to spoil the trip. Here's me leaving Pneumonia, one of the prettiest towns

Griffith Cuts Force

Reduces Studio Organization to Skeleton, Pending Development of Future Plans

D. W. Griffith has discharged a number of employees at his Mamaroneck studio and has cut his force there down to the bone. Over 20 have been let out, pending future production plans.

As pointed out on various occasions, Griffith is very uncertain over future plans. It is more or less of an open secret that the problem of proper financing is an irksome one. It is known in the trade that he experienced some difficulties in securing money to make "America," and that when the production had advanced very considerably, he found it necessary to turn to outside help for funds.

The reduction at the studio has therefore been decided upon as an economy move, until matters adjust themselves. It was pointed out yesterday that Griffith is seriously considering a trip abroad to make a picture. It is also within the realms of possibility that he will make a picture for other producing interests in this country.

Carol Dempster and Neil Hamilton, who are under contract will probably be farmed out to other interests for the time being. Hendrik Sartov and Billy Bitzer, heads of the camera staff have been retained as have the heads of the other departments.

The report that the Mamaroneck plant would be dismantled and the equipment sold was denied at the Griffith offices yesterday.

Still Hope in Assembly (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Assemblyman Frederick Hackenbush has received the consent of Speaker McGinness of the House Ways and Means Committee to call the censorship repeal bill up again when the committee meets a week from Tuesday.

The Senate Finance Committee will take action on the Walker bill at its Tuesday meeting. The Senate is causing no concern, but the Assembly will bear watching.

Hammons Off For Coast

E. W. Hammons, left Wednesday for his annual early spring visit to Los Angeles. It is expected that final details for next year's series of Christie Comedies will be arranged and contracts closed. Negotiations with Jack White and other units now operating in the Fine Arts Studio will be discussed.

Cohen-True Split

And Two T. O. D. C. Units Enter the Field—Latter Heads N. Y. Corporation

Rumblings of further dissension in the ranks of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. came to a head yesterday when announcement was made by William A. True that he had formed a new Theater Owners Dist. Corp. under the laws of the State of New York with himself the president. This brings two companies with the same corporate name into being.

One is the original company formed in Chicago and later incorporated under Delaware laws with a capital of $5,000,000. True was one of the organizers. So was Sydney S. Cohen. It is very apparent that, just as Harry Davis of Pittsburgh split with True and Cohen, so now have the latter two come to the parting of the ways. Cohen heads the first company and True, the new one which has a capitalization of $10,000.

True makes some pointed remarks in his statement. He states during the controversy with Davis, he held the opinion that exhibitor politics had no place in a theater owners distribution idea and that if pictures "by exhibitors and for exhibitors" were to be a success, all affiliations with organization politics must be eliminated.

He announced his advisory board was composed of the following: Mar-

Guard for Employees

Bills in Albany Would Place Studio Help Under Provisions of Workmen's Compensation Act

Two measures introduced in the Legislature at Albany by Senator Meyer Levy would have an important effect on the status of studio employees in New York studios. Both bills have been sponsored by Nathan Burkan and would include the motion picture industry under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law.

It is stated that the necessity for these bills became apparent in the recent suit of Beatty vs. Pearl White and Fox Film in which Beatty, an extra man, doubled in a runaway scene of a White film and was injured in doing so. Although it was

Active War on Film Pirates Launched—I. M. P. P. D. A. in the Fight

The aid of various Government authorities will be sought by the I. M. P. P. D. A. to stamp out the practice of pirating. It was stated yesterday that a number of complaints had been filed with the organization by state right operators in various parts of the country.

It is possible that the Federal Trade Commission will be asked to step into the matter on the ground that prints are being sold for different territories by persons who do not own the rights or the titles. There seems to be a more particular anxiety over the damage done to pictures in foreign territories by the unexpected appearances of prints in countries for which the distributor has not yet disposed the rights. Another avenue of attack is believed to be opened by a violation of the copyright laws.

The T. O. D. C. of Delaware has announced only one picture, "After the Ball," which was acquired by Anderson Pictures. When True was asked yesterday about the future disposal of this, he replied that he didn't know because he was not a lawyer. Carl Anderson could not be reached for a statement nor could Sydney S. There's a funny assortment of people on board too.

There's a guy on board from Des Moines who knows Abe Blank and who goes to Abe's shows. He says Abe's had a great season out there, as he sold two of his houses this year.

There's people on board from every state in the Union and some of the Southern states. One man is boasting here about the fine calibre of the southern tear of states as he calls it. I asked him why he calls them the tear—and he says, "ask anyone who has sold pictures to the Saenger crowd." I guess the guy knows what he's talking about, he lives down there.

There's a sucker on board from Indianapolis who damned near starved to death up to this morning when some one told him the meals went with the tickets.

We are at 34 east by 43 longitude west right now which is as clear to me as a statement of expenses from the Skouras circuit.

My next letter will be from Madeira which is said to be an island but I won't commit myself until I see it.

Mrs. Deneker met a woman on the upper deck today who likes Western subjects. Just my luck, she don't live in any of my towns.

 that Fox carried workmen's compensation insurance the court held that such insurance did not apply to persons engaged in making repairs and that if Beatty came within the provisions of the Act, Pearl could not avail herself of the same as a fellow-servant.
 Senate Bill No. 1123 would amend the Act to include this industry when employees connected with production receive a daily wage of not more than $25 or a weekly compensation of not more than $100. This bill includes electricians, carpenters, painters, hands and extras. The law provides that in the event of an injury, the injured would accept compensation without bringing a legal action. Senate Bill No. 1124 would provide that where an employer shall secure compensation for his injured employee under the Act, this shall be a complete defense to an action of one fellow-servant against another. In other words the bill provides that a servant may not sue his fellow-servant but must accept compensation in the event of bodily harm.

Government Considering Cut, According to London Report—Fight a Long One

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
London—"The Film Renter" demands "on good authority" that the government intends making an important concession on the entertainment tax and that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will abolish the tax on admissions to 2 shillings. It is further reported that the tax on tickets above that figure will probably be retained.

The English trade has been considered for some time past with effort to secure relief from the burdensome admission tax. The situation however there has been a close parallel of conditions in this country, and the claim has been advanced that the Government tax in England is even more irksome than

Kolker Declares European Producers Will Make Any Concession to Break Into This Market

European producers are willing to make almost any concession to break into the American market with their pictures, according to Henry Kolker, who is just back from England where he made two pictures for Ideal.

Kolker stated that film men in Europe recognize that there are only two important film markets in the world: United States and England, and are therefore willing to go the limit to reach those screens.

Abrams' New Plan

"Vernon" Sold to First Runs on New Basis Which May Start Something for Coming Season

Hiram Abrams is just back from Toronto where he closed a deal for the showing of Mary's newest, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" under what is claimed to be the newest idea of selling pictures to the exhibitor. Abrams refused to discuss the terms of the deal yesterday but admitted that he had closed 12 important cities in this country, including Chicago and Cincinnati, on the same basis.

While details are lacking, it is understood that the plan calls for a top price of $1.50, which, in a measure, compares with the idea adopted by Universal for its pre-release runs of "The Hunchback." Abrams admitted that if the plan proved successful it would probably revolutionize distribution ideas for next season.

Blank Closing Two Houses

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Des Moines—A. H. Blank has closed the doors of the Capitol for an indefinite period. The Rialto is scheduled to close April 1. The reason assigned for this action is extremely poor business. Blank states all forms of theatricals are affected and that for some unknown reason, attractions that have been sure-fire in other parts of the country fail to attract here.

Well, anytime you think the film business is big—take a trip over this old pond. Boy, it's big.

I saw a whale today, frolicking around and it was so long it would take two dollars to send a postal card from its head to its tail and the captain said it was just a baby one. From what he said he's got me convinced I only saw a sardine (if this is spelled wrong correct it—I been out of school thirty years).

Dost hear the dripping of the tears? Or see the rivulets of woe? Dost not? Then—well, what's the use of orating? It has come to this, Julius, nothing less—our dear Damon (please, Mr. Comp. don't spell it Demon) and Pythias, otherwise Sydney Cohen and Bill True have reached the parting of the ways.

Oh, for some Griffith glycerine tears! And now, instead of one we have two nice distributing concerns to appease the appetites of exhibitors who want to book pictures from an exhibitor organization. Two! And yet for months it has been hard going to get one started.

Perhaps you have heard of thousands of exhibitors standing wet and teary on the side street pleading and begging for those super attractions to come from the exhibitors' distributing agency Perhaps. Or possibly, if your sight is no better than ours you haven't. Still, exhibitors can congregate in strange places away from the crowds. So maybe you overlooked them. As we did. Meanwhile, sad and starving for product as they have been, they have gone along in some sort of fashion these many dreary weeks, patiently standing in front of the window marked "Receiving" at their National Bank and rarely ever appearing at that window marked "Loans." No; they seem to have struggled along with those punk pictures turned out by "factory made" methods—you know, those features which have brought tremendous, but dumb crowds, to their palaces. Taken all in all you haven't heard of many exhibitors going into bankruptcy because of the poor

May Remove 2 S. Tax

The general opinion has been that with the tax removed, either in part or in whole, the industry in Britain will be stimulated to a marked degree. Construction of theaters, held to be a vital factor in the healthy development of the industry there has been held up not only because of the stringent construction restrictions placed on new buildings during the war, but because of the added burden of taxation.

It is interesting to note that the British reduction, which amounts to between 40 and 45 cents, practically approaches the cut planned for this country.

days late at Madeira as we got to make some kind of a detour. I'm glad I am making this trip for the next time they try to overcharge me for a sea picture I can tell them I know they let them use the ocean for location gratis. Nothing like travel to educate you.

Well they showed that picture last night. If you think I'm having a pleasure trip, you're wrong. My wife who is sort of a climber out home, gets to talking to one of those passengers who helped put salt in the original ocean and tells him I am the Managing director of a big picture circuit and later when the pursuer, (that's the guy that pursues everyone to collect tickets, etc.) meets me he says Mr. Deneker will you make a little speech tonight before the picture is shown on the future of the movies. Well, as I don't want to be unpopular, why I says yes. Well Danny. My speech was a knockout. I won't go into details but I opens with "Ladies and Gentlemen, I want you to know that our industry is in its infancy." Well I gets a big hand and then I lets 'em have it. I told them all about the great men who made up the producing and distributing companies (don't worry Danny I didn't tell them what I told you privately about these guys.) The speech was so good they want me to think up another one. I got an idea from Mrs. Deneker for the return trip. I think I will hire about ten prints and show them each night on the boat. Charge a buck to get in, take out my overhead and split the profit with the boat company. You know what I can do with overhead.

THE FOREIGN MAIL BAG

Hello, says Charley Hyman, who with the Missus, is in Tangier—over the Mediterranean way (isn't an Exhibitor's life tough?) Then Hope Hampton drops a postal in the box at Athens, and sends along a picture of a beauteous maid, adding "everything is so colorful and delightful." Then Jake Wilk writes from Cannes—in the Riviera, and tells of how three of the four houses there were showing African animal pictures, with "Blood and Sand" for opposition. Adding he was on his way to Rome to see the making of "Ben Hur." Then Harry Reichenbach drops a postcard from Gibraltar and so it goes.

The life of the idle rich!

NEWSPAPER vs. NATIONAL ADVERTISING

Writes Chris Behrens from Davenport, Iowa, where he runs the Family theater:

"Three cheers! This 'Great Gulliver' industry of ours is at last beginning to see the break in the horizon and the slogan "Truth in Advertising." I want to congratulate you on the fact that you give credit to the Advertising Clubs as being a force through which many of the ills of this industry could be corrected. When our producers and exchange men conceive and get into their hearts the real meaning of 'Truth in Advertising,' then will the great body of exhibitors place some confidence in their dealings, as well as some of the statements and advertising copy which is sent out from their office, but the great majority of exhibitors today give very little credit to the advance dope which is sent out on the entertainment value, or the box office value, of any picture. These reports come out too often from controlled theaters or by some press agent whose job is wholly depending upon the bunk which he can put over in his reviews or criticism, making all due allowances for diversified opinion.

"At various times trade paper articles have questioned the value of national advertising to the exhibitor. This has always been a very great question with me—referring to magazine and periodical national advertising. In my judgment national advertising that would help the exhibitor and create an interest and a demand in any worth-while picture would be the medium which is universally used by the exhibitor to create admissions to his theater, and that is the daily newspaper which reaches the average home at least once a day."

WEEP, WEEP, WEEP!

That old Western street at Universal city has been dismantled. Big stage to be erected on site. Something like 1,500 producers and directors have used this street for as many productions. Many independents built an entire Western story around it, using exteriors otherwise, and running negative cost down below $15,000 in the old days. (Now it's different.) But this old street was historic. Pity it had to make way. And what on earth will those producers do now for a street scene in a small Western town?

GETTING IN

It took a long time. But pictures finally got in the Washington mess. Roxy Stinson, divorced wife of an intimate friend of Attorney General Daugherty, testified that if a "proposed venture" in which Smith and Daugherty were interested had materialized, they would have been enriched $180,000. This venture, she said, involved the rights of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight film.

KUNSKY CELEBRATES

About 18 years ago John Kunsy opened the Casino Theatre in Detroit. If you've been in this business since Thursday a week ago you need not be told that he is today the boss of Detroit territory. Ask any First National producer if you proof. Or ask Phil Gleichman. Like Dad, he knows. anyway, John celebrated his anniversary last week. And enough. Except this—that his newest proposed house will it all over the others. Congrats John.

A PERFECT DAY

Sig Schlager rhapsodizing. All het up. Of the combination between Doug and Morrie Gest. Regarding which he writes length. And says in part:

"Doesn't the combination of Doug Fairbanks and Morrie Gest for the exploitation of 'The Thief of Bagdad' signify more to this business than a few columns of publicity in the daily and trade press?"

"This combination, which excites me to eulogy, appears to me as the awakening of the picture industry as represented by Fairbanks, to the true meaning of the genius of exploitation exemplified by Gest. Vision is something certainly lacking in the usual space hound or stunt artist today.

"I am willing to wager that the run of 'The Thief of Bagdad' will be illuminating to this industry and will serve as a signpost leading toward hitherto untravelled roads in the exploitation and marketing of cinematic product.

"Unquestionably the greatest developments to be hoped for in this business within the next year lie in the departments of exploitation and marketing."

A REAL COMBINATION

Gest is a showman—a real one. Doug eulogized him length before the announcement came that Gest had been acquired to put over "The Thief of Bagdad." And showmen are not in this business badly. Some say Gest is to receive $10,000 a week. Sounds like too much money. But this is true; he intended getting away for a rest, until Doug's offer stopped him in his tracks.

A. P. A.'s WOES

Always come for a big opening. But Arthur Zellner, who is handling the copy for Doug's premier has more than the usual problems. Not only is Doug's personal list of must attends but Mary has her own, so has Ma Pickford, and then to the world sweeter Morrie Gest also has his own collection. The day night promises to be a gala event—even if Zellner doesn't live to see it.

"Love's Whirlpool"

Producer: Regal Pictures
Distributor: Hodkinson

As a Whole.....GOOD CROOK MELODRAMA. HAS SOME CUSTOMARY ACTION AND THRILLS BUT WILL DRAW VERY WELL WHERE THEY FAVOR THIS KIND OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Cast....First rate. James Kirkwood good as Jim Reagen, crook, who builds an elaborate revenge for his brother's death only to have it shattered by his own reformation. Lila Lee suitable and capable as his accomplice. Others appropriately cast include Robert Agnew, Mathew Betz, Edward Martindel, Margaret Livingston, Madge Bellamy.

Type of Story... Melodrama. Lovers of crook melodrama couldn't ask much better than "Love's Whirlpool," incidentally not the most appropriate title for the picture. It doesn't do it justice and will probably prove misleading. The story contains all the requirements for a good live entertainment. Director Bruce Mitchell has employed some familiar stock tricks in arriving at suspense, thrills, etc., but he handles them well and gets the most out of the material. The opening reels contain better speed than the closing. The picture opens with a robbery, is followed shortly by a shipwreck, and proceeds into a carefully planned revenge sequence in which the crooks arrange to "get" their victim through the means of a fake medium or clairvoyant. This latter sequence runs a little slow, delaying the inevitable happy ending, but with some editing and toning down it can be improved considerably. Theme deals with the efforts of Jim Reagen to avenge the death of a younger brother, caused indirectly by a bank president whose daughter is rescued in a wreck by Jim and, her memory gone, retained by him as a means through which to ruin her father. Instead, Jim's sweetheart, reformed through her sudden belief in God, returns the girl to her father and eventually Jim, too, is won over and revenge forgotten.

Box Office Angle... Undoubtedly the right attraction for many exhibitors. Has certain amount of box office value and will likely play to satisfied audiences most anywhere.

Exploitation... Better get in back of this one if you want to make it bring in returns. The title isn't a good one and will need plenty of help to get it over. They'll never guess it's crook melodrama. They're more than likely to expect a romance. Use a trailer showing the wreck, a bit of the clairvoyant business, the prison escape, or anything suggestive of the action and thrills contained. Use the names of Lila Lee and James Kirkwood.

Direction... Bruce Mitchell; usually good.

Author ..... Martha Lord
Scenario ..... Elliott Clawson-Bruce Mitchell.

Cameraman ..... Steve Norton
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... Varied
Length ..... 6,028 feet

"Women Who Give"

Producer: Louis B. Mayer
Distributor: Metro

As a Whole..... PATTERNED AFTER THE ORDER OF "DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS" BUT NOT NEARLY AS GOOD A PICTURE; STORY DRAGGY, AND POORLY DIRECTED.

Cast..... A good cast but director hasn't gotten the most out of it. Frank Keenan Barbara Bedford have fits of overacting. Robert Frazer does well as skipper and all around he-man. Renee Adoree, Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Potel, Eddie Phillips, William Eugene others who complete the cast.

Type of Story... Drama. New England fishing villages and "men who go down to the sea in ships" have been gaining prominence in recent screen plots. "Women Who Give," though you would never suspect it from the title, offers another of these dramas of the sea. The picture's good points consist of some mighty fine marine sequences showing the fishing smacks at sea during storms, the boats lost in the fog and with no light to guide them, some interesting views of whalers and generally fine pictorial appeal from this angle. The entire atmosphere is good and the production given good consideration. But on the story end of it, "Women Who Give," is weak, draggy, with a poorly developed plot that fails to prove entertaining. Director Barker has lost out. He does too much beating around the bush, takes too long to arrive at situations and postpones his climaxes interminably, with the result that when he does bring the hard-hearted codfish millionaire to realize that he is responsible for much of the unhappiness in the little village, the spectator has all but completely lost interest. He doesn't get the best out of the material.

Box Office Angle... It doesn't seem possible that even the splendid atmosphere and fine sea sequences of "Women Who Give" will save it. Generous cutting, especially of subtitles, might give it a better sustained interest.

Exploitation... Provided you want to interest your folks in the picture talk particularly about the atmosphere and the lives of the people who make up the small New England fishing villages. Show a trailer of scenes on the fishing trips. Use stills giving an idea of the little coast village. The title needs explanation. They'll need to know something about the story for "Women Who Give," is inclined to be misleading. Use the names of those in the cast who may be known to your patrons.

Direction... Reginald Barker; could have made much more of story; production is good.

Author ..... Sarah P. McLean Greene
Scenario ..... A. P. Younger
Cameraman ..... Percy Hilburn
Photography ..... Excellent

Locale ..... New England fishing village.
Length ..... 7,500 feet

"Lilies of the Field"

First National

As a Whole..... THREADBARE ETERNAL TRIANGLE THEME ALL DRESSED UP IN ELEGANT PRODUCTION. STRESSES MOTHER LOVE ANGLE TO GIVE IT NEW APPEAL. AT THAT A LIKE-LEAF BOX OFFICE.

Cast..... Corinne Griffith certainly "easy" on the eyes; wears clothes well and photographs splendidly, though given too many over-large close-ups. Her work usually very good but occasionally doesn't quite measure up to the emotional situation. Conway Tearle good but rather stiff in his playing. Myrtle Steadman adequate as one of the none too white lilies. Other lilies of less importance in the story are Alma Bennett, Sylvia Breamer, Phyllis Haver, Cissy Fitzgerald. Craufurd Kent the businessman-husband with appointments that keep him out all night. Little Dorothy Brock an adorable youngster.

Type of Story... Drama; a plain out and out eternal triangle theme is the basis of William Hurlburt's stage play but with an effective heart interest supplied through the devotion of the heroine for her little child, a production that cost not a little, plus the presence of the attractive Corinne Griffith, "Lilies of the Field" takes on a new lease of life, at least to the extent that it will probably be considered "one of those pictures that you'll want to see." Naturally it is well stocked with sex appeal and the sort of business that readily lures a good percentage of the picture going public. The mother love angle serves to shadow, rather successfully, the business of beautiful apartments, the gorgeously gowned lilies that live in them and the somewhat pointed titles that indicate their method of operation. The picture abounds in lavish display.—both scenic and physical.

Box Office Angle... Naturally it is to be expected that this one will do business. These sort of pictures usually do and the more they say against the sex angle, the bigger it draws. "Lilies of the Field" is essentially a sex picture with a mother love angle to back it up.

Exploitation... The title should lend itself readily to a variety of advertising stunts. Distribute artificial lilies with tags attached containing catchlines relative to the picture. Play up Corinne Griffith's name prominently and talk about her work in "Black Oxen." If they saw that one they'll be anxious to see "Lilies of the Field." By all means use a trailer and plenty of stills. Make promises for production values and the splendid cast.

Direction..... John Francis Dillon; good but lets story run way too long; some sequences don't belong at all.

Author ..... William Hurlburt
Scenario ..... Adelaide Heilbron
Cameraman..... Jas. C. Van Trees
Photography ..... Very good
Locale ..... Any city
Length ..... 8,510 feet

As a Whole..... GOOD DICTION WITH LOTS OF TOUCHES MAKES "A SOCIETY SCANDAL" A FIRST ENTERTAINMENT EVEN THOUGH THE STORY IS NEW. GLORIA AGAIN PLAYS NEW GOWNS.

Star.... Gets back to her regular fashion display for the most, although she does some good acting toward the close. Will win her admirers very much. Do photograph well occasional close-ups, maybe due to poor up.

Cast..... Rod La Rocque, R. Cortez and Allan Simpson make handsome supporting trio. pull big with the feminine content. Ida Waterman suitable the typical mother-in-law. Yvonne Hughes the co-responder who is kept pretty well in the ground. There is no chance for good looking woman taking honors from Gloria.

Type of Story..... Domestic Old as the hills is this yarn of Fred Sutor's, which was used as stage vehicle for Ethel Barr under the name of "The Lady," but for the second time one week the be-whiskered eternal triangle theme, through treatment, becomes interesting entertainment. (The other picture "Lilies of the Field.") Dwan shows a keen sense of comedy and his comedy touches are numerous, original and always over. A good share of the laughs belongs to Fred Halsey for his corking fine production, of course, is Settings, atmosphere, style, everything done up elegantly and of course, displaying the latest fashions to her wardrobe. Dwan proves upon the story as he progresses. The latter sequence especially good and the ending

Box Office Angle..... First rate entertainment that should please folks whether they happen to see the star or not. They'll be a and you can count on it satisfying

Exploitation... Plenty to talk Get them interested in the title playing it up prominently catchlines and teaser ads. Use the broadcasting you can for laughs that are contained in the picture and go after your women in connection with Gloria and new array of gowns. Use as many of the sequences containing a laugh. Your feminine patrons will also be interested in Gloria's male support and you can count this bringing them in. Stunt advertising and any effort that you forth should be well repaid in office receipts.

"The audience didn't laugh at this picture—they simply screamed—and there were times when everyone was almost in hysterics. . . . And, intermingled in the laughter were staccato screams, as a blimp and two planes played tag with each other in the sky."

Herbert Rawlinson in
"Stolen Secrets"

Universal

As a Whole.....GENTLEMAN CROOK STORY, BETTER THAN RAWLINSON'S PAST FEW VEHICLES AND WITH STAR SHOWING SIGNS OF OVERCOMING HIS DESIRE TO OVERACT.

Star... Shows considerable improvement in his playing and is favored with a more appropriate story in "Stolen Secrets."

Cast... Kathleen Myers pleasing lead for Rawlinson but she hasn't a great deal to do. Politicians, confidence men, city officials and the usual types adequately portrayed by Henry Herbert, Edward Davis, Arthur Stuart Hull, Wm. Conklin, Geo. Seigmann, Joseph North, Jos. Girard and others.

Type of Story.....Crook mystery drama. Of course you would never guess that Herbert Rawlinson was playing the part of a secret service man of some kind if the same idea hadn't been used so many times before, but the average picture goer is sufficiently familiar by now with film plots to quickly recognize the lay of "Stolen Secrets" and size up the ending for just what it is. In spite of its obviousness, Director Cummings makes the picture fairly interesting and it holds the attention nicely for its five short reels.

A gentleman burglar, calling himself "The Eel," works his game with ease and without capture. The mayor's pretty daughter, Cornelia advertises in the "personal" column for the Eel to secure certain papers from a political boss which will prove her father innocent of certain allegations that threaten his office. How the Eel fulfills the mission and discloses his true identity is followed, of course, by the usual clinch.

Box Office Angle....Average offering; is better than Rawlinson's more recent releases and can be used satisfactorily on the regulation daily change program.

Exploitation.....Throwaways might read: "Look Out, The Eel is coming to town. You'll be surprised at the STOLEN SECRETS that are going to be exposed." Suggested tie-up is that with a hardware store for the display of locks, burglar alarms, etc., with the caption, "See Herbert Rawlinson outwit the crooks in 'Stolen Secrets' at the blank theater. You can outwit them, too, with these safeguards." Use a trailer of any one of Rawlinson "polite" hold-ups. His method should serve to get them interested in the picture. If the star happens to have admirers among your clientele be sure to say that "Stolen Secrets" is the best of his recent productions.

Direction.....Irving Cummings; quite all right.

Author..... Richard Goodall

Scenario.....Rex Taylor

John Gilbert in
"The Wolf Man"

Fox

As a Whole.... JUST WHAT THE TITLE IMPLIES. STORY WITH HERO WHO IS HALF BEAST AND HALF MAN. GIVES GILBERT FINE ACTING OPPORTUNITIES AND AFFORDS GOOD ACTION

Star.....Overacts occasionally but usually measures up to requirements adequately. Is required to work fast and furious in latter reels.

Cast... Norma Shearer pretty heroine, one of those society girls looking for a thrill. She gets it all right. Eugene Pallette a mild enough villain but furnishes some good fights. Others Alma Frances, Edgar Norton, Thomas R. Mills.

Type of Story... Drama. The first reel of "The Wolf Man," promises original and interesting story of English society. The beginning of the second reel brings it down a peg when the plot takes a conventional turn but, even though the remainder of the story doesn't quite live up to the expectations suggested by the opening, it makes a good entertainment of its kind and good action, acting and some thrills, though they be of a familiar order (the ever popular rapids stunt being used for a climax) make up any shortcomings of the story. You have the situation in which two Englishmen, brothers, love the same girl. Reggie, jealous because Gerald is accepted, convinces the latter that he murdered the girl's brother while intoxicated, and persuades him to flee to Canada. This leaves Reggie free to win the girl. In Canada Gerald lives the life of a lumberjack and indulges in the "wolf" side of his nature, to the extent of kidnapping a pretty girl. It ends in marriage for the two following an exciting climax.

Box Office Angle.....Good average entertainment that will do nicely for the general public. If the star is popular, boost his name and tell them "The Wolf Man" is better than his previous recent releases.

Exploitation.... Play up the title and talk about the Jekyll and Hyde nature of hero John Gilbert in his latest picture, "The Wolf Man." Use catchlines such as: "Can a man be a gentleman and a caveman at the same time. See a story of an interesting dual personality in John Gilbert's 'The Wolf Man,' a Fox production at the blank theater." A novelty stunt would be to have a man in evening clothes sitting in a cage, with the title of the picture properly displayed in conjunction with catch lines: "He's gentle but he's wild. Come to the blank theater and see what tames him."

Direction.....Edward Mortimer; usually good.

"Waterfront Wolves"

Gerson Pictures—State Rights

As a Whole.....CROOK MELODrama THAT FURNISHES AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT; PRODUCTION IS RATHER ORDINARY BUT SOME GOOD BITS OF ACTION WILL LIKELY GET IT BY WITH MAJORITY.

Star... Does good work and photographs real well in some close-ups although there are too many of them. Has some exciting times as daughter of crook.

Cast... Jay Morley a suitable if not handsome hero. Certainly struggles to "retain his sweetheart's honor" by keeping possession of a handkerchief containing pearls which she entrusted to his keeping. No one else in the cast whose names or faces are familiar to your patrons.

Type of Story...Crook melodrama. There's not a great deal of originality in "Waterfront Wolves" but for those who like action and are satisfied as long as the story keeps moving and furnishes excitement, the picture will probably offer a passable entertainment. To start with there is a pretty heroine, the tool of her crook father. She is entrusted with a famous string of pearls and in eluding the police is injured and taken aboard a sailing vessel by hero who befriends her. He takes her to his home port and eventually she becomes a part of his household and under the care of his mother regains her health, meantime falling in love with hero. She gives her the pearls to hand over to the police. Her father intervenes and tries to take the pearls away. A general shooting affray then takes place with both hero and the girl's father being injured, the latter dying. Then a Chinaman, whose previous appearance gave a mysterious touch to the picture, announces that he possesses the real pearls, having taken them from the girl to protect them and save her from the police. This in return for a kindness done him by the girl's mother. A pretty complicated plot but it works out fairly well at that.

Box Office Angle.... You know what you can do with this. Where they want action you'll be able to get this one over. It's an average film that offers a suitable entertainment for a certain clientele.

Exploitation.....Here's a title that you should be able to interest them with. Use it prominently in all your announcements and talk about the crook story contained in it. You might mention Ora Carew's name and say that she plays the innocent victim of her father's thefts. Catchlines and the usual publicity should be sufficient to let them know what to expect.

Direction.....Tom Gibson; fair

Author..... Tom Gibson

Scenario..... Tom Gibson

Cameraman..... Not credited

Photography.....All right

Locale..... Waterfront town

Length..... About 5,000 feet.

"Flowing Gold"

Producer: Richard Walton

Distributor: First Nation

As a Whole.... THRILLING MAX SERVES AS GOOD ISH ALTHOUGH IF IT COME SOONER IT WC HAVE BEEN MUCH BET INTERMITTENT COM. BITS HELP TO BREAK THE SLOW SPOTS.

Cast... Anna Q. Nilsson and Milton Sills carry the brunt of the and both do very well. Alicia Houn pleasing in less important Others Craufurd Kent, John I Cissy Fitzgerald, Josephine ell, Bert Woodruff and C Selton.

Type of Story.... Melodrama. Beach's story of the early days of the oil fields offers a melodramatic average entertainment value. "Flowing Gold" would have been better, however, if Director Grasse had managed to tell the story in five, or at the most six, reels. As it is it runs over giving the story a draggy, slow development that at times fails to interest. There is a first rate max that offers somewhat of a thrill but it comes too late. Occasional comedy bits in connection with the "hicks" who try to get their suddenly acquired money help at times to break up the monotony of the slow spots but a liberal cutting would do more toward speeding things up. The picture deals with the adventures of Milton Sills who goes West to get the man who caused his honorable discharge from the army. Incidentally he becomes involved in the oil field rush and there's a stretch of plotting, double-crossing, threatening and much irrelevant business before they get back on the main track with hero forcing his man into a corner and securing the desired vindication by clearing of his name.

Box Office Angle.... Average picture. Will do on a daily change basis but is hardly strong, nor big enough to warrant a run. If the picture can be cut it would stand a much better chance of pleasing. At present it is far too long to hold them.

Exploitation.....The name of Beach as author can be used to interest them and those who have read his story will probably want to see the picture. The picture may be played up by throwaway the way of imitation coins, made of cardboard and covered with gold leaf. Promise a lucky number and, of course, catchlines will be in order, also a trailer of the picture sequence and use the names of Milton Sills, Anna Nilsson and the other players whom you might attract your particular clientele. Arrange a bookstore display for novels by Rex Beach.

"The Isle of Vanishing Men"

Alder Exploration

Whole..... TRAVELOGUE
 MOST INTERESTING FROM EDUCATIONAL STANDPOINT
 BUT NOT SUITABLE FOR GENERAL ENTERTAIN-MENT; GRUESOME AND UN-PLEASANT IN SOME OF ITS DETAILS.

.....Kia Kias, a head hunter of the interior of Dutch Guinea. A savage, grotesque creature so far removed from civilization that it is almost impossible to believe that what you see is actual. Even more crude in their manner of living than some of the civilized tribes of Africa and the South Sea Islands. And yet their civility in certain things is surprising. For instance, their methods of cooking, building huts, and their own conception of "water proof" roofs.

of Story.... Travelogue. This is the cannibal picture, the Alder exploration into the interior regions of Dutch Guinea, offers still further exposition of "how the other half lives." The picture contains an interesting mass of detail and general information regarding the life of Kia Kias, an especially grotesque race. "The Isle of Vanishing Men," so called because shortly after this picture was made the Kia Kias became extinct through a plague, is probably a more vivid, and at times unpleasant, insight into savagery than previous cannibal pictures. The Alder picture presents a great deal of detail in regard to the actual mode of living, showing how they sleep, eat and in general manner of existence.
 In connection with these bits of detail that the film may be said to be occasionally unpleasant, even to the extent of being nauseating.
 Some of their personal tortures, by way of adornment, their preparation of foods such as dogs' heads, and the actual evidence of no moral standards, are not pleasing to look upon despite their apparent educational value. The feature is rather short and pictorial appeal, the most of it being given over to pictures of the lives in their home environs.

Office Angle.... It would seem that a far better method of distribution here would be to split the picture up into a series of short subjects rather than to send it out as a six reel feature. There is too much sameness for it to hold an audience for that length of time.
 It is more educational than entertaining and can best be used for educational purposes.

Entertainment.... Depends entirely upon how you want to use the picture. It is not suitable as the only feature on your program and far longer to be used for double feature program. If you have played any of the previous feature travellogue pictures you'll know best what you want to do with this one and to what extent you want to go to interest your folks.

In The Courts

Fred J. Harrison, who was arrested in 1921 in a civil suit brought against him by the American Sensitized Film Co., and held in $5,000 bail, has applied in the Supreme Court for a reduction of the bail to $500. He stated that the suit was brought when he was instrumental in the prosecution of Jacques Cibrario, when Cibrario was indicted for larceny, and that the purpose of the suit was to harass Harrison. It has never been put on the trial calendar he said, by the plaintiff. His bond has cost him $650 and it is now about to expire, and he says he may not be able to raise the sum necessary for a new bond unless it is decreased.

 cured an order in the Supreme Court from Justice Mullan making Lloyds Film Storage Co., a defendant in a suit brought on March 10, against the Inter-Ocean Forwarding Co. The suit is to regain films in the possession of the defendant. When a writ of replevin was served on Inter-Ocean, the latter stated that the films had been stored with Lloyds. The sheriff refused to act against Lloyds unless that concern was made a party to the suit.

Whitman Bennett stated yesterday that the suit of the New Amsterdam Credit Corp., against the Standard action involves certain payments on

 "The Darling of the Rich" a B. B.
 Prod., made by Bennett, sold to Standard and then assigned by Bennett to the New Amsterdam Credit Corp.

A default judgment for $24,426 has been filed in the Supreme Court by David O. Selznick against Briton M.
 Busch on notes aggregating $20,000 made in 1920 to Lewis J. Selznick at the office of Select Pictures Corp., which were endorsed to the plaintiff.

A summons has been filed in the Supreme Court in a suit of Joseph F.
 Lee against Charles E. Blaney's Pictures Corporation for $30,000. The attorneys are Jonas & Neuberger.

Short Subjects

"Rapid Transit"—John J. Iris

Good Thrills

Type of production.... 1 reel novelty
 Some time ago there was released a novelty film, similar to this, called "The Runaway Train," and which offered the same kind of thrill that "Rapid Transit" offers. The number consists of rapid fire shots of progress through traffic. To start with you have a car speeding up Fifth Ave.
 faster than it could ever go actually, that is and still be intact after a few yards distance. Next you are taken on a wild ride from Rector St., via the Sixth Ave. "L" and ending in what has the effect of a grand smash at one of the uptown tunnels. It's a first rate novelty number and serves to offer a good thrill even though its effectiveness may be somewhat lessened due to the fact that the idea has been used previously.

"Ship Ahoy"—Universal

Mediocre Comedy

Type of production.... 1 reel comedy
 "Ship Ahoy" features Slim Summerville and Bobby Dunn and was directed by Summerville. It's just another of those incoherent pseudo-humorous short reels that make the spectator wonder what it's all about without getting a hearty laugh. Slim and Bobby knowing that their girl likes sailors, try their luck in sailor suits, only Slim's is an officer's suit that he has stolen. The officer calls to get his suit back and sends both the boys to scrub decks on a battleship. That's about all there is to it.

"That's Rich"—Century-Universal

Features a Cute Kiddie

Type of production.... 2 reel comedy
 Little Arthur Trimble is the saving grace of this Century comedy, but that will probably suffice to put it over. He's a cute kiddie. The plot of "That's Rich" deals with the hardships that Arthur goes through with a large family who have adopted him solely to make him work. A passerby tells the foster father that the boy is worth a million dollars. He gets the best of everything—for a day—until the stranger is seen being taken off to the lunatic asylum. Too much footage is devoted to the chase between Arthur and the father and not enough to the "good treatment" situation. Should please as a whole.

little better than trival to carry interest along. * * * But the real dramatic power * * * resides in those scenes which have the least organic connection with the plot. Paul Revere's ride is a crashing bit of filming, knowingly cut and joined. * * *

TRAVELER—He has made a fine beginning, from the point of view of the historians; a better ending according to the dramatists. For the first half is mainly episodic, presenting page after page from history whereas the last part of the picture grasps the story by the horns. * * * and present it in a strong well-knit crescendo of interest that makes even the "final climax," * * * seem anticlimax. * * * There is so much in Griffith's pictures—something for everyone. * * * Whether Griffith has in "America" done his greatest work is doubtful. He has, however, accomplished another notable achievement.

"Courtship of Myles Standish"—Asso. Exhib.—Walnut, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Charles Ray * * * gives, on the whole, a good characterization. * * * There are some points in which history and Longfellow are stretched a bit, but in the main all is as it should be. * * *

ENQUIRER—* * * As the shy but loyal suitor, torn 'twixt love and friendship, Ray displays not only a sound understanding of human nature, but a keen sense of humor as well. The historical background for the love story is intensely interesting. * * *

TIMES-STAR—* * * another of those familiar literary classics which could never be put on the screen in a manner to suit all tastes. * * * it is more or less episodic and uneven in development. Its pictorial beauty is impressive, but at times the main thread of the theme becomes snarled * * * gives evidence of the greatest care in maintaining accuracy in atmosphere. Despite its dramatic defects, "The Courtship of Myles Standish" is worth while as an artistic spectacle.

Walnut, Cleveland

POST—The historical value alone makes * * * "The Courtship of Myles Standish" * * * film classic. Combined with this is the wonderful characterization portrayed by Charles Ray.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Stanton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—In some respects, the picturization, of Sir Hall Caine's "The Eternal City" * * * is one of the finest films of its kind, but something seems to be lacking.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * but in this case even the beauty of Michael Angelo's dome, floating like a bubble in the soft Italian skys and the exquisitely photographed exteriors, cannot redeem the banality of the story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Altogether, "The Eternal City" is an enjoyable film—not great, but well acted and interesting throughout.

RECORD—The background of the picture is the architectural glories of Rome and the quiet beauty of the Italian countryside, and these scenes are photographed to bring out their charm and beauty. The picture falls short in its handling of the social aspects of the story. The tale of the lovers is cohesive and well directed.

"Flowing Gold"—1st Nat'l State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—It is jerky. It leaves, * * * vital details to subtitles, and pictures the amusing and exciting along with the necessary sequences. That is not good policy. * * * doesn't compare very favorably with the other Rex Beach story, "The Spoilers," * * *

PRESS—The * * * like melodrama will

"Fools' Highway"—Universal Bowdoin, Boston

POST—* * * a fascinating and interesting story of society and near-society life in the great metropolis * * * The leading roles are well taken * * * The picture is colorful and well presented with many spectacular scenes

"The Galloping Fish"—1st Nat'l Gordon's Olympia, Boston

GLOBE—"The Galloping Fish," for whom the uproariously funny photoplay is named, is a seal. So well trained is this seal as a fun maker that he deserves to be installed in the cinema hall of fame, together with Charlie Chaplin and other comedians.

"The Greatest Love of All"—Beban Grand Central, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It rivals "The Sign of the Rose" for heart-appeal and as a vehicle for the actor's brilliant playing * * * The idea of having a screen crowded with twenty-four people suddenly dissolve into a stage setting with all of the people occupying the same positions they held a moment before in the picture is a unique one, and * * * has a "kick" that you feel.

POST DISPATCH—This is a fine and moving story of mother love, with Beban in his favorite role of an Italian immigrant.

STAR—* * * the photoplay is well produced and is gripping in spots.

TIMES—But somehow, with all that, the sum total is disappointing. Where there could be pathos, comedy results. And the stage portion of the production lacks genuineness in measure, and is all too short. Not that the production lacks appeal, but that it falls short of expectation, is its weakness. Beban may be right.

"The Great White Way"—Go'd.-Cos. Roosevelt, Chicago

AMERICAN—* * * ten reels of Broadway, which will overwhelm you with its extravagance, hold you tense with its thrills and just naturally keep you interested all the way through. * * * More than a score of celebrities, whose names sound like a roll call of sport, theatrical, art and newspaper circles, break into films here.

"Happiness"—Metro Columbia, Washington

HERALD—Miss Taylor and Mr. Manners have left nothing undone to make the screen production of "Happiness" worthy of their high traditions.

POST—* * * all that it should be. Never before on the screen has such remarkable appeal in an actress been evident as in the interpretation of Miss Taylor. The part could not be properly cared for by any other person, in the opinion of the reviewer.

STAR—It is doubtful that this new vehicle, written by J. Hartley Manners, husband of Miss Taylor, author of "Peg O' My Heart," is destined for the same degree of success as "Peg."

TIMES—It has an all-star cast and gorgeous atmospheric beauty, which, combined with intensely dramatic stories, have marked so many season's plays, but is unique in that it depends almost entirely upon the personality of its pivotal character for interest.

"Hoodman Blind"—Fox Rialto, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—* * * comes to the movies a bit too late to be anything but hackneyed movie stuff. Still there is some interesting acting by Gladys Hulette in the dual role of mother and daughter.

Strand, Washington

POST—The picture is a typical Fox melodrama with none of the thrills left out. The plot just teems with action, but that's all.

TIMES—It is the old story with the bitter consequences of jealousy, wronged and deserted wives. In places it seems to have had the cobwebs dusted off the plot structure and the delicate odor of mothballs now and then fills the air. Otherwise it's a good picture with a good cast.

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"—Hod, Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a production worthy of notice, not only for the story but for the manner in which it is told on the screen. Many pictures heralded as "super-productions" could well take a lesson from it.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * Then the teacher himself is accused and his trial and his defense of himself make one of the big scenes.

STAR—It is valuable as a record, interesting as a story and a delight for the many odd personalities deftly portrayed.

TIMES—* * * an interesting film which holds the attention. Its merit is its simple story, merit inherent in the plot itself.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—Universal—Metropolitan, Wash.

POST—The story is one of practically unrelieved tragedy and suffering, yet it is made vital and absorbing by the atmospheric verities of the settings and Chaney's wonderful performance. * * *

STAR—* * * intensely interesting throughout.

TIMES—True to the original, there is not ample relief from the tenseness which runs through the story. But it is a big picture and an excellent one.

"Icebound"—F. P.-L. Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—The adapters have made some slight changes in the story, to its betterment, one suspects. The director has handled his situations admirably, and the cast has acquitted itself with more than the usual credit.

STAR—It is doubtful if his brother Cecil, for all his exotic bathroom dramas, could equal the workman-like job William has done * * * an excellently directed film * * *

"Luck"—S. R. Liberty, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—Comedy along the broadest farcical lines makes a most amusing picture of "Luck."

STAR—Johnny Hines in "Luck" has a consistently entertaining farce, though one touch of melodrama toward the end nearly ruins the story.

TIMES—There is little originality in the plot or the developments, but on the whole the picture moves fast, and there is plenty of action, and sufficient thrills * * *

"The Marriage Circle"—Warner's Orpheum, Chicago

JOURNAL—Those of us who looked to this master cinema mind of the German people for a production with plenty of horses, mobs, and the spectacular, received a surprise, "The Marriage Circle," is exceedingly sparse of players and decidedly chary of extravagance. Perhaps these are its most distinctive virtues. The interesting point is that he has managed to create action of thin air and abundant action and a neat plan. A deft atmospheric savor pervades the picture. American motions have been displayed thoroughly as an oyster on the half shell.

NEWS—You will find little to criticize in direction, acting or photography but the story may—note the may—bore you to a stupor or, on the other hand, it may intrigue you into thinking you are devouring a French novel. It all depends. It is too American to be foreign and too foreign to be American. Charming interiors, beautiful exteriors, several handsome bedroom scenes, an evening party or two—what more could any movie-goer ask?

POST—The entire production is a pleasure to watch. There are no tiresome details here, a gesture, a look, gives you the entire situation and you are carried along swiftly from one amusing situation to another. It is clever humor, not to be enjoyed by those who crave heavy drama, not to be admired by the conventional minded—but divertingly refreshing entertainment that will keep your mind alert and your wits nimble.

"Name The Man"—Gold.-Cosmop. Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—What originality in direction with intelligent attention to detail can do for an average plot is seen in "Name The Man," at the Stanley. This is a film appreciators of good photo plays should view. It is a triumph of the director's art, an adaptation of Sir Hall Caine's novel, "Master of Man."

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Turned out to be splendidly directed picture based on a well-known theme. He has to suffer the consequences. It is the superb direction that lifts the picture out of the "ordinary" class.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Suffice it to say, that Victor Seastrom has made a picture of very high merit, commendable for its treatment more than for the story itself.

Under Seastrom's capable touch situations which in themselves are merely artificial achieve new life and meaning.

RECORD—The action was logical, the theme never obscured, the objective never lost sight of. An impressive picture is "Name the Man," with settings that are attractive and episodes that are thrilling.

"Napoleon and Josephine"—S. R. Fenway, Boston

GLOBE—It is a rather pudgy Napoleon played by Gwym Evans, and the Josephine portrayed by Gertrude McCoy resembles a musical comedy empress rather than a real character in history. Chief among the good points of the film is the ball before the battle of Waterloo, which gives a very fine idea of that thrilling evening. And another stirring scene is the return of Napoleon from Elba.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—A good program picture. Its story is of standard type, not very original, but well enough done to hold the interest. The cast is worth while. In short, the producer has given his more or less routine material a thoroughgoing treatment that lends it the needed touch of drama.

STAR—Dorothy Mackall completely transforms herself when, in her giddy moments, she dons gay French clothes. Conway Tearle contributes his customary fine work and Ricordo Cortez follows the best Valentino traditions in his work as the Spanish villain. Lon Chaney's work as the servant is the best by far.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l State, Los Angeles

EXAMINER—Colleen Moore is given a truly made-to-order vehicle. She—if any star is—is a personality performer. In this, her latest, production, "Painted People," she uses the utterly delightful, irresistibly ebullient quality that's so peculiarly hers. The plot is a simple one.

EXPRESS—the brilliant little comedienne, Colleen Moore, so thoroughly captivates that there is little thought of anything but her vivid characterization of the pert little tomboy whose aim in life is to be a lady.

Following so closely upon her triumph in "Flaming Youth," it will place her well to the fore of screen comediennes of the day.

TIMES—It looks in this, too, as though the vivid little Colleen were rapidly qualifying as the leading comedienne of the screen. That is, she has a rare sense of comedy which she expresses vividly.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L. Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Never has the beautiful and dynamic Pola had a better role. It almost seems to have been written for her, since she has the opportunity to do all the things which have attracted the attention of the public to her.

ENQUIRER—Is splendidly suited to the peculiar talents and temperament of Pola Negri. The climax is unexpected, yet logical. A toning down of some of the situations would not detract from the dramatic appeal, and might add considerably to the air of reality. Brilliant support was given the star.

TIMES-STAR—a conventional melodrama of made-to-order situations. One has to take many things for granted in accepting the plot, but the story will be found to contain plenty of action, the requisite number of thrills, a considerable element of suspense, and a regular fairy-tale ending. Pola, of course, dominates the action.

Capitol, Cleveland

POST—Herbert Brenon is the first American director to make Pola do her best work. The fast action and the excellent continuity also are to his credit. Here is the Negri of "Passion" and "Gypsy Blood" back again.

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

EXAMINER—There are several sensational stunts, notably a fall on the pinto pony and a high dive which furnishes thrills.

The story is not real stuff for Mr. Hart, however. While it offers him an opportunity for some real acting, there are a thousand facets of his comprehensive art which are untouched.

EXPRESS—"Singer Jim McKee," is vastly superior as a medium for the beloved Bill than was "Wild Bill Hickok." An appealing story with an abundance of action a sprinkling of comedy and in beautiful natural settings.

TIMES—On the whole, "Singer Jim McKee" should please the Hart fans, and though he has made better films in the past, this averages well.

Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a worthy picture, has a good story, well acted and directed. One hardly gets tired of seeing Hart.

POST-DISPATCH—holds the screen with less gun play than usual at the Missouri. In this offering he has one of those sentimental roles which accent the softer side of the hero's nature.

STAR—which is acceptable enough as an occasion for Bill to run through the tricks at his command.

TIMES—It is an improvement on his previous efforts, for there is much more story, and much less heroics on his part.

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L. Century, Baltimore

SUN—We should like to call your attention particularly to Marshall's work in and as "The Stranger." Galsworthy's story makes for an unusual and far from dull hour and a half of screen entertainment. The underlying idea is off the beaten path.

Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Is recommended a little better than average popular entertainment.

TIMES—"Just another picture"—neither specially bad nor extremely good. Sustains interest until about midway, when the action begins to drag. It steadily grows worse until the producers achieve their inevitable happy ending by calling in Fate in a large overdose to straighten out matters. Of the cast, Tully Marshall's acting is most meritorious.

Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—another example of the fact that you don't need a mob of 3,000 extras, and $1,000,000 worth of sets to make an interesting picture, providing you have a story and a small but competent cast. An artistic as well as a dramatic production and its cast is excellent with Tully Marshall carrying off first honors as the stranger.

"The Ten Commandments"—F. P.-L. Majestic, Boston

(Run beginning March 10)

GLOBE (Morning)—With this ideal before him DeMille has succeeded in producing one of the greatest pictures of the generation, and certainly the most gorgeous spectacle ever filmed. DeMille has given to his admirers as fine an exhibition of motion picture skill in making grand spectacles as can be found in film annals. The first part of the film is a noteworthy attempt to make the Biblical days as clear and strikingly close to home as the events which occur today. There is something awe-inspiring about that prologue. You forget DeMille, you forget the Famous Players, you forget the wonderful music, you forget everything but the immortal story unfolding on the screen.

The second half of the film is an every day story with a lot of chances for drama. At times the story of the two brothers, one of whom keeps the Commandments and the other who doesn't, seems pure melodrama. Yet it has a punch and it means something. It may contain a lot of bunk, but it is artistically portrayed by splendid actors.

GLOBE (Evening)—Ditto.

HERALD—Cecil DeMille has staged a magnificent prologue to his film of "The Ten Commandments," and in the vigorous pictures of the flight from Egypt, the seemingly miraculous crossing of the Red Sea and of Moses on Mount Sinai, he has created a film narrative of some consequence. In each detail of the biblical episodes, he has lavished the resources and intelligence of his art. This is a curious mingling of effectively pictured biblical narrative, and sermonizing tale, that Mr. DeMille has produced, and has produced well.

POST—A mighty and impressive pictorial sermon. It is a stupendous spectacle unfolding scene after scene of grandeur and beauty which smite the eye with their majesty. The prologue is magnificently done, the telling effects materially heightened by the wonderful musical score. The modern story is Cecil DeMille himself. It is sheer melodrama, smashing presented, but we shudder to think what it might have been with ordinary players.

TELEGRAM—To say that it is a picture great in thought, great in execution, is hardly enough. It is one which we can truthfully praise. Colossal settings, impossible to describe, made a great, almost incomprehensible background for the first part of the picture. Huge temples, palaces, and sphynxes in construction are but a hint of the bigness of it all. The endless expanse of barren desertland, faintly tinted, was worthy of the spontaneous, sincere applause of the audience.

TRANSCRIPT—The picture reveals all the familiar qualities of "C. B." raised to the Nth. But they remain the qualities of "C. B." He used to insist upon fun-thumping, tasteless moralizing, to bring the "message" of his pictures home to the least acute observer. All these things he does once more in "The Commandments." He does them with a zest quite unprecedented. He prefers to limit his spectacles to a few thousand feet, and fill in the chinks with a fearsome farrago of musty theatricalities. Thus blinded to his proper talents, he remains a minor maker of movies, raised by the fortune of his position to the director general of a vast staff, and entitled to do unimportant things on a vast scale and crowd uncomfotably loudly over them. Mr. Cecil B. DeMille might be a great director of far-flung spectacle.

TRAVELER—It has the power that only the genuine can impart, and at the same time it has plenty of the bunk that the movie fans adore—on rather a firmer foundation than usual. The modern story is not unusual. DeMille has introduced much that is good and much that is original into "The Ten Commandments." There are many new and smashing photographic effects. There are many fine acting bits. There are touches of adroit direction and cunning twists of continuity.

IES TOO!

"Thy Name Is Woman"—M. Capitol, Montreal

GAZETTE—Ramon Novarro and Miss Barbara La Marr are fully to all the admiration of which they are objects. The story lacks clarity at points, due partly, it is to be inferred, to delicacy on the part of a censorship.

STAR—There is some excellent acting, first-class entertainment.

"West of the Water Tower"—F. L. Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—If you think mount's picture, "West of the Water Tower" is an exact translation of Homer novel of the same name, please let you right here that it isn't. B. M. Sturgeon has caught the spirit of the town bigoty and the spirit of the youth. The characterizations and the sphere are fine.

"Why Men Leave Home"—1st. The Chicago, Chicago

JOURNAL—admirably sustained interest from beginning to end, and every thing is so busy deciding just who to blame by all. Some of the points are not made, but the general entertainment value of the offering is not seriously affected.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosm. Merrill, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—A spirit of broods over the entire proceedings a skill of King Vidor has translated this less fear into the picture. He performed his directorial task with unerring intelligence and skill.

"A Woman of Paris"—Unit. Circle, Indianapolis

STAR—A sincere, dramatic film very well acted.

Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—If ever a screen drama has approached the achievement of expressive mime and dared to be logical in its attitude to truth, it is this play written and directed by one whom, until very recently, we re in the light (or shade) of a slapstick comedian.

JOURNAL—Come distinctly to the ranking of one of "the best ten." Its greatest value lies in the uncanny director skill that Mr. Chaplin has put into it.

TIMES-UNION—"A Woman of Paris" one of the most artistic productions of the screen can boast. Its technical perfection and originality can scarcely be grasped viewing and it is one of the few photographs that is worth seeing more than once.

"The Yankee Consul"—Asso. California, Los Angeles

(Two weeks ending March 15)

EXAMINER—The situations are hand-picked and used to the best advantage. They are well timed, with fine economy of footage and the last drop of economy is squeezed out of—and onto the celluloid.

EXPRESS—Chuckles and then laughter greet Douglas MacLean's Clean comedy is rare; in fact, as scarce as 50-carat diamonds.

TIMES—If anything is funnier than MacLean, or "The Yankee Consul," then know what it is.

EST JOY

THE PLAY

By DANNY

Public Shakespeare said years ago it's the thing. Or words to that effect. And while a lot of directors and producers have been trying to disprove it, the fact remains—it is.

Everybody's looking for good material. Naturally. The trouble is the difference of opinion as to what makes good material. Some of the best bets have been passed up by many. Before they were made. And proved winners. This is the case of "The Four Horsemen." Wynne passed it up. Neilan passed it up, too, because he couldn't touch it. Famous wouldn't touch it. "Black Oxen." Afraid of it. Why did not want to make it. "The Four Horsemen" several years ago. Why he will. For the coming year. And so it goes.

Joe Schenck en route for material. For both Norma and Constance, as well as Keaton. Half a dozen have tipped him "Batling Butler" for Busby. Still holds off. Constance is difficult to fit with the right material. Needs it badly. A comic comedienne if given the right stuff. Hasn't had it for months. Schenck just scrapes start of her latest.

Earst has a lot of fine material. Everybody's been trying to get "The Actress" away—a strong Ibanez. Also likes costume stuff; has a lot of such stories, and is always in the market for them.

Originals aren't in strong demand among the leading producers. Want insurance that a popular play or story gives.

Coincidentally they tell a yarn on DW and DW which may explain why DW did not shoot the crossing of Delaware for "America." Want to do it but Hearst heard of it and told DW that this wouldn't do—Marion was going to do it for "The Meredith" and hinted at some scenes which might occur if DW shot it. Don't believe the story. But so it goes, anyway.

Over a year ago we all chattered about the effect radio had on this business. Nobody seemed to believe it. (Continued on Page 2)

Two Units Decide to Make Next Pictures Here—La Marr One and Dick Talmadge the Other
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Arthur H. Sawyer is en route to Chicago where he will meet Herbert Lubin and discuss plans for the production of the first two of the Barbara La Marr-First National series in the East.

Sawyer will then go to New York to make his arrangements. The plan is to take the entire Associated Pictures staff East, including Bert Ennis and Bert Lubin, the latter of whom has been appointed production manager.

Clarence Badger will direct the first La Marr picture, following the completion of "One Night in Rome" for Metro.

Abe Carlos who is making the Dick Talmadge pictures for Truett has also decided to transfer his production activities to the East.

At First National, it was stated on Saturday that there had been no new developments in the plan to bring back the First National producing units to the East. Richard A. Rowland's ideas on making pictures in and around New York are well-known.

Dear Mr. Danny:

I have not seen Clem since early this morning and it's almost dinner time now. He locked the compartment door and refuses to answer. Yes, it's a bit rough. He told me that he was afraid I would get sea sick but that he was not in the least worried about himself, for as he put it, after a year in the picture business, nothing could make him sick. Anyhow, he's hiding out and I think the old boy is sunk.

Clem told me he wanted to get a wire off to you today, so when he failed to come up for air, I thought I would give you some impressions so that you won't be disappointed.

When we came aboard last week, Clem took a look at the steamer and intimated it was the same one used in a Mack Sennett picture. At least

More Release Prints

Discussed at First National—Distributors Saving Half Cent on Printing Costs

It is understood that the executive committee at First National is discussing a plan to increase the number of release prints on all pictures. The plan which is yet in the indefinite stage has several clear-cut, definite purposes in mind.

Distributors are now saving a good deal of money on print costs in view of the price reduction of a half cent made by Eastman and other manufacturers of raw stock. The idea seems to be that instead of merely considering the difference in cost a saving, the money should be diverted into an added number of prints so that the smaller exhibitor will get better service and possibly secure pictures closer to a general release date.

Sydney R. Kent stated on Saturday that Famous Players did not intend using the saving for other uses but that additional prints would be turned out for the benefit of the small town exhibitor.

E. H. Goldstein of Universal said his company met with very little trouble with prints because it was their experience that the original quota distributed on release dates was usually ample to take care of exhibitor needs.

New Company Formed

they both have two smoke stacks and he said, I'm afraid this old tub won't ever get us over safe. All the first two days he was worried it might sink. This morning when I asked him if he was afraid the boat would sink—in a small shaky voice he answered, "No, now I'm afraid it won't." I guess he ain't feeling any too well. Clem was a big hit at the concert yesterday.

He lectured on the film industry as he found it and was very witty. He called all the big producers by their first names and discussed moving picture theaters through the eyes of a circuit owner.

One of the passengers—I think he's a traveling salesman, disturbed Clem during the speech by asking him if he ever had a short circuit on his circuit. But Clem got right back at him by telling him to go to H—.

Clem is there on repartee.

We arrive at Madeira tomorrow at sun-up and I am anxious to get Clem up and about so he can look the theaters over and render a report.

Newspaper Opinions

"Big Brother"—F. P. L. Strand, Minneapolis

DAILY NEWS—If "Big Brother" doesn't far toward making Mickey Bennett the standing juvenile star of the movies, nothing cannot be beat. The tough little Midge wishes a constant interest. And Tom more is always good.

TRIBUNE—Pathos and humor are to be found in Allan Dwan's screen version of Rexich's story. *** There are good melodramatic situations with plenty of punch, but the story is largely narrative of the development of the two main characters.

Picadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—"Big Brother" will tug at your heartstrings whether you will or no; and it will, at the same time, do for you what it did for us; make you think a little bit more sympathetically about the "underdog."

JOURNAL—*** drags decidedly. In its, and is cluttered with a good many unnecessary scenes. The picture is enjoyable nevertheless. It presents an amusing picture of the human side of the underworld. ***

TIMES-UNION—*** advise everyone to like a clean, wholesome story that tugs at the heartstrings a bit and also brings many smiles, to see it before it leaves theater.

"Daddies"—Warners California, Frisco

(Week ending March 7)

BULLETIN—It is a good picture, unusually entertaining and is highly amusing. It gives perfect settings with clever subtitles, direction, and a splendid cast.

CALL—"Daddies"—here is a picture that clean cut comedy, human, appealing and giving instant response in the hearts of its viewers be they young or old.

CHRONICLE—Mae Marsh proves the same whimsical Mae as of old, and she receives able support along the line of light comedy by Harry Myers.

DAILY HERALD—It is a clean, sparkling comedy with a convincing touch of pathos that rounds out capital entertainment.

DAILY NEWS—The story is frankly farce. It is immensely funny to married folk, but tragic to bachelors.

EXAMINER—"Daddies" has laughs. *** a cast of "Daddies" consists of a list of able players.

"The Governor's Lady"—Fox Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—*** like one of those old sentimental melodies that touch the heartstrings. Although it is dull and drab in spots, it is intensely interesting and entertaining.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—*** finds itself readily to the screen and results in a well presented and dramatic albeit a newish slowly-moving story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—With its plot to work on there is, of course, nothing surprising in the picture, although the story is well handled and well acted, with adequate settings throughout.

RECORD—If Jane Grey, as Governor's wife, felt it necessary to appear stupid in a role requiring quiet understanding—well, it's a fault. If Robert T. Haines, as Governor, believed it necessary to be ever cold and hard—that also can be overlooked. It is an old story of folly revived.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. O. Gifts, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—*** Then hats off to Mrs. Middleton, who has given us something really original in the way of photoplay material. *** The great snow scene is magnificently staged and compares in every respect with the famous scene in "Way Down East." The entire picture is well acted and furnishes the best sort of screen entertainment.

ENQUIRER—*** though not a brilliant picture, it admirably illustrates some of the advantages to be derived from writing directly for the screen. *** Then too, a strict economy both of scenes and characters has been observed, all of which conduces to increasing the dramatic intensity. *** A terrific storm scene adds force to the climax.

TIMES—Most of the action took place in a blinding blizzard, and the spectator becomes saturated with snow and ice before the final fade-out.

Gifts, Cleveland

POST—*** rather original theme. *** If there would be no other reason to like the picture, the snow storm scenes make it well worth seeing.

Sun, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Notwithstanding the good cast, the production is just a fair picture and nothing to rave about. ***

Central, Washington

POST—*** a picture which utilizes fundamental emotions as a means of building up to the climax.

STAR—The characters seem true to type and move rationally throughout.

"Ladies To Board"—Fox Moon, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—*** a first rate comedy drama which carries a note of pathos, considerable heart appeal and plenty of action.

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"—Vita. Keith's 105th St., Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—*** could have been vastly improved by more judicious editing. The scenes are short and jerky, and there are far too many sub-titles in stilted, artificial language. ***

Auditorium, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—*** J. Stuart Blackton, who directed the filming, has made a picture which is well above the average and the acting is everything that one has become accustomed to expect from Miss Frederick and Mr. Telleen.

"The Love Master"—1st Nat'l Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—While the story may be a little lame in spots, Strongheart and his mate Lady Julie, *** supplies heart interest in abundance and "The Love Master" will doubtless be numbered among the successful films of the year.

NEWS—Strongheart's latest picture, *** is reinforced by the prettier and dainter police dog, Julie and the amazingly human little passages between the two help to smooth over some rough spots in the scenario.

"The Marriage Circle"—Warners Imperial, San Francisco

(Week ending March 7)

BULLETIN—Notwithstanding the promises made for the photoplay, it lives up to all claims. There are also a few pleasant surprises. It is not so much the story as the master hand shown in the creation.

CALL—But it isn't sordid. It isn't sensational nor sexual. Nor is it foolishly farcical. It's just human, a slice out of everyday life. It has its heart throbs and its laughs, to be sure, but so has life.

CHRONICLE—The story told in the picture is not "meat for babies," but is delightful entertainment for the adult mind, fast, naughty, finely presented.

DAILY NEWS—Ernst Lubitsch departs from the costume drama to make a brilliant success in high comedy with "The Marriage Circle." It is one of those rare pictures that the theatergoer of taste makes an effort to see at least twice.

EXAMINER—At any corner you look there's a triangle in "The Marriage Circle." But it's all the fault of the vampire. The continuity has been expertly handled for so much triangular mixup, and even though everything's a trifle illogical Lubitsch's master strokes makes one forget the utter improbability of some of the episodes.

"The Man From Wyoming"— Universal Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending March 7)

CHRONICLE—Every "Western" thriller has to have a certain amount of improbability, but this one has more than its share. Were it not for the fact that Jack Hoxie is at once a personable and sincere he-man *** and that some of the outdoor scenes are genuinely beautiful, "The Man From Wyoming" *** would be a sorry mess indeed.

DAILY NEWS—Hoxie does capable work in the role of sheepman, and there is plenty of fast action to suit the audience.

DAILY HERALD—There are many loose ends and inconsistencies in this production, which is western melodramatic type of the orthodox variety.

"Maytime"—Preferred Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending March 7)

BULLETIN—Yet the picture version of "Maytime" is an entertaining film with the story well worked out.

CHRONICLE—We say that "Maytime" just misses greatness because, after all, there is a slight sense of disappointment about it.

DAILY HERALD—It is a particularly interesting production.

DAILY NEWS—Tasteful settings, corrected to period, simple and natural acting, a plot and theme of considerable charm, make the picture an agreeable one.

EXAMINER—"Maytime" on the Granada screen retains the pretty story of the stage play although it is jazzed up a good deal in the reels dealing with the latest generations of the Waynes. ***

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending March 7)

BULLETIN—"Painted People" has some really enjoyable comedy situations in the early part of the picture, but is weak in the latter part of the play. There was a splendid opportunity to make a thoroughly good picture.

CHRONICLE—A fine picture, "Painted People," *** a picture that gives a new light on the art of Colleen Moore.

DAILY HERALD—Colleen Moore gives a vital and delightful performance. *** She simply steals the picture, story and the whole works. *** The story is somewhat hard to take. *** The latter part of the picture is rather too romantic for plausibility.

DAILY NEWS—As a drama it isn't much, but Colleen works in lots of pep and the the small-town comedy stuff draws endless laughter. EXAMINER—*** A sparkling comedy-drama. *** It is well seasoned with thrills and heart throbs as well as laughter. "Painted People" is one of those rare, sure-fire pictures that no one can afford to miss.

BOO!

By DANNY

Let's all shiver. Let's all get cold. Because—as Whitcomb they put it—"th' goblins 'll get if you don't watch out." All which refers to what one F. Adams has been writing in "Cinema" of London,, about American banks, interested in pictures, intend doing in England. According to Adams the banks want to protect their investments in American picture concerns, so American picture interests are gobbling English picture houses.

We wouldn't bother much with brilliant idea excepting that Adams will be here soon. And we expect a lot of this sort of talk on his arrival. So this goes while Adams is heated. Perhaps it isn't heated as he would have it. Once in a time Adams was managing director—that's the British term for "boss"—of the Provincial Cine. Theatre, one of the biggest chains in England. Since he was retired he has been very bitter against Sir Wm. Fox and Lord Beaverbrook; who, incidentally are well known to the trade.

Says Adams, in one of his articles:

"This brief statistical survey of the American film position at the beginning of 1924 shows that she (America) has money enough and to spare for any campaigns designed to strengthen her position in the British and Dominion markets.

She has the money; first, because she can get unlimited capital from the banks. * * *

"Unlimited capital from the banks" for pictures! Would that it were true, Adams; would that it were half true. If all the producers and distributors who cannot get money from the banks were laid head to toe they would stretch almost all the way from Hollywood to New York, or further.

There may be some dark and secret move on the part of American film to gobble all the theaters worth anything in England. It may be true. It is a business of huge possibilities. One never can tell. But at the present it might be safe to say:

Boo!

Italy Faces Crisis

Many Studios There Closed—New Company Formed to Revive Production Morale

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rome—A production crisis exists in Italy. There are about twenty studios that have closed down completely, these including Pasquali, Itala, Gloria, Photo-Drama, Leonardo, Tiziano and Ambrosio.

Various reasons are assigned for the slump. The technical equipment is not as modern as it might be. It is interesting to learn that of the pictures shown in Italy, 40 per cent is American, 10 per cent French and the rest of local origin. At one time the Italian industry made enough pictures to take care of its own market but this percentage has steadily deteriorated. There are about 2,200 picture theaters in the country and about 4,000 privately owned halls in which pictures are sometimes shown.

A new company designed to promote Italian relations with other nations through the medium of the screen has been formed. It is known as the Propaganda Industriale Artistica Cinematografica Europea; it will have its headquarters in Turin and have the moral support of the Government.

The offer made to D. W. Griffith by an Italian syndicate has for its purpose a general bolstering of film production which has reached a low ebb in Italy. Griffith has not accepted and will not until he makes an investigation of Italian studio facilities. He leaves for Rome on April 2.

There's an old dame on board very religious and she's sore because the boat runs on Sunday. She wanted to anchor from Saturday night to Monday.

More Prints Needed

So E. A. Eschmann Observed On Extensive Tour of the Country—Long Runs Responsible

E. A. Eschmann, sales manager of First National stated yesterday that the necessity of supplying exchanges with a greater number of prints was a vital one and a move that his organization would inaugurate at once.

Eschmann returned on Saturday from an extensive tour of First National exchanges. He said long runs were chiefly responsible for additional prints, in view of the fact that the strain to which prints were subjected because of extended engagements in key cities was something hitherto unknown in distribution. He found that, as a result prints reaching the smaller exhibitor were in poor condition in a number of cases.

It is believed that the real purchasers are Pat Powers and Oscar A. Price, who for reasons of their own seem to wish to play the shrinking violets for the present.

"This purchase is interesting to the public because the Triangle at one time had on its pay roll about 90 per cent of the real talent of the screen.

"Pat Powers and Oscar Price, while not given to wandering in the wide open spaces, are known to the cinema trade as strong, silent men. They have not purchased the Triangle Film Corp.—if it is in reality they who thick one sucker broke his spoon stirring it. My stomach is full of fights from eating scraps. You get your choice of steak or potatoes at dinner. We got decks walkers with hob nail shoes on who get up every morning to see what the ocean does at daylight. As soon as they see—they begin pacing the deck. Kipling must of got his idea for his poem "Boots" on this trip.

Tomorrow we reach tropic seas.

I had one day when I didn't feel so good. Something went wrong with my stomach and before I had a chance to get to my cabin, I was in terrible condition.

I'm standing at the rail, during the above named spell when a guy approaches me and says, "Don't give up to it old chap, it's all in your mind."

Well, I comes back at him, if your mind is in your stomach maybe you can control it—but I got mine up in my head and that ain't where I'm feeling bad. And I've already give up.

There's a funny collection of people on board.

Mrs. Deneker met a society woman from Peoria today whose husband is leaning up against the saloon door—so that when they open it he'll fall right in. She says he misses his hooch so much she's spent her last four years on the ocean and that he's booking up for next summer and the one after.

There's two priests on board and a rabbi. From the way I felt yesterday I could have used them all.

Will write you from Madeira tomorrow. I understand it's a closed territory.

A friend of Mrs. Deneker's from Exzema joined us at our table today. Our table is closer to the kitchen so some of our food arrives warm.

Best ever from your tourist friend.

are behind the Lovelace deal—for a plaything. It is very probable that they propose to reorganize the company, using as a basis the some two thousand negatives of all the famous stars and directors they have on hand, along with the immensely valuable story rights the Triangle is known to have possessed. With this as a start they will undoubtedly enter the production field for the purpose of once more giving battle to some of the old line cinema firms."

P. A. Powers stated yesterday it was true he and Price had purchased the Triangle assets, but declared he didn't know just what would be done with the story rights. The original purchase was made by Frank W. Severn of 1476 Broadway, but Powers stated that Severn had acted on behalf of the Kessels and that his deal was made subsequently.

Newspaper Opinions

"Darling of New York"—Univ. Washington, Detroit

THE PRESS—* * * has much to commend it, an exciting story, a well chosen and a star with a universal appeal. * * * Peggy is without doubt at her best in this picture. * * * There is no doubt that this picture will have a wide appeal. * * *
 NEWS—The personality and magnetism of Montgomery rise above everything. * * * A half-length comedy, the first of its kind to exploit this little maid, and those who her two-reel efforts a treat should describe the enjoyment from this one. * * *
 NEWS—Many an adult actress would fail, could say, where little Peggy has perched with what appears to be a consummation. * * * Baby Peggy is an excellent little being.

"Daytime Wives"—F. B. O. World, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—* * * Emile Chautauque the director, has built fine climaxes that time become theatrical.

"Defying Destiny"—Selznick Lyric, Cincinnati

QUAKER—Some portions of this production defy not only destiny but common sense as well. * * * The most genuine merit is its acting, particularly that of Irene and Monte Blue, who play the leading

Lyric, Cleveland

POST—* * * Some of the factors in the strain one's credulity, as most "falsely" stories do, but the direction and photography, as well as the acting are A-No.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P. L. Park and Mall, Cleveland

RAIN DEALER—Rita Coventry, the donna, as played by Nita Naldi is a different personality than the Rita Coventry of the Street story. * * * The story is a new one, either. Dressed up in fine and elaborate settings, it is the same old tale of the simple, dotting girl who her man to a vampire—and then takes back after the vamp has given him the left shoulder.

NEWS—* * * The tale is filmed with some and humorous discernment. It is poignant and bright. But there isn't much emotional kick in it. There was kick in the old, but some of that was lost when it was filmed. Still, it's a good movie. It is the real characters who have real lives. * * * Nita Naldi wears some sensational clothes.

"The Drivin' Fool"—Hodkinson Capital, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"The Drivin' Fool," is one of the speediest pictures here in some time. It is not only breezy it has abundance of clean-cut comedy and a sweet little love story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—This picture is one of the finest films ever made. It is thrills galore.

"The Fool's Awakening"—Metro Palace, Montreal

GAZETTE—"The Fool's Awakening" suffers from the same quality of ineffectiveness as the material. * * *

PAR—* * * does not always convince, one rich in highly interesting situations, so means devoid of excitement and even thrills, with plenty of emotional atmosphere and no little romantic flavoring.

Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Why a thoroughly entertaining and true-to-life novel makes a picture material can be easily understood by audiences who see "The Fool's Awakening." * * *

POST-DISPATCH—A fine cast * * * NEWS—* * * is illogical and far fetched, resting while you are looking at it, but often as soon as it is over. There is a good cast and good direction.

"The Heart Bandit"—Metro Garden, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—* * * Nothing extraordinary about it, except Viola. * * * Little Viola Dana is—whatever "it" is. She personality

SENTINEL—Some day the millenium in pictures will arrive—and then Metro will give Viola Dana a role that is worthy of her talents. * * * In "The Heart Bandit," her latest comedy drama, her part is the usual one of the good-bad girl who reforms and she is adept at it because she's had that same role in every one of her recent pictures.

"Jacqueline"—Arrow-S. R. New Lyric, Minneapolis

DAILY STAR—* * * told in a highly interesting manner.

TRIBUNE—Plenty of thrills are displayed. * * * The Canadian timber country forms a picturesque background for the melodrama.

"Just Off Broadway"—Fox Empress, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—* * * John Gilbert, who has the role of the hero, handles it most satisfactorily. * * * Edward Mortimer, the director, keeps the story moving with action and incident. It is staged with first rate atmosphere.

"Loving Lies"—Allied Prod. Regent, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—For any one who is willing to overlook the fact that the plot (outside of a few novel twists) is stereotyped, and the sub-titles are too abundant, there is certainly enough action to provide plenty of ordinary enjoyment.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—There are plenty of thrills in this narrative—a storm at sea, a wreck and a thrilling rescue through the pounding surf.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The most exciting sequences in the picture are the storm at sea, the wreck and the rescue through the pounding surf.

"The Man From Brodney's"—Vita Strand, Montreal

STAR—* * * A cast of unusual note, * * * has made this film one of the best of the year at this theater.

Ambassador, Washington

POST—Here is a photoplay subject that embodies all the suspense of Belasco's "The Drums of Oude," with an insular revolt running at full blast with the lives of a small group of British and American subjects its principal object.

"Mothers-in-Law"—Preferred Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—"Mothers-in-Law" is another chapter in the film series glorifying the home. * * * Edith Yorke gives a satisfying if, at times, overambitious portrayal of Mom Wingate. Ruth Clifford and Gaston Glass are good as the son and daughter-in-law. The remainder of the cast is adequate.

"Our Hospitality"—Metro McVicker's, Chicago

TRIBUNE—It may be said that the picture was received with manifestations of great joy. * * * Mr. Keaton "pulls" a lot of new stuff that no doubt most people will find highly entertaining. As per usual, he is smileless. Also—thank him for the surprise he hands you as the final reel ends.

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P. L. Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Booth Tarkington wrote the story as an original screen vehicle for Thomas Meighan but it is Tom's own magnetic personality and the flock of children who are seen that make it mildly entertaining, rather than any brilliance on the part of Mr. Tarkington.

"Pleasure Mad"—Metro Garrick, Minneapolis

SENTINEL—* * * a hectic expose of the so-called modern jazz life, is distinguished particularly by the fine work of Mary Alden.

TRIBUNE—Aside from the main theme, the elaborate settings are of exceptional interest. * * * Mary Alden heads a brilliant cast. * * *

Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—The play is convincingly moral, one of the few in which the lessons of virtue are stressed more emphatically than the scenes portraying the transgressions of propriety.

JOURNAL—Just another preaching against the evils of the riches, the madness of jazz and the dangers of idleness, beautifully screened and admirably acted.

TIMES-UNION—But, as presented by (the cast) it becomes quite well worth seeing even though one realizes that there are a number of points where it fails to remain true to life.

"A Ride For Life"—Universal Isis, Indianapolis

NEWS—"A Ride for Life," is a bit uncertain at times, for the continuity is wobbly, but the action is rapid, the anecdotes sufficiently disturbing to the nerves and all the rest of it, so why worry?

Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—An interesting little picture this, and Gibson at his best. Laura La Plante is charming as the girl. Edward Sedgwick's direction is very good. The picture moves with swiftness and smoothness.

STAR—A typical Hoot Gibson western

TIMES—Hoot Gibson ought to have more of a following than he has. His speciality is "westerns" and he does them well, * * *

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l New Astor, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—* * * Norma Talmadge appears in an entirely different type of role from any she has thus far attempted. As an Arabian dancing girl, Miss Talmadge is afforded ample opportunity for effective emotional scenes. * * * The production has been artistically mounted and finely photographed.

Louise Lagrang has arrived from the Coast to appear in "The Mounted Bank," being directed by Herbert Brenon.

Associated Exhibitors have purchased from the Alaskan Pictures Corp., through Captain Lathrop, the nine reel feature, "The Chechachos," made entirely in Alaska and, which, according to reports, is one of the most novel productions ever brought to the market.

Officials at Associated beyond admitting that the deal has been closed will say nothing, but it is reported that they think so highly of the production that it will be given a special showing at one of the hotels.

Clem's Ocean Stuff

Leaving Madeira Permanently. Dear Daily:

I been on this boat a week now and was wondering what was wrong with it. Now I found out. It's a Scotch boat. I didn't know this until I saw two emaciated sea gulls that has been following us all the way over. They are near starved.

This is a funny boat. A shark started to follow us out of the harbor at Madeira, but when it saw the Scotch flag—it turned around and went back.

Well, as far as I am concerned these cruises is the bunk. I wanted to cancel my ticket at Monte Carlo and get an adjustment, but the captain said he wouldn't do it, that it was too hard to get people onto the Tus-

Ince May Renew

Contract with First National Likely to Carry On—"Last Frontier" On New List

A statement from First National concerning production activities from Thomas H. Ince yesterday concluded with the following paragraph:

"Following completion of the current schedule, Ince has announced plans for a new schedule of six big specials for First National release, one of which will be 'The Last Frontier', a stupendous 'western' based on the book by Courtney Riley Cooper."

At the Ince offices, no information was available concerning the intimation that a new contract had been signed but in view of the fact that Ince has been a unit on the First National releasing program since 1921, it would not prove surprising were he to continue his present relations. With the release of "The Galloping Fish," First National declares there remain two more to be delivered under the present program. These are "The Marriage Cheat" and "Those Who Dance." An important feature on the new Ince program is "The Last Frontier."

Discuss Children's Bill

Part of the discussion at the regular T. O. C. C. meeting yesterday concerned the children's bill in Albany. The matter is considered an important one and a subject in which exhibitors generally are very much interested. The impression is that children should be admitted to theaters in charge of a matron, in view of the fact that the calibre of theaters has advanced so considerably in the past decade.

"Passionate Italians"

The $100 prize winning sketch to be presented at the Naked Truth Dinner at the Astor on March 29, is to be enacted by a trio of stars. The sketch is entitled "Passionate Italians" and it is an adaptation of that well known Broadway success, "Romeo and Juliet, by Will Shakespeare. Bebe Daniels will appear as Juliet, and Richard Dix will stand below the balcony as Romeo and Ernest Torrence has been cast as Friar Laurence. The author will be announced at the dinner.

Get Together

Plans Being Discussed by Which Harmony Can Be Restored to National Organization

Plans are being discussed by several groups of exhibitors for the purpose of developing a harmonious state of affairs within the national exhibitor organization, to the end that in Boston, or immediately thereafter, the M. P. T. O. will again present a solid front.

Members of the organization insist that the rebuilding should come from within and that the insurgents should make a proposition to the national body; but others on the outside say that regardless of how the matter can be rearranged that the old organization as well as the dissatisfied groups should come together, settle their differences, and start afresh.

Dickering for Auto Club Bldg.

It is understood that the T. O. C. C. is dickering for the Automobile Club of America building, 247 West 54th St., in which to house its proposed clubhouse. The plan provides for the T. O. C. C. to use two stories and rent out the other five to exchanges. In view of the recent up-town tendency in business, the T. O. C. C. does not consider this an unworkable scheme.

Inspiration Denies Claims

It is understood that Inspiration has served notice on Richard Barthelmess that the company does not recognize the breaches which Barthelmess claims. The latter is now in Bermuda.

"The Fighting Coward"

The greatest combination of roaring comedy and appealing romance ever screened! Cruze's fifth big hit and, except "The Covered Wagon," the biggest of the five. Adapted by Walter Woods from Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia." Doing stand-out business at the Rivoli, New York, this week. Reviews? Read 'em:

"One of the best features of the season. If the play had held the entertainment values the picture includes, it would have been running yet. A splendid cast."—Times Square Daily.

"An entertaining and constantly amusing photoplay."—World.

"James Cruze is the possessor of the keenest sense of humor in the cinema directorial field, and he is at his best in 'The Fighting Coward.'"—Herald.

"Most delightful and gratifying. Never has James Cruze done a more delightful piece of directing. We want everybody to see it."—Tribune.

"A hilariously funny entertainment."—Times.

"A thorough-going delight. Cruze is making one hit after another, because he is an organization director. He can, without losing a bit of his own virile originality, take advantage of the resources, facilities and brains around him."—Motion Picture News. (William A. Johnston)

At Broadway Theaters

Rivoli

Selections from "Eileen" are played as the overture, immediately followed by the usual "Riesensfeld's Classical Jazz" number: "Dear Old Southland." The Rivoli Pictorial News Weekly, De Forest Phonofilm and "Along The Mississippi," sung by Miriam Lax, soprano, assisted by the Rivoli Ensemble, come next, in order. "The Fighting Coward," the feature, is sixth on the bill. "Cake-walk," with Paul Osgard and La Torrecilla, and "The Tough Tenderfoot," one of the Leather Pushers' series, are the two last units on the program.

Liberty

Douglas Fairbanks, "The Thief of Bagdad," is the feature.

Strand

The program as follows: Joseph Plunkett presents: Famous Composers Series, No. 3; Massenet with (a) "Le Roi de Lahore," by the orchestra; (b) "Meditation," played on the violin by Madeleine MacGuigan; (c) Duet from "Herodiade," sung by Ruth Arden, soprano, and Louis Dornay, tenor, and (d) Ballet Music, an elaborate ballet offering; next is the Strand Topical Review; "Lilies of the Field," the feature, and "Two Little Love Birds," a Pathe comedy. An organ solo closes.

At Other Houses

"The Great White Way," at the Capitol last week, has been held over. "A Society Scandal" is playing a second week on Broadway, having been moved down from the Rivoli to the Rialto. "The Ten Commandments" continues on at the Cohan, as does "Yolanda," at the Cosmopolitan. "America" remains at the 44th Street, while the Lyric still houses "Thy Name Is Woman."

cania to let anyone leave before their time was up.

There ain't much doing in the way of moving picture theaters at Madeira. It's a small place that seems to get smaller every time it rains. Sort of shrinks. They get their service (which is a nice word to call what they get) from England. A boat gets to Madeira every time a captain loses his way at sea and if they happen to have a picture on board, the manager of the theater at Madeira gives a show. Admission prices are as follows:

People with pants on 1000 reis.

People without pants on 500 reis

Reserved seats with pants on 2000 reis.

Reserved seats without pants on 1500 reis.

Well I sees the price list in the lobby through the cob webs and gets to thinking that here's one exhibitor who knows how to charge high admission prices, but when I finds out that it takes a couple hats full of reis to make a dime, I ain't so stuck on him.

The kids are all naked here and the principal business is selling monkeys and parrots and making suckers out of tourists.

Cook's tourist company handles the excursions off this boat and most of the saps on board is signed up. Not yours truly. From the looks of things the folks is going to see most of Europe in about twenty minutes. I'm hitting out independently and Mrs. Deneker and me sees about everything there is. I speak a little Mexican I picked up during my spell at Hollywood, and this is carrying me through plenty OK.

We gets to Gibraltar Tuesday. This is the place that insurance company built so as to have an ad for how strong they are. I don't guess I'll go ashore there. Knowing its a tie-up with the Prudential, there's probably nothing to see but cemeteries.

I understand there's two movie houses at Gibraltar. One open for business, the other making money.

Well, will send you another analysis from Algiers if there's anything to analyze.

CLEM.

Sign Deneker yourself.

Pickford Film for Criterion

"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the new Pickford picture opens at the Criterion either May 4 or May 11. The contracts have not been signed but it is taken for granted that the deal will be consummated. The picture will replace "The Humming Bird," at Grauman's Million Dollar theater, Los Angeles as soon as the latter completes its run.

No Title For Johnson Film

Harry Berman stated yesterday that the new Emory Johnson film will not be known as "Spirit of America," because he felt this title would encroach on the Griffith picture, "America."

"Lilies of the Field"—1st Nat'l Strand

AMERICAN—* * * amusing and enter-
g. If we were to dissect the story we not find anything that requires gray
r. I might even say it is trashy, but is so well done in the matter of acting production we have to overlook the a M. Clay tendencies of plot. * * * the play belongs to Corinne Griffith must share it with Conway Tearle * * * DAILY NEWS—* * * Miss Griffith has bly never been in a prettier picture, so
"s" will please those who found her, in "k Oxen," a worthy successor to Helen roy et al. * * * This picture is bound it popular taste, if only because of the show element * * * Mr. Tearle's ads will find him as noble and serious as re.

VENING JOURNAL—Myrtle Stedman, is Haver, Alma Bennett and Cissy Fitz-d, in sumptuously furnished apartments, out the sophisticated leit-motif of the with entertaining situations, and advice just gets by the censors. * * * ere is a moral, of course; the sets are iful; the furs and gowns gorgeous, and ctors, wordily-wise and weary. * * *

VENING WORLD—Corinne Griffith
Conway Tearle, one of the surest of fire screen combinations, scored another ry * * *
d we have never seen them work better in this, * * * and * * * they are ably ted.

It's diverting to say the least.
ERALD—* * * skates warily over the ice beneath which lurk the black waters ensorial damnation. It is one of those quite" dramas which evade the clutches se professional prude by sliding up to a ous situation and then dodging at the fractional instant.

Corinne Griffith, beautiful to the point of dibility, * * * and Conway Tearle of se impersonates the catch of the sea-
* * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * it will ably be as good a box office attraction the picture theatres as it was on Broad-

TELEGRAM—* * * Whether cloaked in edy or drama—"Lilies of the Field" has in its claim to entertainment * * *

MES—* * * Aside from two rather ward sequences, this is a remarkably ble effort. Beauty, true beauty, gracearrayed, is always an important asset photoplay, and therefore the presence of Corinne Griffith, * * * adds con-ably to this film.

Miss Griffith is ably assisted by Conway le, * * * Dillon directed this picture, most of his work is efficient, * * * his is nevertheless, a good entertainment, his will please most persons who see it

MES SQUARE DAILY—* * * "Lilies of the Field" was a second rate play and it improved any as a picture.
his film is of the regular program type gh it cost a lot of money, which is its outstanding asset except the lovely and ted Miss Griffith.

TRIBUNE—"Lilies of the Field," is about much like William Hurlburt's play as is like cheese.

* * * the picture is so badly done, so ess and so improbable that one acutely rs from fatigue before it is finished.

ORLD—In creating beautiful pictures he expert employment of light and lens, artist who photographed "Lilies of the
" has done a really remarkable thing. picture is extremely fine in another rtment. * * *

he story, which came to the stage to out the life and habits of the kept woman, interesting a great deal of the time, daring sionally, and soggy a little. * * * is a picture play worthy of success

"The Fighting Coward"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—There is grave danger that me who attempts to read the titles in e "Fighting Coward" may die of lock-
* * *
Magnolia" as a play teemed with color-screen possibilities. As a picture very of these potentialities materialize. The seems to be a failure to supply sufficient onality.

DAILY NEWS—"The Fighting Coward" seemed to me to be awfully funny, but not because the director meant it to be. However, on second thought, maybe he did. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * fine film enertainment. * * *

James Cruze, * * * has scored again, only not in such a massive way. * * *
Take it all and all * * * a delightful afternoon's entertainment.

HERALD—James Cruze is the possessor of the keenest sense of humor in the cinema directorial field and he is at his best in "The Fighting Coward." * * * The picture gets under way very slowly but later developments prove this somewhat necessary in order to more accentuate the speed it eventually attains. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * it is entertaining from the outset. * * * However, somehow or other, the picture lacks vitality.
* * * Also, in the screen version, all personality is lost. Ernest Torrence * * * Cullen Landis * * * Mary Astor, Noah Beery and Phyllis Haver, though adequate, are indefinite. It is not James Cruze at his best by any means, but it is amusing.

POST—One of the finest directors in the country, James Cruze, and a carefully thought-out and beautifully staged production give two important constituents in a good photoplay. But add an interesting story and an excellent cast and you have "The Fighting Coward", * * * The picture is a joy and so is Ernest Torrence. * * *
It is one of the few photodramas that are worthy of practically unqualified approval.

SUN—* * * "The Fighting Coward" will provide a wholly diverting evening—even for professional Southerners and professional anti-Southerners.

TELEGRAM—* * * It is an exciting story * * *

TIMES—* * * Provided one is in the mood this is a hilariously funny entertainment without an ounce of probability.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * Cruze, directing, has turned in one of the best program features of the season.

A splendid cast, in which Ernest Torrence and Cullen Landis stand out in bold relief.

TRIBUNE—* * * Never has James Cruze done a more delightful bit of directing, and Walter Woods is to be congratulated on his perfect adaptation. Ernest Torrence is an absolute joy. So is Noah Beery. * * *

WORLD—The day-dreams of youth, shy and meek, but raging inwardly with an in-terse passion some day to burst into swaggering heroics, are made into an entertain-
play in "The Fighting Coward," * * *

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"—Hod. Cameo

AMERICAN—Whitman Bennett should be commended for the sincere motive that, I am sure, inspired him to make "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." I have not a doubt that his picture will be recommended on the high school list of worthy films. * * *

* * * it is not one of our best "fillums" not yet one of our worst.

EVENING JOURNAL—Edward Eggleston's commentary on the Indiana of 1853 shows a great deal of scenery, various types of the period, and the thankless job of educating future novelists. There are several fights in the picture by Nat Pendleton, who has a good screen appearance; * * *

EVENING WORLD—For the first time in our history as a reel reviewer we couldn't fight our way through a crowd.

This happened three times * * * but, try as hard as we did, we simply couldn't get in.

And, as far as we're concerned, this is about as good a recommendation as we could write of a picture.

HERALD—"The Hoosier Schoolmaster" is an undistinguished, badly directed and cheaply produced picture. It moves along in the routine fashion affected by producers and directors who believe themselves to be the last word in knowing what is "sure fire stuff." * * *

Henry Hull, playing the title role, is an unusually attractive young fellow and a first rate actor.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * It deals with the days when orphans were bound out to serve as servants * * * and is a fairly interesting record of those times.

* * * the director has permitted a great deal of his drama to be explained in the titles, with the result that the big scenes lose some of their punch when they appear after the titles. This, in combination with a slow tempo, has resulted in a story that wanders aimlessly along to the perfectly apparent ending.

POST—Thrills abound in "The Hoosier Schoolmaster", in which Henry Hull, a good actor, did his very best with poor material.

TELEGRAM—* * * the finest piece of characterization of people and a period that has been done into pictures.

The true beauty of the tale is the clean-cut, unburnished picturization of the men and women that went to make up the isolated community; the community as a whole, their joys, their sorrows; the wholesome and the bad under conditions that made for badness. * * *

TIMES—* * * it is not particularly inspiring or entertaining. However, the photoplay does give some conception of the usual monotonous existence of a small community years ago in old Indiana, and the consequent importance attached to trivial incidents.

Out-of-Town

"Through The Dark"—Gold-Cosmop. Parkway, Baltimore

AMERICAN—The suspense of the narrative is maintained until the very end, and, at the same time, the characterization remains remarkably consistent. This, in itself, is no mean achievement where an out and out thriller is concerned.

"This Freedom"—Fox Hipp, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—The picture moves steadily and consistently from one situation to another. You get the message—that a woman cannot divide her time between business and a home without the home suffering—without having that message thrust at you distastefully in long-winded sub-titles. * * * "This Freedom" has no "thrills" and no wild melodrama. But it is a sensible, well constructed picturization of the author's story, and it presents his idea fairly and intelligently.

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l State, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—Richard Barthelmess discards his costumes and appears as a youth just reaching his majority. * * * Dorothy Mackaill plays opposite Mr. Barthelmess to advantage, * * *

STAR—* * * "Twenty-One" is a picture that all can enjoy, a bit of high-class enertainment.

"The Virginian"—Preferred Capitol & West End Lyric, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * a notable success. Thrills, action, romance and clean entertainment are the ingredients that go to make it a real treat.

STAR—A splendid new production * * *

TIMES—Has good cast. What makes "The Virginian" an enjoyable photoplay is that it is an out and out Western story, simple logically developed, with good atmosphere, its quota of shooting and riding and romance.

Crandall's Washington

POST—While a drama of the West, this subject partakes of none of the chief crudities of the ordinary cowboy thriller.

STAR—It is a play well known and the present screen version is by far the best yet offered of it. A story of the western plains with a romance interwoven, it offers strong characterizations and thrilling as well as amusing situations.

"When A Man's A Man"—1st Nat'l Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Admirers of Harold Bell
Wright and his he-man heroes will be pleased with the picture presentation of one of the novelist's greatest books. * * * Beautiful backgrounds of mountain and plain form an appropriate setting for the piece.

NEWS—Quite a chummy little western with a very serious treatment of the usual story about the eastern waster who goes West to become a man. * * *

TIMES—Detroiters wishing to see a fine example of story writing, cast and types, acting, photography and production don't want to miss "When a Man's a Man."

In every sense "The Thief of Bagdad" is a pictorial achievement rather than a dramatic one; an achievement of the camera and the technical artists rather than of the actors. It is essentially a one man show. And it finds Doug, like Griffith, yielding to dramatic repression as if each were thinking in slow motion, and forgetting that their public expects faster pulse beats. The speed of the story does not keep up with the speed of alluring imaginations of the public of today.

Universal's 36

Universal has selected the majority of its vehicles for the series of 36 Jewels planned for 1924-1925. This will mean a threefold increase in its line-up of specials over 1923. There still remain about a dozen vehicles to be selected, but the list as it now stands includes the following:

Mary Philbin in "The Inheritors," "Mitsi," and "The Best in Life"; Hoot (Continued on Page 4)

Censorship in N. Y. to be Abolished And the Penal Code Strengthened

If Bill Planned is Passed by Legislature—Confidence Expressed by Those Familiar with the Situation—Would Result in Huge Saving if Effected

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—If present plans are carried out the existing Censorship Act will be repealed during the present session of the Legislature. This will result in a saving to the industry of approximately a half million a year.

The purpose of the action planned is to assure the citizenship of clean, decent pictures by amending the Penal Code so that the showing of a picture considered immoral will lead to the arrest of the exhibitor showing it as well as the producer and distributor involved, with a resultant trial by jury. It is expected that this will not be necessary as production standards are such today that no producer of importance, nor an exhibitor respecting his patronage will show pictures that are below the existing high standard.

The Penal Code contains a section which makes it a criminal offence to dispose of obscene postals and such matters. This section will be changed to read "motion pictures" and is expected to be made sufficiently strong to insure the proper action through the police department.

The bill has not been presented to the Legislature as yet. Those interested expect, however, that it will be presented in a short time. No serious difficulty is anticipated in its passage.

The leaders in the Assembly will hold a meeting next Wednesday, at which they will decide the course they will take in the repeal of the Assembly censorship measure.

May "Farm Out" Robertson

It is not improbable that Inspiration will "farm out" John S. Robertson to another producing company, in view of the fact that difficulties between the company and Richard Barthelmess preclude possibilities of launching a new picture for some weeks at least.

One of the regrets of the production was that the tremendous set showing Bagdad was not flashed. It appears towards the finish, but the flying carpet intrigues the eye, and the stupendous set is all but lost.

promote a co-operative picture distribution." He suggested that it might be necessary to stage a Teapot Dome investigation of politics in the exhibitor ranks in order to clarify the atmosphere.

True is now president of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. (New York) which declares it is entirely divorced from exhibitor politics and intends carrying out the plan for which the other existing company, the T. O. D. C. (Delaware) was originally formed.

True says that the mysterious influences "suddenly became bold and daring when the first picture put out by the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. was ready for release and that further mysteries enshrouded and handicapped progress immediately preceding and following the annual meeting of the stockholders." He declares that "the wielders of mystery were content to mark-time and prevent results for what purpose and to what end the theater owner public has not yet learned."

In a letter which was sent to Sydney S. Cohen, under date of March 15, True said in part:

"While I was president of the corporation, as you very well know, I repeatedly attempted to clear the way toward obtaining pictures for distribution. That was the purpose for which we organized, but invariably I was blocked by my fellow members on the Board, and that no time did any one of them offer any substitute plan that could in any wise effectuate the purpose of the corporation."

"Apparently you and my other associates on the Board were going to let the ship sink; that is why I got out. I want no part in that sort of thing."

"As I have told you before and as I told them, I intend to take care of the exhibitor stockholders of the Delaware corporation who were not on the Board and I have no fear that my conduct in this matter will be misunderstood by any fairminded man."

The M. P. T. O. issued a joint statement emanating from Harry Davis, Pittsburgh; R. F. Woodhull, New Jersey; Glenn Harper, Los Angeles; and Sydney S. Cohen, all of them described as stockholders of the T. O. D. C. in which amazement was expressed that True and Carl Anderson had formed a T. O. D. C. under laws of New York State. The statement said, in part:

"It is our purpose to use every means to protect the interests of the stockholders of the T. O. D. C. (Delaware) and to see that the moneys due this company from the Anderson Pictures Corp. on account of distribution of the T. O. D. C. picture 'After the Ball' will be paid to the T. O. D. C. (Delaware) which has a contract with the Anderson Pictures Corp. regarding same.

"Irreconcilable differences arose in the management of the T. O. D. C., one of which was the desire of Mr. True and Mr. Anderson to amalgamate and consolidate the Anderson Pictures Corp., with the T. O. D. C. (Delaware) on a basis that we felt was unfair to the stockholders of the T. O. D. C. and one that would give the virtual control of the company to Mr. Anderson."

The M. P. T. O. A. also issued a copy of a telegram sent to True by Martin G. Smith, president of the M. P. T. O. of Ohio in which Smith said that the circumstances surrounding the formation of the T. O. D. C. (New York) made it impossible for him to join.

Carl Anderson said:

"It was Mr. Cohen who suggested that Anderson Pictures amalgamate with the T. O. D. C. and it was Anderson Pictures that turned down the offer because the T. O. D. C. had nothing it desired."

Newspaper Opinions

"The Thief of Bagdad"—Douglas Fairbanks
Liberty

AMERICAN—* * * a fantasy built on a foundation of every fairy tale ever written. Douglas Fairbanks, without any thought of imitating the immortal Shakespeare, * * * has helped himself to whatever fairy story took his fancy. By this you must guess that Elton Thomas, author of "The Thief of Bagdad," and Douglas Fairbanks are one and the same.

Elton Thomas, author, is ably assisted by Raoul Walsh, director, who is touched by a spirit of inspirational daring that motivates every bit of action. * * * is by far the best thing that he has ever directed.

Perhaps Douglas Fairbanks reckoned there would be some matter of fact folk who needed a plot. At any rate, he is too good a showman to depend entirely upon his magic tricks. He has built a love story with a sustained interest that carries along the tale to an exciting conclusion.

* * * Fairbanks has given us his finest picture and his finest work in "The Thief of Bagdad."

DAILY NEWS—* * * Senor Fairbanks has outdone himself in this. It is, * * * a fairy tale for adults. Or perhaps it is a small boy's dream of greatness. * * * worked out against a fantastically lovely background, making it easy to believe that the Fairbanks price list is true: that millions were spent and countless energies expended. * * *

In the first half of the film Douglas is himself—* * * Spectacle and scenery enshroud him in the latter part * * * This stretches out the story to enormous length. As always, in these super-films, there is too much of everything. Beautiful but surfeiting, the million-dollar movie!

"The Thief of Bagdad" is a film which will exhaust fans' superlatives for some time to come. * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * a fantastic screen symphony—fifteen reels of rhapsodic rhythm. Fairbanks is superb in his characterization, and the color, the moods, the imagination of the theme and setting, give one the sensation of day-dreaming a page of adventure in the time of the Caliph Haroun Al-Raschid, the just one, the holy one. * * * the scenes and illusions are gorgeously executed. * * * Pictorially and fantastically, the picture is perfect. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * a splendidly gorgeous affair with funny characters, glorious scenic effects and many opportunities for the star to caper about to his heart's content.

* * * we feel bound to say it was forced to divide honors with its presentation and its audience. In fact, in many instances, the picture was secondary in brilliance compared with the many screen stars and celebrities on hand. * * *

* * * a weird sort of an affair. * * * He smirks and smiles far too much. * * * But is upon the scenic beauty of the whole affair that most eyes will be focused. * * *

If they had stopped the picture just at the intermission we would be willing to go on record that it was an artistic achievement, but following the intermission it took on the semblance of a Mack Sennett comedy.

HERALD TRIBUNE—* * * after it was all over we found that we were terribly tired. That was undoubtedly due to the fact that one never for a moment relaxes while that one never for a moment relaxes while the story is on the screen. * * * Raoul Walsh * * * been put on the screen! * * * we enjoyed Douglas's antics more before he renounced thievery and became a knight.

The story becomes more and more fantastic as it proceeds until you arrive at a state of mind where nothing surprises you. * * * Fairbanks has done things that never have been done on the screen before. * * * his tricks are absolutely new and baffling even to those who know their way about behind the scenes.

Fairbanks himself is gorgeous. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * Undoubtedly Mr. Fairbanks has created a new style of motion picture, at least for American audiences, and perhaps has originated a new type of films. It is fair to assume there will be imitations and imitators, but it is difficult to conjure up a picture which would outclass it in wealth of settings, in costuming, in its Oriental exteriors and interiors and in those scenes which display an extraordinary range of fancy. * * *

POST—A fantasy with a moral! It's something new for the screen; and this story, "The Thief of Bagdad," is even more fantastic than the tales of the Arabian Nights, around which it is woven. In addition to all the good things that a good motion picture should boast, it has a piquant flavor, a joyousness, a scintillating cleverness, and a "tongue-in-the-check" attitude which has made something new. Once again Douglas Fairbanks * * * has taken a decided step forward in showing what can be done with intelligence and a camera. * * *

No picture has ever been more colorful than this; the grays of the screen suggest a riot of colors. And vivid compositions are effectively balanced by cool soft pictures, pastel in quality. * * * The story, of course, is delightful.

SUN—* * * Of the beauty and amazement of "The Thief of Bagdad" there is no possible doubt whatever. Gloriously built and peopled scenes * * * as incitive of thrill and imagination as they are deferential to artistic sense. * * *

It is something to file away in a bronze reel case in the hollow of a keystone that will show some prying generation of the future how far Americans came in ingenuity and sensitiveness from the bulky, meaningless parades and gladiatorial masses that were the wonder of the first European super films. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * the most marvelous film of the year. * * * Pictures of surpassing beauty came one after the other, each seeming more beautiful than those that went before. * * * All the glamour of the "Arabian Nights"—every one of the thousand and one of them—seemed to be reproduced.

Dominating it all was Doug himself * * * Fairbanks has never been seen to better advantage. * * * he does incredible things * * *

TIMES—* * * It is a picture which reminds one of Barrie, of Kipling, of Hans Andersen, * * * miraculous feats of the photographer. * * * remarkable sets and costumes. * * *

Douglas Fairbanks is his happy-go-lucky self * * * he shows his dexterity and agility, but not to an extent to destroy any illusion the photoplay sheds on the audience. * * *

It is an entrancing picture, wholesome and beautiful, deliberate but compelling, a feat of motion picture art which has never been equaled and one which itself will enthrall persons time and again. * * *

WORLD—* * * Fairbanks's new picture play need fear no man. * * * sets itself apart from anything in the films which we have seen. It is from its opening scene that a final second finely woven fantasy of a so far superior to anything of its general character ever done before that comparison rendered impossible.

It is a fine, vital glamorous performance which Mr. Fairbanks gives. His leading woman is stunningly handsome and completely capable. * * *

We are quite certain that if we had our way "The Thief of Bagdad" would be what shown immediately after intermission. While the picture is happily free from abundance of sub-titles, there are a few which should go by the board. * * *

We do not wish to register anything but admiration for this fine film play, a perfectly gorgeous adventure into a new world in the cinema. * * *

"Esther" Script Ready

W. R. Hearst Has Not Decided Whether Or Not He Will Ever Make It

William Randolph Hearst has had prepared a complete script covering story of "Esther." Whether or not Cosmopolitan will ever make it undecided at the moment. Hearst usually instructs his scenario department to prepare detailed synopses on subjects that offer screen possibilities and then he makes final decisions from the reports. "Esther" is ready so far as scenario is concerned.

Week Longer Protection in Troy

Foreign Conditions

From Satisfactory, According to Ben Blumenthal—Believes German Affairs Unsettled

Just back from a trip through the continent, Ben Blumenthal yesterday expressed himself as rather dissatisfied with film conditions throughout Europe.

"Germany, in particular," said Blumenthal, "is now undergoing a period of expansion which is hardly warranted, and I am convinced there will be a smash later which will prove disastrous. In the Balkan countries conditions are as a rule improved, but generally conditions are far from satisfactory."

It is Blumenthal's belief that should the "kontingen" be lifted in Germany that a wholesale dumping of foreign films, including American, would occur immediately thereafter, thus ruining whatever market there is under the existing conditions.

Lester Cuneo featured in "Western Grit"—Is a finished actor—a great rider and a great fighter.—"Western Grit" is the second of eight-produced and distributed by Ward Lascelle Productions.—Adv't.

Suggests Innovation

Rosenbluh Would Have Exhibitors a Fixed Rental and Also Pay for Use of Prints

Rosenbluh of the Fox New exchange, has advanced an idea in his opinion, might help some of the existing difficulties to the cost of distribution. He believes that a simple remedy would be to make a charge to the exhibitor for the right to show a picture in addition have a rental made for the use of the print. This rental, would, of course, be in the total rental charge, but it is his belief that it would materially simplify conditions, allowing exhibitors to get a rental for his picture, and at the same time the exhibitor would be paid for the running of the picture by the exhibitor keeping the accounts separate. "This would materially help," he says, especially for the small exhibitor who pays so little that distributors figured out that it cost from 50 per cent to supply this man a film. Now if a price was fixed for the right to show a picture and a price for the use of the print, exhibitors would be better off. A equitable price for the exhibitor would result, incidentally. The first exhibitor would, of course, pay more for the use of his print, and, in proportion, the price would decline as the picture was put into further use. The average length of a print from 60 runs up. "Something along this line was in execution it would be a big step toward the problem of distribution."

Dispute with C. E. A. Ends

First National was advised Friday from London that the dispute between the C. E. A., the English exhibitor organization and the various distributors there over a suitable form of contract, had been settled with the adoption of a new contract. This form provides that the renter or exchange can cut off service from the exhibitor even though a contract exists, when the exhibitor fails to live up to his payments as per agreement.

Hays Not Called

Counsel for Sinclair Questions Legality of Testimony—Committee Will Decide as to Action

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Will H. Hays was to have testified before the Senate Committee investigating the oil situation Friday, but whether or not he will be allowed to testify depends upon the decision of the Committee following an objection raised to further inquiry of the investigation by Martin Littleton, of counsel for Harry F. Sinclair. Littleton declared that in view of legal action pending in which Sinclair was involved, that Sinclair should not be compelled to testify. This led to a long argument and all other matters rested pending the decision of the Committee.

With reference to Hays' appearance before the Committee, The New York Times yesterday pointed out that Hays was to testify relative to Sinclair presenting the Republican National Committee with 25,000 shares of stock of Sinclair Oil which wiped out the deficit of the Committee of $1,600,000. The Times also said: "Mr. Hays is expected also to confirm the report that his law firm in Sullivan, Ind., was retained by the Sinclair interests, adding that he is still a member of the firm, but not active. One of the conditions of the contract Mr. Hays made with motion picture interests was that he should be allowed to retain his connection with the law firm. "The firm represents railroad interests in Indiana and also several oil companies. Hinkle Hays, Will Hays's brother, is the active head of the concern. The two brothers consult on cases occasionally and Will Hays retains all the rights of partnership, though he devotes very nearly all of his time to the motion picture industry."

Clem's Ocean Stuff

Approaching Gibraltar.

Dear Film Daily:

Maybe some of my good readers which ain't ever been on a little boat with a big name, would like to know just what is what on the high seas. High seas is the right word for what we had two days last week. Well it ain't all honey. There's a fat guy on board who probably ain't ever been closer to the ocean than a view in the Pictorial weekly and who come aboard with the swellest bunch of summer clothes the world has ever saw. Two days out of New York it's so cold, even the Captain's complaining. What does this fat guy do but show up on deck with white duck pants on. There he stood in the middle of the deck with ice bergs, bearing down on us direct from the North Pole, his

"Doug's" Latest

Immense, of course; fine pictorially. A great effort, and sets a new standard of technique in production. Oh; that the story was stronger. And how much better entertainment it would have been had Doug clowned more; had he remained the thief longer, and not become penitent and ceased his clowning to become a lover, imbued with the spirit of right living and right thinking.

"The Mark of Zorro" brought Doug further back to pre-eminence than any effort in years. How the crowds loved him in that? And as "Robin Hood" what a delight? Of course there is but one Doug. There is no other anywhere near him. He stands alone. But that doesn't prevent his thousands of admirers from desiring to see him as they love him; as the devilish sprite; the mischievous elf, jumping and tossing about in his devil-may-care-manner.

"These big pictures are fine for Doug' 'said an important New York exhibitor, "but how I wish he would give us three a year like 'Manhattan Madness'! Then all of us would make more money—even Doug."

Something to think about, this.

The next day it's nice and warm and I says to myself, I'm glad for the fat guy's sake that his clothes is going to fit the weather, when up he comes with a heavy woolen sweater, evidently hand lithographed, with tokens of Egypt and ancient Babylon painted all over it. To top this off he had on a lavender overcoat with great pearl buttons on. Mrs. Deneker who is very witty when she ain't sleeping, said all he needed was a whip to make him the perfect coachman.

Everyone on the boat got to wondering who he was. But I figured him as a small town clothing guy who made enough dough to retire and failing to sell his stock has decided to wear it all on this trip. He's a sight, so fat that when he stoops over with those duck pants on it looks like a four master coming at you head on with all sails set.

The portions of food on the Tuscania are getting smaller every day. I don't know whether they are running out of food or true to Scotch form. Mrs. Deneker had chicken casserole for dinner last night and when she asked the waiter where the chicken was, he said, right under that carrot there.

And say, Danny, talk about hard beds. The pillows on this scow are so hard, if you move them at night you scratch all the paint off the side of the cabin. I tried to find out what steel mill they were made in but they won't give you any information on this skiff. In fact they are so tight they even whisper the day's run in your ear so that not more than one passenger will hear it at a time.

I just heard there are three moving picture houses at Gibraltar and you can expect an analytical communication from me from there.

Mrs. Deneker is all het up on getting to Paris. She's been talking to some author's wife from Chilocothe, Ohio, who tells her not to buy any ready mades there—but to have everything built.

So long till tomorrow.

Season 1924-1925 Thirty First Run Pictures

Jack Pickford in "The Hill Billy"

Producers and Distributors... PROBABLY THE WORK JACK PICK-FORD HAS EVER DONE. A BOLD AND DRAMATIC ACTING AND FINE PICTORIAL QUALITY.

Gives a truly excellent performance as the Kentucky mountain boy. His characterization is carried all the way through and is convincing.

Several very worth while performances by players especially suited to individual roles. Yearsley very good as the no-account son of the villain, very well portrayed by Frank Lucille Rickson an appealing heroine, and quite pretty. Those who contribute good bits are Keckly and Snitz Edwards.

Story... Drama. "The Hill Billy" is an excellent dramatic entertainment. The story is full of interesting situations and director George Hill has certainly gotten the best out of them. The dramatic presentation is well timed and never flagging. It is sure fire. The development is smooth, logical and convincing. Besides a really interesting story, well told, "The Hill Billy" not only presents Jack Pickford in what is undoubtedly the best performance he has ever given, but also contains other thoroughly interesting character sketches each well developed. Plus these good things you have remarkably fine scenic appeal. The locations are beautiful and the photography excellent. The plot revolves about a young man, McCoy, son of the Widow McCoy whose husband was mysteriously killed. "Groundhog" Spence seduces the widow, knowing that she contains coal. At the same time his degenerate son Aaron seduces Emmy Lou, his father's little niece, to marry him. Aaron is accused of murdering Aaron's father. Later, with the "Groundhog" out of the way, Jed is happy and Emmy Lou.

Box Office Angle... Should please the folks. If your patrons like good dramatic story, they will be well satisfied with this. You can safely make promises for it.

Exploitation... Talk up Jack Pickford. Get them interested in him and promise them the best work he has ever done. Show them a scene of the fight on the raft as it rages down the rapids. Use a series of stills to give an idea of the feature's splendid pictorial appeal. The title may not get them interested so use it with catchwords and exploitation that will let them know that the story is about a Kentucky mountain lad who goes to save his people from the "groundhog."

Direction... George Hill; especially good. Author... Elton Thomas (Douglas Fairbanks). Scenario... Lotta Woods (Fairbanks' staff). Cameraman... Arthur Edeson, assisted by Richard Holahan, P. H. Whitman and Kenneth MacLean. Photography... Magnificent. Locale... The ancient city of Bagdad. Length... Premiere showing about 14 reels, which is expected to be cut materially for general distribution.

"The Fighting Coward"

Paramount

As a Whole... A CHARM AND DELIGHT. AGAIN ERNEST TORRENCE SCORES. CRUZE DOES WONDERS WITH THIS BOLD TARKINGTON STORY. WHAT BETWEEN CRUZE AND TORRENCE THIS SHOULD MAKE A FINE BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION.

Cast... Ernest Torrence heads a mighty good cast which includes Cullen Landis, Mary Astor, Noah Beery, and Phyllis Haver, although the latter has little to do. Beery has only one good sequence but he is immense in this. Landis does very well. The part fits him admirably. But Torrence—well your people will be delighted with him again. A fine actor.

Type of Story... The regeneration of a coward; a boy really not afraid of fighting, prefers to read poetry and chase butterflies, but is driven from home by an angry father when humiliated by a bully. The boy later develops, chiefly through the aid of a river gambler, into a notorious "killer" when, in fact, he never kills, but only has the reputation. How he is redeemed in the sight of his parents and gets his sweetheart fills up the story. But this synopsis cannot give an idea of the charm and delight of all of it, although it starts slowly. Once it gets moving Cruze never misses. It is fine stuff and will delight your regulars as well as a higher than usual grade. It was adapted from Tarkington's stage play, and is really better entertainment than was the play. The locations are laid in the South during slavery days.

Box Office Angle... Should be a hit. There is so much good humor in this; all clean; and so much good story material that your folks are sure to like it. Has many points of appeal.

Exploitation... A cinch. You have James Cruze's name to begin with. While perhaps "The Covered Wagon" has not yet reached your town your folks pretty well know of it and they know Cruze directed this big success. You can promise a lot for the picture delivers. Tell them Cruze handles this in the same big way, although don't let them think it is spectacular. Then you have the name of Ernest Torrence and you can promise a lot for him. A big Sunday audience roared at the final shot which gives Torrence a great chance. The scene between Torrence and Noah Beery is worth talking about. Use a trailer of the gambling scene where Landis wins all the clothing of his opponent. It's sure fire for a laugh. Tarkington's name will mean something with a lot of your people.

Direction... James Cruze; admirable. Scenario... Walter Woods. Photography... Excellent. Author... Booth Tarkington. Cameraman... Karl Brown. Locale... The South in slavery days. Length... 6,501 feet.

Priscilla Dean in "The Storm Daughter"

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole... THRILLING SEA STORY WITH PRISCILLA DEAN AND SUPPORTING CAST DOING GOOD WORK; PRODUCTION FIRST RATE AND ATMOSPHERE AUTHENTIC.

Star... Always at her best in role which permits her to play the game of a woman's wits against a man's. Sacrifices all personal attractiveness to give force to her portrayal but even at that is very pleasing and good to look at at all times.

Cast... Tom Santschi suitably cast for the role of brute sea captain. William Davidson also right for the part of the first mate. Pat Hartigan, one of the crew, contributes some effective comedy touches. Cyril Chadwick and Bert Roch good, too, in minor bits.

Type of Story... Sea melodrama. There have been numerous screen plots patterned after the fashion of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf" and others that have employed practically the same formula as that used in Priscilla Dean's "The Storm Daughter," but through capable direction, fine realistic atmosphere and good acting, the familiarity is overcome to a considerable degree and the picture offers a live, interesting entertainment that should especially please the lovers of sea stories. It has action, thrills, romance and the rest that makes for audience appeal. Santschi, tyrannical skipper of a sailing vessel, picks up Priscilla Dean and her companion fishermen. Her unfearing attitude toward him soon breaks his spirit and he begins to lose control of his men. They decide to mutiny and Santschi is put in irons. Meanwhile Priscilla learns that Santschi's hatred of women was caused by an unfaithful wife. After a spectacular wreck, the two are cast on an island where they decide to start life over together.

Box Office Angle... Good action picture that should satisfy big majority. First rate audience number.

Exploitation... You'll best interest your patrons by using a trailer of the storm sequence or any one of the fight scenes. Be sure to let them know that this is an action picture and promise them several very fine performances. Talk about the star and get her admirers interested by telling them this is the best of her recent pictures. A man going about togged out in rain clothes with the title of the picture painted on the back of his rubber coat should attract attention. Teaser stunts and catchlines, plus whatever additional exploitation you can give it, should bring you good results.

Direction... George Archainbaud; production and story development good. A few bits of minor detail could be improved upon. Author... Leet Rennick Brown. Scenario... Edward J. Montagne. Cameraman... Jules Cronjager. Photography... Good. Locale... Aboard ship. Length... 6,304 feet.

Douglas Fairbanks presents "The Thief of Bagdad"

As a Whole... PROBABLY THE MOST MAGNIFICENT PRODUCTION OF THIS KIND EVER MADE. A FAIRY TALE ATMOSPHERE WITH DOUG CONSTANTLY IN THE FOREGROUND OF A VERY THIN STORY.

Star... His usual delightful self during the early reels when he is a common thief, but later after he decides to earn his happiness he becomes a lover but loses much of his delightful charm.

Cast... Doug practically the whole show. Little for others to do. Snitz Edwards pleasing as his evil associate. Julianne Johnston pretty as unimportant heroine. Anna May Wong good. Others don't count.

Type of Story... If you opened the Arabian Nights at any page you would probably read some such a story as Doug has used for this extravagant, colossal production. Such story as it is, however, deals with the happenings which occur to a thief after he has decided to live right and after he falls in love with a princess. What occurs to and with him during this period includes many spectacular developments such as riding a flying horse, delving on the floor of the sea, the appearance of a flying carpet, and the use of a magical powder which develops an army of countless thousands as he flings it about him. In the end, of course, he ceases to be a thief, is a true hero and gets the usual reward of such—a beautiful sweetheart.

Box Office Angle... You know what a Fairbanks picture can do for you. That's all that need be said.

Exploitation... Stick to Doug and forget all the rest except the splendor and magnitude of this superior production which easily outclasses anything of its kind ever attempted. Never in the history of production have there been so many sets used to such advantage in any one production and in addition there is the trick stuff such as the flying carpet, the winged horse and the magic army. It will be a long time before you get this and you will have ample opportunity meanwhile to figure out what is the best way to handle this unusual and bizarre production.

Direction... Raoul A. Walsh; very good. Author... Elton Thomas (Douglas Fairbanks). Scenario... Lotta Woods (Fairbanks' staff). Cameraman... Arthur Edeson, assisted by Richard Holahan, P. H. Whitman and Kenneth MacLean. Photography... Magnificent. Locale... The ancient city of Bagdad. Length... Premiere showing about 14 reels, which is expected to be cut materially for general distribution.

43 Pictures Reviewed In 16 Cities

"After The Ball"—Anderson Butterfly, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * an adaptation of that grand old sentimental ballad, which the generation that sung before the jazz days will vividly remember. * * * lavishly mounted * * *

"Bill"—Red Seal-S. R. Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The artistic feature on the program is * * * Anatole France's * * * "Cranquille," which is presented under the title of "Bill." * * * It is a quaint bit of life in the Paris markets and is delightfully presented by the French star.

POST—"Bill," a three-reel French picture, is a slice of life, artistically portrayed and presented, and delightfully different from the run-of-mine picture.

"Broken Hearts of B'way"—S. R. Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Here is a photodrama that goes to the very heart of artistic life in New York. While its theme is love, there are other strains of adventure running all through its thrilling scenes.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * a melodramatic but interesting photoplay * * * It is as if all of the truth and fiction written about the metropolis and its white lights had been crowded into a single story.

STAR—* * * skillful presentation makes it entertaining, if not absorbing. It is not a great picture, but it will prove a popular one.

TIMES—If one will let several inconsistencies pass without notice, this screen offering proves a sweet story, with adequate love interest, * * *

"By Divine Right"—F. B. O. Keith's 105th St., Cleveland

NEWS—They really couldn't pack much more agony into one picture. * * * if you like agony in every shape and form on the screen, by all means look at "By Divine Right."

PLAIN DEALER—* * * a combination of half a dozen old time melodramas of "The Faith Healer" and the "Servant in the House" type. * * * The picture might have been made plausible and convincing by better acting. No one in this film acts like a sane-minded human being or talks like one in the titles.

"Conductor 1492"—Warners' Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—Rarely have we seen a more amusing comedy. The most unexpected comic touches in the production, most of them due to the irresponsible star, kept yesterday's capacity in gales of laughter.

JOURNAL—The picture is sheer, delicious foolery. Plot and the other characters wait while Johnny stages his stunts. * * * The action is swift and there is not a dull moment. * * *

TIMES-UNION—It was very evident that yesterday's audience found no lack in the play and thoroughly enjoyed its comedy, for laughs were frequent and prolonged.

"Courtship of Miles Standish" Merrill, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—On the whole, we wouldn't say that "The Courtship of Miles Standish" should be done in bronze * * * But it is an ambitious portrayal of life among the Pilgrims. * * *

NEWS—Longfellow's beautiful poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," has been artistically reproduced and folks recognizing its worth are packing the Merrill.

"A Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Metropolitan, Washington

POST—Constance Talmadge has actually taken this romance of old England and injected comedy into it—a difficult feat, and one that perhaps nobody but Constance could have achieved. * * *

STAR—* * * Miss Talmadge adds to the individuality of her characterization of the rebellious "Mistress Barbara Winslow" by deft touches of that delightful humor for which she is noted.

TIMES—* * * another costume picture—of which there has been an abundant redundancy this season. But to give the little "devil" her due, it can be classed at least as a different sort of costume picture. * * * "The Dangerous Maid" is that rara avis, a comedy-drama.

"The Drivin' Fool"—Hodkinson Fenway, Boston

GLOBE—A thrilling automobile race with time across the continent from Los Angeles to New York is the feature. * * * The picture is particularly amusing. * * *

HERALD—The story makes no pretence at being more than thoughtless stuff, lightly characterizing, direct in its telling. Each player fills the weathered niche * * * The pace is never tedious, nor is the story dull, and the spectator finds himself unwilling victim to the demon of speed.

TELEGRAM—A comedy which makes you laugh outright is surely a comedy which is all right, and by all right, we mean that it leaves nothing to be desired. Just such a comedy is "The Drivin' Fool." * * *

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Garrick, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—"The Eternal City" is an exceptionally massive screen opus and contains many dramatic scenes and melodramatic incidents. There is excitement and thrills * * *

"The Eternal Three"—Gold-Cosmo. Walnut, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—* * * it is filled with suspense. * * * Marshall Neilan produced the picture, which shows the skill of his directorial hands.

POST—Of Marshall Neilan we expected more than we received in "The Eternal Three," which, as the name implies, is an "eternal triangle" story.

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * picture that comes close to rivaling the stage success of "Merton of the Movies" and the screen success of "Hollywood."

JOURNAL—If the acting of one character can save an otherwise mediocre picture and make it a success, then "The Extra Girl," at the Piccadilly this week may be classed as such.

HERALD—Miss Normand has neither the face nor the personality to be tragic and she has not depth of stage character enough to be among the suitable comedians. * * * The picture will suffice for an hour's pastime if one is hard put for entertainment.

TIMES-UNION—An excellent supporting cast and a number of interesting and more or less amusing scenes are the chief attractions of "The Extra Girl."

"Flowing Gold"—1st Nat'l The Chicago, Chicago

HERALD AND EXAMINER—There is character as well as adventure in "Flowing Gold;" the people are more than puppets for a plot.

Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending March 15)

BULLETIN—With all of the excitement of the Texas oil fever in the early days, "Flowing Gold" * * * has a tendency to stir the blood at many points in the unfolding of the tale. * * *

CALL—As a novel, "Flowing Gold" will prove one of the most popular of the Rex Beach best sellers, and as a movie it should prove the most acceptable of the Richard Walton Tully productions to date.

There is a thrill, which keeps the viewer keyed up to a high point of excitement, in every hundred feet. * * *

CHRONICLE—Richard Walton Tully just missed making a great picture. * * * It has all the ingredients of a big story but it has a slow start and a cheaply melodramatic finish with flaming oil wells, a cloudburst and flood, so dragged in they are almost laughable.

DAILY NEWS—A most entertaining film this, well cast and as well directed.

EXAMINER—"Flowing Gold" has everything that made "The Spoilers" a great cinema success—heart interest, melodrama, a fight which is a real he-man affair; a pretty love story and an abundance of comedy, and, in addition, it has a cast of "type actors" that is almost flawless.

State, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 15)

EXAMINER—There are suspense, surprise, comedy, thrills—and they are well handled and subtly evoked—and there is a love story which is true to life, even though it doesn't dominate the entire action of the drama.

EXPRESS—* * * Abounds in what the industry calls "sure-fire stuff." * * * It is these characterizations, for the most part excellently done, and the two great thrills of the picture that remain in the mind after one passes through the exit.

RECORD—The picture has a wonderful punch at the finish. Everyone has seen fire scenes, and everyone has seen flood pictures, but it remained for Richard Walton Tully to put them both in the same scene.

TIMES—* * * A really fine old-fashioned movie; indeed a sort of supermovie. * * * "Flowing Gold" is wild and rambling and occasionally terrible. But it will register a good entertainment.

"Fools' Highway"—Universal Hippodrome, Cleveland

NEWS—There is something about the picture that holds you and instinctively you like it.

PLAIN DEALER—* * * the most interesting picture shown at the Hippodrome this season. * * * We recommend this picture without any qualifications as an unusually entertaining and accurate picturization of the life and atmosphere of the old time Bowery. * * * Mary Philbin gives an excellent, realistic performance as Mamie Rose.

"The Galloping Fish"—1st Nat'l Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—If you like the most obvious sort of comedy with no apparent point, then you will get a lot of laughs out of this feature.

POST—"The Galloping Fish," * * * is our idea of what a fun film should be.

"Happiness"—Metro Aldine, Pittsburgh

PRESS—* * * Miss Taylor saves this film through her presence, though not always her acting, from a most dismal failure. * * * The story, * * * is entirely dependent upon the actress. Without her it would mean nothing, with her it is an amusing feature, well worth the seeing.

"Hoodman Blind"—F. Modern, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—All the oldest of the land is trotted out before the camera and bewildered gaze * * * and, oddly, the picture, * * * is moderately good entertainment.

"Icebound"—F. P. L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 15)

RECORD—"Icebound" is so simple and has been pictured so simply and that your movie fan is going to have suspicion he has been seeing something new. It is nothing of the sort, of course.

HICK STUFF

Wally Beery is one of the bold, bad men of fillums. Wally had not been in New York for over four years so he decided to come back and take a looksee at things. So he did. And left his realty deals, his playing contracts and other worldly affairs in Hollywood and journeyed to the Big Town. So now you can find him almost any day wandering around Broadway and looking at the big buildings. Just like a hick.

ONLY TOO SELDOM

Once in a while—in a very great while—a picture slides in, without fuss and noise and proves worth while. This happened during the week. When John Flinn landed the crew to look at "Which Shall it Be?" A little picture, but with a theme as big as the great open spaces. Hodkinson will try it out here and upon how the public views it will decide on possible distribution.

It is full of homely sentiment; with a flock of kiddies that tear at your heart strings and get you. Not exactly big enough for important first runs unless cut to a semi-feature. But a delight and joy otherwise.

And while we're talking about pictures. Saw "Floodgates," the Russell production a day or so ago. Story might have been shaped better and cut to much better advantage, but there is a pretty good kick in it towards the close which will please audiences of a certain type. Pretty good stuff for the state rights market.

BROADWAY PRICES

Not the intake. But otherwise. They do say along Broadway that Moe Mark is breathing hard. That the Pathe crowd want so much for Harold Lloyd's latest—"Girl Shy"—that Moe is perspiring hard. And also want a guarantee for three weeks—if the business justifies, of course.

THE BRILLIANT PRESS AGENT

This comes from the Goldwyn publicity office:

"It". The indefinable something. What is it? You must have it to be a successful lover. It is the force which attracts women to men and men to women. It is the inexplicable quality which makes Valentinos, Lew Codys, Gloria Swansons, and Peggy Hopkins Joyces.

Ah! Wonderful. But what is "it" all about?

DEADLY SHAME

Incidentally talking of press agents. The worst of all things has happened. A press agent has become an actor. Who? Lou Marangella. Formerly with Warner's.

ANOTHER OPEN LETTER

From Arthur Smallwood. This time he cracks at combinations which seek to establish monopolies, in which he points out that "any producer-distributor who handles his selling under a block booking plan is guilty of unfair competition" and suggests that those who agree with him write to the Federal Trade Commission. Then he supplies a blank which the exhibitor is to fill out and which reads:

Federal Trade Commission,
Washington, D. C.

Attention Mr. W. H. Fuller, Chief Counsel.

Gentlemen:—

I believe that the following practices of producer-distributor in the motion picture industry constitute unfair competition and conspiracy in restraint of trade.

- 1st. Producer-distributor ownership of theaters.
- 2nd. Block booking.
- 3rd. The system of advance deposits.
- 4th. The sale of unmade or "paper pictures".

I wish to register my protest against these practices in the motion picture industry and ask that your commission render the relief that is necessary in the general prosperity of the industry.

Yours truly,

FAME

Kine of London, commenting on a report that Sam Gold is to write for the London Sunday Express says: "That was Goldwyn's ambition, literary fame."

BEING BROADMINDED

Nathan Burkan attended the banquet of The Friendly of St. Patrick last Monday night. Yep. True.

RATTLING THE SKELETON

The old New York Herald developed a lot of men for business. About seven years ago at one row of desks were Tom Geraghty, now producing on his own at the Fairbanks Picture Studio; John Flinn, Vice-President of Hodkinson; William Gill, Eastern Sales Manager for the Rothacker Laboratory; Leonard Mitchell, in charge of film renting for the U. S. Ship Board; Luther Reed, scenario writer for Cosmopolitan; Harry Thew, scenario writer; C. Gardner Sullivan, scenario editor; F. Mordaunt Hall, motion picture critic for the New York Times; Bill Murphy, Fox Film publicity department; Charles U. Famous Players; George Bonte, Warner Brothers. In the office, but as a cartoonist of no mean ability, was Larry Semor screen comedian.

It was seven years ago that all the above gang worked together at the Herald, and the first to leave was Flinn who went into the publicity department of Famous.

SOCIAL NOTES

Bill Hart tried to crash in the Palais Royale a few nights with Scoop Conlon. But they wore no evening duds and looked as if they were in for tough sailing until a Californian rived and got them in. Then Bill had a royal time; even dined with Florence Walton.

A LITTLE LATE

Still, better than never. So Bob Kane is swelling up because he has been awarded the Belgian Croix de Guerre. It really came to him in January 1919, but he only heard of it from the Department last week.

"The Man From Brodney's"—Vita. Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 15)

EXPRESS—As a film it has been given careful direction, an exceptionally good cast and colorful backgrounds, all of which give a certain degree of authenticity to a highly improbable romance.

RECORD—Vitagraph has made the familiar novel into an exciting romance punctuated with realistic duels and climaxes. * * *

"The Marriage Circle"—Warners' B'way Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * skates on thin ice, but in so doing it kindles real sparks of subtle humor, humor which in places becomes broad and highly mirthful. It is a real contribution to the screen and should serve as a pattern for others to follow.

Stanley, Philadelphia

NORTH AMERICAN—The most polished and finished comedy of the entire year is the main screen feature at the Stanley. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (Morning)—The recipe is really very simple. * * * It's Simon-pure farce. Miss Florence Vidor is good.

PUBLIC LEDGER (Evening)—Ditto.

SENTINEL—The picture is not the simple thing one would imagine from the poem. On the contrary, it is filled with fighting, excitement, thrills, elaborate sets—everything that the moving picture fan of today requires.

Grand Central-West End Lyric-Capitol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * has created a picture that surpasses any he made on the other side, in point of mechanical perfection. Artistically, the picture is different from his others.

POST-DISPATCH—Ernest Lubitsch has done a remarkable piece of work in the construction and direction of "The Marriage Circle." * * *

STAR—This German director has some sound ideas * * * the result is fully as engrossing as a study of movie technique as it is interesting as a drama of marital relations.

TIMES—Go see "The Marriage Circle." It is one of the best comedies in years, a comedy of situations, clever, sophisticated, directed by a master and played by an excellent cast.

"North of Hudson Bay"—Fox Rialto, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * a brisk melodrama, well directed and beautifully photographed.

"Not A Drum Was Heard"—Metro Monroe, Chicago

JOURNAL—Is a good title and a good picture, though they seem to belong to each other like a right-hand glove and a left foot. Mr. Williams no doubt knew what he was aiming at, but 5,000 feet of celluloid has lost the target somewhere.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l State, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—"Painted People" gives Colleen Moore a chance to exhibit her piquantly subtle mannerisms. * * * A brilliant cast is in support of Miss Moore.

"The Phantom Horseman"—Univ. Isis, Indianapolis

NEWS—The story is cut and dried, and would be dull were it not for Hoxie's scenes and his riding. What thrills there are come during those moments.

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P.-L. Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending March 15)

BULLETIN—Aside from the story there are some remarkable scenes at sea in this picture. One shows a storm on the ocean in which the great waves seem every moment to almost engulf the camera.

CALL—"Pied Piper Malone" is a comedy drama possessing a wealth of human interest.

CHRONICLE—The Meighan picture fits Tommy splendidly, for there is little or no acting to do. He has to look handsome and manly, and Tom can always be depended on in these particulars. * * *

DAILY NEWS—It is weak drama, indifferently told. The love element, with Lois Wilson, acting under careless direction, is not well dovetailed.

EXAMINER—"Pied Piper Malone," though lacking the customary thrills of former Thomas Meighan pictures, is as genial a photoplay as this popular star has ever done.

"Poisoned Paradise"—Preferred Garden, Milwaukee

DAILY WISCONSIN NEWS—Although "Poisoned Paradise" isn't to be shouted from roof-tops, it's a rather interesting picture dealing with the tragedies underlying the artificial gayety in the kingdom of chance, Monte Carlo.

JOURNAL—* * * such an utter jumble of ideas that the spectator never quite catches up to learn what it's all about. It is, * * * a "forbidden story." It should be.

SENTINEL—* * * it is more comedy drama than melodrama. The picture's chief fault is its length, minor incidents having been dragged out far too long. There is a good cast, however, of seasoned players, most interesting among them being Clara Bow. * * *

"Reno"—Gold.-Cosmop. Smith's Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * it is senseless, in a good deal of time, and now and then right silly.

"Scaramouche"—Metro Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—like a series of exquisite photographs fittingly logical in arrangement * * * artistic stimulation in viewing "Scaramouche" such as you will rarely enjoy.

JOURNAL—All in all, it is a picture worth seeing, and one which holds attention from start to finish.

HERALD—* * * it is most enjoyable entertainment and carries with it a very romance as well as a goodly round of that are not introduced in the usual manner.

TIMES-UNION—"Scaramouche" primarily a play of the French Revolution but a play of human emotions and against the background of the period as such it is eminently successful.

LABORATORY COMBINATION

TO THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY:

It is my pleasure to announce an important combination, which has existed for some time, viz., the combination of a finely equipped plant and exceptional service to our customers, with greatest technical knowledge which has been effected by CLAREMONT LABORATORIES, Inc.

It is this combination which has enabled us to produce UNEXCELLED QUALITY, as demonstrated in the releases we have printed, including Mary Pickford in "Lord Fauntleroy," "Tess of the Storm Country" and "Rosita," and Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," Elliot Dexter in "By Divine Right," the Whitman Bennett production, "The Leavenworth Case," as well as scores of other big productions.

We have not sacrificed quality for cheapness; we do not evade tinting and toning, and we do not use developing machines. The price of raw stock is now so low, and the standard price for printing so cheap that producers should not encourage a cheaper product at the sacrifice of quality.

While it costs more to handle every foot of film individually and not by machine, we only charge the standard price for printing. Our profits may be less, but our satisfaction is the fact that we are recognized as AMERICA'S PREMIER LABORATORY.

We are now making prints on Douglas Fairbanks' latest achievement, acclaimed as the world's greatest motion picture in cost and magnificence, and requiring the utmost in photographic science to do justice to it, namely,

"THE THIEF OF BAGDAD"

Yours truly,

WALTER E. GREENE.

Johnny Hines in "Conductor 1492"

Warner Bros.

Whole.....GOOD COMEDY ENTERTAINMENT WITH FINE SHARE OF LAUGHS THAT SHOULD MAKE IT A FIRST RATE DRAWING CARD. A LOT A BIT FEEBLE BUT CONTINUOUS COMEDY BUSINESS COVERS IT.

As both author and star of latest picture, Johnny Hines is busy young man but his efforts are not in vain.

Dan Mason, remembered as conductor in the "Toonerville Colley" series, plays the Irish father of Hines in a truly characteristic fashion. Doris May is the girl in the case and Robert Cain the villain.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama. "Conductor 1492" is chiefly comedy with incidental dramatic bits such as the sequence in which the heroine's young brother is saved from death by hero and the meller max consisting of a fire and spectacular rescue. Otherwise the picture is composed of comedy incident with the actual plot, rather a peak of itself, nicely camouflaged. The picture is a laugh from start to finish—from the time Johnny leaves his home in Ireland until he wins a fortune and the girl he loves. It doesn't matter that some of the comedy is derived through de-stepping the main story. It's all good and usually quite original. One bit in which Hines looks for his collar button by taking off his shoes and walking around until he trips on it, is a particularly good laugh. The titles bring many laughs also. The plot has to do with the efforts of certain directors in the transit corporation to secure 50 shares of stock that will give them control and oust the heroine's father from the company. How hero Johnny produces the missing shares, owned by his Dad who had them since he was a conductor, brings the story to a happy conclusion.

Box Office Angle....Should be good box office number. If your folks enjoy laughing you can count on "Conductor 1492" pleasing them. You can make plenty of promises for the comedy it contains.

Exploitation.....It shouldn't be too extravagant to even hire a trolley for exploiting this one. If you can't do this, try and rig up an old horse-car and have it going about the streets prominently displaying a sign reading: "This car is in charge of 'Conductor 1492.' Let me give you a transfer to the blank theater." If you care to play up the Irish wit contained in it, it would be easy to decorate your lobby and get over the atmosphere. Use a trailer of any one of the comedy stunts.

Direction...Charles Hines and Frank Griffin; good.

Author..... Johnny Hines
 Scenario..... Johnny Hines
 Cameraman..... Charles Gilson
 Photography..... All right
 Sale..... Ireland-Ohio
 Length..... 6,500 feet.

"The Arizona Express"

Fox

As a Whole.....WILD, WILD MELLER THAT OFFERS GREAT EXCITEMENT FOR THRILL LOVERS BUT SO RIDICULOUSLY IMPROBABLE THAT IT MAY PROVE AMUSING.

Cast... David Butler, Pauline Starke, Harold Goodwin, Evelyn Brent, Francis MacDonald the principals in a hard working and wonderfully enduring cast. All suitable and capable.

Type of Story.....Billed as "honest melodrama." It's melodrama all right but far from honest in the sense of being truthful. Many of its situations never could be true. Lincoln Carter is at his "wildest" in "The Arizona Express," even surpasses his "The Fast Mail," a 1922 Fox production. No one can complain of lack of action or suspense. They do take a little too long to get their plot planted, but once they do, oh boy, they go to it with a vengeance. Hero's due for the gallows. The girl he loves claims he was the one who killed his uncle. The audience knows all the time that her crook friend did it. Hero's sister gets a tip that the girl has the evidence necessary to free her brother. Then things begin to happen. First of all there's a spectacular jail break followed by a long, thrilling episode in which the sister, after securing the evidence, tries to reach the Governor before the execution. There are some fine stunts in this for the thrill chasers even though they be the height of improbability. The chase includes many spectacular jumps from the moving train to a speeding auto, a runaway train rolling down an embankment, an automobile going over a cliff, and all the action typical of a Lincoln J. Carter meller.

Box Office Angle....Depends entirely on whether or not your patrons still favor this old fashioned melodrama. Where they do you should clean up with "The Arizona Express."

Exploitation....Trailers on this one can be used to great advantage. Just a few glimpses of the thrills contained in it will be sufficient to bring your patrons back if they are at all interested in a picture of this kind. Talk about the spectacular jail break, the runaway train, the auto wreck. Tell them about the mad race of the heroine to reach the Governor with evidence that will save her brother's life. Use the title in connection with stunts. Post your local station with the title and catchlines and have a youngster going about in a small express wagon bearing the sign: "This is not 'The Arizona Express.' You can see that at the blank theater."

Direction... Thomas Buckingham; a bit slow starting but makes up for lost time.

"Big Moments From Little Pictures"
 Roach-Pathe

Another Rogers' Winner

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
 Your folks know by this time that Will Rogers generally affords them plenty of fun as well as a novel form of comedy. This one starts with Will coming out presumably before a Follies audience and telling them that he has brought back from Hollywood some "big moments" from well known films for their enjoyment. Accordingly, a screen is dropped and scenes from "Blood and Sand," "Robin Hood" and finally the old "Keystone Cops" are shown with Rogers, of course, in the leading roles. Of course, the action is all burlesqued and many laughs afforded. Get this one. They'll surely enjoy it.

"Barnum Junior"—Juvenile—Educational

Enjoyable Kid Comedy

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
 With a cast headed by Johnnie Fox, Jr., and including several amusing and natural acting youngsters, this Juvenile comedy should have no difficulty in pleasing almost any audience, particularly where there are kiddies. The boys are all Scouts and Johnnie's father objects strongly to his son's taking part in their activities. The boys hold a charity circus—which incidentally is very amusing and everything is going fine until all the dog-owners in town arrive after searching the town for their pets. Johnnie does very good work all the way through. Arvid Gillstrom is responsible for the direction.

"Hayseed"—Chadwick-Selznick

Typical Slapstick

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
 Jimmy Aubrey is the star of this two reel comedy, which has its locale on a farm. It is typical slambang stuff with the laughs being derived from the series of accidents happening to Aubrey who is a farm hand, and the owner of the farm, who suffers continually because of Aubrey's mishaps. One stunt that is used time after time, with variations, is that of having the two men at opposite ends of a rope held taut, and having one or the other of them suddenly let go with the result that the other is thrown violently down. Of course, he always falls in a wet, muddy or otherwise sloppy place. Good enough of its type.

Newspaper Opinions

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L. Park-Mall, Cleveland

NEWS—It's a Bill Hart picture, but it doesn't measure up to the standard of those he made before he went on a two year's leave of absence from the screen. Hart isn't the six-gun man of old in "Singer Jim McKee."

PLAIN DEALER—"Singer Jim" is a long way from being wholly bad, but there is a strain of too long suffering in it, * * * considerably better than "Wild Bill Hickok," but only because I feel Bill isn't giving the best he has, I am lighting this fire under the frying pan—in the hopes he will not jump into the fire in his next effort.

PRESS—* * * except for such exciting moments of old-fashioned movie melodrama as when Hart holds up a stage coach, dives from the top of a cliff into a river, dives head-first thru a glass door and chokes the villain, the movie, to our way of thinking, is rather dull stuff.

"A Society Scandal" State, Boston

ADVERTISER—Somewhat transformed to suit the fancied tastes of the photoplay public, and the well known tastes of the silly censors, the story in its movie clothes still moves the normal spectator to laughter.

TRANSCRIPT—* * * the slipshod manner which Mr. Dawn for the moment affects, can only result in a tasteless and pointless movie—just such a movie as "A Society Scandal" proves to be.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Strand, Omaha

BEE—And those love scenes with Joseph Schildkraut! * * * the action starts and events happen with the speed of a wild, wild melodrama.

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L. McVickers, Chicago

AMERICAN—Here you find a story which is quite as likely to "grip" you as the accepted box office melange, but which has a verity, dignity and spiritual depth which entitle it to a better than average rating.

DAILY NEWS—* * * this is the first piece of Galsworthy fiction which has been permitted to enter the movies. A respectable picture bordering on the wicked and fateful.

JOURNAL—* * * the cinematic result of decanting the rich wine of one of John Galsworthy's stories, "The First and the Last."

Karnton, Philadelphia

NORTH AMERICAN—* * * is far out of the beaten track, and contains a great deal of real spiritual beauty.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The acting is comparable to the story. Tully Marshall does a fine bit of acting as the scrub man who gives his life so that others may live on in happiness

California, 'Frisco

(Week ending March 15)

BULLETIN—* * * For a long time, the star has been surrounded with an excellent cast, which goes far to make the picture a finished product.

CALL—The Galsworthy tale has made excellent screen material and under the unusually skillful treatment of Director Joseph Henabery has been turned into a picture play, which for sheer gripping intensity and interest holding dramatic suspense it would be difficult to improve upon.

CHRONICLE—There is a fascinating picture in "The Stranger." * * * Miss Compson looks uncommonly pretty as the girl and Richard Dix plays the bad boy convincingly.

DAILY NEWS—A highly dramatic photoplay is "The Stranger." * * * Her (Betty Compson's) performance is miles ahead of her last appearance in a picture we saw, and she does some fine things in this one.

EXAMINER—It is one of those plays, altogether too numerous, that encourage the rather popular notion that circumstantial evidence is in the habit of hanging innocent men and that therefore it is something that ought to be abolished. It should be abolished from the screen. * * *

"Thundergate"—1st Nat'l Victoria, Philadelphia

NORTH AMERICAN—American engineers, harems, confused identities, disguises, oriental royalty and American democracy are all a part of the intricate and thrilling plot of this mystery story, which carries many a thrill * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"Thundergate" * * * affords a treat for those patrons who like action, the red-blooded kind, and a plot in which there is something doing every minute.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ditto.

"Thy Name is Woman"—Metro Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * the story is a complicated mixture of desperate deeds and impassioned love-making, a series of incidents following one another quickly. The general impression left is good entertainment, considerable excitement and some artistry. * * *

Columbia, Washington

STAR—* * * Barbara La Marr and Ramon Novarro, a rare combination. * * * The acting is excellent, but some of the situations are fraught with the element of melodrama that does not come up to the "better art" that the movies are striving for.

TIMES—* * * another Fred Niblo triumph which almost begs description. * * * Everybody enjoyed it, the men, too, for all their blase front * * *

"Under The Red Robe"—Gold.-Cos. Arcadia, Philadelphia

NORTH AMERICAN—There is already a large list of these costume plays of the middle ages, * * * "Under the Red Robe" while done on a more elaborate scale than some of the others and acted by a cast of very well-known names, is little different from the rest.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Robert B. Mantell in his incomparable role of Richelieu takes the part of His Eminence in "Under the Red Robe" and has an opportunity to show what a fine screen actor he is.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ditto.

"The Uninvited Guest"—Metro Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * the spectators held their breath at the thrilling rescues and realistic undersea scenes that make this production decidedly unusual. A gripping love story. * * *

POST-DISPATCH—* * * natural color sections of the picture will be its most interesting features. * * * the undersea views have a charm all their own.

STAR—Color photography and several gripping episodes, one of which is the overworked fight with a cuttle fish, make "The Uninvited Guest," at the Delmonte, a good entertainment * * *

TIMES—A romantic drama of the sea, with scenes in natural colors, is "The Uninvited Guest," * * * featuring Jean Tolly, a new "find" in the film world.

"When A Man's A Man"—1st Nat'l Strand, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—Harold Bell Wright's most recent best seller has been brought to the screen with a fidelity that is rather a credit to Director Eddie Cline.

SENTINEL—* * * it is a good picture of the red blooded type of story laid in the "great open spaces." * * *

"Women Who Give"—Metro Palace, Washington,

STAR—* * * The picture is thrilling, romantic and clean entertainment.

TIMES—* * * a tale of the men who go "down to the sea in ships" and of the women who wait on shore. * * * The author has taken the big events in the lives of the men of the sea and by merely placing them in sequence has brought forth a stirring story.

"The Scarlet Lily"—1st Nat'l Regent, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The power of the press * * * is vividly portrayed in "The Scarlet Lily." * * * A well-balanced cast supports Miss MacDonald.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ditto.

"Secrets of Paris"—Burr-S. R. Moon, Omaha

BEE—As a study of action of life among the people who make up the world of apaches, "Secrets of Paris" is more probable and certainly more interesting than many a previous underworld story.

NEWS—Longfellow's beautiful poem, "The Brenon gave Pola free reign to portray the Black Bird as she saw fit, and we'll say Brenon showed much wisdom.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L. Alhambra, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—Pola is a wildcat and—you've got to hand it to her;—quite the wildest little tigress we have seen in American films, returning again to the type of acting that first made her famous in Passion.

SENTINEL—* * * the high spirited star is more like the Pola Negri of "Passion" than she has been since joining the Paramount forces.

"The Shadow of the East"—Fox Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—The plot is not so good as that of "The Sheik," * * * but it will do if one is not too captious. * * * the scenery is plentiful and lovely and the acting is good. * * * it is pretty conventional, and not too stirring.

Moving right along. Gradually getting close to the top. Important drawing cards. Corinne Griffith. It has taken just four pictures in a row. To be established dangerously close to the top. As one of the top attractions in pictures. Now she's moving like a house on wheels. Mighty smart of First National to have her on the list. Funny things happen in this business. Very funny. Several years ago talking with the then management of First National, the suggestion was made to take Corinne Griffith over. Those in control couldn't see her without glasses. Yelped about a lot of things. Time moved along. It has a new way of doing that. And today Corinne is paying her about ten times what she could have been for then.

Corinne Griffith presents a personality that is rich to the screen. Given the right material she promises to go far. She has a tremendous physical appeal, wears clothes splendidly—direct appeal to women and what lure she possesses for men? What more do you want?

An Author's Woe

Some months ago Sid Kent was tugging with Lasky and the production staff of Famous as to how a play should be written around a title. They murred. (That's a nice word for you.) If they hadn't liked him so much they would have told him he was cock-eyed. But he is a director of the corporation. So they didn't. It they angered him enough that he went home and started to build a story around a title he believed in. The current issue of The Saturday Evening Post carries his story, "Muddled." And Arthur Stringer appears as the author. The play is to work with Gloria Swanson in the lead. Studio gossip says it looks immense. But this is aside from the point. Kent proved his contention. He'd may back it up with another which he has in mind for Meighan. When the Post arrived Kent laid out all work and read his own story print. And got a kick out of it.

Oh, yes; Famous paid him for the screen rights. And what do you think he did with the check? Divided it up among his boys—managers, salesmen, etc.

What of the Picture Season of 1923-24 Now On Its Last Lap—What Lesson Will the Industry Learn—Who Has Profited Most—And Has It An Aftermath?

In spite of the claims made by exhibitors generally that they have had to pay unusual prices for product, with rare exception, this has been an "exhibitors year." The Gods have been good to the exhibitor. His prayer for good pictures has been answered, and his cry for audiences to come and see has been answered—and well. He is satisfied and reckless in his prosperity—he has bought and will continue to buy—his business is good—new pictures look good—no speck on the horizon—everything is rosy—film salesmen are good fellows—he is giving everybody a chance—it is not a business, it is a pleasure.

—Everything is great, and it is for the moment. History will likely record the season of 1923-24 for the exhibitor as a big outstanding prosperous year. It does not follow that with the general prosperity enjoyed by exhibitors it will reflect itself with the distributor, but it does follow that when depression generally comes the exhibitors way it reflects itself very materially with the distributor.

Seven months of this season have gone by. The distributor has written volumes of business on paper. "It has been a pleasure for the exhibitor to give it to him," and he has given him plenty; and before the season wanes, he will get plenty more. But of what good is it? Who is going to play it? Where are the play dates coming from before the season ends?

Generally, distributors have written a great volume of business. Add to this their expectations before the season ends, and it will reach a record breaking figure. But in the seven months gone by, a research shows that less than thirty-three percent of this record breaking business has been played and paid for, leaving sixty-seven percent or more yet to be played largely in the next five months, with the summer coming to help along this impossible situation.

The reservoir of unplayed business in this industry on August 15th next should be sufficient to engulf or make the going hard for many. Numbers of distributors will realize in the com-

In New York it is expected that definite action of some sort will take place shortly. As noted, a move is under way to abolish the censorship commission and strengthen the penal code.

Exhibitors Beat Themselves
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Charlestown, S. C.—The recent rejection by the House of the measure which would eliminate the State admission tax of ten per cent is blamed on the exhibitors themselves because at the time they were fighting for the repeal of the tax, theaters at Columbia and other cities voluntarily raised their admission prices, thereby "contradicting their own arguments," as W. G. Query, head of the State Tax Commission put it.

ing May to August the "fool's gold" value of many of their contracts, when in their frantic endeavor they try to play them up.

When the next season's selling rolls around, the distributor will find that the exhibitor has plenty of this season's product still unplayed, and the exhibitor's zest for new product will not be as nearly exciting as the distributor will imagine. He will be in no hurry to contract for next season, yet the distributor will be very anxious to get himself set with his new product; and more than ever before, he will find himself competing with his own unplayed pictures of the season just waning.

Most assuredly all this will have a tendency to lower rentals without regard for cost or values, and if this reflects true conditions, cheaper negatives must be the rule, and with cheaper negatives comes mediocre pictures. The aftermath is a slide backward and not a step forward.

This is a survey—it offers no solution, but does prove that the overproduction in the industry not heretofore affecting good pictures has this season affected the bulk of the product created because in the light of modern picture making, a greater number of pictures were good; that this overproduction will continue is an obvious thing, so long as Eastman sells raw stock, Kleig sells la Bell and Howell sells came Spaulding sells megaphones, Manhattan sells sport shirts. In meanwhile, "the exhibitor must served—after me the deluge."

SECRETS

By DANNY

Norma's latest. Shown last night. But not a secret so far. This goes: the best picture Norma has made in years. Gone the memory of the last, "The Song of Love." Forgotten the splendor of sets and "Ashes of Vengeance." Here is a story; a magnificent story which gives her back her place in the sun.

"Secrets" is a woman's picture; the story of a great love, based on the play of the same name. But the stage play was seen by comparative thousands the picture will be seen by millions. And how can we will adore it, and rave over it and gush about Norma? And go back home and ask their wives, or Bill's, or whatever his name is, to unfold the story of his life; it's a whale of a picture for women; but how tough it may be for some men!

A great picture at the box office. Fine sets, fine acting, fine story; but greater than all; a story that holds throughout. And Norma is a positive delight; even as the old woman because she is a charming, radiant actress, who sacrifices her appearance for the sake of the story.

WILLIAMS IDEA

Williams thinks a thing or two about distribution costs. Doesn't he think the big star should pay the ratio for his release as the average producer. Dead right. Just every principle of business. Has been discussed on many occasions. And it will be until something is done to get away from this archaic idea. Williams declared a druggist only sells 11 cents a dozen on Palmolive which retails at 10 cents a cake, makes 33 cents a dozen on non-tinted soap selling at the same price. And rightly thinks that where a producer spends a lot advertising a star or picture he should get a deal that a star or picture is not advertised.

Williams is going to take a lot more talk and change this ancient idea. A lot. Let's have it. And let's change

Some Opinions

On the Aronson Article—Rowland Speaks For Is' Nat'l and Shallenberger for Arrow

While admitting that a danger to the industry exists to a certain extent because of the large amount of unplayed business, as pointed out by Alexander S. Aronson in yesterday's issue, Richard A. Rowland declared yesterday that such a condition did not affect First National.

"While this may be Aronson's experience," said Rowland, "I am happy to say that our bookings are very well played up, and we do not anticipate any great amount of unplayed bookings at the conclusion of the season."

"I have no doubt that Mr. Aronson may be correct in his statement to some extent. I think one of the difficulties in getting play dates from the exhibitors is for two reasons, namely: either because in some cases where pictures have been oversold to them, or where in their opinion the picture is undesirable, probably due to lack of quality. Another reason that may allow for unplayed pictures is that the exhibitor has contracts for more pictures than he can use in anticipation

Offer To Dempsey

Universal Wires Pugilist's Manager—Kearns Leaving for Coast to Discuss It

Universal has made an offer to Jack Dempsey, which, according to a statement, would net the champion $1,000,000. Carl Laemmle has been in telegraphic communication with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager.

Laemmle has wired his home office that Kearns said he would leave for the Coast yesterday, to discuss the proposition. No mention has been made of the manner in which Universal would use Dempsey, but several stories are under consideration.

It has been reported for some weeks past that Dempsey was re-considering a return to pictures.

Lichtman Denies Shakeup

Al Lichtman denied yesterday that a shakeup was about to occur in the Universal sales force, as reported in a theatrical publication. His statement also dealt with his recent visit to the Coast, and, in connection with production at Universal City, he said three-quarters of the 36 Jewels planned for next season would be ready by August.

Hicks Coming from Australia

Madge Kennedy Plans Film

It is understood that the Kenma Corp., has started casting for a new Madge Kennedy picture to be made in the East.

Making Fall Plans

Harry M. and Abe Warner arrived in New York from the coast late Sunday, accompanied by Sol Brill and Motley H. Flint. A series of meetings concerning fall distribution will be entered upon at once by the Warners'.

Production is already under way on the first of the 1924-1925 series. Ernst Lubitsch is directing. "The Dark Swan" will be the second picture of the proposed twenty to go into work.

As soon as fall distributing plans are completed, Harry and Abe Warner will again go to the coast studio to devote all of their time to production.

Distribution Costs

Analyzed by J. D. Williams—Wants More Equitable Basis for Important Stars and Productions

Just back from the Coast, J. D. Williams yesterday declared that the greatest impediment to the progress of the industry today is the faulty method of distribution. Distribution is the one branch of the business, he said, which had not developed. The same idea was in vogue years ago, only upon another basis.

Declaring that producers are at present making fewer suitable subjects for important first-run theaters than will be necessary for the coming season, Williams blames inequitable distribution costs for the shortage of high grade subjects which he believes will make itself felt next October.

"When I predicted a shortage next fall to a prominent star the other day," said J. D., he replied: "This shortage will make it much better for my pictures." "This is entirely erroneous in principle, because if the average exhibitor does not get enough worth while pictures to assure good average business, he cannot pay for and sustain himself upon the occasional big picture when it does come along. The industry as a whole is so inter-dependent upon its component parts, that to maintain a healthy condition, all must function properly.

"Distribution is the greatest problem that we have to contend with today," continued Williams. "Unless the method of selling pictures is improved, it will result in more harm than any other single impediment the business has yet had to endure.

"The average distributor will tell you that pictures cost 30% to distribute, yet I know from personal experience that some subjects cost 15 and some 90 per cent between studio and theater. The gulf between what we know as 'independent' producers and distributors will continue to widen until the distributor can, with fairness, correctly assess the varying cost where it belongs in order that the producer may be charged with the costs on his own production.

"Distributors today are averse to handling a production which has cost $500,000 if they estimate it will not gross over $700,000. At the same time they welcome negatives costing $150,000 which will gross $300,000. It is my contention that there should be more money in properly made pictures of the first class than the latter, because both will play approximately the same number of theaters, both require the same number of calls by salesmen with consequent equality in selling costs. The physical distribution cost of six to eight reels of film is the same, whether they earn the larger or smaller gross. This comparison applies, of course, to productions which have been made without waste by competent producers.

"To realize that distribution has always been a vexing problem, we need only recall the time when all pictures sold for 10c per foot. Then a few farsighted men got out of the rut by making big features, which earned large profits, and we moved along until we bogged into the present 30% rut. It is economic that 4000 contracts on one picture grossing $300,000 should not entail approximately the same distribution costs as 4000 contracts on another grossing $600,000. The only difference is the interest on the money involved during the time it is invested. The percentage of selling cost on the $600,000 negative should be less, if there be a difference in rate at all.

"Right now we should be producing more $400,000 or $500,000 pictures, but experienced independent producers are disinclined to do so because of the fear that they will not earn sufficient to cover distribution costs, provided the gross fails to approximate a million. This is where distribution costs affect the exhibitor, because he needs high grade product.

"Until distributors can make money by selling a $400,000 picture for $500,000, we will not get enough big pictures. Prominent stars, well known books and plays lower the distributor's advertising costs, reduce sales resistance, and make money for the exhibitor, but there is no incentive for the independent producer to put them in pictures so long as he has to pay an unfair percentage of the overhead for distribution as does the cheaper negative with none of these expensive elements."

First-Runs Congested

All Have Overbought, Paul Mooney Found on Sales Trip—To Coast Later On

Paul C. Mooney, vice-president of Hodkinson, is back from a six weeks' sales trip through the country, with the interesting assertion that first-runs are congested with bookings that will fill their time until July.

Mooney said the condition is one brought about by over-buying of product and has resulted in making it difficult for new pictures to break in. He found business generally very good with the exception of the Dakotas and several of the Northwestern States; unemployment at a low ebb and an active theater building program under way.

Mooney expects to remain here for some weeks and will later make a trip to the Coast with John C. Flinn.

The estate of Maxwell Karger, who died May 5, 1922, has been appraised at $128,292. His estate included $63,849 received from the sale of Metro stock, $21,000 due from Richard A. Rowland, and $11,021 due from Joseph Engel. A half interest in "Some Baby" was appraised at $1,500. He owned 1500 shares of Loew's, Inc., worth $25,681. He had $1464 deposited in a bank in Hollywood. He gave $25,000 to three sisters, and left the rest of the estate to his widow, Anna Karger, of the Hollywood Hotel, and a son and daughter.

A default judgment for $926 has been filed in the Supreme Court by the Film Developing Corp., against Ben Strasser of North Carolina for services in printing and developing the films "Shot in the Night" and "Devil's Match." The suit was not defended.

Yesterday we put the day in at Gibraltar and as I said in my letter from Madeira, I didn't think I would go ashore there as I knew it was just an advertisement for the Prudential Insurance Co. But when I heard there was a motion picture house there, I knew it was my duty to American exhibitors to let them know what's what. So at nine in the morning Mrs. Dencker and I left our concrete couches and stumbled over trunks, etc., to the tender. By the way this tender was the first thing of that kind we've noted on board. Surely there's nothing tender about bed or board.

We landed OK at Gib, and I looked up the movie house which turned out to be the Venus Palace. It is located on a side street and how the people locate it I don't imagine to know. They had a special all star bill consisting of Chaplin's "The Tramp," a Harold Lloyd two reeler and as a fill in Eileen Percy in something which they didn't take the public into their confidence in. They charged from six pence to one shilling for seats. Later I found out they called the house the Venus Palace because the chairs didn't have any arms.

After visiting the theater someone suggested that we go for a tour of the big English Fort on top of Gibraltar and in doing so I came mighty near losing my life long companion, Mrs. Clem Dencker.

As you know, since I been successful Mrs. Dencker suddenly developed ankle trouble and I bought a horse and carriage so that she hasn't walked twenty feet in forty weeks. Well, they give us a guide at the Fort and we started off, up hill. Everything went well until Mrs. Dencker found there was nothing to ride in and after making a couple of tunnels and a few hills, the old gal sat down on a rock and begins to cry. Well, Danny, there's nothing I could do but let her go on crying until she's done which is what I did. So that all I saw of the Fort was one tunnel, two hills and my good wife sitting on a rock with tears streaming down her face. I guess the English captured Gibraltar because the people who had it got so tired walking up to the fort they couldn't fight when the time came. Anyhow I'm off the walking stuff as long as Mrs. Dencker is with me and it looks like she's on for the whole tour.

The fat guy I told you about before showed up on deck yesterday with a hand lithographed sweater on. If he gets off the boat at Cairo with it on, they're liable to begin digging holes in him—he looked just like an Egyptian Tomb.

My next letter will be from Algiers. I wish I'd gotten some letters of introduction from Valentino, I understand the place is just dirty with Sheiks.

Best Ever from Mrs. D. and Yours.

(CLEM.)

Arthur Smallwood Forms Producers Dist. Guild to Handle Quality Business—30 Offices

Arthur N. Smallwood yesterday announced the formation of the Producers Dist. Guild to release a limited number of quality pictures per year. Temporary offices have been established with Pyramid Pictures, Inc., at 150 W. 34th St.

The new organization is the outgrowth of the deluge of correspondence Smallwood says he has received as a result of his series of open letters dispatched at various times to independent producers, the American Railway Express Co., relative to physical distribution, national distributors, newspaper publishers and trade paper editors. Smallwood is out with another open letter in which he explains his plan. The highlights follow:

"Producers Distributing Guild shall function as a highly specialized motion picture merchandising agency, its operation to be

February Slumps

Taxes Total $6,738,627 As Compared With $7,576,991 In January—Increase Over 1923

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Figures just made public by the Internal Revenue Bureau show admission tax collections for February to have totaled $6,738,627, as compared with $5,877,392 in February of last year. Collections from the seating tax amounted to $21,771, against $19,835.

As compared with January collections, February shows a falling off of more than $800,000, the January total having been $7,576,991. This falling off, however, is attributed to the fact that January included the Christmas holiday attendance at the theaters.

Less Overbuying

According to Al Lichtman Who Finds Exhibitors Overcoming That Tendency

In commenting on the danger of unplayed business as pointed out by A. S. Aronson, Al Lichtman declared yesterday that exhibitors were gradually overcoming the tendency to buy more pictures than they could use. Lichtman said:

"There has always been a tendency on the part of the exhibitor to contract for more pictures than he can really play within a specified period, particularly actuated by his desire to protect himself against distributors, who have in many seasons past, failed to deliver the number of pictures provided by the contract, and particularly caused by the desire on the part of the distributor's representatives to secure contracts without proper thought as to the actual exhibition dates.

"However, the tendency for overbuying on the part of the exhibitor and that of taking contracts by the distributor without play dates is consistently decreasing and from my knowledge, no conscientious exhibitor buys product without the intention to play and no efficient distributor accepts contracts without play dates. To my mind, distributors who do are just foolish."

W. E. Atkinson of Metro stated that his company's business was practically normal and added:

"I have no data in reference to the percentage of played and unplayed business of the industry at large.

"As far as Metro is concerned we are within five per cent of our expectations, and the loss of this five per cent can easily be accounted for by the fact that we got quite a late start last Fall.

"Inasmuch as expectations are based on experience of what we have done in previous seasons it means that our business is practically normal."

Claim Withdrawal of Names

The M. P. T. O. A. charged yesterday that certain exhibitors named by W. A. True as members of the T. O. D. C. of New York advisory board had withdrawn when they learned that the organization referred to was not the original Delaware company. It was alleged that True had worded his telegram peculiarly and that the men in the field were misled. Those named by the M. P. T. O. were Fred C. Seegert, W. W. Watts, John A. Schwalm, E. W. Collins, C. A. Lick and Martin G. Smith.

True declared yesterday that the new organization had made more progress in two weeks than the old had in 14 months and that, he said, was sufficient in itself. He called Cohen's statement "bunk."

Changes In Pathe Force

New branch managers have taken charge of Pathe's Albany, Minneapolis and New Orleans offices. P. A. Schmuck, a Philadelphia salesman, will manage New Orleans, succeeding H. J. Bayley, who is shifted to Minneapolis, taking the place of Charles W. Stombaugh, transferred to Albany.

T. O. C. C. Holds Election

The T. O. C. C. held its annual election yesterday. The following officers were elected:

The formation of the company and the distributing arrangements are the culmination of conferences held recently in San Francisco and Los Angeles by the Western financiers and F. C. Munroe, president of Hodkinson and in speaking of these discussions Munroe said that while his company had set out to distribute about 36 pictures during the coming year, that in the aggregate Hodkinson would possibly handle 40 or 41 productions beginning in September.

Dorothy Mackaill will be featured in three of the Woods productions.

AT THE RIVOLI.
"THE DAWN OF A TO-MORROW."
Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present a George Melford production. "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," from the novel and play by Frances Hodgson Burnett. The screen play is by Harvey Thew.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is a truly fine motion picture. Frances Hodgson Burnett's book and play, which might so easily have been brought to the screen dripping with sentimental gush, has with rare discretion and infectious acting been made into one of the finest pictures of the year. It is at the Rivoli this week and ought to be seen by all who think there's not much sense in going to the pictures any more.

divided into three departments, to-wit: advertising and exploitation, selling, and cooperation with physical distributor.

"The changes in method of distribution, in merchandising of motion pictures, the economies offered by Producers Distributing Guild are revolutionary, but perfectly practical, commonsense and businesslike. Let us review the functions of its three departments:

"Only a limited number of productions of the better quality will be accepted for distribution each year. There will be no mad scramble for 'volume.' Each picture accepted for distribution will have to meet our thought as to potential box-office value. And its producer must agree to a certain and exploitation appropriation, the same to cover newspaper and trade paper advertising. Not a penny of this appropriation will be spent for 'institutional' or distributor advertising. Each picture will have its individual appropriation and that appropriation will be used for advertising and exploitation of that individual picture only.

With Producers Distributing Guild showmanship will be a major factor, because exhibition values will be arrived at not by production costs or mere names but by careful study of the production's box-office elements and carefully prepared plans for exploiting them to the limit—not merely as suggestions in press books, but direct to the public through newspapers in the form of real advertising by the producer. This exhibition value will be built up by creating public demand by intensive and judicious advertising. Public demand will influence exhibitor demand. The advertising, exploitation and publicity department shall really be an advertising agency with agency recognition.

"This service will be handled for the producer at net cost to Producers Distributing Guild, plus a service charge of 15%, providing that the service charge totals not less than $5,000 on the entire campaign for the individual production; for a minimum service fee of $5,000 will be exacted of each and every production accepted * * *

"His Darker Self"—Hodkinson
Cameo

AMERICAN—To judge by the chuckles of laughter that greeted Lloyd Hamilton who substituted for the missing Mr. Jolson, the motion picture patrons have no grievance against the famous comedian for his desertion. * * * rattling good fun, something different and something really amusing.

EVENING WORLD—If you enjoy an evening of good fun, and most of us do, don't fail to take a dash up to the Camco. You won't regret it.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—"His Darker Self," is a thin comedy thread that should have been limited to two reels of film. * * * The timeworn slapstick gags are used endlessly to bolster up the story but without much success, until the end when a good series of fights between the bootleggers and the revenue officers take place.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Lloyd Hamilton, in "His Darker Self," his first full feature length comedy, gives a lot of laughs, due as much to the titles as to the action.

POST—The story is about negroes, bootlegging, and an amateur detective, all of which supply material for a few hearty laughs and an accompanying staff of chuckles. Several long stretches of the film, which would have been otherwise tremendously dreary were enlivened by some of the funniest and cleverest titles seen in many a day.

Out-of-Town

"The Great White Way"—Gold.-Cos-Roosevelt, Chicago

DAILY JOURNAL—"The Great White Way" does what a movin'pitcher can to move Broadway to the screen of the Roosevelt theater. * * * It is * * * an accurate, or at least a cinemaccurate picture of what the Manhattan dwellers accept and regard as life.

DAILY NEWS—* * * depicts New York sporting and theatrical and newspaper life as it really exists.

Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—Some may say it is only a Drury Lane melodrama transplanted to Manhattan, but no one will deny it has high interest and a curious breeziness. * * * In my opinion it is a distinct and interesting screen novelty.

PLAIN DEALER—William Randolph Hearst, * * * is the invisible megaphone wielder on the sighseeing bus * * * he seems to give a more nearly accurate sight of New York than most of the other pilots did of Hollywood. * * * There is a reasonable excuse for its existence. It is entertaining.

PRESS—The movie is on the level of old time stage melodramas. But while the story is childish, though artificial, the backgrounds are realistic. It all is made more convincing and given a certain news interest by ringing in such notables as Ziegfeld and Irvin Cobb.

TIMES—* * * A good picture, as such pictures go, and chief among its features is a realistic championship fight. * * * Without contributing anything to the story, the producers ring in a number of leading lights in the newspaper, boxing and theatrical world.

"Ladies To Board"—Fox
Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * we can truthfully say this six-reeler is genuine entertainment, for it possesses just enough comedy, suspense, thrills and pathos to please people of all natures.

Family, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Tom Mix uses the old story of a young man who falls heir to an old ladies' home * * * While the story is far from being new, so far as the stage and screen are concerned, it is somewhat novel * * *

POST—Tom Mix is versatile * * * In "Ladies To Board," at the Family, he gives * * * fans a refreshing change from the great open spaces.

Fox, Philadelphia

NORTH AMERICAN—Tom Mix in his latest picture, "Ladies To Board," * * * trying to break into the realm of comedians, which is indeed unfortunate, since he is decidedly out of his element.

"Lilies of the Field"—1st Nat'l
Olympia, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—"Lilies of the Field," in short, is another one of the long list of society films, which have become familiar to patrons of the screen. It is honestly enough done, * * * too bad that such apparent sincerity of effort should be wasted on a commonplace story.

Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—It is still a stirring story of women who seek happiness in the gilded rooms of cafes or in the luxurious apartments of the Metropolis.

POST—"Lilies of the Field" is high class photoplay entertainment. Its settings are lavish, its continuity good and its acting nearly flawless.

Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * a picture that will please all of the people some of the time and a majority of patrons most of the time. It is lavishly produced and richly embellished, with dramatic high lights, some comedy, suspense, just a little hokum and several scenes that will bring handkerchiefs into use by even the most blase picture fan.

Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * The movies, in other words, have toned down William Hurlburt's play, and have made the picture more than a wee bit sentimental. * * * Even so, however, the film is more than average good.

"Ride for Your Life"—Universal
Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending March 15)

BULLETIN—It is the type of role in which Gibson excels, that of a whimsical cowboy, humorous and human. It entails hard riding, fast shooting and some dramatic acting, but the broad thread of humor that is interwoven in the story furnishes the big entertainment punch to the picture.

CALL—"Ride for Your Life" is the conventional western melodrama, full of thrills and stirring incidents, but without much of a story to hold the interest.

CHRONICLE—In fact it deserves to be rated as above the average "western," and certainly it is drawing the biggest crowds the Cameo has had for quite a while.

"The Shepherd King"—Fox
Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—The eye of the spectator, * * * is frequently thrilled by some glimpse of the pyramids, or the sphinx, or the vast expanse of sand mountains. Against these exotic backgrounds the flowing robes and colorful vestments of biblical people take on an added naturalness. * * * The cast is entirely foreign, with the exception of Violet Mercereau, * * *

That Deal

By DANNY

A deal is under way between Metro and Goldwyn. The details of this amalgamation have not been definitely shaped, but premature publication yesterday of the matter allows for some discussion of the existing situation.

Metro will take over Goldwyn Pictures. The deal involves no cash consideration, but Metro stock will be passed to the Goldwyn people. It may be possible that an issue of preferred stock of Metro will provide for this deal.

While official statements from the companies indicate that the purpose of the deal is for physical handling only of Goldwyn product it need not prove surprising if all production was centered in the Goldwyn lot in Culver City, and the Metro studio disposed of for its realty value. One or the other of these studios will either be dismantled or sold intact.

Another move is under way providing Metro with a production head which, if culminated, will bring in charge of Metro production a well known figure in the producing ranks.

Whether or not Wm. Randolph Hearst will carry Cosmopolitan Productions into the new alignment remains to be seen. It is fully expected by those who have engineered the deal that Hearst will continue with Metro. This, however, is not at all definite. Hearst was in Washington yesterday, and could not be reached for a statement. Hearst left Famous about a year ago to distribute through Goldwyn and had an option to take a 50 per cent interest in the distributing company on April 15. At varying times he has been reported as both very much pleased, and again dissatisfied over sales conditions. Recently he wrote a letter to a publication declaring he was very happy in his Goldwyn alignment.

This is certain: Hearst has no production plans definitely in sight after completing "Janice Meredith." "Yolanda," which was to have been run as a super until Fall and then put into regular distribution goes into the Goldwyn machine immediately.

METRO GETTING IN SHAPE

Metro, through the Goldwyn deal, acquires product which will materially help out the Metro distribution. Goldwyn has a number of pictures ready, including "Three Weeks," Von Stroheim's "Greed," being cut; "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," "Second Youth," "Recoil" by Rex Beach; "True as Steel" and "The Great White Way." Neilan is making "Tess"; Seastrom, "The Tree"; Vidor, "Mary the Third"; and Brabin, "Ben Hur." There are several others being made for Goldwyn release. This will materially aid in filling the Metro schedule. Metro has not yet announced production plans for next season, but Vignola has been lined up for a group, as has Frank Borzage. Jackie Coogan, of course, and the Ingram specials, although of late there have been rumblings of dissatisfaction from Ingram. Navarro

Goldwyn-Metro Deal

Reported On—Statements Indicate the Purpose to Be for Physical Handling of Pictures

Officials of both Goldwyn Pictures and Metro admitted yesterday that a deal was under discussion. Reports have been in circulation for nearly a week that the deal was under way, and as usual, these reports more or less varied.

The following statement was issued by Metro yesterday:

"Metro and Goldwyn are discussing the possibility of combining the physical distribution of films. The respective sales organizations are to be kept intact and very material economies are to be effected by the elimination of duplicate exchanges."

Inquiry at Metro developed the fact that were a deal to go through, only physical distribution would be involved. Product is no way to be included, nor is the actual sales handling of the project to be charged

Valentino in the Strand

It is reported that when Valentino finishes "Monsieur Beaucaire," it will be shown in the Strand. This is the first time in years that a Famous picture will be shown at that house. Reports which cannot be confirmed are to the effect that it will have a two weeks run, and perhaps hold for a third week if business justifies.

"Beaucaire" was to have been shown in the Criterion, but this was changed by virtue of Mary Pickford taking that house for the summer for "Dorothy Vernon."

Atlanta Real Estate Deal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Atlanta—The Enterprise Realty and Investment Corp., which includes several associates of S. A. Lynch has purchased the land on which the Howard theater stands. The house is operated by Famous Players under a twenty-five year lease.

Keith House for Fordham

A large sign on a plot of ground on Fordham Road near Morris Ave., announces the erection of a picture house by the Keith interests. The proposed theater is about two blocks away from Keith's Fordham, which runs vaudeville and pictures.

"Yolanda" Closes Saturday

"Yolanda" closes at the Cosmopolitan Saturday night. The house will probably remain dark for a time. A ballet may go in there later on or perhaps a picture.

"No deal has been closed," said Bowes. "We are discussing it and hope that something definite will develop. Goldwyn maintains exchanges in practically every city where Metro does. Newspaper Opinions

"The Dawn of A Tomorrow"—
Famous Players
Rivoli

AMERICAN—I do not think that I would have minded the plot so much, because the picture, while sentimental and banal, is by no means bad entertainment, if Jacqueline Logan had not had the leading role. *** she is not even pretty.

EVENING WORLD—*** was wonderfully touching stage play when it made such a hit several seasons back. It is just appealing, or was to us, as celluloid strip.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—*** We honestly believe that the credit should go to George Melford, who directed *** although *** the results are not always what we could wish. *** He made a picture written around a risky theme *** and made it so human and so quaintly humorous that the most hardened skeptic could not call it "glad." ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—*** a good entertainment *** George Melford has done an excellent piece of work as the director ***

POST—When an intelligent director, such as George Melford films, a well adapted play like "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," with such capable actors as Jacqueline Logan, Raymond Griffith, and David Torrence, the result is pretty certain to be real entertainment for picture patrons.

TELEGRAM—It is even more effective as presented in a motion picture drama at the Rivoli Theater.

TIMES—*** This picture might make a moderate entertainment for small towns. But to those who have read the story, those who know London's squalid districts and realize the rich possibilities the director, George Melford, had, it is something at which to shake one's head. *** this film might be mildly entertaining ***

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Jacqueline Logan, in the role of "Glad," showed she is capable of acting. She made a decided impression. *** The sets, especially the London street stuff, was well done, and Melford's direction moved the story along logically.

WORLD—*** is a truly fine motion picture. Frances Hodgson Burnett's book and play, which might so easily have been brought to the screen dripping with sentimental gush, has with rare discretion and infectious acting been made into one of the finest pictures of the year.

"Secrets"—First National Astor

AMERICAN—*** an inspired choice for an actress of Norma Talmadge's experience and understanding. It gives her a chance to run the gamut of emotions *** has not deviated from the original text a quarter of an inch. *** The emotional demands on her are many, but Norma Talmadge meets them all in a way that left me filled with renewed admiration. *** "Secrets" is a good picture for husbands. *** Seriously they've done a lovely, delicate thing *** Norma Talmadge, in the billowing crinolines and negligible bodices of the 1865 period is rather a dream of enchantment. Her performance has finish, a nice sense of values and is marked by restraint. ***

EVENING JOURNAL—*** Norma Talmadge, more beautiful than ever, has in the production, a charming setting for her personality. *** Eugene O'Brien *** handles his role sympathetically. Miss Talmadge does some excellent acting, and has good support from the rest of the cast. ***

EVENING WORLD—*** It is one of the most beautiful photoplays we have yet seen and gives the star her best opportunity so far to do some real acting. *** Take it all in all, it's the best we have seen Norma do. It gives her better chance than she has ever had before; and she grasped at the chance.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—*** Taken all in all, it is a pretty fine picture, *** Frank Borzage directed the picture and he has done it so beautifully that there seems to be more momentous secrets on the screen than in the stage version. It has been handled with rare understanding and humor. ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—*** one of the most appealing love stories flashed across the New York screen in many a day. ***

POST—"Secrets" *** is everybody's story, for the sympathetic hand of Norma Talmadge leads us back over the long, long trail to the days of bygone sunshine and shadow which have come to all of us.

*** Her ability as an actress is second to none, and in "Secrets" she does some of the best work of her career.

SUN—*** This new picture *** however, would be alone worth while for giving Miss Talmadge a chance to prove that she can run the well known gamut with the best of our screen actresses. Her performance here *** is one of the most beautiful examples of acting that the screen can boast of.

TELEGRAM—*** Norma Talmadge has found the best material she has ever had. *** Miss Talmadge's skill as an actress is revealed here in all its versatility. ***

TIMES—*** As a picture it is a charming romance told with rare dignity and restraint. The story itself is admirably suited to the talent of Miss Talmadge, ***

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—"Secrets" is 100 per cent better and greater than it was as a play. *** it is going to be 100 per cent greater as a box office attraction. In addition to the tremendous artistry of Miss Talmadge, a story that is 100 per cent there is also the added sales angle to the public with Eugene O'Brien. ***

WORLD—*** Here, in a background of lovely settings, supplied with gowns which are a delight even to the heathen masculine, Miss Talmadge is charming. "Secrets" is her finest two hours and it is also one of the things which are sure to keep the cinema critic's nose in the air these days.

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L.
Rialto

AMERICAN—Mr. Hart reckoned with his public when he made "Singer Jim McKee." Those who worship at the Hart shrine are not going to be disappointed. It is a typical W. S. Hart drama of the romantic Wild West.

DAILY NEWS—"Singer Jim McKee" is one of those why pictures. Why did Bill Hart write it? Why did he act in it? Why was it produced, anyhow?

EVENING WORLD—It is a typical Hart picture, *** If one likes Hart, and legions seem to, one will like "Singer Jim McKee." ***

HERALD-TRIBUNE—The new picture is just a shade bigger and better than those "Westerns" of the early Bill Hart days, but otherwise nothing is changed. *** It is the best of the kind that Mr. Hart has done.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The picture as may be expected, was greeted by a large audience of Bill Hart fans, but it must be stated that they did not speak of it with enthusiasm after the final fadeout. The consensus seemed to be that it was by no means the best work of the producer-star.

POST—*** as he fulfills as usual all the demands of his fans the actions of his associates are relatively unimportant. The photography is unusually good, and the exterior scenes are beautiful.

SUN—*** it is pretty terrible stuff if one takes it seriously. Otherwise it will furnish an evening of hearty laughter at its own expense. ***

TELEGRAM—The scenes were taken at Sonora, in the actual locale where the story is supposed to take place. They have great beauty and charm.

TIMES—This is not a vehicle to be taken seriously, and it is hardly necessary to dwell upon the pantomimics of the players. Suffice it to say that Mr. Hart almost leans backward to be erect, and that he even keeps to such a pose when embracing his ward. We are afraid that this picture does not even come up to the old-fashioned standard of Mr. Hart's previous film, "Wild Bill Hickok."

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—The latest Hart film *** carries along nicely until midway through the footage when both the story and the action seem to falter. ***

The picture holds the usual picturesque exteriors always associated with Hart's westerns and will unquestionably appeal to his followers.

WORLD—*** Hart seems determined to roll down hill of his own accord. His picture, "Singer Jim McKee," at the Rialto this week, is sentimental slush of the worst kind, rising at times to heights of silliness which are beyond the grasp of your correspondent.

"The Unknown Purple"—Truart Capitol

AMERICAN—Summing up the situation, I might say "The Unknown Purple" is fair entertainment. It is not much from the standpoint of lighting, production or direction, but anyone who likes spook stories is going to get his money's worth.

EVENING JOURNAL—The story is delightfully illogical, and, therefore, good entertainment. The element of mystery is smoothly sustained, and action, which means everything to a theme of this type, moves rapidly.

EVENING WORLD—"The Unknown Purple" is weird, but entertaining.

DAILY NEWS—*** The element of unexpectedness prevails. *** well edited. It will please the people who adore spooky plays but hate to hear the guns go off ***

HERALD-TRIBUNE—Not a single tremor did we get *** the story seems rather disjointed *** It may be, however, that those who did not see the play will be well pleased with the picture.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It moves along smoothly and coherently unlike many mystery plays, and while the fear element isn't any too strong, it was evident that the audience at the Capitol Theater yesterday afternoon had a few mild curdles up their spines.

POST—*** is a curious mixture of excellence and imperfection which ends in being unconvincing and generally disappointing. The excellence consists of several settings which are as near to artistic perfection as any which have been shown on our screen to date. The imperfection is made up of thrills so apparently dragged in ***

SUN—*** a fantastic melodrama *** Although it is a first cousin to the trashy old "Fantomus" series—one of those continued-next-week things *** manages to be fairly thrilling.

TELEGRAM—*** keeps the onlooker at a high pitch of excitement.

TIMES—As a melodrama with a fair element of mystery, *** "The Unknown Purple," *** is in many respects a vehicle well suited to the screen. It seems, however, that with more adroit handling and less attention to some sequences the actual denouement could have been better concealed.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It has been excellently handled, and so far as that goes is definitely favorable to the author-director.

*** Henry B. Walthall is the c and has turned in a performance responsibility. *** The picture the best of its type ***

WORLD—"The Unknown Purple" a mystery play on the stage and mystery play on the screen. It to present first rate trick came certainly the interior settings which employed in its making are amoliest.

Doubt Over 'Siegfried'

High Praise For Production Values of German Epic But Sales Angles Are Questioned

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Considerable space is devoted by English trade papers to "Siegfried," produced by Fritz Lang for the Ufa of Berlin and claimed by many as the outstanding picture of German studios. English trade paper editors were guests of the company in Berlin for the premiere.

The production values are highly praised but there seems to be doubt over its box-office appeal, particularly outside of Germany.

The Bioscope said:

"For 'Siegfried'—a studio production from beginning to end—they built a dark and gloomy forest, spacious dream-like palaces, and even a lofty mountain peak which, reared against a flaming artificial sunset, creates an effect of windswept wildness more awe-inspiring on the screen than any natural alp.

"Two years have elapsed since Fritz Lang, producer of 'Dr. Mabuse,' commenced his work on the 'Nibelungen.' For two years an army of actors, architects, engineers and stage hands have been laboring day by day under Herr Lang's consummate generalship.

"Exhibited for the first time to an audience of 3,000 in the U. F. A. Palast, Berlin, last Thursday evening, 'Siegfried' is, in every sense of the phrase, a great artistic triumph for its producer and his associates. It is the work of a true master of creative cinematography—a worthy rendering of the ancient saga, full of epic dignity and infused throughout with the loftiest poetical feeling.

"Six months were occupied, I was told, in constructing the dragon, which was 70 ft. long and weighed 3,500 lbs. * * * It is undoubtedly the finest piece of stagecraft that it has been my privilege to witness.

"Artistically, the film compares favorably with any production yet seen from any country. Its appeal, however, like that of Germany's best pictures, is directed to a type of mind which is not at present extensively represented among the picture-going public!"

The Film Renter said:

"The whole photoplay is an amazing construction from start to finish, and is a perfect representation of the Nibelungen. Complete faithfulness to the atmosphere and the period have been demanded, and in no single instance can one find any scene to which one could point and say that it had no connection with the picture. Fritz Lang has given us a photoplay in this film that is literally an epic of screen art, for its settings are astonishing, and, better still, he has succeeded in making a great opera into a wonderful photoplay.

"There are no big stars in the picture, but each and every performer gives a portrayal that is well worth perfect."

Kine Weekly said:

"What will be the immediate material success of 'Siegfried' outside Germany depends upon many external considerations; but this at least must be said, that Lang and those who support him have never given less than the best that is in them,

"'Siegfried' is, of course, not to be regarded as an ordinary super-film. If that much overworked word had never hitherto been used, it could now have been at last accurately employed. For there is in the scope, the imagination, the subject, and the treatment of the work all those qualities which place it upon a higher plane than has yet been attained in the art of screen production.

"* * * We see a real drama, a story of love and hatred, of jealousy and treachery. And it is handled by an artist in whose make-up are vision, phantasy and originality, linked in an amazing manner with the power of command, the control of the minutest details, and endless patience.

"Probably British opinion will agree that the seventh canto, which closed the story as shown in Berlin, is in the nature of an anticlimax. For the death of the hero at the end of the sixth is one of the most gripping tragedies ever screened, and the grim words of the murderer, 'The hunt is over,' bring down the curtain with a finality like the clanging-to of a steel door.

Paris—"La Cinematographie Francaise" says of "Siegfried":

"I believe that this production of Fritz Lang will mark an epoch in the history of the screen. It is not only a film which contains many marvellous effects. It is an ensemble, a unity, a complete harmony, in which the poetic beauty of inspiration, the plastic magnificence of each vision merges into perfect reality. * * * I am convinced that 'Die Nibelungen', * * * is a masterpiece."

of theaters and sold pictures in blocks, did not interfere with the business of other companies, as previous witnesses had testified for the Government.

M. Remond, of Birmingham, formerly an employee of Famous Players, testified that he had never threatened Frank Smith, an exhibitor, who declared on the stand last July that Remond had tried to force him (Smith) to sell his theater.

Frank Miller testified that a witness, named Hackworth, from Huntsville, Ala., who complained that Southern Enterprises had arbitrarily withdrawn service from him, was an active member of a booking association of 30 or 40 exhibitors, the purpose of which was to threaten, boycott and compel Southern Enterprises to sell Paramount pictures exclusively to members of the group. The association of exhibitors maintained an "all or none" policy, the witness said.

Further contradictory testimony was given by Charles McElravy, district superintendent for Southern Enterprises at Memphis. An exhibitor named Jackson, of Columbus, Tenn., had declared in July that, after making threats against him, Southern Enterprises had purchased a rival house and then transferred the Paramount account from his theater to the competition. McElravy denied this, stating that the house had been purchased by his own brother, who had no connection, he said, with Famous Players, or its subsidiary. The rival theater exhibited the Paramount pictures with much more satisfaction than had Jackson, McElravy said.

The first witness for the defense was Martin May, a wealthy Atlantan, who gave testimony regarded as damaging to the Government's case. He flatly denied the statement of L. H. Joel, manager of theaters at Jacksonville and Lakeland, Fla., and Greenville, S. C., who declared last Summer he had been forced to sell his houses to Southern Enterprises, because of alleged unfair practices. According to May, he financed Joel in the purchase of the theaters, and was Joel's sole financial backer. Contrary to Joel's statement, which was to the effect that he, (Joel), had made the transaction with Southern Enterprises, May said that he, made the trade and Joel did not figure in the deal. May stated that he was not forced into the trade by anyone, and that he considered the price he received for the theaters, outrageously high, and one which netted him considerable profit. He said the deal was a straight business transaction in which coercion no part. He asked $35,000 for the theater at Greenville, and had received $34,000 for it, he said.

W. H. Fuller, counsel for the Court is cross-examining for the Government. Famous Players is represented by Bruley, Robert Swain and E. J. Robb. 30 witnesses have been summoned and hearing is expected to continue the rest of the week.

More Prints?

A. Powers Points Out the Value of Larger Life Prints Due to Research Work

Simultaneously with the recent reduction of positive by Eastman allowing the cut made by the new Film Products, a 'drive' is to be in progress for 'More Prints.' The exhibitor suddenly came in for a large share of the blame for print deteriorations and exhibitors are asked to offset this deduction with additional prints, though the price advantage, due to the new cut, is to be absorbed in greater consumption of raw material," says A. Powers.

E. V. Richards, in a recent issue of the M. P. News, scores exhibitors for abusive handling of prints and decides that the remedy lies in 'More Prints.' The News question-develops a very mixed opinion that is doubtful if a truly reliable solution to the problem can be obtained in a question involving so many factors.

THE FILM DAILY of March 15 suggests that the saving of the expense in cost of raw stock be directed into an added number of prints. A. Eschmann of First National in the March 18 issue of the FILM DAILY, that long runs are chiefly responsible for the demand for additional prints.

A. Jones of the Eastman Company sums up the situation with the statement that whatever solution gives greatest satisfaction to the ultimate consumer, even if it costs more money at the start, works to the general progress and prosperity of the business.

One will deny that more prints tend to give better exhibition results. In all the agitation so far, the idea seems to prevail that the remedy all lies in 'More Prints.' The thought is expressed as to the possibility of greater projection life in motion picture film and how this can be accomplished to the financial advantage of the industry in general.

The 'longer wear' idea as an idea has economic advantage—the 'more prints' position only serves to increase the old extravagance in the motion picture field from which we should attempt to recover.

The technical details relative to longer life investigation is obviously out of place at such investigation has actually been in progress for more than two years in the Research Laboratory of the Powers organization.

Exhaustive tests have clearly demonstrated the possibility of improving the useful life of the present motion picture film from 25 to 50 per cent. Motion picture film embodying this feature has actually been, and is being circulated and independently reported from separated territories as showing greatly increased projection life.

"It has been found that increasing the useful projection life of the sprocket holes eliminates many of the other objections to long runs such as rain marks, unsteady pictures, and of course enormously reduces breaks in projection."

Exchange Conditions

There will necessarily be many changes in the operation of the exchanges of these concerns, which will bring about economies. Just what will occur, remains to be seen.

The Theater Situation

The terms of the deal will involve the passing of the Goldwyn interest in the Capitol, New York, the California, Los Angeles, the Bishop-Cass circuit in Colorado and the Ascher circuit in Chicago to Metro. It is understood that the Goldwyn interest in the Capitol, New York amounts normally to about $200,000 a year.

When Effective

These houses are planned along the line of the Egyptian, the Grauman Hollywood house, and are expected to house the big pictures of this group for runs of from eight weeks up where the production justifies it through business at the box office.

All pictures under the proposed arrangement, are to be sold on a basis of percentage, and each will be sold independently.

His testimony indicated that keen competition existed between Southern Enterprises and other companies. On cross-examination by Chief Counsel W. H. Fuller, he reiterated his testimony.

E. R. Matthews, city treasurer of Huntsville, Ala., J. V. Matthews, his brother, and H. C. Laughlin, also of Huntsville, testified that C. L. Hackworth, an exhibitor at Huntsville, never owned an interest in the Lyric, at Anniston, Ala. Hackworth had previously testified that Southern Enterprises had forced him out of business. C. T. McClellan, manager of a Southern Enterprise theater in Gadsden, Ala., from 1919 to 1920, denied that he had threatened to run out of business, Will B. Woods, an exhibitor of that town. Woods has claimed that McClellan had been responsible for his failure. McClellan denied any responsibility for Woods' going out of business. McClellan also denied that Southern Enterprises had started a price war in Gadsden.

C. B. Thompson, an exhibitor of Cedartown, Ga., testified that he owned the only theater in Cedartown and a number in surrounding towns. He said he had been exhibitor for many years and preferred to buy his pictures on the block system such as was employed by Southern Enterprises. He declared he had never been compelled by Famous to buy pictures he did not want.

More Theaters in Baltic States
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Washington—There are 85 theaters in the Baltic Republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Lithuania, according to figures made public by the Bureau of Commerce. This represents an increase since 1922 of 35 houses. During 1923, German-made films supplied in these countries averaged 65 per cent, American 30 per cent and French 5 per cent. Indications are that films of American manufacture will supply nearly 50 per cent of the market requirements during 1924 owing to irregularities in showing German films as well as the growing demand for American films.

Appeals to Music Lovers for This

Boston—For the recent run of "Puritan Passions" at the Beacon and Modern theaters, Manager Lourie and Joe O'Sullivan, Hodkinson exploiteer, cooperated in an exploitation campaign in which they appealed to the lovers of good music to put the picture across.

In cooperation with Manager Lourie, O'Sullivan, worked out a campaign based on the extraordinary dramatic appeal of the picture and the unusual possibilities for appealing to the lovers of good music afforded by the wonderful music score specially composed for "Puritan Passions" by Frederick S. Converse, the famous operatic composer.

In the New England Conservatory of Music, cards announcing that the first original photoplay-symphony ever written would be played in conjunction with the showing. These cards were also placed in five music stores handling the music of Oliver Ditson Co., who published excerpts from the score. Announcement cards were placed in the lobby, to the same effect.

The day before the opening, Converse talked over the radio station WHAC, his subject being "Music and the Photoplay," with special reference to the score for "Puritan Passions."

Advertised in Drug Store Windows

Chicago—The Melba drug store cooperated with the Chicago management in exploiting "Painted People." Cutouts, stills, sign cards and hand painted posters announced the showing in the company's store windows, occupying about half the window space while the other half played up cosmetics.

Old Fire Engine as Ballyhoo

Buffalo, N. Y.—Manager C. E. Williams, of the Majestic, used a simple but effective exploitation stunt to help announce the showing of "Hook and Ladder." An old fire engine was obtained from the fire department and used as a ballyhoo, parading it up and down the main thoroughfares, with billing on each side of the truck telling of the run. Later, the apparatus was displayed in front of the house.

No Daylight Saving For Niagara

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—The City Council has adopted a resolution repealing the existing daylight saving ordinance. A referendum last fall showed that the people disapproved of the measure. Lockport has also voted against daylight saving.

Troy, N. Y.—Theater owners are determined to kill daylight saving. Similar steps are being taken by exhibitors in Albany and Schenectady.

Artistic Displays in Lobby

Eugene, Ore.—Artistic displays, both in the lobby and on the stage helped put "Song of Love" across when it ran at the Rex.

The outside lobby was decorated with a painting of the desert, in three panels. The center one was three times as large as the outside two and showed the approach to an Arabian city. Underneath the painting the star and title was played up. The desert atmosphere was further carried out in the prologue which had a pretty night background and a tent, with a song number in the act.

"Big" Pictures in "Small" Towns

Hart, Mich.—F. N. Harris, of the Amuse theater, put "Merry-Go-Round" and "A Lady of Quality" across in a novel way. Harris was handicapped by the fact that both pictures had played Detroit a few weeks, so he displayed in his lobby, advertisements on the two productions as they appeared in the Detroit dailies. Slides described the character of the pictures and their previous successful runs in other communities, three weeks before the opening dates.

Cashes In on Toy Show

David Bader, of Century, through the co-operation of J. L. Amber, head of the Amberg Doll Co., manufacturers of the Baby Peggy doll, obtained some free publicity for "The Darling of New York" at the recent annual toy show, held in the Bush Bldg., New York. "Darling of New York" banners, placards, photos and other material was placed conspicuously around the show.

Zukor Seeks to Wipe Out All Indebtedness by End of Year—Some Plans

In an interview in the Wall Street Journal, Adolph Zukor recites a number of matters discussed at the Famous Players annual meeting held in the week.

First, in a message to the stockholders, declared it was the ambition of the management to wipe out bank debt by the end of the present year. The meeting was uneventful so far as changes in the directorate was concerned.

The Wall Street Journal article goes on to say:

Loans payable are now about $3,000,000, against $3,385,000 at the end of 1923. Production in 1924 will be on a budget system with the object of clearing up floating indebtedness by the end of the year. If this is accomplished, only seasonal borrowing will be required.

If Universal Leases Clune's B'way, All First-Runs Will Be Distributor-Controlled

Los Angeles—Universal is understood to be negotiating for the lease of Clune's Broadway. If this deal goes through, it will place every first run in the downtown section of the city in control of distributing companies.

Grauman's Million Dollar, Rialto and Metropolitan are owned by Famous. Talley's Broadway was recently acquired by West Coast Theaters, Inc., which is, of course, a First National ally. West Coast also controls the Criterion and operates Loew's State. The California and Miller's are the local first-runs for Goldwyn pictures and are controlled by that organization.

Seek Compromise Measure

The executive committees of the M. P. T. O. of New York and the T. O. C. C. met with representatives of producers at the Astor, Friday, to discuss the Davidson Bill, which would abolish the M. P. Commission and strengthen the Penal Code. Exhibitors are generally opposed to the measure, while producers are understood to be favorably inclined. A compromise is now being sought and to this end an exhibitor committee of seven will meet today at the Hays office for further discussion.

Do you gentlemen realize that you all may be out of business, so far as important product is concerned if your present methods are continued? Something to think about. It is something to answer.

Why? Do you need ask? Don't you know? I think you do. But in the event that your memory needs refreshing just bear this in mind: The Warner output for next season may not be sold as last season. The Preferred product probably will be. But if the Warner product isn't what will you do for this type of material, assuming you cannot find sufficient from Preferred?

There are other producers presenting good marketable pictures on the state right market. Many of them. But how many have a sustained product, the quality of which you know and which you can dispose of in block? Or do you wish to go back to the basis of selling picture for picture? If so, how many of you can stand this expense?

At this moment there is a serious question in the minds of the Warner organization as to just how they will handle their pro-

Maryland Bill Dies

Sunday Measure Killed in House—Advocates Seeking a Re-hearing

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Annapolis, Md.—The House has killed the bill to permit showing of pictures on Sunday. The action came so swiftly that advocates of the measure say it wasn't given a chance. The bill was killed on a viva voce vote, despite the fact that a number of members of the House had demanded a roll call. Speaker Curtis failed to recognize them.

The bill came up on special order. Following the motion to lay the bill on the table, the vote was taken, and Floor Leader Frank S. Given then moved for adjournment. The adjournment was recorded at 12.29 P. M., and the House met again three minutes later for other business. It is probable the measure will be brought up again.

duct for next season. Well there may be. They have had difficulties—tremendous at times—to finance your operations. Not their own. Had they been able to finance as planned their troubles would have been few. Their production problems are not serious. They seem to hit upon a goodly average of entertaining pictures—and some of them, notably “Beau Brummel” and “The Marriage Circle” promise to find their way among the finest pictures of the season.

PICTURE MAKING FINANCE

There are troubles enough in producing when the capital is assured. What must it be when the question of raising money is added? Yet, withal the failure of the buyers to respond to their agreements, promises, even notes, Warner's have kept on with their schedule. And the day has passed by when the Warner's need worry as to distribution of their product. Last season they could have made a deal with one of the largest distributors in the business. Another very important company wanted the product. There is no secret as to what disposition they can make of their pictures planned for next season.

If, however, this product is to remain on the state right market the men who contract for this material must be ready to make a deal which will permit of production without those financial disturbances which caused so much trouble this season.

And gentlemen of that market you might as well understand this now: where are you going to get a sustained product of the Warner type if they stop distributing through this method?

4—COUNT 'EM—4

Circus stuff; remember? That's the way they refer to the ticket sellers at the Capitol for “Three Weeks” which opens Sunday. Roxy is looking for one grand jam. Goldwyn will be ill if he is wrong in the hope.

CHAIN YOUR STENOGRAPHERS

Charley Chaplin has gone and lost his secretary. She was so good as the masseuse in “A Woman From Paris” that he had to give her a job in his new picture. And now he hasn't a secretary.

ON THE CARPET

Just to show how humble they are the Paramount trade mark is in the new carpet at the Rialto. You can walk all over Paramount—so long as you pay the price.

THE ST. LOUIS

The big 4,000 seater which Billy Goldman is putting up in that town. To open Labor Day. Promises to be important. Will certainly ease up the closed situation. Imagine: Neither “Rosita” nor “A Woman of Paris” had been shown in St. Louis up to a few weeks ago.

ANTIQUES

There is a pretty good house in a Texas town. Seats 1,500. Has a 21 piece orchestra. And plays the big ones. Had “Scaramouche” on and priced the seats in various parts of the house accordingly. Something like 1,500 people scattered all over the house, regardless of what they paid for their admission. Why? Because this enterprising exhibitor still uses a National Cash Register ticket machine. Which issues the same sort of ticket, color and size, for all prices, from a dime to 55 cents.

Yet some exhibitors wonder why they don't make money.

ANDY RECOVERS

Yep. Andy Cobe. Who moves about the Broadway houses. Picture to picture. Down at Miami. Getting OK. Writes he is all right.

SHAUER'S TRIP

From South America. Was just as tough as selling Max Glucksmann a series. Had a nice little hurricane hit his nice little 4500 ton steamer. And tossed about the Atlantic like a cork in a mill pond. Don't remind him of it. It's a subject taboo.

A DELIGHTFUL COMPLIMENT

In his own inimitable way Joseph Hergesheimer pays Gish the most delightful of tributes in the current issue of American Mercury—the new Mencken-Nathan review.

When a writer like Hergesheimer can fill pages with a treatise one wonders why someone hasn't placed Lillian Gish in the hall of movie fame long before. There isn't a producer, tributor, and especially a publicity man, who can afford to miss this. Just to see—if for nothing else—what the power of word can do.

WAR CORRESPONDENT ON THE JOB

From Bill Wright, war correspondent at the front. Yorktown, Virginia, Wednesday last:

“General Washington has just succeeded in capturing a fortification under Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va. The fighting raged all today, the last redoubt falling at five P. M. My engagement under Director Webster Campbell for Yale University Press has been a notable one for Yorktown and vicinity.

And Pathe doubtless hopes it will be notable also.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

Just what constitutes this may prove interesting. And difficult. But the AMPA can render no greater service than to bring about conditions about which will either nullify the need for such laws for this industry, or prevail upon its membership to see that no violations occur.

In a business such as this, fraught with the many tendencies to exaggerate, a sharp eye will be needed to prevent difficulties in Rhode Island, where such a bill is pending, as well as those in other communities where such statutes are in force.

SAYING A TONGUEFUL

Elmer Harris, the producer. Doing the talking. Doing the producer was too far away from the exhibitor. What a tongueful! But what is the producer doing to keep in better touch? Usually leaves it to the distributor. And so must accept what he pays 100 per cent. But why?

Talking to a group of directors, some of whom were producers on their own—at Hollywood last Fall, offered the suggestion that any of these men could keep in close touch with exhibitors at a trifling cost. All they need is a brainy girl to write letters. No bunk stuff telling what they were doing, but sensible stuff and information from the exhibitor, as well as questions for him as to what suggestions he had in mind for them. Fred Blum thought the idea so good he said he was going to do it right away. Wonder if he has?

This is perhaps a broad statement: there isn't a director in the business who couldn't well afford to do this. And then, if instead of keeping in touch this way he would keep his own advertising campaign going direct to the exhibitor, he would be himself far more certain of continuous work than leaving the whole thing up to his distributor. This sounds like an appeal for advertising from the director. Bunk.

Who knows better than the director that the distributor don't know how to properly advertise their product. The advertising campaign is a flock of pages when the picture is first released then the picture is forgotten. It is almost impossible to find an advertisement of a picture—no matter how good it is—two months after release date. And this applies to every company in the business. Some day some distributor may wake up to this.

THE GALLOPINGS

First National has a “Gallop Fish,” Universal a “Gallop Ace” and FBO “Gallop Gallagher.” Don't get these Gallopings mixed up.

rowing during the height of the production period will be necessary.

"Famous plans for 1924 the biggest line of pictures both in quality and number they have ever made, Mr. Zukor said. So far, the moving picture companies have not found that radio interfered with business, and do not expect any serious competition from this source.

"In commenting on inventories, he said that present stocks valued at $15,383,482 are composed of about 110 pictures, none of which is more than two years old. Those over a year old are written down to 12% of cost or less in accordance with established depreciation policy.

"It is hoped to write off good will item totaling $8,181,624 in a year or two by deducting it from surplus which is now $9,480,112.

"In commenting on the government suit against Famous Players, Mr. Zukor said that it might be a year before it was finally settled, but that the company had no apprehension whatever on that score. Famous cannot be proved a monopoly he said, because they only own a small number of the thousands of theaters in the country. Every other large moving picture producer has important theatrical holdings, which are used as the "show windows" of the business to advertise new films.

"Famous produced about 60 of the 863 pictures made last year in the United States. There is an actual need for 700 pictures a year in this country.

"Foreign business last year increased 9% over 1922. American pictures predominate in European countries where there are no restrictions in imports."

Four New Paramount Directors

At Metro it was stated on that Mayer's name had not been mentioned in any way in connection with the possible deal between the company and Goldwyn. It was in view of the fact that Mayer was making a number of pictures for Metro, that it was reasonable to assume that he would arrange his pictures on whatever the company used.

There was likewise no definition regarding the disposition of the studio. However, it was pointed out that there would be no need of maintaining two expensive studios when both companies could make their pictures at one studio.

"Daddies"—Warners' Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE— * * * Many of the most amusing lines of the * * * play are lost in the cold print of a * * * subtitle. In addition to this, the con- * * * tinuity of the pictured story is not * * * always smooth; * * * However, even with these technical * * * defects, the photoplay still remains a * * * relatively good one * * *

HERALD—"Daddies" won over yester- * * * day's Regent audiences completely. A * * * small boy enjoyed it beyond measure, * * * the woman who was with him, was * * * equally pleased. A flapper somewhere * * * on the left managed to get a lot of * * * laughs out of the story and the writer * * * himself found no monotonous mo- * * * ments.

"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"— Mary Pickford—Grauman's, L. A.

(Run beginning March 18)

EXAMINER—* * * shows you just the * * * Mary you like. Grown up—or not * * * grown up—there are certain essentially * * * Pickford tricks which endear the lovely * * * young star to her fans, and they are * * * all in this picture. * * * There's sparkling action all along the * * * celluloid, there's plot and counter plot, * * * deception and intrigue. * * * No higher * * * praise can be given to this film than * * * to say that period costumes and set- * * * tings are forgotten in the vitality and * * * spontaneity of the picture.

EXPRESS—Promise that "Dorothy * * * Vernon of Haddon Hall" would be the * * * greatest of Mary Pickford's pictures to * * * date, * * * was made good last evening. It combines * * * in crafty manner the elements of un- * * * usual pictorial values, poetry of con- * * * ception, thrilling and plentiful ac- * * * tion, entire humanization of costume * * * to its proper office of adornment or * * * expression of the personality rather * * * than the hampering of that humanity * * * and a delightful and varied portra- * * * yal of the notable little star's his- * * * trionic talents.

RECORD—But the cream of the humor * * * in this comedy romance is put over in * * * long-shot pantomime—a refreshing and * * * novel procedure.

Mary Pickford's fans will receive * * * "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" with * * * open arms. In the opinion of this re- * * * viewer it was overlong; still there is * * * dramatic suspense in later reels.

TIMES—Mary has not made a picture * * * as diverting as this in ages and it is * * * sure to prove one of her most mag- * * * nificent triumphs. * * * Indeed, "Dorothy Vernon" * * * is one of the most human and amus- * * * ing, and at the same time, decorative * * * pictures that has ever been made, and * * * it is a really splendid achievement * * * for Miss Pickford, Mr. Neilan and * * * their aides.

"The Fair Cheat"—F. B. O. Strand, Montreal

STAR—One of the most attractive * * * of the younger film stars. Dorothy * * * Mackaill, scores an undoubted suc- * * * cess in "The Fair Cheat," * * *

"The Fighting Coward"—F. P.-L. Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—* * * may yet become a * * * familiar theme for discussion in every * * * town and hamlet where the name "Pa- * * * ramount" is wont to splash the hoard- * * * ings.

Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * It is magnificently fun- * * * ny, a gorgeous satire, imaginative, * * * free from conventionalism, and remark- * * * ably well directed by James Cruze. * * *

STAR—* * * Contains a vein of braggad- * * * o humor and mock-seriousness that * * * stamps it as an extraordinarily amus- * * * ing production.

Palace, Washington

HERALD—Memories of the old South, * * * of steamboat days on the Mississippi, * * * all these have been wonderfully evoked * * * and brought to live again * * * In its * * * central roles appears a quintet of Hol- * * * lywood's best, * * *

A wonderfully tender romantic clim- * * * ax has been added to a drama of the * * * utmost fascination * * *

STAR—Cullen Landis does some excel- * * * lent acting. * * * Ernest Torrence is a * * * most convincing and delightful vil- * * * lain, * * *

James Cruze, * * * has made the most * * * of the material he had to work with. * * * It cannot, of course, compare to his * * * former success.

"Flowing Gold" Capitol, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—"Flowing Gold" resembles * * * "The Spoilers" in many ways, and, * * * though its action is just as fleet-footed, * * * its brawls and pugilistic encounters * * * are not quite as violent.

TIMES-STAR—Despite its bid for thrills * * * with its storm scene, its burning oil * * * well and the picturesque cloudburst * * * it is the acting which lends chief * * * distinction to "Flowing Gold."

Circle, Indianapolis

STAR—Near the close * * * there comes * * * a tremendous climax which is as * * * thrilling as anything shown on the * * * screen this season. * * *

"The Galloping Fish"—1st Nat'l Metropolitan, Washington

HERALD—* * * an entirely new type * * * of screen comedy, based on a new * * * idea in silent drama.

Sydney Chaplin is splendidly cast, * * * and equally effective comedy roles * * * are portrayed by Ford Sterling and * * * Miss Fazenda. Chester Conklin dis- * * * ports himself ridiculously as the * * * driver of a broken-down taxi.

POST—* * * The seal, Sidney Chaplin, * * * Louise Fazenda, Ford Sterling and * * * Chester Conklin have provided a lot * * * of laughs, but they have fallen far * * * short of giving us the comedy that * * * Thomas Ince and his press agents * * * had led us to expect.

STAR—* * * The only times the im- * * * mense audience stopped rocking with * * * laughter were the times when they * * * had to breathe. * * * Teddy, the "galloping fish," a * * * wonderfully well trained seal and a * * * comedian worthy almost to be classed * * * with even the great Chaplin.

"The Great White Way"—Gold.-Cos. Capitol, Montreal

GAZETTE—* * * in addition to telling * * * a slight but coherent story in a * * * dramatic and humorous way, is dis- * * * tinctly topical in its interest, for * * * it introduces as incidental partici- * * * pants a score or more of real per- * * * sonages known by their works. * * *

STAR—"The Great White Way" * * * * * is a remarkable example of a film * * * that is at once highly interesting and * * * highly improbable. * * * But the public * * * will go and see this picture. * * *

"Happiness"—Metro Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—Laurette Taylor is her own * * * vivacious self in "Happiness" and * * * taken all in all the picture is about * * * the equal of the stage success from * * * which it is adapted.

PRESS—The movie certainly is as * * * interesting as the play from which it * * * was made. It emphasizes the moral * * * that happiness must be earned.

Garden, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—There would be a lot more * * * happiness in store for the onlooker * * * if the producers had seen fit to put * * * some brevity into "Happiness." As * * * it is a very slender thread of a story * * * has been strung out into eight reels * * * and it comes pretty near to breaking * * * in more than one spot.

Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—When it comes to * * * really first-class comedy, hats are * * * off to Laurette Taylor and the Metro * * * Company for their production of "Hap- * * * piness." It is an aeon since anything * * * has appeared on the screen so light, * * * deft and amusing.

POST-DISPATCH—Those who like the * * * Pollyanna type of entertainment will * * * take keen and optimistic delight in * * * "Happiness," with Laurette Taylor.

STAR—Laurette Taylor, * * * and Pat O'Malley, * * * furnish delightful * * * comedy in "Happiness." * * *

TIMES—Those who enjoyed "Peg O' * * * My Heart" will like "Happiness," a * * * comedy along the same lines, by the * * * same author, and with the same star, * * * Laurette Taylor.

"Icebound"—F. P.-L. Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—It would be unfair to say * * * that without Lois Wilson, "Icebound," * * * would be flat and unentertaining, for * * * there are flashes of humor that light- * * * en the tedium of the otherwise dull * * * and improbable plot. The film ver- * * * sion of the Pulitzer prize play of last * * * year is mechanical and artificial in * * * plot and motivation.

NORTH AMERICAN—Richard Dix and * * * Lois Wilson are once again associ- * * * ated as the leading players. Each has * * * a decidedly wholesome and pleasing * * * personality, very well suited to the * * * roles in which they appear.

PUBLIC LEDGER—New, in that it * * * shows that a picture can be interest- * * * ing without gorgeous settings, spark- * * * ling clothes and beautiful scenery.

"Lilies of the Field"—1st Nat'l State, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 21)

EXAMINER—* * * one of those satin-finished dramas whose main achievement lies in the fact that it isn't as out of drawing as it might be. Indeed, everything in screen plays of this type being relative, this film adheres with very fair rigor to the actualities. * * * If there is any woman in motion pictures who makes you feel that she is very much alive, that she is sharing her emotions with you, the beholder, Corinne Griffith is that woman.

EXPRESS—* * * for in "Lilies of the Field," there is little else than a series of closeups of the lovely Corinne registering every emotion woman is heir to. * * * Much of the smart dialogue with which William Hurlbut adorned his somewhat mandarin story of a few gold diggers and one who wasn't has of necessity been curtailed to afford scope for action.

HERALD—Delights to the eye are many in this picture. There are a fashion show, some magnificent shots. * * * Miss Griffith is not, however allowed to rest on her laurels as a lovely wearer of gorgeous gowns. During most of the closing reels she is called upon by the scenarist to do the severest kind of emotional work.

RECORD—Corinne Griffith does quite the best work of her career as Mildred Harker. There seems to be genuine feeling in her work, and she gets over the difficult hokum of the birthday party for the absent baby in convincing manner.

TIMES—Some few of the screen dramas have bits of verisimilitude and flashes revealing the depths; and among these we may count, it seems to me, "Lilies of the Field," * * * For the most part it is artificial.

Grand Central, Capitol & West End Lyric, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—A fine story and gorgeous production features make "Lilies of the Field," * * * one of the best First National pictures ever shown. * * *

POST-DISPATCH—Here is a picture sure somewhat reminiscent of "The Gold Diggers," * * * It is all rather cheaply sentimental.

STAR—The picture is at once clever and banal, good and bad. * * * Gloria relies on eccentric attire and more on plot and characterization.

TIMES—The sophisticated may find some of the pathos hording on sentimentality, and that detracts from the picture, but in the main it is an interesting story.

Warfield, San Francisco

(Week Ending Mar. 21)

BULLETIN—The photoplay * * * has every element of splendid entertainment, giving story, seemingly taken from real life with just enough of the romantic to insure the always necessary human interest angle.

CALL AND POST—* * * gives promise of more than equaling its stage success in film version.

EXAMINER—* * * "Lilies of the Field" is not a "one part" motion picture story; it is simply that Miss Griffith, in the leading role, carries away the acting honors of a story that is filled with good acting parts.

DAILY HERALD—There is nothing startlingly new about the story of the lilies that neither spin nor toil; but the subject is treated differently, and with decidedly interesting results.

"The Marriage Circle"—Warners Circle, Cleveland

NEWS—Here is a real picture. It is not elaborate, not spectacular, but it's real because it's human. It is an unusual version of not at all unusual happenings.

PLAIN DEALER—"The Marriage Circle" is first, last and always adult entertainment, and is an extraordinarily well done picture.

B'way Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * Ernst Lubitsch threatens to become as popular as D. W. Griffith and other American directors, through this contribution to the classics of the screen.

"The Meanest Man In The World" 1st Nat'l—Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—There is nothing of the super picture about it. The Cohan formula is closely adhered to for it is an adaptation of the stage play of the same name, yet the audiences chuckled and laughed and had a great time watching it, hokum and all.

"Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model"—Gold.-Cosmo.—Capitol, Detroit

NEWS—There is nothing left to do now but award Claire Windsor, who plays Nellie, a medal of some sort. She is the gamest little girl in the movies.

TIMES—* * * any one of the hundreds who attended the Capitol yesterday will tell you that "Nellie" batted 400 from the opening flash to the fade-out. "Nellie" * * * sounds like a joke, but it isn't. It's one of the surprises of the movie year.

Merrill, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—* * * doggone good meller-drammer, considering its type!—has a thrill and a laugh and some demogorgous wardrobes. They've got a good cast, too. * * *

SENTINEL—A glorified version of the old-fashioned "meller drama," * * * in which no expense has been spared to make it as gorgeous pictorially as it is thrilling.

"The Net"—Fox Hippodrome, Cleveland

NEWS—The picture has a unique but rather impossible plot. It has its good points and its bad but on the whole it probably will entertain even though the acting doesn't warrant complimentary adjectives.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Alhambra, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—Dorothy Mackaill fusses along in a bizarre and terrible get-up through just so much ado about nothing in Kate Jordan's "The Next Corner."

SENTINEL—* * * a hectic tale of an unusually foolish wife as told by Kate Jordan.

California, San Francisco

(Week Ending Mar. 21)

CALL AND POST—Chancy, incidentally, appears without any radical make-up of his features or body. This enables one to see, perhaps more clearly than ever, his natural genius for acting.

DAILY HERALD—There is nothing particularly startling about "The Next Corner," but it nevertheless affords good entertainment.

"Not A Drum Was Heard"—Metro Family, Cincinnati

TIMES-STAR—The friendship sacrifices of Damon and Pythias are reproduced in intensely human form in the readiness of two Western cowboy pals to die for each other in the melodrama, "Not a Drum Was Heard" which held large audiences with gripping interest. * * *

ENQUIRER—The time-worn theme of self-sacrifice is carried almost to excess. * * * and yet, * * * it rarely fails to awaken a responsive chord in the average movie patron.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l Park-Mall, Cleveland

NEWS—It's a likeable picture, this. It is simple and the plot is not exceptionally strong but somehow it appeals to you.

PLAIN DEALER—Whether it is the work of Colleen Moore, the humor in the subtitles, or something less tangible—that something in this picture makes you like it in spite of its hokum.

Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * there is scarcely an inch of the six thousand feet that is devoid of entertainment. This fund of humor, present despite the ridiculous fallacies of the plot, is due chiefly to the antics of Colleen Moore. * * *

The only error from which the presentation suffers is its prolongation after the climax has been reached.

HERALD—* * * most amusing comedy, despite the fact that it is practically constructed to give Miss Moore a delightful part, and one which she does with her usual vivacity and fine acting.

JOURNAL—* * * Miss Moore's admirers will welcome her appearance in this picture, first of all because it tells rather an appealing story, in spite of its probabilities, and secondly, because it affords her a role that gives wide opportunities for the natural and hoydenish talents which she possesses.

TIMES-UNION—Colleen Moore's quaint personality, some amusing situations, and captions that are mirth-stirring and out of the ordinary make the play one worth while seeing; but it is not one that calls for any very serious consideration. * * *

"Phantom Justice"—F. B. O. Fay's, Rochester

HERALD—* * * an entertaining though theatrical story at the same time. * * *

"Polikushka"

Engineers' Hall, Cleveland

PRESS—The movie, * * * was made in Russia from a tale by Tolstoy, and is called "Polikushka." * * * if this reviewer were the only one who liked it, we would still say we have never seen a movie more real or more moving than "Polikushka."

"The Rendezvous"—Gold.-Cosmop. Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Although the picture is charming and highly entertaining, it lacks sincerity in some episodes.

NORTH AMERICAN—* * * The cast is an excellent one and every one of the players gives thoroughly fine and consistent portrayal.

Granada, San Francisco

(Week Ending Mar. 21)

BULLETIN—This latest product of Neilan is a disappointment and is ridiculous in the scenes introducing Sidney Chaplin, whose comedy would have been hilarious in the year 1900.

CALL AND POST—* * * proved to be one of the best productions made by this master of film technique.

CHRONICLE—The picture has compensating qualities, however. The Russian types and atmosphere are admirably depicted.

"Reno"—Gold.-Cosmop. Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * so skilfully blended is the moral lesson this director would have you learn with the cleverness which truth alone can impart to satire that it is only by enjoyment of the latter that you can benefit by the former—an ideal condition. * * *

HERALD—* * * why are unsuspecting innocents, out for a little frank entertainment, compelled to be preached at by authors, of the level of Rupert Hughes, motion picture directors, and producers. * * * For those contemplating divorce and for the naturally legally curious it is a fairly good review of the divorce laws of the various states. * * * As a sermon "Reno" is poor, as a picture, uninteresting.

JOURNAL—Rupert Hughes, * * * sets out to prove something or other about the evil of divorce. * * * At the beginning of the film one thinks that Mr. Hughes is in favor of the absolute abolition of all divorce. Later on, however, the picture seems to be more or less propaganda for a uniform divorce code. * * *

It is done in the usual Rupert Hughes manner, with careful direction, good backgrounds and a well chosen cast.

TIMES-UNION—It was planned for a box-office success, but we doubt whether it will achieve even that purpose, for it lacks real cleverness and is so flagrantly melodramatic toward its close as to become laughable.

"Secrets"—1st Nat'l Criterion, Los Angeles

(Run beginning March 20)

EXAMINER—For it is as an actress that Miss Talmadge shines in this play. The smaller arts of "stardom" have been forgotten in the sincere delineation of a role which, for scope of characterization and intensity of feeling, excels any other feminine portrayal on the silversheet. * * * Frank Borzage has handled the story with masterly direction. He has given it at once delicacy and a profound dramatic power.

TIMES—Indeed, it is one of the best that she has made during her entire experience, and is one of the most charming and appealing productions that has been offered this season. * * * The victory is Norma's throughout the film, though Frank Borzage will enhance his prestige immensely for the sentiment in his direction.

"The Unknown Purple"—Truart Karlton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * is an exciting mystery story that makes the blood tingle and gives the audience what is familiarly called "the creeps." * * * Mr. Walthall, as usual does his part exceedingly well, and somewhat redeems mediocre acting on the part of his associates.

"When A Man's A Man"—1st Nat'l Orpheum, Chicago

JOURNAL—The maker of the picture transferred to the serial snapshots atmosphere of place, the flavor of color and the strain of sentiment found printed page. That is exactly what one of Wright's million devotees would do, and that, too, is as it had to be the picture the magnet it is.

POST—This is a story in which is given all the spotlight. In fact, important characters are men, and the women really have very little to do in it.

TRIBUNE—Mr. Harold Bell Wright is responsible for the story is credited saying that the screen version is "exactly as I wrote it." * * * "Man's a Man" is fair entertainment. One shudders to think what less players might have done with the story.

"The White Sister"—Walnut, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—The dramatic material in "The White Sister" is a curious mixture of the trite and the novel, the lurid dramatic and the soundly artistic.

TIMES-STAR—For tense drama, finely acted amid scenes of unusual beauty and stunning realism, "The White Sister" takes first place among the new offerings of the week.

Adams, Detroit

NEWS—Lillian Gish has never been so emotional or quite so artistic as in "The White Sister." She is freed from the shackles of the sentimental Griffith and her cues from Henry King. * * * The part of her role is made to seem genuine. Much of the credit for this must go to the woman who handled the delicate subject matter so reverently.

TIMES—"The hand of Griffith"—If you want to fully appreciate what Lillian Gish is doing in "The White Sister," * * * Some of the mob scenes, especially the scenes showing the natives to escape when Vesuvius erupts, are thrillers.

American, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Here is a picture achievement that deserves to be commended the use of all the praise it is to bestow, for nothing finer has ever been shown on the screen.

POST-DISPATCH—Rome is seen in its moods, from the happy carefree in the street to the solemn pomp of the added attraction of tense emotion in the added ceremonial in the church. * * * as being by Lillian Gish.

STAR—Those women whose idea of a pleasant evening is to go to the theater and sob over the imaginary woes of the heroine have opportunity to revel in a genuine cinematic triumph. * * * "The White Sister" has not a competitor.

TIMES—A marvelous artistic triumph. "The White Sister," starring Lillian Gish at the American theater. * * * it ranks as the best offerings in the history of the screen.

The Shooting of Dan McGrew

Producer: Sawyer-Lubin
Distributor: Metro
As a Whole... S-E-X APPEAL IN LETTERS. A SURE BOX-OFFICE SUCCESS FROM AN UNUSUAL ANGLE. BUT NOT SO LONG FROM THE STANDPOINT OF WHOLESOME-NESS.
Barbara La Marr as the "Lady Lou" gives a highly sensual and voluptuous performance which lends her physical charms liberally for purposes of sex-appeal, of which she is "nothing else but." Her near-nakedness quite likely to offend the censored eyes of the censored boards. Lew Lew up to his usual devilish tricks. He has probably cut considerable scenes between Cody and Barbara. There is only about one left in which he attempts to seduce her and that's short. Marmont is her husband and George Seigmann would like to be the one. Busch hasn't a great deal to say about it.
Type of Story... Drama. Based on "The Spell of the Yukon" and other stories by Robt. W. Service. "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" offers a picture with its chief element of sex-appeal consisting undeniably of the lure of a physically attractive heroine, "the lady known as Lou." There is an acknowledged effort to offset this appeal with the hero's underlying devotion to her and her husband. Understand, she does not seduce herself as a lure but she achieves the results of her power to attract as a means to an end,—that of money for her husband and baby for them to better their living conditions. This is all more or less subterfuge and fails to disguise the intent of the theme. Regardless of camouflage the picture rests on one of sex appeal solely. It has been given a rather spectacular action, with interesting settings and a fine cast. The development is logical and the logic faulty.
Box Office Angle... Undoubtedly a picture to draw up for some exhibitors. You know what you can do with a sex appeal story. And this is it. You know what you can't do with a picture accordingly.
Exploitation... Barbara La Marr's physical charms have been exploited before. You may recall how she has been over in such of her previous pictures as "Jealous Husbands," "The Singing Women," "The Eternal Boy" and "Thy Name Is Woman" the latter playing on Broadway. The title in this case may be a bit of a stretch.
Production... Clarence Badger; sup-erb production; might have been a story more plausible at times.
Based on verses by Robt. Service.

"King Of Wild Horses"

Producer: Hal Roach
Distributor: Pathe

As a Whole... ONE OF THE FINEST HORSES EVER SEEN MAKES FILM REMARKABLE. PRACTICALLY ALL THE PLAYERS AND WESTERN ACTION JUST A BACKGROUND FOR THE ANIMAL'S WORK. GOOD THRILLS AND SOMETHING THEY WILL TALK ABOUT.
Cast... Rex, a beautiful, fine animal that is a delight whenever he is in the screen. Exhibits almost human intelligence and registers emotions so that his feelings are unmistakable to the spectator. Leon Bary does good work as the cow-puncher here but the entire cast is subordinated, and rightly, to the horse's work. The cast includes Charlie Chase, Pat Hartigan and Edna Murphy.
Type of Production... Different and interesting "outdoor" picture. Deals with chase and capture of a wild horse, the king of his tribe. How he eludes pursuer, a cowpuncher, for days, gets into a forest fire from which he is rescued by the man whom he then considers the lesser of the two evils, and thereafter serves him loyally in gratitude. Forms practically the first three reels and by far the best part of the picture. The balance deals with the troubles of a crippled rancher whose crooked foreman plans to steal horses and the way he is frustrated. There are numerous thrills and much fast action to please the western fans but it is the horse all the way through that holds one's sympathies and attention.
Box Office Angle... Here's one for the folks who want something "different" in the way of entertainment. It's in five reels which is all right for most neighborhood houses to use with a good program of supporting short reels.
Exploitation... You have something to talk about with this one. Promise the most wonderful pictures of a horse ever seen. Talk about thrills: the fight between Rex and a white horse who wants to steal the flock; the forest fire; the jump from cliff to cliff, once with a rider and once without; and the scene in the river. Show trailers of any of the chases. If you can get a fine looking black horse have him parade through the streets with a crown on his head and a placard across his saddle reading "I am Rex, the King of Wild Horses." See me at the blank theater."
Direction... Fred Jackson; excellent.
Author... Hal Roach
Scenario... Not credited Cameraman... Floyd Jackman
Photography... Good; some duplicate shots used
Locale... The West
Length... 5,000 feet.

"A Boy of Flanders"

Jackie Coogan in Producer: Jackie Coogan Prod.
Distributor: Metro

As a Whole... CHARMING AND PICTURESQUE STORY OF ORPHAN LAD OFFERS JACKIE ROLE WITH MANY OPPORTUNITIES. SURE TO DELIGHT HIS GREAT FOLLOWING
Star... A surely enjoyable youngster with a marvelously expressive little face. Gives an admirable performance and is at his best when playing on his own.
Cast... All suitable. Includes Nigel de Brulier, Lionel Belmore, little Jean Carpenter and others. Teddy a truly wonderful dog.
Type of Story... Drama. "A Boy of Flanders" presents the inimitable Jackie in a picture unique in atmosphere and charming in story. It also gives the young star a fine variety of opportunities to display his pantomimic versatility to a splendid degree. He has a wonderfully expressive little face and a bag of trick mannerisms that never fail to win an audience. And he uses them all to good advantage here. There is only one fault to be found and that is where they don't let Jackie "be himself." He's still a boy and shouldn't be given old man stunts to do. The production is excellent. There are any number of picturesque settings, all pictorially attractive. The story is interestingly told and contains effective heart interest touches. Jackie is an orphan boy in Flanders. The early reels are devoted (perhaps too extensively since the picture runs pretty long) to showing the hardships the lad encounters in spite of his kindly disposition. His winning of the art prize and adoption by a famous artist brings about the usual happy ending.
Box Office Angle... Very good. Should do splendid business. You know what you can do with Jackie's name so it's up to you to go after it. Plenty for you to talk about and should go big.
Exploitation... Tell them that in "Long Live the King" Jackie was a Prince who was troubled by too much riches and that in "A Boy of Flanders" he's an orphan starving to death for lack of riches. Promise them a picturesque number and play up the atmosphere of Holland so attractively pictured. Show them a trailer of any of the scenes with Jackie and the dog. Use stills lavishly and have a youngster dressed to resemble Jackie, in Dutch costume and wooden shoes, going about distributing throwaways.
Direction... Victor Schertzinger; very good but picture runs a little too long.
Author... Louis De La Rame, adapted by Marion Jackson
Scenario... Walter Anthony
Cameramen... Frank Good and Robt. Martin
Photography... Excellent
Locale... Holland
Art Director... J. J. Hughes
Length... 7,018 feet.

Norma Talmadge in
"Secrets"

Asso. First National

As a Whole... THE FINEST BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION NORMA HAS HAD IN A LONG TIME. SURE FIRE FOR WOMEN AND LIKELY TO BE RECORDED AS ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES OF THE SEASON.
Star... Never better. Will delight her fan audience completely. Gives a characterization which will stand for a long time. At times she is a delight; and she is always compelling and sincere.
Support... Eugene O'Brien again her lover, and later her husband. Gives his usual excellent performance. They make a great team. George Nichols the usual good father; Gertrude Astor striking in the little she has to do; others unimportant.
Type of Story... A charming love story which your women folks will "love." It tells how, in reviewing her long married career Norma, through the reminder of her diary, portrays all she has gone through with her husband; from the early days when as a girl she was kept under lock and key away from him; the elopement, their life on the American prairies; how she saves his life; his latter success and his confession of his affairs with other women, but always loving her, with a conclusion which satisfies. This meagre outline fails to do justice to the story and its treatment. As a picture "Secrets" is far better than the stage play, and it was a big hit in London and New York. Much of this success is due to the scenario so ably prepared by Frances Marion and the "touches" which Frank Borzage adds.
Box Office Angle... This one is "in" no matter from what angle you look at it. Norma is her old self; the story is A-1 and for the average fan crowd this should be a great success.
Exploitation... So many excellent opportunities to put this over you need only use but one—tell your people Norma is better in "Secrets" than she has appeared in any of her many recent pictures. You will have to go a long way back to find a picture in which she has so much appeal. Bank on Norma to the utmost but don't overlook using Frank Borzage's name and tell them he has made a picture as rich in its human touches as "Humoresque"—they'll all remember that one.
Direction... Frank Borzage; his fine touches noticeable often. A finely directed picture.
Authors... Rudolph Besier and May Edginton.
Scenario by... Frances Marion
Cameraman... Tony Gaudio
Photography... Excellent. Night shots better than any ever seen.
Art Director... Stephen Gossoon

'Hoosier Schoolmaster'

Producer: Whitman Bennett
Distributor: Hodkinson

Whole...CONTAINS GOOD ACTION, INTERESTING UNTAINEER CHARACTERS AND PLEASING ROMANCE THAT SHOULD GIVE SUITABLE AUDIENCE APPEAL.

Henry Hull not an especially imposing hero although he measures up to requirements usually of his conquests, particularly when he is victor in a fight in which he has about twenty-five against him are not convincing.

Thomas good as the "bound girl who falls in love with the schoolmaster. Good character bits contributed by Mary Foy, Dorothy, Nat Pendleton, O. W. Hall, and Ludwig.

Type of Story.....Drama. "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," deals with an old-fashioned, country school teacher in which the teacher made rounds of the various homes, taking part of his remuneration in food and lodging. In this case, the locale is Indiana and the time, about ten years before the Civil War. In the little town into which a new teacher comes, there is a mystery surrounding certain robberies that have been occurring. It is easy to fasten the guilt on the newcomer. The plot becomes a series of attempts to put the blame on the hero, of varied attempts to deal with punishment without the formal procedure of a trial. This includes many good bits of action in the way of fights and attacks in which hero gets only the support of two or three against great odds—those who believe him guilty. Woven in there is a fine amount of detail characteristic of the small town tale, their methods and manner of living. There is also a pleasing antic element and enough genuine audience appeal to make it a satisfying entertainment. There is a great deal of suspense in the development but since the picture is short and the director has wasted footage in reaching a climax, it does not really drag.

Box Office Angle....A good average number. Effective small town atmosphere and characteristic rural scenes, plus some satisfying action sequences make it entertaining.

Exploitation.....A good title and would be easy to get them interested. Have a tall, rather ill-proportioned and conspicuous man, dressed after the fashion of the old schoolmaster, going about the streets prior to your announcements. When they've all had a chance to see him and wonder what he represents, flash the title with lines: "Have you seen 'The Hoosier Schoolmaster.' He's in town. Stopping at the blank theater." Throw-aways printed in the bottom of slates will get attention.

Cast.....Oliver Sellers; good character.....Edward Eggleston; Cameraman.....E. Stuyvesant; Cameraman.....Edward Paul; Photography.....Good; Locale.....Indiana; Length.....About 5,500

"The Next Corner"

Paramount

As a Whole...NOWHERE NEAR ENOUGH TO THIS STORY TO WARRANT THE FOOTAGE THAT HAS BEEN EXPENDED UPON IT. SLOW, DRAGGY DEVELOPMENT AND POOR DIRECTION GENERALLY.

Cast....A first rate company practically gone to waste. All allowed to do a lot of meaningless standing around. Conway Tearle an over-impassive and far too complacent husband and Dorothy Mackaill pleasing when she happens to strike a bit that suits her personality. Not suited to the role given her on the whole and why they ever rigged her out in such freak fashion in one sequence is past comprehension. Her costuming and make-up are both impossible. Lon Chaney's great ability completely lost in this. Others Ricardo Cortez, Louise Dresser, Dorothy Cumming.

Type of Story...Domestic drama with the inevitable eternal triangle the basic theme. In a story that might have served well, Director Sam Wood has produced a weak, meaningless picture, which drags from the start. It would seem that Wood didn't realize that he had a poor scenario to start with and failed to appreciate the very draggy development, even after he had gotten well under way. Once Elsie Maury commits the indiscretion of being a party to an unchaperoned week-end affair, she strives, in a series of tedious episodes, to keep the knowledge of it from her husband and lives in constant dread of the arrival of a letter which she had written him containing a confession of her act, but which had never reached him. There is a constant dickering about whether or not she should keep on with her husband, tell him the truth or leave him. This arbitrary business consumes most of the footage and a great quantity of the spectator's patience, before the usual clinch.

Box Office Angle.....Won't hold your patrons. It's too slow moving and there are no compensating features to make up for it.

Exploitation.....You can't make promises for it. If you care to capitalize on names you have those of several prominent players that will undoubtedly attract many. Use those of Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney and Dorothy Mackaill. Catchlines will give an idea of the story and stills can be given the usual display. You might say that the story deals with a young wife's mistake and her husband's forgiveness. Your women folks will let it by, more readily than the men.

Direction.....Sam Wood; not what it should be and very poor in spots.

"His Darker Self"

Producer: Albert E. Grey
Distributor: Hodkinson

As a Whole...HAS SOME FIRST RATE COMEDY SITUATIONS THAT AFFORD FINE LAUGHS BUT THERE IS REALLY NOT ENOUGH TO IT FOR A FEATURE.

Star....Repeats many of his previous gags especially in the opening reels but gets into some new stunts in the black face sequence later on. Not likely to pull enough laughs, however, to keep him in feature comedies.

Cast.....Tom Wilson and Tom O'Malley both good in black face roles; Lucille La Verne good, Irma Harrison pretty, and others Edna May Sperl, Sally Long, Kate Bruce, Warren Cook.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama. Lloyd Hamilton, who has contributed many thoroughly fine short reel comedies, was selected to play the black-face role in this combination "black and white" comedy. D. W. Griffith had intended making it with Al Jolson until Jolson decided otherwise. "His Darker Self," is a fair enough bright, original comedy but it too often drifts into a line of old gags that have been done time and again and have lost their power to draw laughs. If Hamilton, and his director had stuck to the darkey comedy business they would have had a genuinely fine picture. In these sequences dealing with the colored cabaret, the christening in the river, and other pertinent incidents, the film is at its best but they revert, every so often, to a side line of drama that brings a lull in the laughs and the two elements, in this case, do not mix properly. The titles are rather numerous though usually quite funny, especially the little parodies such as: "Sing a song of six pence a hip-pocket full of rye, four and twenty blackbirds pickled to the eye."

Box Office Angle....This will undoubtedly please most audiences if they really want to be amused but it is not quite as continuously funny as it should be. The dramatic angle of it could be toned down and bring out the comedy business to better advantage.

Exploitation....Where your patrons are familiar with Lloyd Hamilton and his two reel comedy offerings you can do some extra talking by telling them that he is appearing in his first feature comedy. "His Darker Self." Show them a trailer of the darkey comedy sequence and count on it bringing them in. The only thing is they're likely to be disappointed that there isn't more of it. This is the picture that D. W. Griffith intended to make with Al Jolson until the latter backed out of the contract.

Direction....Jack Noble; satisfactory although the laughs should have been kept closer together.

William S. Hart in
"Singer Jim McKee"

Paramount

As a Whole.....HART A FAR BETTER ACTOR THAN AUTHOR. HIS LATEST STORY A SICKLY SENTIMENTAL AND SOFT AFFAIR THAT GIVES STAR TOO MUCH MUSHING AND TOO LITTLE ACTION.

Star....Should get back to the "wide open spaces" as quickly as some author can get him there. May please his loyal following in this sort of picture but those who want the fightin' Bill Hart of old won't think much of this kind of business.

Cast.....Phyllis Haver good except when she cries. Then all she does is open her mouth wide. Edward Coxen and William Dyer the villains in the case and others Gordon Russell, Bert Sprotte, Ruth Miller, George Seigmann, Baby Turner.

Type of Story.....Drama. Perhaps Bill Hart wants to show his versatility or maybe it's because he likes sentimental roles. At any rate "Singer Jim McKee," while it gives the star unlimited opportunities for heroics and acts of sacrifice, is overburdened with sentiment. Hart plays around with baby booties, caresses his partner after the latter knocks him down, fondles a parrot, a calf and what-not, besides any number of loving scenes which he goes through as part of his devotion to the girl to whom he plays foster-father. And on several occasions he has the girl's chum as well to share in the kisses. The action bits are by far in the minority and there is little else in the film that puts the star in the atmosphere in which he belongs. His saddle and horse are sadly neglected in "Singer Jim McKee." Naturally there is a romantic ending with Bill marrying his adopted child though according to the lapse of time he must be much more than twice as old as she is.

Box Office Angle....Do your folks like Bill Hart well enough to stand for him in the role of a love-sick man or will they be disappointed because he doesn't give them the sort of picture they expect? You'll have to take this into consideration.

Exploitation....You can't boost this as a typical Bill Hart western. It isn't. The only thing western about it is the location, the sheriff and one or two holdups. If you know the star has a loyal following you'll stand a better chance of pleasing them. Use stills showing Hart in an apron. You might use a trailer showing Bill's escape from the sheriff, his fight with the circus man, etc. Use pictures of Phyllis Haver, his leading lady.

Direction....Clifford S. Smith; fair; should have toned down the sentimental and gushing touches.

Short Subjects

"Wolfe and Montcalm"—Chronicles of America—Pathe

Good Number of Fine Series

Type of production

3 reel historical subject

Dealing with the struggle between the British and the French for supremacy in North America, this latest episode in the "Chronicles of America" series brings clearly before the spectator's mind and eye the manner in which this event took place. Included in the picture is the battle of the Plains of Abraham preceding the fall of Quebec. In spite of the comparatively small number of extras used, the spirit of the battle is excellently gotten over and the interest very nicely sustained. The landing of the British at dawn at the foot of the cliffs upon which the town was situated, the scaling of these almost impassable cliffs in absolute silence, the surprise of the French and their final surrender together with the death of the British commander, Wolfe, are all well depicted.

"Bargain Day"—Cameo-Educational

Average Short Reel

Type of production... 1 reel comedy

Featuring Sid Smith, Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance, this one, as the title indicates, has to do with the angry hordes that infest a department store on bargain day. If seeing a man continually being jammed into an elevator and stepped on time after time is some folks' idea of amusement—then this will amuse. Sid Smith is the injured party. One sure laugh is incorporated in "Bargain Day," however. It occurs when Bowes who has been employed as a demonstrator in the store gets all mussed up demonstrating cooking utensils and is told to get cleaned up. He proceeds to take a bath in a "model" bathroom which is on display and the crowds gather in front of it thinking he is demonstrating the way it works.

Pathe Review No. 14

Especially Good Number

Type of production... 1 reel magazine

Opening with a pictorial interpretation of Arthur Chapman's poem, "The Man the Desert Got," going from that to a subject showing how Japanese umbrellas are made and decorated, thence to a very cute bit showing Allene Ray and two little love birds that are her pets, and finally ending with a colored bit showing scenes in "The Land of the Moslems," this is a highly diverting number of Pathe's Weekly Review.

"Killing Time"—Hamilton—Educational

Good Average Comedy

Type of production 2 reel comedy

Lloyd Hamilton starts in this by being a milkman and finishes by teaching table manners to a newly-rich oil magnate, formerly a sheep herder. Those who enjoy Hamilton's type of humor will doubtless like him in whatever he does and will find "Killing Time" very amusing. The action is more diversified than usual in Hamilton's comedies. The plot or theme isn't very well defined, being content to just ramble along. There are one or two very funny stunts, particularly one sequence in which Hamilton endeavors to eat oysters with his knife, and the finish is a wild jumble of excitement when a live wire slides down his back and everyone he touches becomes "electrified," too. Not as funny as some he has made, but still amusing.

"Dusty Dollars"—Cameo—Educational

Moderately Amusing and Entertaining

Type of production... 1 reel comedy

Here's a pleasant little comedy, not hilariously funny but moderately entertaining. Virginia Vance, Cliff Bowes and Sid Smith are the featured players. The girl's father owns a curiosity shop where nothing is ever sold. Bowes is the stupid clerk in the shop and Sid Smith is the lover who devises a plan to get business. He marks every article in the store No. 6 and then drops fake telegrams around advising that Captain Kid's treasure is hidden in article No. 6 in the curiosity shop. It works in great shape and all the things are sold. There is a surprise ending that is sure to please.

"Friend Husband"—Hal Roach—Pathe

Usual Snub Pollard Stuff

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

Snub Pollard is seen as a soldier who has the reputation of being crazy because he picks up every piece of paper around the barracks, looks at it and throws it away, saying "That's not it." Finally he is given his discharge. He clutches it gayly, saying "Hurrah, that's it!" That should give them a laugh at the beginning. The rest of the film deals with Snub's efforts to get away from a wife who has a wallop in each hand and a flock of relatives who let the husband support them. The final fade-out sees Snub back in the army and glad of it. Fairly good comedy.

"The Fly"—Principal—Educational

Instructive—Educational—Beneficial

Type of production... 2 reel biological study.

In bringing to the screen this extremely comprehensive study of the house fly, Louis Tolhurst, the producer, says by means of an opening sub-title that having made the picture for entertainment purposes, many repellent facts concerning the insect have been suppressed. Nevertheless, as the picture unfolds, many of the facts shown are sufficient to cause impressionable people to swat every fly that afterwards crosses their path. And this is a very good thing for the general health of any community.

By means of powerful microscopes the insect's anatomy is shown in most minute detail—the eyes, composed of thousands of lenses and the wings and feet which carry millions of bacilli and pollute everything they touch. A very instructive and beneficial short reel.

"Seein' Things"—Our Gang—Pathe

Little Farina Steals Lloyd's Stuff

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

Here's where the "Gang" steals Harold Lloyd's thunder. Director MacGowan has little Farina climbing a la Lloyd up the side of a sky scraper, looking down at the traffic way below her, walking out to the edge of a plank extending from one of the windows and otherwise bringing the spectator's heart into his mouth. Besides the fact that Farina is the leading light of the picture, it is crammed full of the sort of things that have made the "Our Gang" comedies the most popular short reels on the market today. The kids have a "barbecue" in a vacant lot. The chicken is roasted with its feet still on. Farina is an unbidden guest at the feast and they won't let her in on the party, so she stamps her feet in a mud-puddle and splashes the chicken all full of mud. We don't have to tell you not to miss this one.

"Birds of Passage"—Pathe

Interesting Bird Study

Type of production, 2 reel educational

Photographed by Dr. Bengt Berg, a Swedish ornithologist, this short reel deals with the annual migration of birds from northern countries to the banks of the River Nile in Egypt. There are close-ups of many varieties of birds that are almost unknown to us here, as well as some lovely shots of huge flocks rising from the ground and in flight. The pyramids of Egypt form interesting backgrounds for many of the scenes. An interesting and instructive reel.

A Prophecy

By DANNY

About eighteen months ago Joe Schenck voiced an idea. It was his belief that for the best interests of the accepted admitted stars with box office drawing power that there should be a unification of these individuals. It was his belief that practically none of the more important productions of these stars received the runs that they were entitled to in the more important cities of this country. It was his belief that there would be developed in the more important cities of this country theaters which would insure longer runs for the product of these stars.

EVOLUTION

This is a business of marked and rapid changes. Much has happened since Schenck voiced his idea. But much more promises to happen in the somewhat early future. One might easily dream this:

That there will come into being such an organization as Schenck prophesied. Big people with big interests naturally gravitate together. The most important stars in this business have much in common. That they have already discussed these problems is undeniable. This of course in an unofficial way. Harold Lloyd and Cecil DeMille are very close friends. Douglas Fairbanks and Joe Schenck are very close friends. Harold Lloyd and Joe Schenck are very close friends. Charlie Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks meet very often. And so it goes. One can easily see how their mutual desires could easily be a matter of discussion when they meet.

THOSE CONTRACTS

Of course existing distributing contracts, all of which will be completed, make it difficult for the development of any matter at the moment. Harold Lloyd however has approximately but a year to go to complete his Pathe contract and Schenck's contract with First National need of necessity not run much more than a year. And with these stars in the open do not be surprised if they happen to become identified with the same organization which distributes the productions of Mary, Doug and Chaplin.

It's a very natural development.

No Compromise

New York Exhibitors and Hays Office Deadlocked Over Davison Repeal Bill

The M. P. T. O. of New York and the T. O. C. C. have failed to reach any agreement with the Hays office regarding the workability of the Davison bill which, as noted, would abolish the M. P. Commission in New York State and hold exhibitors accountable for the showing of indecent films by strengthening of the present penal code.

Following the initial meeting at the Astor on Friday, another was held at the Hays office Saturday morning. This was followed by an exhibitor conference later that afternoon. In view of the fact that the Legislature is expected to adjourn on April 10, the need for speedy action became apparent. Therefore, following the address of Will H. Hays at the Naked Truth dinner on Saturday night, a special meeting composed of Hays, Courtland Smith, Charles C. Pettijohn and an exhibitor committee of five was held.

The exhibitor opinion seems to be divided. Many feel that aside from the fact that the Davison bill would increase the fine for a misdemeanor from $2,500 to $5,000, it would also make it possible to introduce injunction proceedings that might eventually result in padlocking the doors of New York State theaters. The interest of the Hays office in the matter is understood to be born of the belief that it is only through such a compromise measure as the Davison bill that censorship in this state can be lifted. It is for that reason that the measure is favored.

The exhibitor stand, now that matters are deadlocked, is somewhat indefinite. Sam Berman, secretary of the state unit, will be in Albany this afternoon as will Charles L. O'Reilly of the T. O. C. C. They want to be on hand to watch developments closely.

Senator James J. Walker has introduced a repealer in the Senate but whether or not it can pass the Assembly is a grave question. In view of what is believed to be the attitude of Assembly leaders, this is highly problematical.

That Party

Saturday night was a real one. The "Who's Who" was there in force. Everyone had a lot of fun, what with dinner, entertainment and dancing.

Plans to picturize the "Outline of History," are being completed by J. R. Bray, now in London. Brayco, Inc., is the name of the producing company.

Part of the "Outline" will be made in England, but the bulk of it will be made here. In conjunction with the production, arrangements will be made to photograph specially selected scenes for use on the Brayco, a new type of projector designed to show "still" pictures on the screen instead of the old-fashioned and cumbersome glass slides, which it is predicted will revolutionize the visual education and home entertainment field.

The story will thus be shown in both "still" and motion pictures and will be available for use by theaters or for the home or classroom in either form.

In The Courts

An application has been filed in the Supreme Court by Hunter P. Lovelace in a suit against the New York M. P. Corp., for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the assets Lovelace stated that he is acting for stockholders and directors and that of the 10,000 shares of stock 9,000 were owned by the Triangle Film which Lovelace has acquired. He states that the assets include a contract made in January 1923, with Oscar Price, Inc., for the distribution of 65 films. He stated that Triangle has paid $33,900 to New York Motion Picture, on account of the contract.

In a suit by Bernard Kaminsky against Harry Mishkin for $5,000 damages on the ground that the defendant got $1,000 from him for a half interest in his business by false representations. The defendant consented to judgment for $1,000. The plaintiff said that Mishkin represented that he was a film expert and owned certain picture rights from which he received $100 a week. The plaintiff said the statements were false.

Two judgments have been filed in the City Court by C. J. O'Brien, Inc., against the Film Bulletin Corporation for printing. One is for $1689 and one for $2055.

 testified that in 1919, when he was manager of the house in Greenville, the Garing theater was burned. He denied that when the Garing, operated by Martin May and Joel, burned he went to Oscar Hodges, owner of the property, and bid against Joel and May for the lease. This procedure had been laid to Crovo in previous testimony.

W. R. Lynch, brother of S. A. Lynch, who preceeded Crovo on the stand, denied that while engaged by Southern Enterprises in Dallas he had used unethical methods in acquiring additional theaters. He said that he never went to a town to look at a theater unless someone in the town had requested him to do so.

Mrs. W. M. Kimbrough, an exhibitor at Greensboro, Ga., where she operates the Greenland, testified that Famous Players exchange never forces her to buy any pictures she does not desire. George R. Allison, Southern manager for Fox testified that exhibitors who patronize his exchange desire to buy films in blocks. He stated he sells pictures in blocks and finds no difficulty in disposing of them.

When cross-examined by Chief Counsel Fuller he said he didn't remember admitting to a government investigator in 1920 that the acquisition of theaters by Southern Enterprises had substantially reduced his film earnings. On redirect testimony he denied having made such an admission.

A. C. Bromberg, president of Bromberg Attractions was on the stand Saturday.

looks, from the way Mrs. Deneker likes to get into bed early at night, as though I was going to have a lot of time on my hands evenings (hot dog). Well, as I said, I'm enroute to Paris and we gets to a place in the mountains that the conductor tells me what sounds like Modane in the Carbone Alps and its just coming around to day light when a guy sticks his head in the compartment door (how he ever found room to get his head in I don't know) and yells “customs” and out I got to git and let the pirates look through my trunk.

Now I ain't bought a thing over here I'm ashamed of, but the way those guys can turn your stuff up side down is a miracle.

He passes Mrs. Deneker's trunk without a whimper and God knows there's stuff in there no one knows what it's used for and then he comes to my trunk. Well before we gets to Modane there is a slip of paper give us which is to be filled in with your name and age and the kind of business your in and I fills mine out thus.

Name—Clem Deneker
 Home—Pneumonia, Nevada
 “ —Exzema, Utah
 “ —Erysipilis, Nevada
 “ —Hives, California

Business—Motion Picture Exhibitor
 Age—48. Exhibition value 45

Like a fool I put the kind of business I'm in which is what must of set him against me for he took every-out of my trunk down to the bottom and suddenly he come across a bunch of old press books I been carrying for sort of ballast and he took them and rushed over and showed them to the boss who came back and said some thing in French which was pretty hot I guess and then he took the press books and handed them over to a policeman and I never did get them back. I guess its against the law to take them into France.

Our train stayed so long at Modane I got to thinking may be it was as far as it went, but finally the engine which worked like it had asthma got going again and here I am on my way to the town of surprise.

Mrs. Deneker did some shopping at Venice. She bought some Venetian mirrors, but so far I can't see a damn thing in them I can't see in American ones.

Mrs. Deneker once had an uncle who was a wonderful swimmer and who came to Venice to get a job as traffic cop in the Grand Canal. I don't know how he made out. Any how I'm off Venice. If you can't swim you can't get anywheres. I'd starve to death running a movie house here and swimming down to work every day. Not me.

So long till Paris. Hot Skirts.

HAYS

By DANNY

For many years the leaders of business have been subject to many attacks. They have been charged with many failings; from lack of foresight to lack of imagination. They have been charged with so many faults, and so few virtues, that it seems incredible that they should retain control of an industry so huge, so vast in its importance, if any of these charges were true.

Yesterday they again proved the charges to be silly. Yesterday again they demonstrated their farsightedness and usual wisdom—they re-elected Will Hays to head their organization for a period of three more years.

Hays' present contract did not expire until a year from now. There was no apparent reason why, at this time, the contract should be renewed. But there was a reason—a mighty strong reason and a powerfully good reason why the contract should have been renewed: that Will Hays has done, is doing, and will do far more for this industry to allow him to contemplate—given for a moment—changing his activities to some other field.

It is a long way off. Many things may occur in this business by the time the contract expires. It may be that the industry will be in such splendid, healthy condition, that neither Hays, nor anyone, will be needed to steer the ship safely. Perhaps the shoal waters will have passed. Perhaps the business—what a great business it is—will be set. But if by chance this has not occurred, the finest part of the industry will be this: that Hays may be prevailed upon to stay longer.

It is a matter of sincere congratulation to all involved. It was a fine piece of work—first to land Hays—then to keep him.

Doug paid a gallant tribute to Mary telling her faithfully she worked starting in the studio at 8.30 A. M. He said the only relief they had in Hollywood was seeing pictures, and their only dissipation when they came to New York.

Among the other speakers were Rupert Hughes; Arnold Daly, Sophie Irene Loeb, Beatrice Fairfax, Wilton Lackaye and Saul Rogers of Fox Film who attributed the success of the two to the "sheer force of their artistry." He declared that Doug was "the Peter Pan of the screen" and Mary "the embodiment of romance."

Competitive Firms Testify Paramount Didn't Bottle Up Atlanta Territory

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Atlanta—Further testimony in- troduced by counsel for Famous Players at the Government hearing here indicated that competitive firms found the Atlanta territory free and open. R. A. Davis, manager of the exchange which distributes Preferred pictures here, and J. J. The testimony of E. F. Boyd, an exhibitor of Adel, Ga., to the effect that Famous tried to force him to use Paramount pictures was contradicted when R. B. Wilbanks, booker for the Paramount exchange in Atlanta, took the stand for the defense. Boyd had testified last summer, when he ap-

Here I am right in the middle of the Mediterranean Sea and I'm so cold I couldn't analyse a bottle of soda pop. Beside which my face is so bruised up at sleeping on iron pillows I can't even laugh at my own smart cracks.

Boy, it's cold.

We left Algiers in the middle of a snow storm and they told us its the first one they had in 35 years. It sure waited a long time to get us. Anvhow, the closer we get to the tropics the colder it gets, so all I can figure out is that we went through the wrong channel at Gibraltar and got into the Arctic sea. It wouldn't

Extending Activity

Hays Organization to Keep a Watchful Eye on Conditions Affecting Industry All Around the World

One of the matters which came into discussion at the annual meeting of the directors of the Hays organiza- tion Monday was the extension of the activities of that body into foreign fields.

Various problems affecting Ameri- can producers and distributors are constantly arising in foreign lands. Only a few months ago there was a difficulty in Mexico which needed at- tention and which was straightened out to the satisfaction of the Ameri- can companies. Certain foreign coun- tries have in effect censorship laws or other ordinances affecting the show- ing of pictures and if present plans are carried out the Hays office will keep watch on these matters and where necessary step into protect the interests of the American producers.

The council of the Authors' League of America will hold a meeting today to discuss certain clauses embodied in the Dallinger copyright bill, in- troduced in the House of Representa- tives at Washington on March 24.

The bill has the backing of the Hays office and while it is stated by members of the Hays committee handling copyright that Dallinger's measure is not designed expressly to safeguard picture producers, it does include certain matters which pro- ducers feel will protect their product in all English-speaking countries. The bill was prepared with the aid of Ar- thur Weil, counsel for the Hays com-

The measure will pass on to the Senate floor and inasmuch as those opposed to the repeal have voted for it in Committee no trouble is expect- ed there. Later the bill will go to the Conference Committee where re- adjustments will occur. Adolphe Osso, managing director of Societe Anonyme Francaise des Films Paramount, the Paramount distributing unit in France, is here for a conference with E. E. Shauer, regarding plans for distribution next year. He will return to Paris in April.

"Perhaps the most encouraging feature in the French film industry today is the increased interest being shown by the more progressive exhibitors in exploitation," said Osso yesterday. "Quite a few of our best known exhibitors have taken up picture exploitation with a considerable degree of success, and their success is encouraging others to plan greater activity in this respect."

Osso said one of the helps in bringing about this interest was the run of "The Covered Wagon" in Paris.

I congratulate you and other producers of quality motion pictures upon the forthcoming advent into the motion picture industry of a neutral physical distribution which will serve to cut the present excessive cost of distributing good pictures.

This neutral physical distribution will operate on a flat service charge per booking. It will materially increase the number of days each print plays. It will eliminate "miss-outs." It will wipe out "bicycling" of prints, and that pernicious practice known as "back door booking." And the very life of prints will be lengthened by guaranteed inspection, regardless of the price or importance of the booking served.

Collection will be made by this neutral physical distributor. Immediate cash will be realized on every play. And producer's net will be remitted to him direct by the physical distributor.

PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING GUILD, INC., will operate no "branch exchanges," but, functioning as a highly specialized motion picture merchandising agency, will maintain 30 or more SALES OFFICES in principal cities. These offices will be manned by high-powered salesmen who, freed of physical distribution responsibilities and annoyances, will devote themselves exclusively to intensive selling; and they will be reinforced by adequate quotas of national newspaper advertising and exploitation. A booking clerk in each sales office will cooperate closely with the neutral physical distributor.

The commission scale under which PRODUCERS DISTRIBUTING GUILD, INC., will operate will encourage production of pictures of the finest magnitude instead of penalizing them as does the present faulty system of distribution.

Yours very truly,

President.

surprise me if I bumped into some company making a sequel to Nanook.

The passengers is getting up a petition to the captain to go north from here and may be find a nice day. They are also asking him to change the name of the boat from the Tuscania to the Toughcania in honor of the meat.

They served us chicken last night, and if it wasn't eagle I'm not the judge of fowls I thought. And god knows I been booking them long enough to know a foul when I see it, let alone eat it.

Mrs. Deneker wasn't feeling well last night at Algiers and me and a couple a other suckers from the boat went ashore and we hired a guide to take us around. Oh, boy. I can't write all the stuff I saw but as I will be home in April me and you and that guy Alicoate and the doctor who owns that bank, will get together.

By the way, I had to have a little dough when I got to Algiers and all I did was to mention Dr. Gianini's name, and hand out my dough and I got anything I wanted, Nothing like influence.

If Valentino ever saw the sheiks at Tunis he'd take to making other kind of pictures.

Mrs. Deneker was walking down the street of Camels in Cairo and she sees about a million Turks in a bunch. Being curious she walked over to the crowd and who is it they are looking at but Hope Hampton. Hope is looking prettier than ever, and boy them Turks was following her around like a lot of indians. We talked to Mr. Brulatour and his wife and they said they had a wonderful time too, like we did, except they didn't have no good food and it was cold.

About the movie houses in Monte Carlo. They don't do so good. The people there play roulette or dominoes or some of the other games till they are broke then go down to the movie house and panhandle their way in.

I guess I won't start no circuit here like I was thinking about doing, but which I didn't say nothing about before I left Pneumonia for fear someone would beat me to it. I don't care who does it. In fact, I'm going to try to get my opposition to come over here and open.

This will be all for this time. I will write you from Naples if I ain't starved to death when I get there.

Best ever,

Newspaper Opinions

New York

"Three Weeks"—Gold.-Cosmop. Capitol

AMERICAN—* * * From a technical standpoint "Three Weeks" leaves little to be desired in the way of photography and production. The sets are beautiful, and so is the scenery. As for the romance, it is there all right. "Three Weeks" is going to have its followers. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * See "Three Weeks" if you must, but don't say I sent you.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * Elinor Glyns' best-seller of thirteen years ago, filmed, one is assured, under her own supervision, is a sensationally sentimental affair on the screen. * * * a picture that will undoubtedly have a tremendous box-office pull. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * And we're all due for a great disappointment. * * *

* * * we thought we were going to see a real naughty picture. Instead we saw a beautifully mounted picture very well acted by Conrad Nagel and Aileen Pringle. * * * Goldwyn, who produced it, and Alan Crosland, who directed, have cause to be right proud of their efforts and work.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * Is "Three Weeks" the story which thrilled and shocked the world a short twenty years ago? If so, the world has changed, for we are quite sure the picture * * * would never shock anybody—not even a set of parents. My, but it is a cold and proper piece, * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * will surely meet with the approval of a large number of those who read the book. * * * this photo-play may look forward to a prosperous career, for there are many who will be pleased, and entertained at the proceedings. * * *

POST—* * * the story has been followed carefully. Most of the material is pretty stage-worn stuff, but it has been dressed up in such glittering garments and given so elaborate a screening that it passes for fairly pleasant entertainment.

But when you come down to production itself, that's something else again. The people in the large cast handle their parts very capable; the continuity and direction are both of the highest class, and the settings and costumes are artistic and in good taste. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * Aileen Pringle in the leading role, is a comparative newcomer in pictures. She appears as the Queen, with Conrad Nagel as the young Englishman. There is a big cast of famous names who "carry on" to bring the story to its natural culmination. * * *

TIMES—* * * has all the fantastic flavor of her red-covered book. * * * The story is * * * well produced and the acting suits the narrative.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * The famous sex novel was filmed eight years ago and staterighted. This time it is a more legitimate production, a finer cast and far more intelligent—though not as ravishing—direction. * * *

"Three Weeks" is a good picture and will stand the scrutiny of those who come * * * panting and hungry for the famed spice of the story. * * *

WORLD—* * * It is a juicy mess. In the movies they have not yet struck upon the Avery Hopwood device for making bedroom plays entertaining. * * *

* * * It is one of those things which the films must get out of their systems sooner or later. * * *

Out-of-Town

"The Leavenworth Case"—Vitagraph Rialto, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—The production is peppered with thrilling incidents aside from the murder, such as a fist fight on the edge of a roof. The cast has been generally well chosen * * *

"Little Johnny Jones"—Warners' Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Lively comedy, juvenile drama, and some typical Cohanesque touches of flag-waving are the principal elements of "Little Johnny Jones."

TIMES-STAR—* * * a highly diverting, wholesome comedy, with a dash of melodrama, and a whale of a racing scene.

"Love's Whirlpool"—Hodkinson Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—"Love's Whirlpool," * * * is an interesting story, exceptionally well acted.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * is frankly melodramatic.

STAR—* * * sets out to be a crook melodrama, and as long as it is, it is effective and interesting, but toward the end it tapers off into tearful speculations about souls and hereafter.

TIMES—With plenty of material for an interesting story, there have been enough melodramatic touches to spoil it. One inelegant word "sloppy," best describes the slush.

"The Man From Brodney's"—Vita. Scollay Sq., Olympia, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—For a sample of stock melodrama, "The Man from Brodney's" is perhaps worth seeing. Outside of a certain archaeological interest in watching for the reappearance of time-honored dodges, however, there is little to recommend it.

Gifts, Cincinnati

DAILY TIMES STAR—* * * moves on from one climax to another, providing entertainment that really entertains. Romance? Yes. Thrills? Certainly. What more could a person ask?

ENQUIRER—* * * a thrilling film for a thrill-loving public, and as such makes pleasing diversion.

Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * may be said to be as implausible as fiction of a decade ago, and as entertaining. * * * You will undoubtedly find pleasant entertainment in "The Man From Brodney's." It is as breezy and swift-moving as a western, and far better done.

STAR—From one of the facile George Barr McCutcheon's novels of mythical royalty and unheard-of principalities, David Smith has succeeded in producing a picture rich in excitement and romance.

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L. Lyric, Cincinnati

TIMES-STAR—Charity will forgive a failure to discuss the alleged plot. * * * nice, old reverend plots that have whiskers, palsy, 'n' everything * * * No, it's what Bill Hart does that makes the picture worth-while at all.

ENQUIRER—It is inferior * * * the * * * chiefly because of its clammy sentimentality. * * * Compared to Hart's previous effort, it is sadly deficient.

"White Tiger"—Universal Washington, Detroit

NEWS—* * * It is a story of the private lives of crooks but its purpose is somewhat vague and it does not develop the melodramatic action the spectator expects of a story of this type.

TIMES—* * * Is all its press agents said it would be. It's intense. It's natural. It's well done. There are scenes it is as difficult to "put over" as ever were attempted on a megaphone directed lot. * * * Miss Dean's work is marvelous.

"Women Who Give"—Metro State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Into the plot are introduced moments of pathos, moments of sentimentality and moments of real drama.

as to their line-up for next would be made early in May.

"I am going to see what our pictures look like," he says have had glowing reports of "Sea Hawk" which I believe one of the great pictures of the season; of "Sundown" which Easton has been working on; "C" which Sam Goldwyn has just completed, and "The Lost World" will be finished when I reach Coast. Then I want to see getting "The Bird of Paradise" ed. Some other production need attention as well."

ALL SET

By DANNY

First National. For what anticipate will be their big year. "Dick" Rowland will complete charge of producing. Everything pertaining to having been cleaned up last. And he will go along for indefinitely long time. Rowland worked wonders with attention for F. N. Some say check. Others admit it was judgement. Be that as it is. This remains: Rowland's actions placed F. N. right on the map during this year. He slammed four in a row one after another, that made a lot of money at the box office. Made a lot of friends for F. N.—and also some money.

Rowland feels optimistic for the new season. Expects tremendous business from "The Sea Hawk." Also confident about what Earl Hudson will turn out.

About Hudson

development of Earl Hudson as an outstanding producer in his first season is one of the unusual features of the business. Hudson formerly assistant to J. D. Willard. With a previous background as newspaper man. When Rowland and Williams went out—Hudson was to do became a producer. But Rowland placed him in charge of production of several units. Hudson came through with flyers. That is one of Rowland's methods. Of picking men who make every producer interested in photographic results should see "Three Weeks." Some of the results are of such a stereoscopic nature that they are nothing short of marvelous. It is a pity, though, that so many long shots were considered necessary. They show off the sets and they dwarf the actors.

There will be more pictures made around New York this summer than ever before. Which presages something. Watch this turn of events. It is important. And the reason: getting production (Continued on Page 2)

New Foreign Factor

Company to Develop Theater Chain in Central Europe—Charles S. Hervey Interested

Formation of an organization to distribute American-made pictures and to establish first run theaters in Germany, Central Europe, the Near East and eventually in Russia was revealed in radiograms received in New York yesterday. Ludwig Klitzsch, reputed to be the owner of a string of newspapers, magazines and news services in these countries and managing director of many commercial enterprises, will be the head of the enterprise, incorporation papers for which were filed in Berlin two days ago.

Charles S. Hervey, president of Hervey, Inc., has been appointed American representative. Hervey, a former Public Service Commissioner is now treasurer of Distinctive and associated with him, is Charles Murray, who will be the representative in Berlin.

Hervey said Klitzsch is giving his attention to the transformation of legitimate theaters into local Strands, Capitols, Rialtos. Hervey, Inc., was organized a month ago to buy, sell and exploit pictures in the foreign field.

Bern To Work on Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—Of the four new Paramount directors, Paul Bern will be the only one to work here. The others, Paul Sloane, R. H. Burnside and Frank Tuttle, will work in the East. Bern's first will feature Adolphe Menjou who will later be starred.

Clem's Ocean Stuff

Dear Film Daily:

Well, here I am in Rome after a wild trip over the Mediterranean sea. I promised you in my last letter I would tell you something about Algiers and Cairo and the motion picture theaters of these two cities.

I came onto the one at Algiers by accident and I will tell my fellow exhibitors how to find the movie houses in Arabian towns so they can find them if ever they lose so much money they have to take a European trip to get even on the season.

Here's the idea.

First you ask some Arab where the motion picture house is located. No one knows exactly where it is, but they can tell you the general neighborhood. Then you go to that spot (Continued on Page 4)

Deal Not Closed

Late yesterday there were indications that final details of the Loew-Goldwyn deal would not be worked out for several days. There is hardly a doubt, however, but that the deal will be consummated.

Deal Reported On

It was reported yesterday, somewhat authoritatively, that negotiations were on between an important distributor and Samuel Goldwyn for the release of next season's product made by Goldwyn.

It was impossible to reach Samuel Goldwyn yesterday for a statement.

Since his advent as an independent producer Sam Goldwyn has attracted considerable attention among distributors. His "Potash and Perlmutter" has grossed in the neighborhood of $600,000 according to report, and while "The Eternal City" has been out only about two months it is said the bookings so far have been very heavy, indicating that the picture will gross somewhere in the neighborhood of $800,000 or more. According to Coast reports his latest, "Cytherea" also looks like an important box office production.

Goldwyn still has two to deliver to First National upon his existing contract, another "Potash" and another Fitzmaurice production. He is busy on "Stella Dallas," regarding which distributing plans have not been settled.

Action Expected In Albany

(By Long Distance 'Phone)

Albany—Definite action on various bills affecting the industry is expected within the next few days. There was a conference held yesterday on censorship repeal, at which representatives of various women's organizations filed protests. Courtland Smith, Charles L. O'Reilly and Sam Berman spent yesterday here.

No Film Cuts, Court Rules

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—The Film Classics Co., brought suit against Martin Printz, manager of the Circle, for cutting "The Marriage Circle." Common Pleas Judge Ruhl ordered Printz to restore all parts of the pictures excepting only what had been previously deleted by the Ohio Censor Board.

"Brummel" Held Over

The Strand will hold over "Beau Brummel," for another week.

"Lab" Combine

Republic, Erbograp and Craftsmen Form Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., a $6,200,00 Unit

Formal announcement will be made today of the combination of three important local laboratories under the one name of Consolidated Film Laboratories, Inc., a $6,200,000 corporation. The plants involved are Republic, Erbograp and Craftsmen.

Negotiations have been under way for some weeks past. While no information was available yesterday, it was recalled that the original report concerning the merger dealt with an intention on the part of several persons involved to introduce a joint management covering all three plants in order to reduce overhead.

It was reported yesterday that one of the executives now interested financially in one of the "labs" would retire from the business completely.

One Picture for 1st Nat'l

A deal is about to be closed between Garrick Pictures and First National for one picture which Will Nigh will direct. The story is "Born Rich" and will be made at the Biograph studio. Garrick Pictures is the new name for Eminent Pictures which has been formed by Jess Smith, Philip M. Plant, Leland Hayward and T. A. Persons. It was originally planned to make "Birds of Prey," Rex Beach's new story.

Sales Reorganization at Selznick

W. C. J. Doolittle and L. J. Darrow will operate the sales end of the Selznick distribution in place of David R. Blyth, and will put into effect almost immediately a plan whereby to every six exchanges there will be one manager, instead of having a manager in each branch.

Saxe Acquires "Defiance"

Sam Saxe has acquired world's rights on "Defiance," produced on the coast by William B. Brush with Lew Cody, Renee Adoree, Josef Swickard and Charles Post. It will be state righted.

Warners Engage Rosen

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—The Warners' have engaged Phil Rosen to direct "Being Respectable."

Laemmle Eastbound

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

and start walking through the narrow streets. Every time you come to a small, look in. If it isn't an Arab restaurant, it's a movie house. I found every one in Algiers and Cairo this way; but as I used to be in the cattle business at Erysiplis, Utah, I had all the best of it.

I met the chief of police at Algiers and he sort of took a fancy to me. Liked my western get-up I guess, anyhow he took me through the Rue Barbazon and showed me bibles and other antiques, thousands or years old. He said Algiers had the greatest antiques in the world.

I told him I enjoyed the trip a lot and that if he would come with me I would show him an American antique. So I took him to a movie house where they was playing Nazimova in War Brides.

Danny, we sure had a bad trip from Algiers to Monte Carlo, which by the way, is some place.

We ran into a storm and for twenty-four hours I didn't hear a peep out of Mrs. Dencker. Then when she got up, she said she kept flat to keep from being sea sick. I kept flat because I'd a got up, so would some of those releases I've had in the past.

I blew in a couple hundred franks at Monte Carlo just to test out the roulette tables. I learnt enough. Kid, when I can't crack once in twenty bets, the old horse hair's got my number.

While I'm playing the wheel a French girl is standing by me rooting for me and keeps saying "sent franks, sent franks." Well, I said back to her. I don't know you and didn't sent no franks to anyone. I see a fellow named Jake Wilk at Monte Carlo who said he used to be in the film business, or art, but that he reformed about ten years ago.

Cairo ain't so much. Take any town in the United States, throw a lot of garbage in the middle of the street, get a blowing machine like they used in movie storms and blow sand in everyone eyes, charge ten smackers a day for a bed and one infirm washstand, and you have Cairo, except the boogies is got to wear dirty nightgowns and talk gibberish.

We stopped at Athens and I went ashore for two hours. I must a asked fifty people if they ever heard of Skouras brothers from St. Louis and none of them did so I guess the Skourases wasn't so much at home, leastwise not much publicly.

I get to Paris next week, from where you can expect a hot letter if all the movies I seen is anywhere near true.

Your Towering Friend,
CLEM.

In The Courts

A judgment has been filed in the Supreme Court dismissing a claim against the Aywon Film Corp., by the Penn Import & Export Corp. The plaintiff alleged that it contracted to pay the defendant $12,500 upon signing a contract for ten episodes of the "Adventures of Helen." The plaintiff sued for $17,500 on the ground that the defendant refused to deliver the films. The defendant alleged that $2,250 had been paid for three of the episodes and counterclaimed for $5,250 for the others, which it offered to deliver.

About Hollywood

What about pictures for next season? Here it is only a few months of announcements of next year's pictures must be made by national producers. And yet—except in a few instances—only one organization has pictures finished for next season; the National Film Board. With eight pictures all ready—and another eight just being completed or starting within the next month's the situation on the coast is not so bright. Famous Players are producing pictures as fast as possible for spring release to keep up with schedule. First National unit's working hard to deliver pictures for early release. And all down the coast the same way.

Which is quite a comparison to this last year when cameras could be bought or rented—stars and extras were at a premium, and extras were hard to obtain.

As production increases material will be shown a lot of next year's pictures on paper rather than in the production room when September rolls around.

Will Rogers, since his arrival from the East to make sprocket hole operas with Hal Roach, is relieving Fred Astaire on many occasions as master of ceremonies.

One of the real important accompaniments of the new producers' association is the cooperation among members regarding players under contract. Formerly, producers ask each other all the traffic would be when players were loaned to other for pictures.

Under the new arrangement, the player is notified when a contract player will be available, and if another member of the organization needs the player, the latter can be secured at the same salary rate that term contract calls for.

Joe Unsell and Beulah Dix, two prominent writers for the screen, have written a play "Stigmata" which is being produced in Brighton, England a few days ago. Phylis Neilson-Terry is using it as a starring vehicle, and expects to open in New York with it in 1925, after completion of the London run.

Jackie Coogan will make two more pictures for Metro. One is starting right now. After they are completed, Jackie is slated to head the Near East Relief ship which will sail from New York either in August or September with a million dollars worth of milk for the children of European countries.

And then when Jackie returns late in the fall, a new distributing contract will be negotiated. Step in line—don't rush.

Doug Fairbanks invented a new game which will undoubtedly become very popular. Out here at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio they call it "Doug." Briefly—it's along the lines of tennis—same court, higher net, light rackets—but a dart is used instead of tennis balls.

The dart must be kept moving back and forth across the net without touching the ground. It's so much faster than tennis or handball, there's no comparison.

During the making of "The Thief of Bagdad" Fairbanks used this game as a medium to keep down to exact weight.

Abe Carlos with his Richard Talmadge company, and Arthur Sawyer with the Barbara La Marr unit, are the first two producers to move back east for the summer.

Unquestionably, they will not be the only ones to move east this year. It is just a matter of time before many other units pack up and dust along to New York for the coming summer's production schedule.

Carl Laemmle is cleaning up the loose ends of a two month's visit to Universal City, and has left for New York.

A Speedy Picture.

SPORTING YOUTH, with Reginald Denny, Laura La Plante, Hallam Cooley, Lucille Ward, Malcolm Denny, Leo White, Frederick Vroom, Henry Barrows, Rolfe Sedan, L. J. O'Connor, C. L. Sherwood, William A. Carroll and others, adapted from the story by Byron Morgan. At the Broadway.

As an illustration of a well-knit and swiftly moving story we have viewed no better example for some time than "Sporting Youth," the film which is being unfurled this week to enthusiastic crowds in the Broadway. We say enthusiastic crowds because we gather that yesterday afternoon must be indicative of what happened the previous two days and what may happen the balance of the week. In fact we have seldom heard a picture applauded as was this enjoyable feature, which with Reginald Denny obviously appeals to the romantic and sporting spirit of the audience.

Mr. Denny is an exceptionally pleasing player. For some time he has been featured in H. C. Witwer's series of stories known as "The Leather Pushers." He is a good-looking, virile young man who does not overact, and never seems conscious of his appearance. Those who feel sleepy in the dark of a motion picture theatre will find that the speed of this film is enough to restore a happy wakeful feeling, as from the very start, with the main title, one sees speeding cars dashing by.

Laura La Plante is effective as Betty, and Cooley is an efficient villain. This is a picture which will please the world and his or her father and mother. It is also being shown at the Brooklyn Strand.

"Beau Brummel"—Warner's Strand

AMERICAN—* * * Warner Brothers * * * have given their best to the making of this classic there can be no doubt and that John Barrymore is an inspired choice, no one will dispute. The faults in the picture are minor ones, and speaking generally, without going into minute detail, "Beau Brummel" is a credit to the house of Warner.

DAILY NEWS—* * * Devastating is the proper word for Mr. Barrymore's Beau Brummel, bowing himself gracefully through life * * * It is a polished and a flawless performance. * * * The film story unfolds with ease and charm. * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * Barrymore is a delight in a role to which only an experienced pantomimist could have done justice. Every little nuance, each gesture, has a significance that is subtly perfect. * * * The direction is sympathetic, the settings are beautiful, and the entire production though about two reels too long, is an achievement of artistic characterization. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * we were woefully disappointed * * * Not that Barrymore doesn't do some excellent work, because he does lots of fine acting; * * *

"Beau Brummel" as screen entertainment will be all very well for those who never saw and heard Richard Mansfield in the same subject * * * falls far short of our expectations; but then, we may have expected too much.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * "Peter Ibbetson" is the only other love story we know which is so beautiful, and we enjoyed "Beau Brummel" much more.

It is beautifully produced and is played by a cast that is perfect. * * * We know that most of the scenes were too long, but we do not think that they should be cut an inch. * * *

* * * the illusion is so perfect that you are going to weep no matter how hardend you are. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * With an entirely adequate supporting cast, handled with direction that does not falter, with sheer artistry, balance repression and when called upon, powerful acting, he has made a picture which must survive as one of the splendid achievements of the silent drama. * * *

While "Beau Brummel" may be called a picture of very high excellence that does not mean it will appeal to all motion picture audiences. It might be that exhibitors whose patrons do not like tragedy or death to touch the leading characters will not become enthusiastic over it.

POST—* * * a pretty fine piece of work as a whole, * * * nary a palm would have smacked against another if the last half of the film hadn't been so extraordinarily good that the many irritating faults of the first part were forgotten. * * * Mr. Barrymore plays the difficult part with the finished and polished excellence that we have come to expect from him. * * *

* * * excellently directed by Harry Beaumont. Its chief fault is that it takes a weary while getting started. On the whole it is very good entertainment of higher than average intelligence. * * *

SUN—* * * it was one of the most enjoyable pictures of the season. * * * John Barrymore, * * * had by his wholly delightful performance as the famous Beau become the screen's most capable actor. * * *

The picture seems to have thrown away a bit of the play and it has added a new mistress or so to those Mr. Fitch provided for the Beau. Perhaps this is for the best. The production is rather lavish and the costumes are picturesque and handsome. The one fault is that the photo play is a trifle too long. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * It is the most fascinating motion picture play of the year, a veritable screen comedy of manners, and of morals, too.

TIMES—One of those artistic celluloid efforts that come along none too frequently * * *

John Barrymore, * * * delivers a performance that is a delight to the eye, and, in the picture, it is probably more true to life than the stage version. * * *

* * * This is a stirring picture, not merely for the "upper ten," but also for O. Henry's four million and several other millions.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * "Beau Brummel" isn't a whale of an unusual picture, but it is a film destined to get big money in the majority of the bigger towns. For Broadway it is certain to be a knockout, as Barrymore has a tremendous following in New York, as he also has in the other big cities of the country. * * *

The direction by Harry Beaumont might possibly have been improved upon, as there are too many long three-quarter shots. * * *

WORLD—* * * The film version, produced by double exposure and superimposed scenes, is effective and beautiful. * * *

In casting this film play, something has gone entirely wrong. * * *

"Try and Get It"—Hodkinson Cameo

AMERICAN—* * * a good afternoon's entertainment for those who enjoy this type of motion picture. * * *

* * * amusing enough to stand well with almost any member of the family.

EVENING JOURNAL—The slight plot, * * * is amusing, the situations are snappy and Washburn registers an extremely likable screen personality. * * * * * * lightly entertaining throughout, demands no heavy concentration, which should make it an ideal film feature.

EVENING WORLD—* * * it was rather pleasing. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * It is * * * amusing and entertaining * * * has been well directed and a good balance has been maintained throughout. * * *

POST—* * * The only funny thing about * * * "Try and Get It" * * * is that somebody put up real money to make the production. * * *

TIMES—There are some amusing incidents in "Try and Get It," * * * but for the most part this picture is based on a story which could not stand the strain of such a length of film. * * *

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * The story includes a fashion parade, nicely produced, that should interest feminine witnesses, while all the interiors are both substantial looking and decorative.

"Virtuous Liars"—Vitagraph Rialto

AMERICAN—"Virtuous Liars" is, to put it mildly, much ado about nothing. * * * it runs on and on and never reaches anywhere. * * *

* * * while not the worst thing that has come to our town, belongs to the vintage of 1912. Edith Allen, in our opinion better stay in the class of extras, just as Rex Ingram cast her. She is certainly not leading woman material.

EVENING WORLD—* * * It isn't a picture any one would rave over very much, but it has Dagmar Godowsky as one of its redeeming features. * * * She does excellent work with the material furnished her, as do Burr McIntosh and Naomi Childers. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * Even if you do not care for the story—and perhaps you will not—there is nothing in the picture that one may resent, because it makes no pretenses. It is just a pretty good program picture, with a well known cast. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * With a few stretches of the imagination, perhaps there will be those who will find enjoyment in "Virtuous Liars," * * *

POST—Why do they do it? As if there wasn't enough woe in the world, every once in a while somebody comes along and inflicts on a too-trusting public a picture that takes most of the remaining joy out of life. Handicapped by its title to start with, "Virtuous Liars" meanders along for some five or six reels through the sloughs of hokum and the arid wastes of bunk. * * *

TIMES—* * * a moderate entertainment, the story of which does not bear close scrutiny. * * *

* * * This is a movie, and as a movie with conscientious players, it can be enjoyed if approached with an untroubled and a none too critical mind.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * The picture is a light-waisted story that carries no particular punch, although the title may have a box-office value for the smaller type of houses. * * *

WORLD—* * * one of those obviously manufactured motion pictures which mean nothing at all, not even an evening's entertainment. It is of that one-a-week school of films which strings together an assortment of unnatural happenings, places them before fussy settings, and then sends them to the public with what is supposed to be a catchy title. * * *

Out-of-Town

"Eyes of the Forest"—Fox Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * as upsetting to the nerves as any of Mix's films, for it causes the chills to run up and down the spine in the approved manner. * * * There are only five reels, but enough happens in those five reels to fill five ordinary melodramas. * * * Tom Mix has enlisted the services of an airplane and a set of timber thieves. These, with Mix's usual fervor and deftness in the saddle, combine to make good Western entertainment.

"Flaming Youth"—1st Nat'l Stanton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Colleen Moore plays the part of Patricia Frentriss, the girl whose head is turned by the gayety and glitter of the night life, doing the best possible with a part far too foolish to be true. * * *

NORTH AMERICAN—Miss Moore * * * never has recovered from that trick of all beginners, of looking persistently at it and into it, without any apparent rhyme or reason. There are innumerable close-ups of the young lady, and toward the end she really becomes rather monotonous since she has neither the ability nor personality that scintillates.

PUBLIC LEDGER—Elliott Dexter lends his name to the cast, but little else. The supporting cast is good, but it is Colleen whose maneuvers hold attention throughout. If yesterday's audiences are a sign, the theater will be packed all week. The show deserves it.

"The Heritage of the Desert"—F.P.L. State, Cleveland

NEWS—"The Heritage" might please those who are passionately fond of westerns, but for the average picture fan it will not have much of an appeal. * * *

PLAIN DEALER—* * * scenically, is a photographic gem. * * * color photography, soft focus effects, and other photographic novelties which hold the eye.

PRESS—* * * It is good old-fashioned western melodrama and the elaborate effects in the picture serve to invest the melodrama with greater interest.

Crandall's, Washington

HERALD—* * * has the distinction of having been filmed in the Arizona canyons, the exact locale of the novel. * * * The story, like all of the Grey's, is alive with action and thoroughly thrilling in development.

STAR—* * * photographed in the Arizona canyons, the real location of the story written by Mr. Grey depicts the virile narrative through the able interpretation of a cast of artists

Lawrence D'Orsay and Effie Shannon have been added to the cast of "The Mountebanks."

"In the Palace of the King"—Loew's, Montreal

STAR—This thrilling sixteen historical romance is rich in action spectacle, but * * * the producers had subordinated the action to the larger element, * * *

"I Will Repay"—Canadian Palace, Montreal

GAZETTE—Having for its background the stirring scenes of the French Revolution, "I Will Repay," * * * lends itself to screen adaptation, and * * * of an exciting and eventful period called.

STAR—It is a film of real force, played throughout. * * * The actor is admirable alike in its sincerity and utilization of restraint when emotional play would mar the dramatic significance of the moment.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. L. Metropolitan, L. A.

(Week ending March 21)

EXAMINER—Miss Negri gives account of herself in both phases of drama, and while a faster moving would perhaps be more convincing the retarded tempo gives splendid opportunity for the exploitation of her individual and unusual facial portrayal. * * *

EXPRESS—Miss Negri * * * nearer of being the dashing Carmen "Blood" and the beautiful Du Barry than in any of her previous America pictures.

HERALD—Although with nothing in the way of a plot and raising in thrills, the picture is undeniably interesting by virtue of its story * * *

TIMES—has the honor to be the worst picture in which Miss Negri appeared. * * * Miss Negri is as good as ever in the picture—but the picture is there.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold-Coast Strand, San Francisco

(Week ending Mar. 21)

BULLETIN—If you like the unusual, with a dash of mystery and a bit of diversion in your entertainment, go to the Strand.

CALL AND POST—It is melodrama dealing with the elemental human emotions. But it is warranted to please a response from film fans who like the fast and their thrills piled on plenty.

CHRONICLE—The story is a times, the terror that fascinates the actor and holds him breathless, and the picture has been splendidly made, Vidor directing.

DAILY-HERALD—The picture is tediously has fine characterization, but its feature about the production in a vividly graphic manner in which Vidor's subject.

Woody, of Associated Exhibitors, has extended the tour to cover ten weeks. Further than that, if it can be arranged, he will book Miss Normand for an extended period.

Her first appearance was at the Branford, Newark, last week where, Woody declares, the business on "The Extra Girl" was unusual. Miss Normand is now en route to St. Louis to appear next week at the New Grand Central. From there, she has been booked in Detroit, Cleveland and Philadelphia. Woody said yesterday that he has offers on hand that would keep the comedian busy for about thirty weeks.

Woody's assertion relative to the Branford was borne out by the Fabians who operate the theater. Miss Normand also appeared at two other Fabian houses, the New Montauk, last Saturday and Sunday, and at the Regent, Elizabeth, the first three days of this week to big business.

16 Bills Killed

Measures Ranging From Fire Prevention to Censorship and Sales Taxes Defeated Since Jan. 1.

Sixteen pieces of adverse legislation affecting this industry have been defeated since the first of the year. The bills have covered a variety of matters, including fire prevention, transportation of films, censorship, special taxation on amusements and advertising regulation.

These have been introduced in the following states. Kentucky, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas. Four measures were killed in Kentucky: one on censorship, one calling for a 10 per cent admission tax and two dealing with fire prevention. Massachusetts had three bills up: one censoring billboard advertising and posters and two governing shipping. Mississippi sought to pass censorship and tax theaters ten per cent on admissions. In New York a fire prevention measure and one on transportation have thus far been defeated. Censorship in Oklahoma was killed and in Pennsylvania, a prevention measure was thwarted. Censorship in South Carolina was defeated but a special tax levy was made effective, beginning Jan. 1. This, however, was carried over from a previous session. Texas sought to impose a sales tax on theaters.

Newspaper Opinions
 "Woman to Woman"—Selznick Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * Unfortunately the picture does not live up to its star. * * * If only these ambitious English producers had gone a step further and imported an American technical staff, we might have been able to say a good motion picture has come out of England.

We doubt if the play by Michael Morton would have ranked very high in cinematographic art, for the reason that it is one of those tales that we would prefer not to see growing in motion picture soil. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * Everything which belongs rightly in melodrama is present * * * there is something terribly artificial and incredible about the story. * * * it is all quite wild and unreasonable. The subtitles are like all the rest—stilted and artificial. Miss Compson, however, uses her lovely looks to goo effect.

EVENING WORLD—* * * We cannot give Miss Compson much on this picture; in fact, this is about all we can give her.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—When Selznick went to England to make "Woman to Woman" it was a step in the right direction. The idea was a good one. It would have been a better one, however, if they had let the picture remain across the ocean. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * is far and away the best picture that England has sent to these shores. The story is a melodrama that, despite its trite theme, provides good entertainment and marks the return of Betty Compson to her rightful heritage, that niche in the film hall of fame reserved for real troupers. * * *

POST—* * * tells an interesting and fairly plausible story in a rambling manner so full of obviously manufactured suspense and watery heart throbs that it often makes you squirm with impatience. Still, it has Betty Compson, and it has been given a very interesting scenic production. * * * The picture isn't at all bad whenever she is on the screen. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * It has a fine strength, an almost logical plot and a great deal of tragedy that taxed little Miss Betty Compson to the bottom of her emotional powers. * * *

* * * The selection of "types" was bad—no stretch of the imagination would convince any one the play was laid in England. * * *

TIMES—* * * Inexperienced direction is obvious in many stretches of "Woman to Woman," * * * Betty Compson, * * * is far better than any of the other players, * * * is not enough to make up for the poor direction and the rather worn-out theme.

Too much seems to be taken for granted in some sequences, and too little in others. * * *

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * if this is an example of England's better celluloid products there doesn't seem to be any specific reason for the wail against British screen vehicles, for this one can stand with any American output showing on Broadway houses week in and week out and is far superlative to those which may be gleaned in the daily change theaters.

WORLD—* * * satisfies the requirements of prohibitive morality, but it snaps its fingers at human nature. * * * Betty Compson, * * * is an all bit who gives a winsome performance. * * *

Your extraordinary genius as one of the world's leading popular showmen has lately been revealed again by your magnificent management of the world's premiere of Douglas Fairbanks in "THE THIEF OF BAGDAD" at the Liberty.

You occupy a unique place in the American Theatre. Your name is synonymous with spectacle, pageantry, magnificence, lavishness and international art. You are the premier who brought to America the world's greatest art of the theatre—the ballet and the drama of mysterious Russia.

A cordial invitation is extended to you to visit the Cameo Theatre next week to witness a very remarkable motion picture entitled "WHICH SHALL IT BE?". Renaud Hoffman is the producer—a name unknown to you, no doubt, and to millions of others. It is a motion picture story without a hero, a villain, a cabaret, a bathing pool, a jazz-crazed girl, or a single suggestive thought.

It is a great, big, throbbing, inspiring and thrilling story about simple, home-loving people who live under the sweet protection of American liberties. Don't miss it!

Hart Deal Off

Star and Famous Disagree over Selection of Story Material—Former's Plans Indefinite
The deal pending between William S. Hart and Famous Players for future pictures has been broken off. Hart leaves for the Coast on Tuesday, without any definite plans in mind for future activities.

He stated over the telephone Friday that negotiations had ended and that, while he was willing to yield on almost every point, he refused to give up what he termed his independence. Hart said the differences arose over the selection of story material, with Famous insisting on certain vehicles submitted to the production department but which Hart decided did not suit him. He holds the opinion that he knows through long experience what best fills his requirements.

At Famous, Elek J. Ludvigh who has been handling the matter for the company stated that it was true the deal had fallen through but that he hoped negotiations would be resumed at a future date. Both Hart and Ludvigh declared that the friendliest sort of feeling existed in all quarters.

For many years Bill Hart has been a feature of the Paramount program. He has always had complete say as to story, direction, etc., and this is one of the important points on which Hart and Famous officials could not agree.

Quimby Recovering

That Deal

By which Metro will take over Goldwyn. Official announcements, etc., coming in a few days. Meanwhile possess your souls in patience. Premature publication of the affair has caused considerable annoyance up to the moment. A field force extending all over the globe is easily upset when these things "break" and without reason a lot of men get all upset. Until this is ready just forget some of the wild yarns you have seen printed—notably one about Samuel Goldwyn blocking the deal. And you can also put a pin in this: Hearst will go along with the deal—all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

HART AND FAMOUS

It will be sad if Bill Hart and Famous have come to the parting of the ways. The Paramount schedule will look awkward without a series of Hart pictures. It is known that for sentimental reasons alone Adolph Zukor wanted Hart to continue—regardless of any other reason. Hart stuck to Zukor in the old days when most of the others cut adrift. And Zukor never forgot it. Unfortunately Hart and the production department could not agree on this vital point: the stories that Hart was to make. Famous did not enjoy the material that Hart used in his recent pictures. The way the last was jumped upon by the critics did

Are you wondering why we persist in using an unusual title like chechahco?

Couldn't we have found something simpler?

Certainly we could. We might have named the picture "The Gold Rush" or "The Birth of Alaska," or what-not, but these would have classified it as an ordinary movie. And that's just what this picture isn't.

chechahcos

(pronounced chee-claw-koze)

You win!

You have convinced us of the inadequacy of the title, "Plaster Saints," although it was successfully used for a book and two serial publications of Frederic Arnold Kummer's gripping story of modern life.

You have sold us on the necessity for a title more descriptive—more specifically appealing—better understood. Such a title has been adopted. It is "The Spitfire."

Your suggestions, and those of several hundred other exhibitors, have resulted also in important changes in the plan for picturizing Mr. Kummer's book. These will be made known soon. We hope—and believe—you will approve these changes. It is your picture. You are the ones to be pleased.

We thank you most sincerely for your frank and intelligent response to our production questionnaire. A better picture than we had planned will be one gratifying result of your cooperation.

"Which Shall It Be?"

Producer: Hoffman Productions

As a Whole.....SENTIMENTAL THE EXTREME WITH INSTANT TUGGING AT THE HEARTSTRINGS MAKES THIS SMALL PRODUCTION WELL WORTH THE BOX OFFICE.

No one of importance and names of consequence, but seven of the most delightful kiddies that stepped before a camera. They almost like the "our gang" and playing straight.

Type of Story.....Many years ago E. L. Beers wrote a poem called "Which Shall It Be?" which is of the struggle of a man and wife, both very poor, who faced the problem of sending one of their children to the husband's brother. In the end, of course, the children were allowed to. Upon this thin but gripping story there has been built a series of sequences which while sentimental are none the less interesting. Sometimes the story is too gushy and it doesn't easily be cut to advantage, but taken all in all there is a very delightful entertainment present especially when the kiddies act. They are so natural. There is little for grownups to do excepting that of Wales as the mother also is as most natural.

Type of Story.....The important part of this production is its simplicity. It only proves again that the sums of money are not necessary to make a worthwhile production. The absence of important sets is hardly noticeable. One forgets the need of such in watching the development of the simple yet direct story which is so strongly.

Offman just misses having another "Over the Hill." His effort is especially worth while when it is considered that he not only directed this, but acted as his own cameraman.

Box Office Angle....Hardly important enough to run at full length by important first-run exhibitors who might easily condense it to a worthwhile featurette. Should be good material for neighborhood houses and small theaters.

Exploitation..... Properly handled there is no reason why every mother in your community should not be interested in "Which Shall It Be?" and there are few emotions which can be so successfully built up as that of mother love, and while her love is not the actual theme so close to it that no difficulty would be encountered in finding material easily which should attract, rest and hold the attention of mothers of your community.

Direction.....Renaud Hoffman
 Author.....Mrs. E. L. Beers
 Scenario by.....Renaud Hoffman
 Cameraman.....Renaud Hoffman
 Photography.....Excellent
 Location.....A farm and a few library
 Length.....About 5,000 feet

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow"

Paramount

As a Whole.....INTERESTING CROOK STORY WITH FAITH THEME WOVEN IN. VERY WELL MADE PICTURE AND FINELY ACTED. JACQUELINE LOGAN, DAVID TORRENCE, RAYMOND GRIFFITH GREAT TRIO.

Cast...Very well balanced and all splendidly suited to individual roles. Jacqueline Logan kept in tattered clothes all the while and manages to get her role over through sheer good acting. Raymond Griffith excellent in this particular type of characterization. He handles the part cleverly and amusingly. David Torrence also good. Others Roland Bottomly, Harris Gordon, Guy Oliver, Alma Bennett.

Type of Story....Crook melodrama. There's a "Pollyanna" atmosphere in this and a certain amount of crook regeneration and faith business that might tend to make it seem like pretty conventional material but Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, which also served for a stage play, is not trite. At least it doesn't appear so under the very capable direction of George Melford. He has supplied a thoroughly worthwhile production, an exceptionally well suited cast and used it to the best advantage. There is a realistic atmosphere of the London slums, a pleasing romance and a succession of interesting situations, nicely dove-tailed that hold the attention all the way. The theme holds forth a certain amount of philosophy that may well point a moral—that of looking on the bright side of things no matter how dark they may seem. The story shows how Glad, a girl of the slums, prevents a rich man from taking his life, gives him an entirely new perspective through her policy of cheer and is happy later with her sweetheart, also saved from a crooked path through her devotion.

Box Office Angle.... You can interest your folks in this if you try and they should go out rather well satisfied. There's a good production, good cast and interesting story.

Exploitation... Inaugurate a "Smile" week and do some Pollyanna broadcasting to get them interested in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow." Have a man garbed in sombre attire going about carrying a sandwich sign upon which are the lines: "I was ousted from the blank theater to make room for the glad girl in 'The Dawn of a Tomorrow.'" Distribute toy brooms with tags attached bearing catchlines: "Brush away your cares and follow the crowd to the blank theater where 'The Dawn of a Tomorrow' show you how to be happy." Use George Melford's name recalling previous productions and mention the principals in the cast.

Direction.....George Melford
 Author.....Frances Hodgson Burnett
 Scenario.....Harvey Thew
 Cameraman.....Charles G. Clarke
 Photography.....Good
 Locale.....London
 Length.....6,084 feet

"Three Weeks"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole....GORGEOUS PICTORIAL BUT THOSE WHO EXPECT SENSATIONS WILL PROBABLY BE DISAPPOINTED. THE TIGER-SKIN EPISODE ISN'T WHAT IT'S CRACKED UP TO BE.

Players....Conrad Nagel your outstanding possibility here although there are many good names including John Sainpolis, Robert Cain, Mitchell Lewis, Stuart Holmes. Aileen Pringle lacks sex appeal to a material extent and her performance as the Queen suffers therefrom. Oh, for a Barbara La Marr.

Type of Story...About a decade ago! women from eight to eighty thrilled when the title "Three Weeks" was mentioned. In those days it was a great idea, but since then there have been a few such as "Flaming Youth" and others of that type that sort of put "Three Weeks" in the background so far as this type of material is concerned. Anyhow it is a tale of a great passion which lasted three weeks and then the Queen and her English lover parted and everybody cried. But as the story has been transferred to the screen the tears will be for another reason. Even the famous episode of the Queen and her English lover on the tiger-skin fails to thrill. It doesn't even emote. Really, it's rather blah! Of course, in the end the son of the Queen and her English lover appears as the King and is crowned with all due pomp and ceremony, while the anguished father watches from the side lines.

The production is magnificent. The sets are unusually fine, and the photography at times is probably the finest seen in any of the big productions recently, particularly in some shots of a stereoscopic nature. Lack of sex appeal weakens the appearance of Aileen Pringle in what should be an outstanding characterization. That she was selected for the part by Mrs. Glyn is somewhat obvious.

Box Office Angle.... Everything will stand or fall upon the title. If that doesn't get them in nothing else will.

Exploitation... There is considerable to work with here, especially the title. Every woman will remember the vivid tale written by Elinor Glyn and you must work up from this angle. The fact that the production is gorgeous and the cast rather satisfactory will prove immaterial unless you get your patrons interested from the angle of the title and its rather famous authoress. Teaser campaigns and catchlines can be effectively used.

Direction... Alan Crosland; did fairly good work considering material at hand.

Author.....Elinor Glyn
 Scenario.....June Mathis
 Cameraman.....John J. Mescall
 Photography.....Gorgeous, finest stereoscopic effects ever presented.
 Locale....A mythical Balkan kingdom.
 Length.....7,468 feet

Harold Lloyd in
"Girl Shy"

Producer: Harold Lloyd Corp.
 Distributor: Pathe

As a Whole... NOT AS CONTINUOUS A SCREAM AS ONE OR TWO PREVIOUS LLOYD PICTURES BUT SURELY VERY, VERY FUNNY AND WITH A COMEDY-THRILL CHASE THAT IS THE BEST OF ITS KIND.

Star... Always amusing and injects plenty of spontaneous comedy business that's sure-fire.

Cast... Jobyna Ralston rather pretty lead and others Richard Daniels and Carlton Griffin.

Type of Story...Comedy. Harold Lloyd's latest is really very good comedy once it gets going. It's fairly slow at the start and for a time threatens to fall below his usual standard but it picks up nicely and the laughs start coming in quick succession, finally ending with a chase that is a riot of laughs and stunts. There is apt to be a wrong impression created at the point where Lloyd finishes his "love adventures" manuscript and falls asleep. It gives every indication that what is to follow is a dream but it isn't. It might help if they knew at the start that what follows isn't a dream, without waiting for the end. Lloyd is a bashful, stuttering hick who imagines himself a regular Romeo. He writes a book of would-be adventures, meets a rich girl and decides to marry her when he "collects" on the book. The publisher turns it down and Harold gives up hope of the girl. Later, when the publisher decides to print his volume as "The Diary of a Boob," Harold makes his mad dash to get the girl before she marries the other fellow.

Box Office Angle.... Sure-fire, of course. Should get started faster but this can be remedied and even if it isn't Lloyd's admirers and comedy fans aren't likely to worry about it.

Exploitation.... Lloyd's name and the title of his latest should be enough to pack your house. If it isn't, it's probably because they don't know who Harold Lloyd is. Should that be the case, get busy and acquaint them. Tell them that "Girl Shy" contains one of the best comedy-thrill chases that has ever been done. Show them a trailer of Lloyd's wild and dizzy ride on the top of a runaway trolley, a bit of the train sequence in which the lady passenger finds her negligee in his pockets, or any of the picture's big comedy moments. Distribute toy whistles with tag's attached reading: "It takes a whistle to stop Harold Lloyd from stuttering in 'Girl Shy'." Blow around to the blank theater and see his latest picture."

Direction..... Fred Newmeyer-Sam Taylor; all right.

Author..... Sam Taylor
 Scenario..... Sam Taylor
 Cameraman .. Walter Lundin-Henry Kohler.
 Photography..... Good
 Locale..... Small town—city
 Length..... 7,500 feet.

The King of A Feature

Wild Horses

He Was As Dangerous As a Tiger
Yet the Sympathy of a Man Tamed Him!

Almost every stallion is dangerous.

But when he is a wild stallion, foaled in the mountains, with a mother and a sire who have never felt the halter, then he is doubly dangerous.

Rex ranged the canyons with his herd of mares. By his strength, skill and cunning he not only escaped capture but he drove away rivals and kept his herd intact.

Man after man tried to capture this magnificent coal-black horse, but tried in vain. His rivals he defeated; men he kept at a distance, until one man came along. That man didn't capture him; he captured the man!

The most unique feature ever presented, with novelty, thrill, excitement and a real wild horse as the hero, a horse so dangerous that the cameramen were in danger of their lives. For concentrated punch it is a feature in a thousand!

TRADE

MARK

"The Plunderer"

Fox

As a Whole.....GETS A LITTLE AWAY FROM THE REGULAR ROUTINE PLOT AS FAR AS DEVELOPMENT IS CONCERNED IF NOT FROM THE STANDPOINT OF SITUATIONS.

Cast....Frank Mayo has another of his fighting roles which he does very well and Tom Santschi also a capable scrapper. The two offer a first rate thrill in their climax battle. Evelyn Brent probably not the best type for dance hall proprietress but she makes the most of it. Others Peggy Shaw, James Mason, Edward Phillips, Dan Mason.

Type of Story.....Western drama. Nothing very exciting happens in the early reels of "The Plunderer" but as the plot develops the action gets under way and there is enough excitement to satisfy the most ardent admirers of thrills. The basic situations of Roy Norton's story are not new but George Archainbaud has handled them to good advantage and through good detail and with the cooperation of a first rate cast he has succeeded in maintaining the interest evenly. The atmosphere is realistic and shots in and around an old unused mine afford interesting views for the spectator. The plot concerns the efforts of Bill Mathews to restore an old mine owned by young Townsend who has inherited from his father. Bill Presbey, who operates an adjoining mine, tries to dissuade them from reopening the mine. Mathews is suspicious of him but it is not until a dancer, deserted by one of Presbey's accomplices, gives him the proof that Presbey is tapping the Townsend mine, that Mathews accuses his competitor. A fight follows, Mathews wins, Presbey gives up and the romance of the latter's daughter and young Townsend is completed while Mathews rides off in search of The Lily, former proprietress of the dance hall, who had closed it and left town because she thought Mathews did not return her love.

Box Office Angle.....Should please the average audience. Will appeal to admirers of western dramas and has enough good moments to talk about to get them interested.

Exploitation....Secure a trailer containing shots of the mine cave-in, the fight in the dance hall or the big scrap in the climax where Santschi and Mayo have a fight to the finish. Your men folks particularly will be interested if you promise them some exciting fights. For the benefit of your women patrons talk about the romance contained in the story and use stills of Evelyn Brent and Frank Mayo, the chief "romancers." The title isn't especially applicable to stunt exploitation so you'll have to resort to regulation advertising and announcements.

Direction.....George Archainbaud; generally quite satisfactory.

Author..... Roy Norton
Scenario..... Doty Hobart
Cameraman..... Jules Cronjager
Photography..... Good

"His Forgotten Wife"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....A PLEASANT ENOUGH LITTLE PICTURE DESPITE ITS SOMEWHAT FAR-FETCHED PLOT; CONTAINS GOOD ELEMENT OF EXCITEMENT TO HOLD INTEREST. HAS BEEN GIVEN NICE PRODUCTION.

Cast....Billed as all-star, but with the exception of Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter and possibly Maude Wayne, there are no well-known names. Miss Bellamy's work as the little French girl is by far the most pleasing thing in the picture. Warner Baxter is also good as the hero. Maude Wayne has been well cast as the selfish fiancée.

Type of Story....Deals with the romance of a French Red Cross nurse who falls in love with a soldier who has lost both his memory and identification tag in a battle; to ease his mind she pretends to find his identity card and gives him a "missing" man's name. Upon his recovery they are married and return to America. Unable to obtain employment they take positions as butler and lady's maid in what proves to be the man's own home which he has left in a will to his former fiancée. She recognizes him and unscrupulously decides to take all his bonds and money from the bank before he can regain his memory. He is operated upon, regains his memory up to the time he was shot, remembering nothing of his wife. Of course, it all comes right at the finish—he remembers her when he sees her, and is told that she is his wife. The development at this particular point is not as smooth as it might be, however. There are two highly exciting automobile chases that keep the interest at high pitch during the latter reels, which is a good thing. Madge Bellamy looks very sweet and makes her role as convincing as possible.

Box Office Angle.....Should prove satisfactory entertainment for the average audience. Talk about Madge Bellamy and mention the rest of the cast.

Exploitation....Play up the fact that Madge Bellamy and Warner Baxter are in the cast. Get them interested by telling them that it is a story of a man who lost his memory and gained a wife only to forget here when he regained his memory. Catchlines along these lines might attract attention. For example, "He had lost his memory and his name. She gave him a name and then married him. But—he regained his memory. See what happened then." You might run a trailer of either of the automobile chases, or one showing Madge Bellamy in cap and overalls holding up the car and getting the satchel full of money.

Jack Hoxie in
"The Galloping Ace"

Universal

As a Whole.....DYED-IN-THE-WOOL VILLAIN PLOT BUT SERVES FOR FIRST RATE ACTION AND SHOULD SATISFY THE CROWD THAT FOLLOWS WESTERNS.

Star....Saves heroine's marble quarries and otherwise protects her interest in true hero fashion. Hoxie a good type and should please the legion of hero worshippers.

Cast....Frank Rice and Julia Brown good comedy couple and Robert McKim the villain, of course. Margaret Morris a pleasing and fair heroine.

Type of Story....Western comedy-drama. Hero Jim returns from the war only to find that his job is not waiting for him as he expected, nor is the girl true to him as she had promised. But it doesn't take hero Jim long to find some excitement. Anne Morse, who owns a neighboring ranch, is having trouble with Kincaid who threatens to take over her property by exercising a verbal option which he had on the property, but which Anne claims had expired. How Jim foils Kincaid's plan and naturally wins Anne as a reward, offers some usual but exciting action that will make the offering popular with the devotees of westerns.

Hoxie doesn't spare himself when it comes to putting punch into his action bits. His chase and subsequent fight with McKim is a good thrill, also that in which he gets by the guards stationed on the ranch by McKim. There are some effective comedy touches supplied by Frank Rice as Zack, the handy man who violates the eighteenth "Commandment" by drinking his wife's flavoring extracts. The locations are good and views in and around a marble quarry supply interesting detail and fine atmosphere.

Box Office Angle....Should give ample satisfaction. You know whether or not you have a crowd that favors westerns and can judge accordingly with this one. It's as good as the average.

Exploitation.....Universal's press sheet suggests a rope throwing contest as an exploitation stunt. Also it suggests copy for an attractive 3-sheet. "Pinochle players beware of—'The Galloping Ace.' World War Vets—he's one of the bunch—'The Galloping Ace.' Girls—you'll fall in love with him—'The Galloping Ace.'" Use throw-aways printed in the form of a playing card ace with the title printed across the face. Use Jack Hoxie's name, a trailer of the fight, stills from the picture and tell them there are some laughs mixed with the thrills.

"Gambling Wives"

Arrow—State Rights

As a Whole.....MODERN PICTURE WITH AT SPHERE AND INCIDENT THAT WILL UNDOUBTEDLY APPEAL TO LARGE MAJORITY OF PICTURE FANS. GOOD CAST AND PRODUCTION TO BACK IT.

Cast....Competent and well selected company that includes several prominent players. Marjorie pleasing as the young wife who decides to teach her husband a lesson by going in herself for the town which he goes in for. Ed Earle suitable as the husband. Earle is photographed badly. Crane the usual type of "man a town" who lures the pretty wife. Hedda Hopper the customer "lily of the field."

Type of Story....Domestic drama. This type of story and the atmosphere contained in it seems to appeal to the average picture and regardless of a fairly trite theme, in which the old eternal angle makes its appearance "Gambling Wives" will undoubtedly prove entertaining. It deals the modern problem so liberally exploited by screen writers and newspaper reporters alike. It's everyday reading as well as everyday picture material. You have a young, newly married couple, happy but struggling along on a meagre income. The husband comes interested in a get-rich-quick-method by way of gambling. He also interests himself in another woman. Some "friends" pass the word along to the wife and she discovers that her husband has squandered their savings, she goes on an idea to reform him: she goes in for gambling herself but her husband gets beyond her intentions and she finds herself implicated with the notorious Van Merton. It happens that Van Merton has neglected another woman and eventually kills him, leaving the young couple free to resume relations, both having learned their lesson, at the expense of two others.

Box Office Angle....Good production, good cast, jazz atmosphere, cabaret life, lavish apartments and the like, will make this good picture a number one for big majority. Know whether or not they like it.

Exploitation....Talk about the atmosphere, peppy cabaret scene and use a trailer of these sequences to get them interested. Use names of the more prominent players and say that there is around good cast in "Gambling Wives." The title will surely attract many and can be played with catchlines: "Wives, attention! Don't try to reform your husband by making the mistake that your young wife makes in 'Gambling Wives', Arrow's latest production." "Wives", Arrow's latest production.

Fred Thomson in
"Galloping Gallagher"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....THE AGE OLD TRIO: HERO, HEROINE, AND VILLAIN. ALL UP TO THEIR OLD TRICKS BUT THEY INCLUDE PLENTY OF ACTION AND THRILLS FOR THOSE WHO WANT THEM.

Star....First rate hero whose stunts and fights keep the picture going at a good clip all the way through. He certainly deals out a terrible beating to the bad men of Tombstone.

Cast...Frank Hagny, a slick villain who, instead of twirling his mustache like villains of old, polishes his finger nails. Hazel Keener pleasing heroine and the regulation western types properly handled by Nelson McDowell, Shorty Hendricks, Andy Morris and others.

Type of Story....Western comedy-drama. While there are westerns there will probably be the famous combination of hero-heroine-villain and as long as this trio exists there will be fighting, rescuing, double-crossing and happy endings, which is to say that "Galloping Gallagher" runs true to formula and offers a familiar plot but good action and stunt thrills to satisfy the crowd that still gets a kick out of this sort of picture. Besides the action, in this case, there is some comedy business that will likely amuse many although it's pretty low. There's an undertaker comedian who stands about ready to measure his victims and generally makes himself prominent in the picture.

Gallagher, a wanderer, lands in the town of Tombstone where a hold-up is the regular pastime. Hero becomes the devoted protector of the pretty evangelist whom villain has selected for his own. How Gallagher fights villain and his band, makes all sorts of daring rescues and escapes, saves the girl when she is kidnapped by villain's men, and wins not only the approval of the townspeople, but the heart of the girl, offers some first rate excitement.

Box Office Angle...Average western, the sort where you can count on the action and thrills to cover up an unoriginal story. Hero Fred Thompson works hard to furnish a thrilling picture.

Exploitation...Handle this the way you handle any western. Talk about the stunts that hero performs and use trailers to give them an idea of the action they can expect. Show them Thomson's various rescue stunts, a bit of his climax fight with villain to show off the action business. Tell them about Silver King, hero's trained horse, who knows some good tricks. Use catchlines with the title and if you think it worth while put it over with stunt exploitation.

Buddy Roosevelt in
"Rough Ridin'"

Producer: Lester F. Scott, Jr.
Distributor: Approved Pict. Corp.

As a Whole....GOOD WESTERN ENTERTAINMENT WITH CATTLE RUSTLING AFFORDING PLENTY OF ACTION AND THRILLS. SHOULD PLEASE AN AVERAGE CROWD.

Star.....Likable cowboy star who rides well and is good looking too. Not given many opportunities to show how he can scrap but gives some promises of being able to put up a good fight.

Cast....Joe Rickson suitable villain. No names that are familiar but a satisfying cast.

Type of Story....Western. Cattle rustling is one of the most popular formulas for westerns but despite the frequent repetition it usually serves to offer a good action picture that appeals to those who pick out westerns for their film entertainment. "Rough Ridin'", starring a new comer, Buddy Roosevelt, whose name happens to link up nicely with the title since it readily suggests the connection of Theodore Roosevelt and his famed Rough Riders. The story, fairly familiar in its main situations, manages nicely, however, to hold its own with some first rate action in the way of stunt riding, fights, spectacular leaps and bounds and exciting rescues. It deals with the rustling business of Wells, foreman for young Ross, ranch owner, whose sister is in love with Buddy Benson, owner of a neighboring ranch. The girl avoids Buddy after he accuses her brother's men of stealing his cattle and plans to leave the West. Buddy kidnaps her and puts her in the care of a squaw while he goes out to prove his assertion that Wells is guilty of rustling. How Buddy accomplishes his task, plants the guilt on Wells and proves his accusation to the girl's satisfaction, is followed by the girl accepting Buddy's proposal.

Box Office Angle....Good average western. You know what you can do with it. Where you know westerns please them, you can count on this one getting over as well as the next one.

Exploitation....You'll have to interest your folks with the title because they won't know the players. Of course you can link up the star's name with it and probably catch the attention of many who will readily associate the tie-up with Theodore Roosevelt and his connection with the famed Rough Riders during the Spanish American War. Have a man in cowboy attire riding about on horseback displaying a sign reading: "See Buddy Roosevelt at the blank theater in 'Rough Ridin'", a western with action and thrills."

George Larkin and Billie Dove in
"Yankee Madness"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole....ACTION IN REVOLUTIONARY PLOT MAKES THIS A SATISFYING PICTURE FOR THOSE WHO LIKE EXCITEMENT IN THEIR FILM ENTERTAINMENT. PRODUCTION AND ATMOSPHERE GOOD.

Stars....George Larkin is a mighty busy hero. In fact he has a whole revolutionary band to clean up before he can claim the girl he loves. Billie Dove an attractive heroine who might have been given more prominence. She hasn't a great deal to do except smile prettily for close-ups.

Cast.....Earl Schenck a suitable enough villain and Walter Long his "greezer" accomplice. Numerous others in the way of soldiers, revolutionists, etc. Ollie Kirby good as a Spanish vamp.

Type of Story....Melodrama. Those who want action will be thoroughly satisfied with "Yankee Madness," F. B. O.'s latest release co-starring George Larkin and Billie Dove. The plot is of a more or less conventional one, built along lines, however, that make it suitable for George Larkin and his athletic ability. Larkin is the son of a ranch owner who journeys to a Central America village in search of a girl. Once there he becomes involved in the revolution and, intending to spy upon them, becomes one of them until his identity is discovered. He escapes and joins the President's forces and is the means of saving the administration and the girl he loves who, it develops, is the President's daughter. Naturally the plot affords good opportunities for action. There are several first rate fights, the attack of the revolutionists, the rescue of the girl when the leader of the revolutionists tries to kidnap her and two rescue stunts early in the picture. On the whole, Larkin has a busy time of it saving the life of Billie Dove.

Box Office Angle....Should give average satisfaction. If you know your patrons like action pictures you can count on "Yankee Madness" satisfying them.

Exploitation....You can boost the title attractively by going in for patriotic business in the way of lobby decorations. Use flags liberally and you might get some youngsters who would be glad to parade about with signs reading: "Follow us to the blank theater; you'll see plenty of excitement in 'Yankee Madness.'" Probably you might interest them with George Larkin's name. Talk about the fights he puts up to save Billie Dove, the heroine. A trailer of one of his rescue stunts should attract also.

"Dangerous Trails"

Ambassador Pictures—State

As a Whole....GOOD MYSTERY PLOT THAT WILL ALWAYS SATISFY THOSE WHO LOVE TO BE BAFLED. EFFICIENT DEVELOPMENT KICKS DENOUEMENT FROM BEING COMING OBVIOUS.

Cast.....First rate company Irene Rich and Tully Marshall handling principal roles capably and interestingly. Allan Penrose as the Mounted Police officer, Jack Curtis a wily Oriental. Beery and William Rowley able in less important parts.

Type of Story....Mystery

There is a Mounted policeman in "Dangerous Trails" but doesn't make it a Mounted story. On the contrary it's a good mystery theme that will undoubtedly please the average audience, especially those who like to be kept guessing. And the theme may not be a particularly convincing one, nor logic serves appropriately as a mystery and through pretty effective action, it maintains a fine suspense the way through. It includes familiar tricks, to be sure, but are combined with enough original angles to preclude its getting into the hackneyed class. The production is average. Story deals with the opium smuggling business of the notorious Wang and his spy agent, played by Tully Marshall, who, to disguise his "position," runs a dance hall.

Rich, a singer, pretends to love with Marshall nor does a spectator actually know just what her game is. On the track of Wang is St. Claire, expected to be a Red Coat, but offers to purchase opium. In case of matching wits with hands suspecting each other. Eventually the girl and St. Claire both turn out to be officers of law and Wang and Marshall are trapped.

Box Office Angle....Should pull quite particularly if your patrons like mystery dramas. There is a little difficulty with censorship cause of the opium smuggling business and a few scenes showing Wang luring a white girl into an establishment, but these can be removed.

Exploitation....There should be enough here for you to talk to get them interested. The general atmosphere part of it can be exploited and will bring in those who really recognize it as suggestive of mystery business. Use a trailer of scenes indicative of the mystery that it offers and stir the lobby to get their attention. Have the names of Irene Rich, Noah Beery and Tully Marshall use prominently. They are known and should attract your patrons.

JOHN BARRYMORE TRIUMPHS Famous Beau Great Study in Moods

By PEARL RALL

AMONG the stage portraiture of several decades none stands out more picturesque than that of "Beau Brummel," famous fashion-plate, wit and ladies' man of the eighteenth century in England, first introduced to this country by Richard Mansfield. Now John Barrymore has made the populace acquainted with the fascinating personage through the medium of the screen in supreme manner. For the role is exactly suited to the Barrymore playgoers and gifts, and yesterday magnatism at the California responded as never before to the Barrymore magnetism.

original. Many of the bonmots of the play have been used to good effect in the titling of this masterly pantomime of this master of finesse. Particularly effective was his expression through a glance or registry of fleeting thoughts or emotions in moments of perfect physical quietude. And a little play before the mirror in the opening of the story got over nicely. While as a lover he was par excellence, irresistible. Nor was "Beau Brummel" a play of one character, dominated by this personage as the prince of Wales, in the Inn of the Hawk and Chicken, put over a pretty bit of pantomime, full of delicious scenes. The play between the

He did not, however, lose his fortune or social power at that time, as in the play or the film, but his downfall did come later through his enormous gambling debts, so that in May, 1816, he did flee to Calais where he set up quarters, was sent to jail and later did lose his mental powers, spending his last days in an asylum, where he died March 30, 1840.

To this unusual character Barrymore brings a nerve and nonchalance that suit well with the studied, peevish insolence of the where the broken Brummel faces his fickle monarch; the cellar cafe scene, the mean little hae where the impoverished Beau hae his abode with Mortimer, and in closing, the hospital asylum where he entertains the visions of his past glories and friends before his dissolution and death. This marks the dramatic climax of the interesting film story, as fine a piece of screen acting, strengthened with perfect skill in stage technique as one would wish to see on the part of Mr. Barrymore. It was startling yet free from hurried

Short Subjects

"Brothers Under the Chin"—Pathe Novel Effect Makes Infants of Men

Type of production 2 reel comedy

A novel and somewhat amusing effect is used in opening this comedy which stars Stan Laurel. The scene is an orphan asylum. There are close-ups of several cute crying babies, including a Chinese one. Then comes a sequence in which Laurel and James Finlayson are dressed in babies' caps and gowns and are lying in a washbasket, presumably twins, each having a birthmark consisting of a letter "Z" under their chins. Hence the title. The "babies" are separated and the next scene is some twenty years later. Finlayson is the captain of rip-roaring ship, on which Laurel is impressed into service. There are some good laughs, also some occasioned by old gags such as the dropping of hot coffee etc., because of the rolling of the vessel. One sequence which could easily have been left out to good advantage shows the crew leaving the dinner table one by one, being overcome with seasickness. This one should be good for considerable laughter.

"Dandy Lions"—Educational

First Rate Short Subject

Type of production 2 reel comedy

Here's another comedy with lions in it. But it's far and away the most amusing one seen this season. First of all the idea is novel—the girl insists on being married to the boy in a lion's cage because she thinks he is a coward—and then the titles and the action have been so well handled as to keep the interest highly sustained all the way at all times and bring plenty of laughs besides. This is one short subject that certainly can be advertised and exploited easily. The boy's name is Daniel, played by Neal Burns. All you have to do is talk about Daniel and the lion's den with a catchline or two and you'll have them interested. The cast includes Jay Belasco, Natalie Joyce, Lila Leslie and George Pearce. Archie Mayo directed.

"Our Little Nell"—Dippy Doo Dads Pathe

Good Novelty

Type of production 2 reel animal comedy.

Wonderful patience on the part of the director sticks out all over these animal pictures, the entire cast of which is composed of monkeys, a dog, a duck and some extras composed of hens, chickens, and a goat or two. The titles are first-rate, and the little story dealing with Nell, her lover who is merely a thief, and let watchful father who rescues her from an unworthy marriage at the last moment, holds the interest, and amuses. A top-notch novelty and great stuff for the kids.

"A New England Farm"—Fox Educational

Pretty Farm Scenes

Type of production 1 reel Educational

For the benefit of those who may feel sorry for the quiet existence of farm folks, and for the purposes of giving a better idea of what a well managed farm is like, Fox offers a very interesting educational called "A New England Farm." The farmer has anything but a dull life according to the views presented. Nor is it all work and no play with him. The reel consists in scenes showing the events in the day of farmer's life, from his early rising and the first chores, including the milking of the cows, until sundown when that task is repeated. The reel offers many picturesque shots and besides showing how a well managed farm is conducted, gives an insight into the farmer and his family, showing how all hands, from the father down to the smallest youngster contribute to the general smooth, even tenor of farm life. The picture is pictorially attractive as well as interesting from the standpoint of the material contained in it.

"The Trader Keeps Moving"— Bruce-Educ'l

A Charming Number

Type of production 1 reel wilderness tale.

With a cast composed of a man and a dog, Robert Bruce has managed to make this wilderness tale entirely interesting and enjoyable. It's just the doings of a man who trades his possessions for something better all the time and so proves his rule that "you've got to keep movin' to be a success." First he trades his jack-knife for a wheel-barrow. Then he trades the wheelbarrow for a bicycle. Then the bicycle for a horse, then the horse for a broken-down flivver, which he fixes, and finally after catching a thief who has attempted to steal his flivver, he finds the knife that was his sole capital in the beginning. Thus he gets his capital back and "still hangs on to the interest." The backgrounds are woods and country. Very restful, and pretty.

"One Wet Night"—Universal

Rather Silly But Will Pass

Type of production 1 reel comedy

Starring Neely Edwards and Bert Roach, with Alice Howell in the cast, "One Wet Night" will probably get a few laughs from the average audience. It is silly, on the whole, but the sight of several people getting hopelessly drenched because one of them has accidentally shot a hole in the roof and it is pouring rain as it only pours in movie comedies, will probably tickle some people's sense of humor. The finish shows the folks playing cards in bathing suits under a huge umbrella.

Your extraordinary genius as one of the world's leading popular showmen has lately been revealed again by your successful use of the radio, which carries your name and Capitol program into millions of homes.

Has it occurred to you that there is a drama in every one of those homes? Surely the comedies, tragedies, loves and desires of life are not confined to the theatres on dazzled Broadway.

Renaud Hoffman, a young, unknown producer of photoplays, has looked with sympathetic eyes upon the American Family, and he has translated into motion picture a story of what goes on within the hearts of men and women. This picture is entitled "WHICH SHALL IT BE?" and it will be shown at the Cameo Theatre all next week, commencing Sunday.

That Deal

not help matters. But Hart thinks he knows best what to make. And there you are.

REGARDING MR. HARRIS

A theatrical publication reports that Sam Harris may make some pictures. "Rain" is one of the few properties Harris owns—practically all the others have been sold for picture purposes.

At the moment Mr. Harris—like many theatrical producers—is in a jam with the Actors Equity. Regarding the proposed contract. Wonder if the other theatrical producers are thinking the same way?

THE LATEST NIFTY

When Clara Beranger wrote her script she titled it "The Inside Story." Now the powers that be at Famous have decided on "The Bedroom Window" as the title. Just an evolution.

WIT

They do say that some exhibitors insist that "The Galloping Ace" is a pinochle story.

THE ENGLISH IDEA

This from "The Film Renter," London:

"Met an exhibitor in Wardour Street last Monday, who informed me that he did not know what to think of 'The Ten Commandments,' as he had not read the novel."

STORY VALUES

Frances Marion—one of the cleverest women in the business—talking: Says back in the old days a scenario writer was glad to get $15 for a script, and now producers are paying $100,000 and more for material. Just as though it counted for nothing. Then goes on to tell of a producer who is accumulating material. Paid on an average of $6,100 for 85 plays and books in 1920; averaged $8,500 for each of the 64 he bought in 1921 and for the 22 he bought in 1922 he averaged $18,000 each. And though he bought but 16 during 1923 they averaged $21,000.

Which shows how the market has been advancing. And the end isn't in sight yet.

DEVELOPMENT

Famous announces four new directors to go to work. Fine. Men who have never before been important in production. And grooming others, so it is said. In the lot are Paul Bern, who has done some fine scenario and preparatory work; Paul Sloane who prepared the script for "Over the Hill"; R. H. Burnside, who formerly had charge of the big Hippodrome productions; and Frank Tuttle who broke into directing with the Film Guild. In a few months you may hear of Carl Fleming being promoted from Sid Olcott's assistant to a full fledged director.

Dick Rowland uncovered Earl Hudson as a producer. Look for some more surprises from Rowland. He has them up his sleeve. Harry Rapf is giving Monte Bell, formerly Chaplin's assistant, his first chance as a director. Which is fine stuff. Let's have a new note in the business. New blood does it.

THE OLD COMBINATIONS

What all the producers may well attend to is this: the right kind of a combination of director, scenario writer and player—whether star or not. Tom Ince made his great successes when he had his units working in this manner. Who will ever forget the famous old combination of Agnes Christine Johnston as scenarioist; Jerome Storm as director, and Charles Ray the star. That was a really fine combination.

This is really the way to work out production. Look at what Cecil DeMille and Jeanie Macpherson have accomplished. And there are others.

PRODUCERS NUTTY, SAYS LEHR—WHO KNOWS

Abraham Lehr in charge of Goldwyn production. Quoted as saying:

"No producer is normal. He must be a 'nut' or he would take the chances he must take every time he puts a picture in production. If he were normal he would buy bonds, or real estate or jewels."

So. Well, who knows better than Mr. Lehr?

JUST SMART

Arthur Smallwood of Pyramid Pictures. Promises exhibitors a brand new, nicely working fountain pen. If they will work for him. If they will only fill in a blank. And tell when they booked his pictures to play, and what they paid them.

It's sure an easy way for an exhibitor to secure a fountain pen. But oh, what a check that will be on his distributor!

NOT FOR BETTY

The National Screen Players operate at 19 E. Wilkins in Indianapolis. They recently issued a statement that they intended making a picture with Betty Blythe in the leading role. When Betty heard of it she promptly wired H. K. Burton of Indianapolis. It wasn't so and that she was going to take some legal steps. She turned the matter over to the Hays office. Betty won. Probably because Burton said the last concern selling stock in a picture concern out that way took $200,000 "from the neighborhood without ever making a picture."

One of the directors of the National Screen Players is named L. B. Lookabill.

ANOTHER GALLOPING

Canyon Pictures point out—incidental to all the galloping pictures now out. That they made "The Galloping Devil" years ago. Any more Galloping's around?

PUBLICITY!

How it didn't work. Bert Adler got up a great yarn. A sunken treasure being found by Ernest Williamson. While making an undersea picture. And the Boston Sunday American indicated it broadly. Great yarn. Only they got it twisted and made Bert sour. Had garish headline of a bank being embarrassed; the police being stirred up and the film company being driven from town. All of which wasn't so. Trouble with the editor of a little paper down in the Bahamas didn't realize what a press agent's story was. And became indignant and wrathful.

NO CANES IN BERLIN HOUSES

Over in Berlin you cannot carry a walking stick into a movie house. Must be checked at the door. For a dime. Wonder why?

R. I. P.—IN IMMORTALS

Awhile ago there was a stir. A great stir. It looked like ART—in large, bold capitals. Had come into the industry. The highbrows were happy—oh, so happy. The Little Theater Films was started in Hollywood. It was to do for pictures what the Little Theater movement had done for the speaking stage.

At the forefront of this venture was Curtis Melnitz. On advisory board were Hugo Ballin, Paul Bern, Ralph Block, Charles Chaplin, William De Mille, Walter Prichard Eaton, Douglas Fairbanks, Clayton Hamilton, Rupert Hughes, Rex Ingram, Charles Lapworth, Ernst Lubitsch, George Marion, June Mathis, Mary Pickford, Frank Reicher, Victor Seastrom, Robert E. Sherwood, Maurice Tourneur, Oswald Garrison Villard, Rob Wagner, Stark Young.

Most of them are well known in pictures. Well, Melnitz went ahead. Even got a picture ready for release. And could not release it. "It wouldn't pay," said the distributor. And to Melnitz is trying to secure a job. He needs it. He should have it. He deserves it. Even tho the fine, high spirited idea was on the rocks.

Newspaper Opinions

"America"—D. W. Griffith

Chestnut St. O. H. Philadelphia

BULLETIN—No other photoplay since Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" reaches the heights attained by "America" from a patriotic and dramatic as well as artistic viewpoint.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"America" is one of D. W. Griffith's finest productions. * * * It is no exaggeration to say that this picture makes screen history.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Since * * * "The Birth of a Nation," no screen production has so completely expressed the life of a people as "America," D. W. Griffith's latest handiwork, * * *

"The Call of the Wild"—Pathe Capitol, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—It is the sort of picture that takes you out to the white open spaces, revealing background as vital and picturesque as the action which accompanies them.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ditto.

"The Country Kid"—Warners' Lyric, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—However, it is so well acted both by the adolescent Barry and his supporting cast that its crudities of plot and situation almost can be overlooked.

TIMES-STAR—"The Country Kid," is good entertainment, containing, as it does, the elements of humor and pathos, and Sunday's audience seemed to appreciate it.

"Daddies"—Warners' Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—All in all "Daddies" is mildly amusing but it is a trifle too long and the laughs are scattered instead of being concentrated. There is a capable cast. * * *

"The Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Garden, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—It is a pretty picture and has a pleasing romance, but it isn't the type of a story at which Constance Talmadge is at her best.

"The Darling of New York"—Universal Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 29)

EXAMINER—Baby Peggy is really a delightful child. King Baggott puts her through a lot of paces and she registers some great stuff. She is surrounded by a bevy of child talent that helps the picture, too.

EXPRESS—The story is none too absorbing to begin with, and as it is prolonged to six reels the tiny actress is just about at the end of her resources by the time of the final fade-out.

HERALD—"The Darling of New York" might be termed comedy melodrama. It is 100 per cent entertainment, although the title is a little misleading.

TIMES—There aren't any very original turns to the plot * * * but then, with Baby Peggy you don't need them.

"The Dawn of To-Morrow"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 29)

HERALD—* * * Those who like the thrill of the detective story flavored strongly with atmosphere of the Polyanna type, if such an incongruity can be imagined, should * * * see "The Dawn of Tomorrow."

RECORD—The picture is enjoyable for three reasons: (1) Raymond Griffith, (2) David Torrence, and (3) Jacqueline Logan.

TIMES—Each member of the cast paints an almost perfect character. After you leave the theater you may forget entirely what the story is about. But the characters will live with you for some time.

"The Eternal City"—Gold-Cosmopolitan, Washington

HERALD—A distinguished cast has been assembled, including Barabar La Marr who does, by far, her most brilliant work in the role of Roma, with Bert Lytell is an impassioned lover.

POST—Rome, with its deep background of sumptuous yesterdays, provides a stirring and unusual setting for the film.

STAR—All the colorful romance, vivid picturesqueness of landscape and architecture, and that indefinable atmosphere of "sunniness" that is fundamentally Italian are embodied in * * * "The Eternal City."

"Flaming Passions"—Warners' The Chicago, Chicago

AMERICAN—In fact, aside from the punch reels, the acting is about the best thing to be noted in "Flaming Passion."

HERALD AND EXAMINER—The tale is well and simply told, and in its three important roles very honestly acted.

POST—A glance at this cast brings the exclamation, "So many players I like." And you will admire them more than ever after seeing "Flaming Passions."

"The Great White Way"—Gold-Cos. Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a story of Broadway as the world knows it and it is not much of a strain to imagine the appeal it is bound to have for the theater going public.

POST-DISPATCH—There is material for half a dozen ordinary melodramas in "The Great White Way," the week's feature.

STAR—It is flashily entertaining in a three-ring circus sort of way.

TIMES—The film is an elaborate production, and among its extras are many prominent writers and artists.

Rialto, Washington

STAR—* * * would seem to qualify as a leading film substitute for the old fashioned circus, with stars, sideshows, performing animals and everything.

POST—* * * the citizenry is craning its neck this week to look at shadow pictures of certain sports writers and cartoonists, not to mention a fight promoter, a jockey, Irvin S. Cobb and others of more or less note.

"The Heritage of the Desert"—F.-P. L.—Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Those who have read the book will be keenly disappointed because the story comes to the screen with many of the best and most powerful chapters missing or revised.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * ran true to the Wild West form. Ernest Torrence put real life into the man who went through pioneer prairie days with the fear of God in his heart and a six-shooter in his right hand.

"The Hill Billy"—Allied Prod. Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * thoroughly delightful and refreshing.

TIMES—* * * when there is a production that stands out it, indeed, is a triumph. And it deserves unstinting praise.

There is such a picture—a good picture—in Detroit this week. Its Jack Pickford's "The Hill Billy" with Lucille Rickson, as lading woman.

"Ladies To Board"—Fox Keiths 105th St., Cleveland

NEWS—Tom Mix and a fair story. * * * touches of real, lump-in-the-throat pathos are injected here and there, but all are subordinate to the comedy. Mix sports a deal of originality in his sartorial attire and Pee Wee Holmes brings much laughter.

PLAIN DEALER—Light, frothy and improbable stuff, most of this film is comprised of, but it gives a good opportunity for Mr. Mix to do acrobatic stunts and to play the big-hearted hero. The picture is better, too, because it never takes itself seriously, and a title writer with a sense of humor has added to the general effect.

"Poisoned Paradise"—Preferred Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—* * * significantly moral without being too obviously a preaching, moderately satisfactory as to cast and intelligent in the assembling of details that come under the general term direction, sums up briefly our impression of "Poisoned Paradise."

JOURNAL—A splendid cast has made of "Poisoned Paradise," * * *

HERALD—The film shows some rather fine views of the world's greatest gambling joint. As to the acting, Clara Bow is in the lead. Clara is cute.

TIMES-UNION—* * * a pretty little love romance of the fairy-tale type * * * excellently staged and photographed so that it is a pleasure to watch from an artistic standpoint.

"Secrets"—1st Nat'l Stillman, Cleveland

HERALD—* * * the famous novel by Harold Bell Wright, has finally reached the screen in a flashing, dynamic production * * *

NEWS—"Secrets" is a picture worth seeing. And you can thank Norma Talmadge for that.

PLAIN DEALER—* * * begins with a telling blow below the emotional belt. As the play unfolds it gradually grasps your heart, already in your throat. It wrings your tear ducts dry. It terrifies you during its melodramatic sequences, and finishes by sending you out of the theater crying over the happy ending—and over the greatest picture Norma Talmadge has ever made!

"Secrets" is Norma Talmadge's picture from start to finish.

POST—* * * the producers are entitled to a lot of credit. They have taken a plot that could—and in the original probably did—exude mock heroics and blatant platitudes. And, as filmed, it is rather enjoyable.

PRESS—Miss Talmadge exceeds all others we know in her ability to show emotion in her face * * * This tempts directors to keep her expressing something all the time. They keep twisting situations to that end. * * *

She acts one character from youth to old age. The theme is a woman's life-long devotion. That is touching. But we find the situations conventional and hackneyed.

TIMES—Miss Talmadge has in this instance risen to heights which entirely eclipse anything which she has ever attempted to portray on the silver sheet. The remainder of the cast, while consistently good, rather fade into the background before the vitality of Miss Talmadge's performance. * * *

The picture is builded on sentiment without sentimentality, there is a sureness and spontaneity with reality always close to its surface.

Criterion, Los Angeles

EXPRESS—Never has Miss Talmadge demonstrated her piquant beauty, sensitiveness and charm with such display of facility and intelligence.

HERALD—"Secrets," is as fine a photoplay as that talented actress has ever appeared in, which is stating more than a mere mouthful * * *

RECORD—I can't think of another screen player who could equal her acting in "Secrets." And I'm not referring alone to that astounding make-up of the old grandmother when I say "acting."

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold-Cosmopolitan, Broadway Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Patrons of the silent drama who enjoy their film fare with action, thrills and plenty of dramatic interest will find all of these ingredients in "Unseeing Eyes."

TIMES—* * * It has the advantage of most Canadian northwest dramas of having Lionel Barrymore for the hero, a "Wally" Wolheim for the villain and such a good looking bit of femininity as Seena Owen for the heroine from the city.

"The White Sister"—Me Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE such pictures as "The White Sister" make us believe in such an accomp as art in motion pictures and that our fearless use of the sacred term discussion of them.

JOURNAL—"The White Sister" done. The cast was taken to Italy 2 of the scenes made over there. It is that for the most part the set of Italy.

HERALD—* * * with remarkable, splendid photography and executing it is, with the possible exception of Mr. Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris" best picture that Rochester has seen.

TIMES-UNION—"The White Sister" scenically, one of the most beautiful picture plays that ever has been shown in city.

"Women Who Give"—Me Loew's, Los Angeles

(Week ending March 29)

EXAMINER—* * * storms and never played more into the hands of producer-director than they did for in this picture.

EXPRESS—It is an absorbing document couched in vivid pictorial which at moments are compellingly real.

HERALD—Stormy seas and ships, tragedy, sacrifice, and tender love. These make "Women Who Give," * * * Barker's screen masterpiece * * * the best productions of its kind.

TIMES—For it has freshness, vivid direction so natural it seems as though were peeping through a window at it.

Delmonte, Capitol—St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—By all means "Women Who Give" because you'll find up one of the very best if you'd like.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * excellent of character work by Frank Keer Joseph Dowling in these roles. As other New Englanders in the picture are well drawn.

STAR—One high light is the acting of a school of whales in flight a swordfish, the harpooning of the sea and a terrific fight between two mermen and the wounded sea-wolf.

TIMES—The plot develops smoothly there are no uninteresting moments.

"Woman To Woman"—Selznick Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE with a director's evident belief that tators of photoplays must not think for themselves * * * relegates this production the collection of thousands of motion pictures that are merely produced to be forgotten.

JOURNAL—* * * the plot is dull thin * * * the directors found it necessary to pad the action with a good deal of trite detail to make the picture of length.

HERALD—"Woman to Woman" enough. It is no doubt entertaining sufficient for an hour or so of pastime other of the old stories, revamped.

TIMES-UNION—* * * is good movie entertainment if one does not the lack of plausibility in the actor characters to overshadow its good points.

Such stories as "The Marriage Cheat" can always be counted upon to hit the masses. This story with such dramatic moulders as Thos. H. ## SUMMER

By DANNY

All its attendant problems including good pictures, and your audiences. And for them. As often happens. Looked into this. Glanced at the releases for May and there isn't a lot to get enthusiastic about. But there are some that promise something like 80 or 90 per cent. And among these the showman will find enough. Dig deeply. To keep his going in the right way. Keep it from the "red." Unheats up too much. Then the first thing to do is close before you bother about shows for the summer this in mind; clean, summer covers for your seats help. A good ventilating system great aid. And make sure advertise broadly and let people know: that your seat not only is cool, but cool. Helps a lot. Let us use their imagination. Don't deceive them.

g the features which promise your crowd. And make the good are Harold Lloyd's "Wh" which, while released in will not hit a lot of houses for more months; and Hal Roach's "Wild Horses" (Pathe) uninteresting. Associated Exhibitors will have "The Chechahcos," a skan picture which is being as a winner, and half a dozen Famous has two Negri's, and "Montmarte"—the latter by Lubitsch with Pola abroad—an story. First National will have "Cytherea" the Sam Goldwyn which promises much and Col-Moore's "Perfect Flapper" mean much at the box office in her success in "Flaming J. K. McDonald's "The ought to be good—if his re- office successes can rest as ground. Nothing special in m Fox. Goldwyn—unless it d Metro by that time—will e Great White Way" which o clean up; "Three Weeks"— box office title—and "Nellie tiful Cloak Model" plus some Universal will have "Riders (Continued on Page 2)

Try 107 Cases

Cleveland Arbitration Board Active—Majority of Disputes Over Play Dates

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—Figures prepared by the joint Board of Arbitration for the local territory show that 107 cases were tried between May 4, 1923 and the end of that year. The cases were divided as follows:

Total claims heard .....	107
Brought by exchanges .....	103
Brought by exhibitors .....	4
Decisions in favor of exchanges .....	82
In favor of exhibitors .....	3
Compromise decisions .....	19
Selected by recommendation of board...	3
Exhibitors present to defend themselves..	21

The majority of claims concerned dates to complete contracts. A number was for payment of shows shipped to exhibitors in accordance with contracts but refused by the exhibitor upon delivery. The board states few of these would have reached it if exhibitors had turned them over to Sam Bullock, field representative for the M. P. T. O. About one in seven is the ratio of cases actually tried by the board, since Bullock handles the rest, in conjunction with W. J. Banks, secretary of the Cleveland unit and (Continued on Page 2)

Clem's Ocean Stuff

All Wet in Venice. Well, Film Daily:

If this letter don't knock you off your chair, you're nailed in. Here I am in Venice Italy, full of red ink and black and blue marks and me not even knowing one good overhand stroke. Boy, this is a great old world. I start out to make a cruise on the Mediterranean and here I am way up in Venice with about four more weeks to scout around. If I ain't the travelingest exhibitor in America I am at least the travelingest west of the Rockies.

Just a 'Patsy'

No Rose Colored Vision for Joe Brandt—Asks What's It All Coming to?

Joe Brandt is back in town. And in his path from the Coast are no rose colored visions, nor memories. Cold, hard brass tacks for Joe. And the question is: where is the independent producer going, and where will he end?

The answer? Well, according to Brandt it is to much of a problem for him. "The exhibitor has been using the independent producer as a 'Patsy'" he said yesterday. "In the early part of the season he stalls off because he wants to see what he can do with the old line companies. Then he uses your product against them. In the latter part of the season he gives a play date that makes it impossible almost to do business with him. Incidentally, no matter how good your picture is he plays you for a 'Patsy' again by offering always, he never varies, at least 25 per cent less than he pays for average pictures from the old line companies. The cast of the independent picture is as strong, if not stronger, than in (Continued on Page 2)

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—John Griffith Wray has returned from a six weeks' trip to New York.

Laemmle Optimistic

Sees New Season Greatest Yet for Universal—Two New Stages Found Necessary

Carl Laemmle returned from the Coast yesterday with a tale of optimism over Universal's 1924-1925 plans. He said he felt the new season would be the biggest yet for his organization.

The production schedule as now drawn up is so pretentious that it was found necessary to build two new stages to take care of the units. One of these has been completed, and, as noted, was properly dedicated last Saturday night by a dance at which 1,500 attended.

Laemmle will make his usual trip abroad this summer.

Summer Releases

About Ninety Scheduled in Advance Lists—More to Be Added Later On

Information obtained from the majority of distributors yesterday indicated that about ninety pictures will be released during the summer months.

A lot of pictures have not been included in this list. A lot of companies as well, the big point being that from what the lists show the above are the high lights. That doesn't mean there aren't any more especially good ones. Not at all. And if there are any others so much the better. The more the merrier the tinkle of the cash box.

Howard Christman, secretary of the F. I. L. M. Board. In seventy-five per cent of the cases, the decisions of the board were observed by both parties, the remainder had to be enforced. In only one case was the service of an outside arbitrator found necessary.

Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Hays office who is handling the national operation of the F. I. L. M. Clubs stated yesterday that since April, 1923 over 5,000 cases have been actually tried by the thirty-one boards in operation, but that fully three times that number have come up for argument outside the meetings. He said the system is working so well that in not more than fifteen instances has it been necessary to go to an outside arbitrator.

oy of Flanders"—Metro
State, Cleveland

A picturesque production, printed to the locale * * * There is nothing about the story. It merely a poor orphan boy in Holland a time getting along as he would land, * * * has a good continental flavor in and not a little of the tang in The story, it is easy to see, has only because of its suitability as or young Coogan. Jackie meets pretty well. He has an attractive and naturally expressive features.

Jackie, with the assistance of his pretty good job in this release. DEALER—Jackie Coogan makes of Flanders" a worthy picture.

olonial, Indianapolis

* * * Jackie, * * * being a gifted and an appealing one at the same credence to the performance, and establishes his claim to filmdom's smile.

rs of the Rich"—Preferred
Hipp, Cleveland

The film isn't as bad as all that, very well done and for the most convincing. DEALER—* * * a tearful, long sermon against the fallacy of rich tempting to marry their daughters * * * as a whole, the film the lower 50 per cent, and machine made entertainment. It within fifty notches of real life characterization or acting.

ashion Row"—Metro
Sun, Omaha

HERALD—Like all Mae Murrin, this one has been lavishly mounted and costumed. The Russian and the Russian dive present here.

ghting Coward"—F.-P. L.
New, Baltimore

MORNING)—The drama, which is strongly upon burlesque, has gently directed and moves for interest well sustained. EVENING)—Nothing would please man to grab a good large megaphone elevator to the top floor of largest building and just tell you which we enjoyed "The Fighting

McVicker's Chicago

AN—For this photoplay is an addition to the long list of succumbed out by this * * * director, refer "The Covered Wagon" * * * L—Here is action speaking more than words, beyond a doubt for in early death with speech, begins bid for immortality without it. EXAMINER—"The Fighting Coward" a comedy done with a certain derisive laughter not always screen entertainment.

Palace, Montreal

* * * if one accepts it as a n it proves a most enjoyable nts to watch upon the screen.

Missouri, St. Louis

DEMOCRAT—"The Fighting * * * is of the finest screen mag with the old South. SPATCH—In acting, in its n-s, in plot in the creation and sus-terest it is far and away ahead majority of motion pictures. t is a colorful melodrama, re-nd again by first rate comedy. * * * the story goes off with a e principals wade knee deep into ce.

"Forgive and Forget"—C. B. C.
Gifts, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—* * * another one of the multitudinous photoplays dealing with the indiscreet wife, and it is a sort of synthesis of all the moss-grown situations that have been used in motion pictures that last 15 years.

POST—A certain degree of suspense and a few thrills which run thru the picture help make it pleasing entertainment.

TIMES-STAR—The drama, with its tragic retribution for the bad and its reward for the good, hold the audience with gripping interest.

Empress, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Howard M. Mitchell, the director, with the help of a very good cast, has made a picture that is no better nor worse than many other pictures of its type.

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"—Vita.
Rivoli, St. Louis

STAR—For those who care for thickly coated emotion in a high key "Let Not Man Put Asunder" may be freely recommended.

"The Love Master"—1st Nat'l
Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Judged however, by the standards previously set for this type of picture, "The Love Master" ranks high. It is surpassed only by "The Call of the Wild" as a story of dog life.

POST—Those who raved about Strongheart before will have every reason to keep up their enthusiasm.

TIMES-STAR—All previous efforts of canine actors fade into nothingness when compared with the performance of Strongheart, the marvelous police dog. * * *

"Lucky Dan"—S. R.
Isis, Indianapolis

NEWS—If you are familiar with Talmadge's acrobatics, you will like "Lucky Dan." for it is active and breezy.

"The Man Life Passed By"—Metro
Parkway, Baltimore

AMERICAN—* * * it is only fair to tell you that some of the backgrounds are pretty good, that a little of the acting is fair * * *

The nicest thing about "The Man Life Passed By" is a jolly old Roman revel with an arena, a dais and no end of lovely lady Romans.

"The Marriage Market"—Warners'
World, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—It's wholesome, good entertainment, all about a twentieth century girl who craved romance and adventure.

"Maytime"—Preferred
Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—A plot that may have been sufficient for a musical comedy of the stage, with the reinforcement of singing and dancing, appears in the photoplay to less advantage.

"Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model"
Gold.-Cosmop.
Arcadia, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—There are two redeeming features to the film. The first is the powerful portrayal of a dual role by Hobart Bosworth, the other the comical acting of both Mae Busch, as Nellie's friend, and Ermund Lowe, as the taxi driver.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The film version of "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," the famous thriller of the same name, is quite a picturesque treatment of the higher and lower ways of living.

"Other Men's Daughters"—S. R.
Regent, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The plot is rather hackneyed, but the acting comes very near compensating for the lack of originality.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ditto.

"Ride For Your Life"—Universal
Moon, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—It is a stereotyped western in which the director, Edward Sedwick, seems to have forgotten continuity.

"Shadows of Paris"
Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—* * * Miss Negri's latest * * * gives this star in a role that is the best she has had since she came to America and one that is more like her European roles than any in which she has heretofore appeared.

"A Society Scandal"—F. P.-L.
Capitol, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Neither the theme nor the treatment of this latest Gloria Swanson starring vehicle is likely to leave an indelible impression on the mind. It certainly is below the standard set by "Zaza" and one or two other recent productions featuring Gloria Swanson.

POST—Gloria Swanson of "The Society Scandal" is not the Gloria Swanson of "The Humming Bird." We were disappointed * * *

TIMES-STAR—Admirers of Gloria Swanson who rejoiced at the artistic progress shown by her in "Zaza" and even more recently in "The Humming Bird," are going to be somewhat disappointed in "A Society Scandal."

Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—It will never make motion history but it may break box office records. * * * she isn't much different from any other actress who is capable of making a clothes model of herself. She's nothing like the Gloria in "The Humming Bird."

PLAIN DEALER—* * * the Gloria of so much promise in "The Humming Bird." * * * continues on the upgrade.

The film is modern, very elaborate, very much dressed; with Gloria changing a gown for every scene, as in the other days, but this time acting.

PRESS—The picture makes unusual demands upon the central character, * * *

Miss Swanson has sufficient gowns to meet the exigency. But alas, not sufficient histrionic talent. At times her acting is splendid. But at other times her raising of eyebrows and compressing of lips and clenching of hands is just that and nothing more.

The play is closely knit. There doesn't seem to be a weak spot in it, and there are many novelties.

Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—it is a bit disappointing for those who prefer finish and polish in pictures to sensation to find (Gloria Swanson) back on the clothes rack again.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Pretty thin entertainment is provided * * * in the feature film, * * * with Gloria Swanson in the leading role. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The Gloria Swanson fans will revel no doubt, in her gowns and enthuse over this latest offering of hers, but some will be disappointed that she did not keep on "acting." * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * she does not depend on the wealth of striking gowns she appears in to win stellar honors, but displays some really rare artistry in acting and in an emotional riot or two.

"Tiger Rose"—Warners'
Grand Central and West End Lyric,
St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—The dramatic tension and suspense of "Tiger Rose" as played on the stage is maintained to the last degree in the picture.

POST-DISPATCH—Lenore Ulric, * * * gives fine film characterization of the fiery, elemental young Canadian girl who fights with truly tigerish intensity to protect the man she loves when he is being hunted down for murder.

STAR—It is a remarkable picture. TIMES—Leonore Ulric, of legitimate stage fame, is given an opportunity to exhibit her talent at its best, in the screen version of the "Tiger Rose."

"The Wanters"—1st Nat'l
Karlton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * interest * * * never seems to lag when the subject is presented with a new sort of twist as it is done this week at the Karlton theater.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—It has a simple, human story to put across, and it does this successfully in a most effective manner.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The lesson fails to register, and we have left a fairly fast, fairly interesting yet ordinary story.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Park, Cleveland

NEWS—King Vidor brings it out of the mold of the commonplace and makes it into a picture that is better than the average. * * * Some of the scenes are almost painfully graphic. * * *

PLAIN DEALER—"Rattling good" in this case may be taken literally, since it is the picturization of rattling window shutters, banging doors, continuously rocking chairs and fifty other little details which gives this film an atmosphere of mystery and horror, and makes it intensely interesting.

* * * not a very good dose for young children. Adults, though, will find it a gripping mystery film.

EVILS

By DANNY

There are enough short sighted people in this business to blind all the oculists in America for years—if glasses alone could be the remedy. They don't. And among these short sighted people are some exhibitors. Some who think that through effecting buying combines, and working through booking arrangements they can force the price of film. So far that goes they can—and do. Do they see any farther to the end of their nose?

Because if this practice continues—together with other such practices—what will be the result? The weaker companies, unable to stand the gaff, will be forced out of business. Then the exhibitors will be left in the hands of the stronger companies. And how they will pay for their short sightedness. How they will pay—and pay—and pay!

Do you hold no brief for any distributor? Nor, for that matter, any exhibitor, or group of exhibitors. But isn't the coldest of cold common sense, what on earth is? If you lay the goose that lays the eggs—golden, some not—what are you to do? Oh, says Mr. Exhibitor serenely, "there'll always be one to do business with." And right. There always will be. Do you notice how the circle finishes every few years? Do you see how the old line companies, use of necessity, combine? And do you realize that there are in this country today less—by far—independent exchanges than there have been in years? Do you realize that years ago there were over four companies making short stuff to the exhibitor today? Does this mean anything? Or is it that a blind man can see.

Just as surely as booking combines work to the destruction of this business, so do gentlemen's agreements between exhibitors to keep down prices. It's just as wrong as cycling film or pirating prints. You can imagine how

Oscar Neufeld Believes State-Right Men Should Organize and Affiliate with Independent Producers

A very interesting idea was voiced yesterday at the regular luncheon of the Ind. Prod. and Dist. Ass'n, at the Astor by Oscar Neufeld, of De Luxe Films, Philadelphia, when he suggested that state-right exchange-men should organize and affiliate with the Independent Producers.

Among other speakers were Houston Thompson, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Robert E. Welsh of the Moving Picture World and a representative of the Post Office Department.

Neufeld said that early reports relative to the Association attacked the honesty of the state-right buyer, a matter which he regretted very much. He said it was difficult in view of these statements to convince exhibitors of the situation as well as the banks in the territory where the state right operator lived. He said that a week ago he had heard that the Association had stopped credit to the

Brockell Joins Katz

Leads to Reports of a Booking Combination in Chicago and a Denial from Katz

When the report circulated through the market yesterday that Floyd Brockell, formerly with First National, had left for Chicago, a report spread that he was to act in charge of a booking combination for Balaban & Katz, Ascher Bros., and Lubliner & Trinz.

As a result, Sam Katz was wired. His reply follows:

"There is no booking combination contemplated between Ascher, Lubliner and ourselves. Brockell joining us and we expect to be able to advise some development in our interests in near future."

Brockell's duties have been assumed by J. C. Vergesslich.

Distributing Heads Discuss Combines Of Exhibitors and Booking Circuits

Serious Situation Menaces Industry—Production Plans Also Taken Up—No Solution Presented but Many Ideas Offered—May Meet Again

What to do with the growing menace of buying combines among exhibitors, and booking circuits operating in various parts of the country, led to a meeting of sales executives Monday night at the Astor.

Practically every company of importance was represented, and while no definite program was evolved, it is understood there will be a meeting shortly at which it is hoped to agree upon some plan to offset what the sales directors believe to be the greatest menace facing the business.

Coast Convention

Planned by Warners'—No Change in Distribution for Season of 1924-1925

Sam E. Morris left for Chicago yesterday to meet Abe Warner and discuss the possibility of holding a national convention of Warner franchise holders at the studio in May.

It was announced yesterday that distribution for 1924-1925 will continue as at present, through franchises held by state right operators. The output for the new season is now set at twenty pictures, but it may be increased to twenty-four.

A division in Western territory has been made. L. K. Brin of Kwalita Pictures will handle Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Montana, and Frank Barmettler, a Denver publisher, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Weight to Direct Compson

Harmon Weight will direct "Ramshackle House," by Hulbert Footner, the second Betty Compson picture for Hodkinson. He left last night for Miami.

Intern'l News Reel—"U" Deal

International News Weekly has signed a five year distribution contract with Universal. R. V. Anderson, sales manager, is working out a schedule of increased prints.

"Big 4" Meeting Routine

The annual meeting of United Artists, which was held yesterday, was a routine affair. Hiram Abrams and other officers were reelected.

The development, during the past few years, of exhibitor combinations, plus the growth of booking circuits, has given much thought to men selling pictures. Some companies, notably Famous, insist they will not do business with booking agencies or combines. During the discussion Monday night several interesting matters, hardly new, and heretofore reported in these columns, were brought up for discussion. The situation dealing with the West Coast Theaters, Inc. was discussed at length. The operation of a booking organization in the Mid-West also came up as did the problem of what to do with exhibitors who have a mutual understanding as to what product they will handle. Some of these exhibitors agree among themselves to split up the product of various companies. Exhibitor A agrees to take all of Metro and Exhibitor B is allotted First National product. Exhibitor C can have half of Famous output, etc., etc., and so it goes. It may be recalled that some months ago in this paper appeared a report from a small town in Michigan where two exhibitors had agreed on this policy, and when the sales manager of a certain state-right company arrived to make his sale he found that the exhibitor to whom the print had been forwarded had in turn sent it to the other exhibitor who was to show the picture. The sales manager refused to let this exhibitor have it. He has done no business in that town since.

During the past year or two such agreements among exhibitors are reported to have developed to such an extent that this condition is becoming more alarming than the closed town.

Arthur Loew Says American Producers Are Flooding the Continent With Old Pictures

American producers are losing thousands in England and on the Continent because of their policy of unloading old pictures in those markets, according to Arthur Loew, foreign manager of Metro, who returned recently from abroad. While in Paris he sold this year's product to Gaumont for France and Belgium.

Loew found conditions generally improved over six months ago, except in those countries where the dumping process is under way. "The foreign market," he said yesterday, "is limited as to theaters and they are all eager to buy outright, or play percentage, big American productions. This demand has created a buyer's market that should mean even more to American producers in future years than it does at present. American distributors have literally flooded the foreign markets with old releases of several years ago and films of inferior quality that cannot compare with current productions because the shortsighted producers figure that they have the pictures and whatever they can get is profit. Metro is making more money from the foreign market now than ever before, simply because it is our policy to release our latest productions over there simultaneously with their release here."

Ben Blumenthal, whose knowledge of European film matters is extensive, stated that it was not a question of release dates that interested buyers and exhibitors in Europe but one of merit. "No one in Europe is buying today without first seeing the pictures," he said. "It makes no difference when the picture was made, so long as it is good. It's merely one of merit."

Instead of calling a national sales meeting, E. A. North of Detroit and Leslie Wilkes of Dallas. They will report May 4th and remain the entire week in consultation.

"By having each branch manager," says Eschmann, "spend time with the accounting, sales, advertising, publicity, supply, purchasing and film departments individually and alone there is no doubt but that a greater good is accomplished than by any national convention."

"In bringing our branch managers to New York, however, we do not intend that home office executives should neglect their tours of exchanges. Some major home office executive will be on the road at all time visiting our branches, and this contact will supplement the visits of branch managers to New York."

condition. The practice becomes particularly obnoxious to the sales departments because in many of these towns top price paid for a feature heretofore has been about $25, and this has been materially reduced by the plan now in effect.

If the sales executives can determine upon a course of procedure it is expected that this method, as well as other pernicious methods of a similar type will be ended.

Discuss Production

At one stage of the proceedings there was considerable discussion as to the extent of production by the various companies. The opinion was voiced that perhaps the entire business would be in better condition if the heads of the producing companies could agree among themselves as to a production program which, while giving sufficient pictures for the season, would not overload the market.

state-right buyers and he regretted this very much. He said that the Association and the exhibitors were partners. He suggested the formation of a war chest for the new organization.

Product coming from the independent distributor said Neufeld easily takes its place with the average product of the old-line companies excepting for the super-specials which he said were sold at such a high price and with other restrictions that in the end the exhibitor, although he has increased his receipts, has dissatisfied many of his patrons and profited not for himself.

He suggested that if the independents would let the state-right exchangemen know six or eight months in advance what their product would be so that the exchangemen could prepare a proper pressbook that this would be very helpful. He also suggested an organization of state-right men which should be affiliated with the independent organization and said he would like to see a man like Hays at the head of it.

Houston Thompson of the Federal Trade Commission gave an enlightening address on the practice and procedure of the Commission. His talk had very little to do with motion pictures or this industry excepting that at the conclusion he told of American pictures which he had seen abroad and what he thought was the effect of the competition of American pictures. He pointed out that through the showing of motion pictures in the slum districts of London that police officials declared they had a tremendously favorable reaction in offsetting the effects of alcoholism both with men and women.

He urged American producers to add the spirit of morality and spirituality to their pictures which would result in American pictures being the greatest force in the world for moral good.

Robert E. Welsh of the M. P. World told the Independents that they had been the football of the business for many years and that it was time that they ceased being used in this way.

O. A. Keen, an inspector of the Post Office told of the plans by which the Post Office Department expected to aid the organization by bringing fraud charges against fly-by-night exchangemen who pirated prints.

The present total compares with 423 in 1919. Aside from the fact that existing theaters are greater in number, they are also of a better grade. Many of the smaller houses operating in 1919 have been torn down and replaced with modern structures.

PROOF

By DANNY

When Adolph Zukor planned his plan for Long Island City an investment of $2,500,000, the film world figured he was pulling a white elephant on his back. And they figured about it was. There were construction faults, difficulties in financing, costly experiments, headaches. But there it was. And something had to be done with it.

At this time Jesse L. Lasky sold the idea of coming from Long Island to run that white elephant. He had had Realart pictures were produced here. Then Realart went out of business and Kane had other things to do. Then it was planned to shut down the studio. This was in Connecticut. And shut it was. Meanwhile Kane did some figuring. And he came up with a plan which was put into effect. Instead of a tremendous loss it went to nothing—practically.

Today, with the Kane idea being put into effect, Famous has four of its most important units at work on Long Island. And the production costs have been cut to such an extent that it is possible to say that Famous will save at least 40 per cent of the cost of the coming season on Long Island.

Jesse Lasky is coming East. He has taken up his home in California. It is likely he will make his headquarters in New York. Do not be surprised, therefore, if you hear that a large per cent of Famous' production will be made in the East beginning with the product season of 1925-26.

The "white elephant" has been turned into a profitable investment. Zukor feels good. It is natural that he should. That Bob Kane feels proud of what has been accomplished is also easily understood. And then arises this nigger in the woodpile: if Lasky remains in California, what will happen to Kane? Will he sell all this, be sent to the Coast?

Discuss Neufeld Plan

Certain I. M. P. P. D. A. Members Inclined to Favor Organization of State Right Exchangemen

The suggestion advanced by Oscar Neufeld, of De Luxe Films, Philadelphia that state right exchangemen form an organization of their own to co-operate with producers belonging to the Independent M. P. Prod. and Dist. Ass'n has already been discussed by members of the latter association.

The question will in all likelihood come up at an early meeting of the producers. There are about 350 exchanges scattered throughout the country which to draw for membership. Neufeld suggested at the Tuesday lunch of the producers' organization that he favored securing a man like Will H. Hays to head it but it was stated yesterday that this was not considered feasible, insofar as the cost attendant upon such a step is concerned.

It is not at all unlikely that exchangemen will be urged to get together either in a separate body or under the wing of the I. M. P. P. D. A.

Seeks Music Tax Relief (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Sydney S. Cohen yesterday presented to the Senate Patents Committee a brief on behalf of the M. P. T. O. A., in favor of the Dill bill which makes it illegal for music publishers to levy tribute upon radio broadcasters. The bill does not similarly cover picture theaters and Cohen has suggested an amendment to take care of them.

The main case in favor of the bill was presented by the broadcasters and the hearing was given over to them. The opponents are to be heard next Thursday.

Summer Business

And How to Handle It—An Interesting Suggestion from E. A. Eschmann of 1st National

E. A. Eschmann of First National advanced an interesting suggestion yesterday relative to summer business. He said:

"With all of us becoming more and more interested in the study of business conditions as effected by money, crops, industry, and so forth, I wonder whether in the very study of these things we do not cut paths of thought which take too much for granted.

"To give us graphic and concise interpretations of these various elements in business we call into consideration various forecasts as furnished by various organizations and if we conclude from the perusal of these reports that the summer period offers no particular reason for optimism, I wonder if we do not reflect to one another a rather taken-for-granted poor summer period. And having made up our minds to poor business during June, July and August (Continued on Page 7)

Famous' Sales Plans

Will Sell a Block of 40 Beginning Immediately After Sales Conventions for Next Season

Immediately after the sales conventions of Famous, to come to an end late in April, the product for next season will be offered to buyers. It is understood that the product will be sold in two blocks, the first block to consist of the first 40, which will carry productions made through January. While it is expected that Famous will have 70 productions at least this may be increased by a few more before the end of next season.

The first block of pictures will include several which are expected to prove of unusual interest at the box office. Among these will be the two Valentino specials; "The Covered Wagon," two Tom Meighan's and two Negri's and two Swanson's in addition to a Cecil B. DeMille special.

Planning Road Show Truck

Engineers are working on plans for a special truck for Famous to be used for road show purposes. The truck will have a projection machine, full equipment, including screen, and the sides will be so constructed that when turned flat they become a stage for special seats. The truck will be used only for the small towns where there is no hall or theater sufficiently equipped to present big pictures. A tent with seats for 400 will be part of the equipment.

Coast Attorney Sees Pictures Sold That Way—Favors Joint Distribution

Commenting on THE FILM DAILY'S exclusive Hollywood dispatch concerning a joint distribution plan on behalf of important stars, A. P. Michael Narlian, a well-known Los Angeles attorney writes:

"I believe when I was last in New York some representative of your newspaper called on me at the Biltmore. I believe I had just spoken a few words at a luncheon given by Fred Elliott. My opinion then was that joint distribution would save a very large sum per annum and that it would not in any way impair their individuality as well as the executive efforts of the various national distributing film organizations.

"I have in mind for the future something even more radical. I believe that the day will come, whilst I may not live to see it, that pictures will be sold on the per seat plan and I have voiced this opinion for the last two years. Men in the business that I know very well, who know it thoroughly, do not believe in it but mark what I tell you, it will come and may come earlier than you expect. I know in my own kind of a plan that would make the financing of pictures the easiest thing in the world. If only the smaller organizations would get started it might force the larger ones to follow suit."

Newspaper Opinions

"The Breaking Point"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * a mystery story with plenty of pep and action. * * * a picture made by a director who understands his craft, which is a great help in the success of any picture.

DAILY NEWS—* * * the story rides along smoothly to a finish. * * * However, "The Breaking Point" all told is good amusement. * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * well planned, acted and presented, and enough action in it to keep one interested until the denouement.

* * * The entire cast is well chosen.

EVENING WORLD—* * * It is a mystery drama right up to the last few feet and is well worth seeing. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—"The Breaking Point" seems to us slight entertainment, not even yielding as much as the stage play, which never was what Broadway calls a "wow." * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * a good all round moving picture, not subtle or fragile, but an intensely interesting story, imbued with all the ingredients which go to make up a popular film for any audience. * * *

Herbert Brenon, who directed * * * has staged one of the most convincing snowstorms of the season, and the handling of this scene * * * is well done. Nita Naldi gives a satisfactory performance as the seductive actress. Matt Moore, * * * is excellent.

POST—* * * The first part of the film is very interesting, but by and by the many improbabilities of the plot, * * * become laughable. * * *

SUN—* * * and one is very much entertained and now and then quite exhilarated by "The Breaking Point." * * * It is one of the scientifically gymnastic films, leaning heavily on loss of memory. Guided by the skilful hand of Mary Roberts Rinehart and misguided by an excitable reaction to Miss Naldi's profile. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * "The Breaking Point" is one of the best mystery film plays. Its scenes shift from the life of Broadway to the excitements of ranch life in Wyoming.

Matt Moore is an excellent embodiment of the hero. * * *

TIMES—* * * Those concerned in the producing of "The Breaking Point," * * * have not made a picture which adds to their laurels. This is a singularly clumsy effort in which there is little or nothing in the way of entertainment, and even some of the players who have hitherto proved their proficiency give a very poor account of themselves. * * * From the most charitable viewpoint one could not say that the story is in the least convincing, especially the way it has been handled by the scenario writers. Herbert Brenon, who has had long experience as a director, has not improved matters. * * *

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * Herbert Brenon has made an interesting release of it, well played.

WORLD—* * * "The Breaking Point," is a motion picture melodrama which covers more ground, time and action than any cinema in years and years. * * * Herbert Brenon has taken this hop, skippety jump story and pictured every last inch the script called for. * * * "The Breaking Point" is pretty clumsy business.

"The Moral Sinner"—F. P.-L. Rialto

AMERICAN—* * * I am afraid I cannot hand "The Moral Sinner" much. It is old-fashioned in its treatment and not to be mentioned in the same breath with the average Paramount feature picture. Ralph Ince, as the director, has not added much to the occasion, making an indifferent picture out of what might have been a worth-while contribution. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * "The Moral Sinner," gives Miss Dalton little to do, and she does that little with a certain lackadaisical air. She is not at all convincing as Leah. * * * The film has an atmosphere decidedly foreign, Paul McAllister of the Gallic beard contributing much to this. I do not think people are going to go wild, simply wild about the production. * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * The setting is effective and the story interesting. * * * The action contains a fire, a detailed burglary and some very good acting. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * It is a more or less thrilling picture to Dorothy Dalton fans and to those who like pictures of the lower strata. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * Everybody sat breathless during the overture and went to sleep during the feature. * * *

* * * None of the faults of the picture should be blamed on the actors, however, for they did the best they could under the circumstances. Ralph Ince, the director, seems not to have grasped the spirit of the play. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * one of those slow moving things that never seem to have a chance to get into the class of good entertainment. It has been handicapped by an ante-bellum continuity and old-fashioned direction, which has failed to iron out the creases in the plot. It drags along in an aimless way and the star, Dorothy Dalton, contributes a colorless characterization, in a part that should hold forth real acting opportunities. * * *

POST—* * * Dorothy Dalton * * * puts over a very acceptable piece of work. * * * The plot of the picture is interesting, if not wildly gripping, and Ralph Ince has directed well, except that in his efforts to avoid a final clinch he has made a rather amateurish ending.

SUN—* * * "The Moral Sinner," is, in short, more than a little dull.

TELEGRAM—* * * "The Moral Sinner," the story of Leah Kleschna loses none of its bite and power. * * *

TIMES—Dorothy Dalton * * * quite a capable performance. * * * There are a number of exceedingly charming settings in this film which are fairly faithful reproductions of some old Paris structures. The direction * * * is on the whole good but staccato in spots.

* * * It is an excellent feature drama.

The weak feature * * * is that it is fashioned with little in the way of suspense. Therefore, one can frequently anticipate the next move of the characters.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * Dorothy Dalton is splendid, and is ably supported. * * *

WORLD—* * * makes an unusually interesting picture. Yet, somehow, just as one settles back thoroughly to enjoy it, the picture's all over. It ends in mid-air just about the time it ought to be reaching a climax.

"Which Shall It Be?"—Hodkinson Cameo

AMERICAN—* * * If I had "Which Shall It Be" in my family, I would cut it down to two reels or possibly three. It is a film that even the family pastor will sanction and one that the churches will not hesitate to run if they see it, so thoroughly in accord with all that is good and proper is its teaching. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * There is no plot, no life, no movement in the theme. Only a crew of pretty, well bushed and well dressed children running in and out.

* * * The rural setting is picturesque, charming and credible.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * There is a refreshing absence of villains, railroad wrecks or midnight cabarets in the picture, which contains a sincerely told story, interesting in its sympathetic simplicity, and answers the question to every one's satisfaction. * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * We enjoyed it and think it has an appeal to thousands, but it is not the sort of picture we would select for our daily or nightly entertainment.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—"Which Shall It Be" has two courses open to it. One is to keep its name and become a one-reeler, and the other is to remain a five-reeler and be labeled "The Farmer and His Ways With His Young." This will make it an educational. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * a picture that is off the beaten track and which, in its simplicity and directness, carries an appeal straight to the heart.

* * * the product of some obscure company, but whoever was responsible for the transference to the screen of the old poem has done a piece of work of rare taste and appeal.

The picture has been exquisitely cast. There isn't a bit of overacting. * * *

POST—* * * There is nothing much in the way of a thrilling story in it, simply a description of the mental anguish endured by two poor but human parents. * * *

SUN—* * * one of the most sentimental and tear filled cinemas. * * *

We have seldom seen more perfect acting, screen or otherwise. * * *

TIMES—A delightfully simple yet most effective motion picture, with sterling pathos and glimpses of delicate comedy. * * *

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * It is a simple home life tale, no great cast of picture names, but a story that is going to grip every mother's heart and bring tears to the eyes of those who see it.

WORLD—* * * It is altogether lovely. Quietly and unexcitedly, somewhat lazily, in that charming way in which a brook is lazy. * * *

"See how the world Wags," said Shakespeare. Nowadays it WAGLS

Summer Business

Why do we not sit back and reconcile the presumed inevitable rather than set up ways and means to combat the unconsciously imbued spirit of let-down and let-up?

Just this morning Mr. Santikos of San Antonio, Tex., dropped in for a general discussion and stated that he would be obliged to have better pictures in June, July and August than in September and the following months. Naturally I asked him why. He replied that he had a natural predilection in the fall, winter and early Spring, but that he must create something following while the hot weather is Realizing that a super effort must be made during the summer, Mr. Santikos makes it, while we too must at an extent accept the drop off in business as forecast generally and then go to the extent of withholding the very pictures required to fight off the inclination toward summer slump. In my opinion all of us who distribute pictures should early in the year agree to release a minimum number of big pictures and in that way aid and assist the exhibitor in giving a lift to the summer fall-off in attendance. This may not be a specific cure for the ill, but it should prove an auxiliary at best and would build up the morale of all of our selling organizations.

It is almost an impossibility for any one sales manager to produce the right condition of mind throughout his field force if all others, or a greater number of all other distributors are counteracting his efforts in that direction by continuing to release "just pictures" during the summer.

We in this industry cannot combat the summer slump with "just pictures." Let's agree upon a set joint policy toward the betterment of returns at the box office. It can be done.

In The Courts

Suit for $5,755 has been filed in the Supreme Court by the Property Operating Corp. against John J. Wittman on a guaranty for the Wilkens Amusement Co., on a lease of the Art theater at 1077 Southern Blvd., the Bronx. The suit alleges that the theater was leased to the Wilkens Co., in 1919 for five years, at a rental from $5,000 to $6,500 a year. The suit was brought on the ground that the lessee had failed to pay rent since January last and also owed for taxes and for damages to the property due to alleged negligence.

Reel Reviews

By Don Allen

"Sporting Youth," Universal's latest big picture, is the fastest moving auto race picture we ever saw. And despite the fact that a 500-mile auto race furnishes most of the thrills, that is by no means all that is in the picture, for, strange as it may seem, it has a corking good plot, lots of suspense and plenty of good, clean comedy.

In our humble estimation the scene where a dignified old lady, dressed to kill, is trapped in the tonneau of a machine being driven by a speed maniac, is one of the most laughable things we have seen on the screen in years.

Take our advice and see "Sporting Youth." It has a thrill a second.

All you please. About the summer picture situation. And you get in a circle—and get no more. Because the exhibitor places the blame of conditions on the producer. And the producer and distributor blame the exhibitor. And there is no give and take. So there you are.

"Several years ago," said an important official of Famous, "we made strenuous effort to make our spring and summer schedule very attractive. We listed some of our best product for release during the summer months. But when it came to selling them there was another story. We were offered about a third less than we would have been able to get—for those very same pictures—had they been released during the Fall Winter."

Cheap, unsatisfactory pictures, not good for showing any other time are released and shown during July and August. This seems to be the cleaning up period for all the unsatisfactory stock on the shelves. And what does this mean?

Heretofore it has meant this—always: that your patrons get sick and dissatisfied; that they see one poor picture after another and then stay away. Which means that you have to show a half dozen big successes early in the season to again get them in the bit of coming. If this isn't the right of asinine business ideas what do you want? You wouldn't find a duplication of such ideas in any other business in the world.

If there isn't any money in running a theater during July and August why keep a theater open? Certainly it would be far better to close during those two months, keeping your business in good shape by doing so, than remaining open, showing bad pictures, or poor pictures, making dissatisfied patrons and otherwise injuring your good will.

There are a lot of mighty good pictures that—for various reasons—are

Split Pickford Films

Twenty-One Famous Players and Arctcraft Pictures to Be Divided By Mary and Paramount

Twenty-one pictures produced by Mary Pickford for Famous Players and the old Arctcraft company and owned equally by Miss Pickford and the old Paramount subsidiaries are to be divided today.

The division will be made on an equal basis, selections to be made alternately by Miss Pickford or a representative and Elek J. Ludvigh, on behalf of Famous. With each picture will go an agreement turning over the fifty per cent interest of the other party to the new owner. Those pictures that Miss Pickford thus secures will be her exclusive property to do with as she pleases. As in the case of "Tess of the Storm Country," she may remake any of them or sell the rights. This will, of course, hold true with Famous.

The action on the Pickford product is somewhat similar to that taken on the Fairbanks-Arctcraft product some time ago when the five year distribution clause held by Famous expired and Fairbanks again secured rights on his old pictures.

Canada Sunday Law Up

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Winnipeg—An interesting situation with regard to Sunday observance has developed in Canada because of an issue which has been raised in Manitoba through the action of that Province in taking upon itself the authority of passing Sunday laws to meet local conditions. This is said to be in contravention of the Lord's Day Act, a Federal Statute enforced by the Dominion Government for the whole of Canada.

Exhibitors of Manitoba cities are watching developments because the situation may lead to the possibility of Sunday shows. The legality of Manitoba Sunday enforcement will be settled by the Privy Council in London, England, next July.

Davison Bill Killed in Assembly—Walker's Measure Believed to Have Slim Chance

At the hour of going to press, indications pointed to the continuance of censorship in New York State for at least another year. The Legislature has been holding night meetings in order to clean up uncompleted work by this morning when the session is to adjourn.

Yesterday afternoon, the Assembly defeated the Davison repeal measure by a vote of 77 to 65. The action in Albany came as a surprise to producing interests that had generally favored the measure as the one way out of a rather difficult situation, but as a gratifying piece of news to exhibitors who had opposed the repeal bill so completely as to split with the Hays organization on the question.

Senator James J. Walker has a repeal bill, closely similar to the Davison measure up in the Senate. At a late hour, no action had been taken on it. It was conceded that the measure would pass the Senate but the general opinion seemed to be that it could never get through the Assembly.

Levy Bros. Selling Holdings?

With the leasing of the Bedford, Bedford Ave. and Bergen St., Brooklyn by Levy Bros., to Frank Keeney, it is reported that the Levys are planning to dispose of all of their theatrical holdings. The Loew circuit was after the Bedford but Keeney secured it by virtue of a large cash payment.

not shown in various communities during the early release period. If Mr. Exhibitor would work a little harder—instead of being interested in the ball game—and dig some of those up he would be in an excellent position to do business—and keep his patrons happy—rather than show a lot of junk, just because he buys it cheap. The exhibitor who thinks he is getting away with something by showing cheap pictures is like the man who wears a toupee. He only fools one—himself.

Coal Miners Unemployed There—Theaters Affected With Many Forced to Shut Down (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—With 40,000 coal miners out of work and other thousands working but part time conditions in the Southern Illinois coal fields are unsatisfactory. The unfortunate part of the entire situation is that the district is just entering upon what should normally be the dull season of the year. Observers say that there will be no relief for the coal industry before next September or October.

Theater owners as well as other business interests in the coal mining sections are feeling the effects of the unemployment. Many theaters have closed while others are running but one and two days a week. Exhibitors with large investments are forced to keep open although the weekly deficit is getting larger and larger.

Lincoln To 1st Nat'l

Exploitation Campaign Plan With Immediate Runs in Few Key Cities

negotiations were completed Friday which First National took the Rockett's "Abraham Lincoln" for release. It is understood as part of the plan the Rockett's had on a big exploitation campaign to go behind the picture, and was agreed to. Something like $100,000 will be spent to "put the picture over."

Most immediately pre-lease showings will be held in a limited number of key cities including Los Angeles and Chicago. Usual release, however, will take place in the Fall.

At the exploitation of this fine picture would be an important part of the deal was natural in view of the experience of Al and Ray Rockefeller when they opened the picture at variety. Despite that they had made only one of the finest pictures of the season business was far from what was desired, and this was attributed chiefly to the lack of picture exhibition that followed.

While the Rockett's have several exhibition plans under contemplation have not yet decided which will finally be agreed upon.

Hoof and Mouth Epidemic Retarding Production—Roach Puts Off Films

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—A hoof and mouth epidemic among animals in Southern California is holding up production to a serious degree. The health authorities have issued strict orders against the transportation of animals of any kind for great distances.

This is tying up work on westerns of every description. The authorities have also closed to travel a number of canyons that are used by companies for exteriors.

Production at the Roach studio has been upset because of the epidemic. At many studios, the quarantine has extended to the coming and going of autos because of the animals quartered there.

Censorship Stands

Walker Repealer Passed in Senate But Defeated in Assembly—A Long Fight

(By Long Distance 'Phone)

Albany—Censorship in New York State will continue for another year. The long fight for the repeal of the law ended Friday with the defeat of the Walker measure in the Assembly.

The Legislature adjourned Friday after a series of all-night sessions. The Davison measure, as noted, was defeated in the Assembly Thursday. Senator Walker's bill which was almost identical with that of Davison was introduced in the Senate and managed to get through because three Republicans forgot party lines and voted with the Democrats. The final vote was 26 to 23. The bill then

Plan Conferences of M. P. T. O. Presidents Every Sixty Days—To Work With Hays

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—An association of M. P. T. O. state units to be known as the Allied State Organizations is under discussion, according to H. M. Richey, who is back from a two-day meeting held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago.

Present at the meeting were exhibitor leaders from the following ten states: Minnesota, Michigan, Kansas, Indiana, Texas, Illinois, North Carolina, North and South Dakota, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The Chicago meeting was an outgrowth of the meeting held at French Lick when it was more or less expected that a definite step would be taken looking toward the formation of a new exhibitor body.

The plan is to function as an organization of state units. The state presidents are to meet every sixty days with the next meeting scheduled for Morehead City, N. C. on June 11. Each chairman is to function for sixty days and the first is W. A. Steffes of Minnesota. Richey has been named secretary.

The organization has sent S. A. Handy of Kansas to Washington to work on the music copyright situation. A request has been sent to Will

Rock Optimistic

John B. Rock, general manager of Vitagraph, predicts the coming season will be the most prosperous the industry has known for ten years. He has just returned from a visit to Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo and Albany.

"White Sister At Capitol"

"The White Sister" will play the Capitol the week of April 20. "Girl Shy," will be the feature at the Strand the same week.

Failure

For another year New York State will have picture censorship. When a lot of milk is spilled it doesn't do much good to trounce the baby. It's spilled—so what's the use. Which, perhaps, is as good a way as any to figure the censorship situation. The milk was spilled. That's all. But it's too bad. Because so much depended upon the repeal of the New York law. And for a time it looked as if the repeal might come through.

Politics, it is said, spoiled the chances of the repeal. Political objection on the part of Republicans to anything which might help Governor Smith. This may be true. But certainly the difficulties which arose from exhibitor ranks over the phrasing of the Davison bill opened wide the door to difficulties, and effected a most perfect alibi.

SUPERSTITIOUS?

Friday is the one day of the week that Marcus Loew taboo's when it comes to signing papers. Which, perhaps, explains why the Metro-Goldwyn deal was not signed yesterday. Of course Marcus Loew isn't superstitious. But Friday—well, he just won't sign anything on Friday. Any Friday. That's all there is to it.

NO COPYRIGHT, BUT—

f you put your hands in the pockets of Doug Fairbanks and $50,000 or more-or-less you would probably serve a long in some penitentiary. But if you took a pair of scissors, d out an advertisement from a New York newspaper of 's ad of "The Thief of Bagdad," omitted Morris Gest's name, substituted the name of another picture for the same idea tising another picture, you wouldn't go to jail. Nor pay any penalty for the theft. Yet in effect it is the same thing. Gest is getting something like $50,000 from Doug for his aign. And a Los Angeles house manager apparently unable some thinking on his own part steals the Gest advertising for the run of "Secrets." If "Secrets" hasn't more than h inspiration for it's own campaign then I'm crazy. Yet by this style of advertising Doug is blocked—as is Sid Grau—when "The Thief of Bagdad" runs in Los Angeles—where s produced.

another Los Angeles first run house advertises John Stahl's r Men Leave Home" with a pictorial display of women's with skirts raised more than knee high. And men draw es for being advertising and exploitation "experts" for this of stuff.

IN THE MAIL BAG

Several interesting communications from off the beaten . One a compliment regarding the Year Book from Hong —another from Bombay, India, from A. Hague, Pathe dis- or, who is anxious to help co-operate so that the list of dis- tors in far away India should be 100 per cent correct. Which makes one stop work—and ruminate. Wonder if you that over 40,000 Year Books are in circulation today? Won- you know that the work of preparing the Year Book carries y after day—many nights, too—every day in the year—that before the last one is off the press the work of collecting data e next is under way? Wonder if you know that outside e regular channels in this business the Year Book is con- y used by civic center organizations; librarians, editors of papers, ministers, Better Film workers, to say nothing of the hat in some of the largest companies no casting director works out having a Year Book at his elbow; to say nothing of its usage by exhibitors and distributors. Wonder if you know Government officials feel about it—if you know to what extent quotations and excerpts from the Year Book appear in the Federal Trade Commission action against Famous—and in other ways? Just wonder, that's all.

WOODS' IDEA

Frank Woods—who is producing for Hodkinson—out with a statement that before long the most successful pictures will be found to be those for which the story was specially written for the screen, rather than an adaptation.

Maybe so. But there are a lot of producers who will stand a lot of arguing on this point—a lot.

TERRY, THE DEMON POTE

Otherwise Terry Turner. Sends out a long poem about Mar- cus Loew entitled "Just a Man We Know." Biographical. Tells of how Marcus sold newspapers, tried to be a printer, then a furrier, and then opened theaters. How today he runs

"Three hundred now from Coast to Coast
Yet seldom do we hear him boast.
He's not the kind to prate and yell
But when he sees this—I'll catch Hell."
Yes, Terry, you probably will.

RIGHT AND LEFT

I. E. Chadwick, head of the Independent's talking. "We are more and more beset by combines. To the right combinations of producers and distributors. To the left combinations of exhibi- tors. We are going through a squeezing process, but we—as independents—are prepared to meet it."

In The Courts

Kerman Films, Inc., have applied in the Supreme Court for an injunction restraining Independent Pictures Corp. from exhibiting Franklyn Farnum films through anyone but the plaintiff for Greater New York and Northern Jersey. It is alleged that after Jesse J. Goldburg had induced the plaintiff to take the series at a deposit price of $750 for each, and half the net returns, and after three films had been delivered, the defendant countermanded the shipment of the fourth, "Desperate Adventure."

The plaintiff alleges that when Goldburg was consulted, he stated that Bobby North had offered him a much larger sum for the remaining picture, and that the plaintiff must either deposit $1,500 for each film or agree to give the defendant 70% of the profits. The plaintiff alleges that $25,000 worth of contracts had been made for the film.

Goldburg claimed on Friday that Kerman had breached its contract and had not submitted authentic reports on bookings to Independent. Goldburg also alleged that the pictures were undersold.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has dismissed a suit of Earl Carroll against Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris, over the picture rights to "So Long Letty." The defendants sold rights without the music or lyrics Carroll had written for the play in 1915. Carroll alleged he was owner to the extent of one third and sued for that portion of the picture returns.

Arthur Edmund Carew on Friday secured an attachment against Tom Terriss and Tom Terriss Prod. on a suit for $6,000 which Carew alleges to be due him in connection with "The Bandolero." He claims he was engaged for eight weeks at a salary of $750 per week by Terriss but that the director later negotiated with Pedro de Cordoba for the part, finally engaging him.

H. Hays to call a conference on the uniform contract in which changes are desired while a resolution of thanks was passed, commending Hays for his assistance in the admission tax campaign.

The group is expected to work in harmony with Hays and the fact that its initial action indicates a co-operative spirit is considered significant.

Those present were W. A. Steffes representing Minnesota and the Dakotas; J. R. Denniston, J. C. Ritter and H. M. Richey, Michigan; R. R. Beichele and S. A. Handy, Kansas; Frank Rembusch and William Connors, Indiana; H. A. Cole, Texas; and Glen Reynolds and Ludwig Seigel, Illinois.

At the Hays office, it was stated Friday that no communication had been received from the new exhibitor body. It was pointed out, however, that Charles C. Pettijohn who is handling the arbitration work and F. I. L. M. Clubs under the uniform contract had received a number of suggested changes in the uniform contract and it was expected to hold some sort of a meeting to determine what should be done along those lines. The original plan was to bring all of the F. I. L. M. Clubs into New York for a joint conference and then evolve changes from these meetings.

Stepping Along

First, "The Marriage Circle." Then "Beau Brummel." And now the tipsters from Los Angeles are sending us cross-country whispers, "Watch for 'Broadway After Dark!'" "

The last named production, by the way, introduces a new director in the person of Monta Bell. Wid Gunning, who still ranks in our opinion as the most competent and consistently right critic breaking into type, waxes enthusiastic over his work.

It is pleasant to record the fact that the Warner Brothers are striding strongly in a cycle of successes. Those who aim high make sacrifices, tremendous sacrifices; the Warners deserve the rewards due those who give free rein to ambition and ideals.

WARNER BROS.
Classics of the Screen

"The Breaking Point"

Paramount

As a Whole.....FREQUENT COINCIDENCE IN PLOT DEVELOPMENT MAKES THIS A BIT ABSURD AT TIMES BUT QUICK COMEDY RELIEF USUALLY SAVES THE SITUATION. GOOD CAST AND WILL LIKELY PLEASE THEM.

Cast....Nita Naldi decorates various scenes capably but her role does not permit her any real acting opportunities. Matt Moore gives a satisfying performance as the hero whose various memory lapses provide him with unusual adventure and romance. Patsy Ruth Miller pretty as the eventual bride. George Fawcett has one of his typical characterizations and Theodore von Eltz is the conventional "missing link" in the plot.

Type of Story.....Mystery drama. There is good drama in Mary Roberts Rinehart's "The Breaking Point" but the mystery element, as brought out in the picture is considerably lacking since there is no doubt at all in the spectator's mind as to who committed the actual killing. During the scuffle in which the actress' husband is shot, there are intermittent cuts of her business manager peeping through a curtain and since the audience is acquainted with his state of mind, it is quite natural that this would be an appropriate moment for him to aim at the other man, his half-brother and enemy, and satisfy his own revenge. The fact that he hits the wrong man affords further complications, to be sure, but in no way causes any suspense with regard to the actual murderer. The plot will prove interesting, however, to the average picture audience and even some very bold coincidence in the development may not be classed as absurd if the quick comedy relief is as successful as it seemed to be with the Rivoli audience. The story covers a lot of ground and includes a variety of situations that should fill a big order.

Box Office Angle....Pretty good audience picture in spite of the flaws that may be picked in it.

Exploitation....Naturally you'll want to boost Mrs. Rinehart's name and should find a book-store tie-up and display of her books of considerable advantage in exploiting the picture. Talk about the murder sequence in which a hero with a dual personality plays an important part. Play up the stage atmosphere in connection with Nita Naldi and her role of Broadway favorite. Run a trailer consisting of the sequence in which the actress' husband is killed and cut it off with the query: "Who killed Beverly Carlyle's husband? See 'The Breaking Point' here on (date) and learn the answer." Use the names of Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller, Geo. Fawcett, Matt Moore.

Direction.....Herbert Brenon; usually good.

Author.....Mary Roberts Rinehart
Scenario.....Julie Herne-Edfrid Bingham.

Laura La Plante in

"Excitement"

Universal

As a Whole.....STAR VERY PRETTY AND SHOULD MAKE GOOD IN MODERN GIRL ROLES BUT HASN'T MUCH OF A CHANCE IN THIS SILLY BURLESQUE STORY THAT HASN'T EVEN A DREAM ENDING TO EXCUSE IT.

Star....Photographs splendidly and is always very good to look at but needs much better material than this if they want to build up a reputation for her.

Cast....Adequate; includes Edward Hearn, William Welsh, Frances Raymond, Fred De Silva, Margaret Cullington, Albert Hart, Rolfe Sed-an, Bert Roach, Lon Puff.

Type of Story.....Farce comedy. Farce that borders on burlesque can be comical without being silly but "Excitement" gets way out of bounds and becomes almost foolish. Evenly this highly exaggerated business might be excused somewhat if they had passed it off with a dream ending. When the young wife decides that her year of married life has been dull and plans to go off on a vacation by way of becoming a companion to a crazy woman things begin to happen. The woman isn't insane, merely a "bug" on Egyptian stuff and it is a scheme of her brother to cure her of this and marry her off to his business partner. The plan of the girl's husband to cure her of her passion for excitement consists of a round of mild thrills including an airplane ride with the girl confined in a dummy case. The case slips out of the plane, the pilot makes a nose dive and the case lands back in the plane. All this may be amusing and probably will get some laughs but most of the stunts are so farfetched and silly that it's difficult to get laughs out of them. It would have been a big improvement for the picture to have had a dream ending, with the wife wakening up and then being satisfied with her husband and a quiet existence.

Box Office Angle.....In case you don't find it hard to amuse your folks you might consider "Excitement." Where they laugh easy the picture will undoubtedly satisfy. Laura La Plante is pretty and they'll like her even if they do wonder that she wasn't given a better story for a start.

Exploitation....Title will get their attention no doubt. Use advertising lines such as: "Excitement" at the blank theater with Laura La Plante, Universal's latest star." Use stills of the star and get them interested in her. Your women patrons might be invited to see some of her pretty gowns. She wears clothes well. Catchlines: "Wives, Attention. Are you dissatisfied? See 'Excitement' and you'll never be dissatisfied again."

Direction.....Robert F. Hill; fair

Cameraman.....Jack Rose

Carlyle Blackwell in

"The Beloved Vagabond"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....EXCELLENT HEART INTEREST AND SPLENDID CHARACTERIZATION WORTH WHILE FEATURES IN ENGLISH PRODUCTION. STORY AN ADAPTATION OF FAMOUS NOVEL.

Star....Gives a performance that is at times striking and again fails somewhat to measure up to expectations, but on the whole his characterization is effective and played with a certain amount of restraint.

Cast.....Next to Blackwell, young Albert Chase does the best work. He's a likeable chap and has already well mastered the art of pantomime. Phyllis Titmuss rather pretty but not always photographed correctly. Sydney Fairbrother fine in small part of cockney washwoman. Madge Stuart suitable and others appropriate though not familiar to American audiences.

Type of Story.....Romantic drama. There's a strong heart interest in the pathetic love story of the violinist Gaston de Nerac who signs an agreement whereby he must give up the girl he loves to save her father from disgrace. His rival then provides the necessary money while Gaston, without a word to his sweetheart (part of the agreement) goes out of her life hoping that her faith in him is strong enough to hold her affection until the two years will have elapsed. How he sinks to the lowest level offers interesting detail and provides unusually fine characterization, plus a forceful heart interest that runs right along through the whole story. Granville tells the story nicely and holds the attention well except for occasional over stressed points. The production might have been more attractive. The story is a really beautiful romance and might have been given a more colorful background.

Box Office Angle....For those who appreciate a picture that gets away from the routine and offers a really interesting story with a very definite heart appeal, "The Beloved Vagabond" will be good entertainment. It shows a serious effort to do something worth while.

Exploitation....If your folks are crying for better pictures you would do well to put this one on your list. If they are tired of the conventional, cut-and-dried "movie" formulas, let them see this one and it may help to restore their faith in pictures. It is a step in the right direction. Talk up the title and get them interested in it by recalling the novel and putting it over in conjunction with book store tie-ups. Do your best to get them interested through unusual exploitation, if necessary.

In this connection it be mentioned that the production is one of unusual beauty and excellence.

Box Office Value.....Where Barrymore is popular—like in New York—his name alone is sufficient to bring them in. But regardless of his general standing the production is so lovely, the story beautiful that it should be worth-while at the box-office

Exploitation.....You have much work with. You first have Barrymore who ranks as the best and if not one of the very best actors of the day. You also have the name of Clyde Fitch who will be remembered by your older patrons as a playwright of distinction and note.

In addition you have the names of several players well-known fans including Irene Rich, Alec Francis and Mary Astor whom might easily have a following in your community. Unfortunately John Barrymore does not make enough pictures to interest a great fan clientele. You can talk about the production which is beautiful. As a Whole.....PRETTY FAIR AUDIENCE MATERIAL IN STORY DESPITE ETERNAL TRIANGLE SITUATION BUT IS BADLY PUT TOGETHER AND POORLY DIRECTED.

.....Brings back some of the sentees including Maurice Costello, as the rich art and music patron; Ralph Kellard as the no-account husband. Kellard was a thoroughly interesting leading man but neither his work nor looks warrant a come-back. He photographs terribly. Naomi Childers and Dagmar Godowsky make return appearances. Edith Allen is rather attractive and might be used to good advantage. He is given to posing too much. David Powell is another who has been conspicuous by his absence recently.

.....Domestic drama. Mack Banton staggers in at five in the afternoon with a woman's glove hanging out of his pocket. A short time later he staggers out, bag and baggage. The usual time elapses. The wife pursues her career as an artist and under the guise of being a widow, receives the patronage of a rich man who proposes marriage, then dies when he finds she is already married. His nephew takes up the quest and is just proposing when the husband returns. He in turn is followed by his Cuban sweetheart, who is also followed by a jealous suitor. Naturally the husband is duly killed off by the jealous one and everything rides along merrily. Probably the story isn't quite as bad as it sounds, though it is pretty poor. But it might have served to much better advantage since it contains a certain amount of audience appeal, even if only for a limited number of patrons. But the plot is like patch-quilt. A bit of this and some of that. The continuity is poor and there is no effort, in the direction, to overcome this inferiority.

.....May stand a chance where they are not critical about plot construction and are not on the alert for illogical incident. Your folks are at all fussy, they are not apt to be satisfied. The dialto audience seemed to find it quite amusing at times.

.....Depends upon how much you want to interest them. The title itself is a pretty fair one and might be used with catchlines such as: "Are white lies dangerous? See 'Virtuous Liars' for the answer. At the blank theater on (date)." You might mention the names of those in the cast especially David Powell, Maurice Costello, Dagmar Godowsky, or those you think are best known to your patrons.

.....Whitman Bennett; poor. Director ..... E. C. Holland. Scenario ..... Eve Stuyvesant. Cameraman ..... Edward F. Paul. Photography ..... Usually all right. Sale ..... New York. Length ..... 6,600 feet.

"Try And Get It"

Producer: Sam V. Grand
Distributor: Hodkinson

As a Whole....STORY A TRIFLE SCANT FOR FEATURE COMEDY PURPOSES BUT IT HAS AMUSING TURNS THAT SHOULD MAKE IT PLEASING TO THE AVERAGE AUDIENCE.

Cast....Bryant Washburn good as the unshelchable bill collector and Edward Horton suitable, though not as strenuous, as a salesman. Billie Dove the fair heroine in the case and Lionel Belmore an antagonistic business man who starts all the row because he refuses to pay a small bill. Joseph Kilgour has role of minor importance.

Type of Story....Comedy. "Try and Get It" is an adaptation of Eugene Lyles' "The Ringtailed Galliwampus," a story dealing with the attempt of an ambitious bill collector to secure payment on a small bill, the success of which will bring him a big raise or, if he fails, he is to lose his job. The plot resolves into a series of attacks in which hero tries to gain a safe and sane audience with his victim. His various methods of attack and means of getting by the guard set against him afford good amusement. The stunt in which he almost ruins business in the modiste shop by squirting an odorous perfume about will probably bring many laughs, plus his ingenious methods of getting by the door man. His last big trick, which brings the payment of the bill, and a reward consisting of a good job and the hand of the creditor's daughter, is also amusing. The story is rather slight for feature purposes and at times moves along quite slowly but it is likely that the average audience will find enough laughs in it to satisfy them.

Box Office Angle....If your folks enjoy a clean, amusing comedy number you can recommend "Try and Get It." You may number enough Bryant Washburn admirers to interest them by playing up his name. Where they like to laugh and aren't cranks about the legitimacy of the comedy business, the picture should go very well.

Exploitation....Here's a catchy title that should lend itself readily to good stunt exploitation. Have throw-aways printed in the form of bills made out to "Mr. Moving Picture Patron" for the amount of $25.11. Then across the face of the bill, in red ink, the words: "Try and Get It." Follow the stunt with announcements of the showing. You might use the idea in more extensive fashion in conjunction with your mailing list. Use a trailer showing Washburn at one of his tricks to get to the man who owes the bill.

Direction....Cullen Tate; all right. Might have speeded story in parts.

John Gilbert in
"A Man's Mate"

Fox

As a Whole.....APACHE ATMOSPHERE WILL PROBABLY MAKE IT ATTRACTIVE FOR MANY. JOHN GILBERT AND RENEE ADOREE VERY GOOD. STORY GOOD AT FIRST BUT BECOMES TERRIBLY FAR-FETCHED.

Star....Fulfills requirements without any great trouble. Role doesn't give him any particularly outstanding opportunities. Asks some very outlandish things of him at times. He isn't given much chance for action but there's one good bit of fighting in the apache sequence.

Cast....Renee Adoree a capable portrayer of dramatic parts who is really far better than many actresses who claim drama as their forte. Miss Adoree was excellent in Metro's "The Eternal Struggle." She's equally good in this.

Type of Story....Drama. It's unfortunate that "A Man's Mate," couldn't have fulfilled the promises it made in the early reels. It really threatened to be a thoroughly absorbing drama of the Parisian underworld, with the son of a rich man becoming one of its inhabitants through a clever bit of substitution, made possible through his temporary loss of memory. But along about half way through the impossible begins to happen and, while the subsequent situations provide chances for Renee Adoree to do some good acting, the development becomes far-fetched, even to being almost ridiculous. When the heroine discovers that the man she loves is really the son of a rich man, she decides to take him back to his people. He fails to recognize his father and they seek to have him undergo an operation which will restore his memory but which will also blot out his experiences in the Apache dens and his love for the girl. They ask the girl to persuade him to have the operation. After he recovers he fails to remember, as they predicted, but eventually it comes back to him—in time for the usual clinch.

Box Office Angle.....In spite of the fact that it doesn't maintain the starting pace, neither in speed nor interest, you'll probably find that your folks will like it.

Exploitation....Play up the Apache atmosphere and use a trailer showing some of the scenes in which Gilbert is forced to fight for an Apache girl he had never seen before. If John Gilbert has a following use his name prominently and tell them about the good work of Renee Adoree, as the Apache girl. Use stills showing Renee Adoree in her Apache attire with the caption: "See the Queen of the Montmartre in Paris. She laughed at men and life."

Direction.....Edmund Mortimer; good with some improbabilities.

"Mile-A-Minute Morgan"

Aywon—State Rights

As a Whole....GOOD COMEDY WESTERN THAT AFFORDS ACTION, LAUGHS AND IS FIRST RATE AVERAGE ATTRACTION GENERALLY. CONTAINS FINE LUMBER CAMP LOCATIONS.

Cast....Matty Mattison and Billy Franey gets over the comedy business in fine style. They'll probably gather in some admirers for their work in this. Vivian Rich suitable heroine though not especially pretty.

Type of Story.....Comedy-western. Here's a good little picture, not conspicuous in any one particular point, but an all around, satisfying number that should please a good majority of most any audience. The story isn't especially strong but there is enough good incident, action and comedy to make up for any other shortcomings. To start with Matty Mattison and Billy Franey make a natural comedy team and "do their stuff" with ease and a certain assurity that makes them both interesting and amusing. There is a good, speedy development with the laughs and action stunts coming in quick succession. Mattison is the disowned son of a lumber king who, with his pal Franey, decides to make good by working his way up, incognito, in his father's company. Mattison incurs the wrath of one of the men and the unsuspecting Franey boasts that his pal is the famous Mile-a-Minute Morgan, renowned fighter. The lumber jacks decide to stage a bout and Mattison can find no way out of it. The fight is on and he's about to go for the count when told that the foreman's daughter is in the clutches of villain. This spurs him on and the fight is his. He saves the girl who tells him she knew all the time that he was the owner's son. Follows the usual ending.

Box Office Angle....First rate combination of action and comedy that should get this one over nicely. It's not a big picture but a really satisfying entertainment of its kind.

Exploitation.....Let your patrons know that this one contains an evenly balanced story with the laughs and action bits well distributed. It holds the attention nicely all the way, too. Show them a trailer of the bout episode and others to give them an idea of the splendid lumber camp locations. The picture contains many fine shots of a big camp at work. Tell them Matty Mattison and Billy Franey are a couple of laugh getters and mention "The Lone Wagon" if you think they liked Mattison in that.

Direction....Horace Carpenter; very good.

"Hit the High Spots"—Spat Family Pathe

Don't Miss This One

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

The troubles of the Tewksbury Spats when they go scaling Alps have been adequately titled "Hit the High Spots." They not only hit the high spots, but the low ones as well, to say nothing of mountain streams and dark caves. Under the guidance of Brother Ambrose who as usual "knows all about it," they get all dressed up in Alpine equipment including the little long-handled picks which prove much more trouble to them than help. The film gets funnier and funnier as it goes along, ending in all three of the would-be mountain-scalers tumbling down an entire mountain-side and landing right where they started from. Don's miss this one. Give your folks a hearty laugh.

"The Racing Kid"—Century—Univ. Should Satisfy

Type of production 2 reel comedy

This is one of the best Messinger comedies in quite a while. Buddy is seen as the son of the owner of a racing stable. All the scenes are laid in and around the stable and for the climax a big race is put over with very good suspense and excitement. A new idea in gags is having the horse and jockey hustled into a taxi about the middle of the race and dumping them out almost at the finish so that they come in first. This will surely get a laugh. Martha Sleeper, a newcomer, is seen in support of Buddy. She has plenty of pep but is inclined to do things a bit too quickly. This should give average satisfaction.

"Heart Throbs"—Sing Them Again Educational

Always Pleasing

Type of production... 1 reel song novelty

Three sentimental songs of the type that will never grow too old to sing are included in this number of the "Sing Them Again Series" and while the issue may not occasion many laughs as some of the previous ones, owing to the songs chosen, the folks will probably enjoy singing these just as much. The songs included are "Listen to the Mocking Bird," for which an old church yard furnished the inspiration to the composer; "Good-Bye," which Chauncey Olcott used to sing, and finally that old favorite, "My Old Kentucky Home." First rate number especially for neighborhood houses.

"A Trip to Mars"—Max Fleischer Red Seal

Some New Tricks

Type of production... 1 reel cartoon

Max Fleischer continues to inject originality and novelty into his cartoon numbers. His latest, "A Trip to Mars," on the Rivoli program last week, is a clever and amusing number that shows the cartoonist at his best and with his pen clown performing a series of comedy tricks that will amuse and entertain any audience. The clown is sent, via a sky-rocket, to Mars where Fleischer installs all sorts of grotesque, imaginary beings. The artist appears in his film as usual and makes a flying trip to Mars himself through means of trick photography. This is an Al cartoon number, a good novelty and quite amusing.

"The Hollywood Kid"—Sennett Pathe

Novel Opening and Idea

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

Here is a Sennett comedy that should give very good satisfaction. The opening, and in fact the entire subject is novel, dealing with a producer's troubles in selecting and "making" a new juvenile star. The opening is in Mr. Sennett's private office, with Sennett himself interviewing directors, actors, would-be comedians and lions. A director tells him of a child he has seen and is told to sign him up. After much trouble this is done and the kid—played very nicely by little Jackie Lucas—becomes a star. Charlie Murray gets over a lot of good stuff as the father. The "behind the scenes" atmosphere will surely please the fans.

"Fold Up"—Cameo—Educational Good Number

Type of production... 1 reel comedy

A brand-new idea in apartment houses causes much of the laughter in this Cameo Comedy. To give the tenants more room in the tiny apartments, the furniture is so arranged that by touching a button all of it slides into compartments built in the walls and is completely hidden. The owner's country cousins arrive from the wilds of Iowa and much of the action consists in showing the ways in which they are rightened, tricked and maddened by the disappearing furniture. A thoroughly amusing comedy. Directed by Albert Ray.

"Cities of Other Lands Warsaw"— Post Nature

Replete With Unusual Views

Type of production... 1 reel scenic

Post is offering a series of very interesting pictures consisting of views of famous cities of the world. This one presents many unusual views of Warsaw, among them some of the magnificent structures and imposing edifices of the great city. Besides interesting detail contained in the titles there are interesting pictures showing the industrial element, street traffic, railway systems, etc. There are also evidences of destruction, results of the late war and indications of the poverty of the lower classes. Of good educational value and an interesting subject.

YEAR BOOK OF MOVIES, FULL OF INFORMATION

Every Phase of Filmland industry Covered in the 512 Pages

The Film Daily, a bright little newspaper devoted to the interests of motion pictures and published in New York, has issued its 1924 Year Book, a volume of 512 pages, containing information seemingly on every topic connected with the industry.

There are lists of theaters devoted to pictures, the titles, character, producer and director of every picture released in 1923; the titles of magazines and newspapers devoted to films; the names and their media of the men and women who write about pictures; financial statements of the larger producing companies; lists of studios all over the country.

TEN BEST PICTURES

Also the selections of important motion picture critics of the ten best pictures for the year 1923, and the consensus of opinion of these writers, the list including "The Covered Wagon," "Merry-Go-Round," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Green Goddess," "Scaramouche," "Safety Last," "Rosita," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "Little Old New York" and "If Winter Comes."

There are an "Exhibitors' Accessory Buying Guide," a catalogue of films released by the Department of Agriculture, the names of the important first run houses of the land, reports on conditions in foreign countries, legal opinions and decisions of the year.

FULL OF INFORMATION

Interesting is the list of newspaper "headlines" for the year, a catalog of theater chains, the personnel of important producing and distributing organizations, censor board standard by States, a list of scenario writers and their best-known works, cameramen and their productions, productions of the year by companies, directors and their productions, stars and their productions, and hundreds of other items that have interest for the public and for the men with whom motion pictures are a business proposition.

The book is well printed in clear type on calendared paper and is a valuable compendium of things pertaining to a great business. It is edited by Joseph Dannenberg—"Danny" of Film Daily.

1 Pictures Reviewed In 15 Cities

"After Six Days"—Weiss Bros.
Nixon, Pittsburgh
PRESS—* * * it represents a distinct departure from the accepted form of photoplay. * * * it is not colored by the tints of color. There are no characters introduced who did not actually exist—no incidents that did not actually occur.

"America"—Griffith
Pitt, Pittsburgh
PRESS—"America" is a masterpiece. This cannot be denied. Not since the "Birth of a Nation," has anything approached it, in the opinion of this reviewer it is even better than that feature.
TIMES—It is the Griffith of "The Birth of a Nation" and of "Intolerance," who returns to us after "The White Rose" and "The Exciting Night," to prove to us that still has the "edge" on all competitors and it comes to power and sweep and domination.

"The Arizona Express"—Fox
Washington, Detroit
FREE PRESS—Out-and-out melodrama, which makes no pretense of being anything but which is described as "honest drama," is "The Arizona Express."
NEWS—To report that "The Arizona Express" is sprinkled with thrills would be very conservative statement. It is simply treated with them.
MES—Romantic in conception and strikingly modernized Mr. Fox has made a picture stand out among his productions.

"The Blizzard"—Fox
Modern-Beacon, Boston
TRANSCRIPT—Splendidly contrived scenes of the herd crossing streams, racing hillsides, and milling frantically in the center of the fir-woods as the storm overruns them, prove pictorially fascinating and arresting.

"The Breaking Point"—F. P.-L.
Madison, Detroit
NEWS—* * * a very interesting motion picture, well done in most respects and particularly appealing to those people who do not ask too much in the name of plausibility.
MES—It is typically Rinehart throughout with the unsuspected angle at the very end changing the whole story.

Metropolitan, Los Angles
(Week ending April 5)
EXAMINER—The story is one of Mary's epic plot, "The Next Corner" * * * has along with good speed and well maintained suspense.
PRESS—Never to my knowledge has any Fawcett failed to give a well-turned significant characterization * * * in "The Breaking Point," * * * he very nearly won with the picture.
RALD—"The Breaking Point," is another of those melodramas dealing with the life of an amnesia victim.
CORD—Featured by an all-star, cast picture is one of the best shown at a town playhouse this season.
MES—Herbert Brenon made the screen action, which is mildly entertaining. You probably like particularly in the cast Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, and Theodor Eltz.

"Conductor 1492"—Warners
Strand, Milwaukee
JOURNAL—* * * flops from farce to drama and back again with confusing results.
SENTINEL—An occasional bit of drama, as the rescue of the little brother of the hero or a spectacular fire, is thrown in for good measure, but it's the fun that counts.

"The Fighting Coward"—F. P.-L.
Allen, Cleveland
PLAIN DEALER—* * * "The Fighting Coward" is a celluloid gem with its ironic cutting deeply into the traditions of the south and also reflecting a noble sense of honor.

PRESS—* * * there's much that's fetching, and a good deal that's sound in James Cruze's movie. What interests us in it is the way it laughs at the old illusion of the fearless hero. * * *

Capitol, Detroit
FREE PRESS—* * * clean entertainment, humorous and witty, artistically photographed with many "shots" of the old South, its plantations and fine old mansions, * * * interesting to last. * * *
NEWS—Mr. James Cruze, of Hollywood, possessor of the keenest sense of humor in the film directing field, tosses another brilliant picture into his well-filled basket of successes. * * *

TIMES—Good picture at the Capitol—"The Fighting Coward." Good cast, Very good comedy. Good direction, Good story.

"Flowing Gold"—1st Nat'l
Wisconsin, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—It has humor and pathos and thrills and romance—what more can you ask? And it has been registered on the screen with fine balance by Richard Walton Tully and his capable cast, * * *
SENTINEL—The picture in view of recently awakened interest in oil and oil holdings, is decidedly timely. It is a story not of oil scandals, however, but of the early days of the oil fields, told in melodramatic fashion.

Capitol, Montreal
GAZETTE—The screen play made from the novel, * * * gives intimate glimpses of a side of industrial and business life unfamiliar in this part of the world, * * *
STAR—"Flowing Gold" is full of rich melodrama, romance and a spice of humor, and therefore provides good entertainment for every class of movie-lover.

"The Great White Way"—Gold-Cos
Ohio, Indianapolis

STAR—William Randolph Hearst paints a melodramatic picture of New York's Main street in "The Great White Way," * * * with an array of Mr. Hearst's own newspaper writers cartoonists in the large cast.
Merrill, Milwaukee
JOURNAL—A better than bird's-eye view of most of the celebrities of the sporting, theater, and newspaper world (with special emphasis upon the employes of the Hearst organization) is the highest high light of this story. * * *

SENTINEL—"The Great White Way," is in perfect keeping with its title, for it has all the dash and glitter of Broadway itself.
Arcadia, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—It is a picture full of laughs. The plot is a real one, composed of something more than a dashing motion picture star and several thousand dollars' worth of gowns.
NORTH AMERICAN—Enough celebrities to make the picture worth more than the price of admission on this score alone. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The innumerable scenes of Broadway are pictured, and the notables of the newspaper world and race-track circles lend a realistic flavor to a picture which has more atmosphere than anything else.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The picture has for its background Broadway with all its glitter and glamour. * * * The inside "shots" of a newspaper office and the glimpses of Broadway at night add to the interest of the film.

"The Heart Bandit"—Metro Strand, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—The production affords plenty of opportunity for Miss Dana to portray her comedy and emotional talents.

"Hoodman Blind"—Fox
Fox, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—* * * is a story of everyday life, told frankly and with keen regard for the truth on the silent stage.
NORTH AMERICAN—"Hoodman Blind" is the kind of picture that proceeds upon the theory that nobody involved can see or hear the obvious.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The adaptation of the play is well done and holds several surprises for the unwary spectator. The climax is led up to gradually and evenly.
PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * a good fist fight, a storm and an explanation straighten things out in the end. It is the acting which smooths over the lack of finesse displayed by the director in parts.

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"—Hdkns Keith's 105th St., Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—There is no complaint on the atmosphere, settings and costuming of the film. These seem true to the story and give this picture a considerable degree of charm and romantic color.

"Hunchback of Notre Dame" Imperial, San Francisco

(Week ending April 5)
BULLETIN—Chancy has a technique that cannot be surpassed; he acts with intelligence that makes his work Mansfieldian, and it is probable that no one has ever exceeded him in the art of makeup.

CALL AND POST—* * * is a cinematic masterpiece in the truest sense of the word.

EXAMINER—You get the very marrow of Victor Hugo without the ineffable weariness of fishing for it yourself. The meat is all there, carefully prepared and screenically edible.

NEWS—The settings of medieval Paris, centering about the cathedral, and the stirring revivification of the picturesque characters that people the immortal story, make the picture one worth seeing and studying.
Broadway, Los Angeles
(Week ending April 5)

HERALD—The production * * * was met with high favor, exceeding any big production within ready memory and promising a permanence most gratifying to all who have the welfare of the screen at heart.

"Icebound"—F. P.-L.
McVickers, Chicago

HERALD AND EXAMINER—* * * seemed pretty good to me. It is a conflict of character, and I find such struggles considerably more interesting than the battle of some handsome Hollywood boy against the flames or floods of the studio.

JOURNAL—Transferring to the screen the terse bitterness of Owen Davis' play, "Icebound," William De Mille makes for himself another triumph.

POST—"Icebound" is quite different from the usual photoplay—a refreshing contrast because of its novelty, and will prove a rare treat to those who admire excellent acting and a very carefully chosen cast.

TRIBUNE—It deals rather with characters that, chill in themselves, send out an icy atmosphere to numb other pleasure-loving, warmth-seeking natures that come within their radius.

"Maytime"—Preferred
Broadway-Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Its transfers to the silver sheet has been accomplished deftly and possibly more interestingly than usual.

NEWS—Therefore, summed up in its entirety, "Maytime" is a rather incongruous effort.

TIMES—There is a nice sentiment carried throughout the reelage of "Maytime." It's purely romance.

Modern-Beacon, Boston
 TRANSCRIPT—But the younger may now rejoice that it has shared the diversions and distractions of at least one classic from the days of ten, twenty, and thirty, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak-Model," palpitating creation of that estimable journeyman of the playhouse, Mr. Owen Davis, * * *

State, Cleveland
 NEWS—For months and months the public has been clamoring for something new on the screen. It looks now as though the demand has been granted.

PLAIN DEALER—All the old time ingredients of all the old time mellerdramers are simmered into this play which if you have a grain of humor will keep you interested most of the time.

PRESS—* * * a gaudy opus replete with hokum and boob-bumping tactics. * * *

Palace, Montreal
 GAZETTE—Owen Davis' eventful story has been told with graphic detail and the employment of some sensational adjuncts, including a big fire, a kidnapping and a rescue on the tracks of the elevated railway.

STAR—The story is told with great detail, much wealth of pictorial background and exciting incident, and it leaves you no time to do more than gasp between the thrills.

California, Los Angeles
(Week ending April 5)

EXAMINER—In some sequences, because of Flynn, in others in spite of all he could do, the comedy is a scream, the entertainment superb.

EXPRESS—There's a laugh and even a thrill in every situation and a suggestion of a "wisecrack" in every title, * * *

HERALD—* * * action of the real old fashion variety makes hearts run up and down your spine and your heart almost stop beating for fear that the beautiful heroine is going to be killed before the hero can marry her.

NEWS—Those of you who have been waiting for a genuine thriller, the kind that makes the gallery gods stand up and shout, have a delicious treat waiting for you * * *

RECORD—In fact it was just a little too much for the nine o'clock audience, and they had to laugh out loud. That's the result of seeing many breakneck two-reel comedies.

But the picture is absorbing.

TIMES—The satire-proof members of the audience took it all seriously, and got an awful kick out of the kidnaped and rekidnaped heroine, the double coat of black on the heart of the villain; and most of all from Nellie left on the railroad track of the New York elevated.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Walnut, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—"The Next Corner" is so much like a dozen other photoplays using the same theme that one can anticipate almost every stage of the plot's development.

TIMES-UNION—Handicapped by a prehistoric plot, "The Next Corner," * * * has some difficulty in living up to its advance notices.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l Smith's, Indianapolis

NEWS—Colleen Moore, who has developed into a charming comedienne, is to be seen * * * in "Painted People," a slender tale which she enlivens with her personality.

STAR—* * * a considerably finer film than her first, "Flaming Youth." * * *

Tivoli, Washington
HERALD—* * * affords its star another superb opportunity. In this subject Miss Moore assumes the role of a tomboy, and disports herself.

TIMES—much more humorous than the title would imply, and with the Flaming Youth girl capering as a tom-boy and an impudent little heathen.

"The Phantom Horseman"—Univ. Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending April 5)
BULLETIN—Hoxie does some of his best riding in this picture and there are many thrills

CHRONICLE—A dash of mystery serves to relieve the triteness of the story, and by dint of a good star and much fast action the picture holds the interest all the way through.

HERALD—It is a mediocre western melodrama, with a story as old as the Twin Peaks.

NEWS—A yarn of the "two-fingered Jack" variety that small boys will thrill over is "The Phantom Horseman" at the Cameo

"Poisoned Paradise" Rialto, Los Angeles

(Week ending April 5)
HERALD—Filling all expectations, the world premiere of "Poisoned Paradise," * * * is a picture only too true of the comedy, tragedy and drama that is found in any great gambling center.

NEWS—There is nothing about it to arouse one's enthusiasm to a fevered pitch, although in some instances the action becomes hectic; some of the situations are not without human appeal but for the most part it is simply a screen story, melodramatic in nature, artificial and unconvincing.

RECORD—Interesting; at moments fascinating; but not intended to resemble anything in real life.

TIMES—"Poisoned Paradise" isn't very much poisoned; it is just a mild little dose of bromide.

Rialto, Omaha

BEE—"Poisoned Paradise" contains everything that goes to make an interesting motion picture.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L. Family, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—So dynamic, so turbulent is the star of this photoplay that she fairly overwhelms those who see her, and adds ardor to a production that otherwise would be sadly wanting.

TIMES-UNION—The tempestuous Pola, appearing first as an Apache of a notorious underworld resort and later as the respected wife of an aristocratic government official, runs the gamut of fiery emotions in her most vivid style.

"The Shooting of Dan McGrew" Metro-Palace, Washington

HERALD—* * * a story of powerful climax, suspense and drama.

STAR—* * * it is streaked with hard drinking, blood and such rare bits as "I'll tear you to pieces with my hands." The audience was duly appreciative.

TIMES—The picture people * * * worked out quite a logical and actionful romance.

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L. Orpheum, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—The film seemed a maze of hastily thrown together sequence. Much time was spent in fruitless guessing as to what it was all about. The hazards finally revealed the substance of the plot—nothing.

"A Society Scandal"—F. P.-L. Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—Miss Swanson is not so good in "The Society Scandal" as she has been in her two latest films, but she is pleasant to look at.

STAR—Even the worst non-believer in the gorgeous and glorious Gloria Swanson's talents as an actress will have to relinquish part of his stand as an infidel after one look at "A Society Scandal," * * *

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Stanley, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—"The Song of Love"—a story of love, hate, and racial pride—permits Miss Talmadge again to exhibit to advantage her beauty of face and figure as well as her talent along emotional lines.

NORTH AMERICAN—The plots and counterplots are kept at fever heat, and that is more important than plausibility in pictures of this type.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Norma Talmadge fans will be delighted with "The Song of Love," in which their Norma appears as an Arabian dancing girl, Miss Talmadge demonstrates that she can dance in addition to her other screen accomplishments.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The picture, however, is worth seeing if but for Norma herself. She is her ever-charming self as a native dancing girl. Noormahal, probably Arabesque for Norma.

Metropolitan, Washington

HERALD—"The Song of Love" is a thrilling tale of romance, intrigue and adventure under African skies.

STAR—The Metropolitan yesterday had waiting crowds to see Norma Talmadge in her newest picture, "The Song of Love," * * * it is undeniable that Miss Talmadge is beautiful and her acting, as always, excellent.

TIMES—* * * Norma Talmadge * * * drew her usual eager throng of admirers, far in excess of the seating capacity of the Metropolitan.

"Sporting Youth"—Universal Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending April 5)

BULLETIN—It has life, color, romance, danger and speed—plenty of speed, with the necessary punch of good acting to make Byron Morgan's story go over for all it is worth.

CALL AND POST—* * * is best characterized as a real "speed" picture. So fast is its tempo that it lends the appearance of being literally sky rocketed across the screen.

CHRONICLE—An exciting picture * * * and which introduces a very delightful young actress in a prominent role, is "Sporting Youth," * * *

EXAMINER—No more enthusiastic audience ever attended the thrilling and dangerous contest of an automobile speedway than that which yesterday thronged the "grandstand" at the Granada. * * *

HERALD—It has been splendidly cast, directed with the fine lightness of touch that it required, and has an admirable appreciation of the comedy possibilities.

NEWS—"Sporting Youth" at the Granada is mild and fast loving entertainment * * * being an auto racing romance.

"The Temple of Venus"—Fox Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—We experienced an extraordinary amount of artistic pleasure in the numerous natural backgrounds, chosen by some great lover of beauty.

HERALD—There is nothing very wild about the film. * * * There are parts of "The Temple of Venus" that one enjoys very much.

JOURNAL—In producing "The Temple of Venus," William Fox's intention unquestionably was to create something stupendously beautiful. And beauty he has achieved. * * *

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Crystal, Indianapolis

NEWS—Drama, mystery and comedy—with comedy mostly—are the three elements of "Her Temporary Husband," * * *

STAR—* * * is the laugh getter it is because two of the principal roles are handled in great fashion by Owen Moore and Sidney Chaplin.

"Three Weeks"—Gold.-Cosmop. The Chicago, Chicago

AMERICAN—Whether you like or dislike Ellinor Glyn as a writer, it would appear that you have an interesting time watching the unreeling of "Three Weeks," her favorite and most famous creation.

JOURNAL—The picture is gorgeously panoplied, extravagantly put together, radiant in picturesque effect. It is as beautiful and cool as a glowing diamond, and in the jewel box of the Chicago theater a fitting center for admiration.

"The White Sister"—Metropolitan, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Always appealing, a lovely in "The White Sister" Miss Gis added a maturity, a degree of feeling, is destined to endear her still more to already devoted American public.

Aldine, Pittsburgh

CHRONICLE-TELEGRAPH—* * * offering many thrills, including an actual tion of Vesuvius and a flood that s away an Italian town and makes one a feel that he is to be taken with it, so tically has it been done.

PRESS—Wasted adjectives on other, oductions are regretted when a review confronted with such a picture as the King production of "The White Si" * * *

SUN—The Aldine and the Camera; box offices will tell the tale this week or if ever there has been combined upon screen all that is best in professional industrial filmdom, we have it in "The White Sister."

"Why Men Leave Home"—1st Loew's State, Los Angeles

(Week ending April 5)

EXAMINER—Of course the story is light; it's a study of customs more than intense drama, * * * Lewis Stone does ve a splendid performance of the role, whi is simple and natural.

EXPRESS—Now this naughtiness, ev to the point of broadness, is the real poi of the original * * * Without it the pictur ecame a homily, mostly, though not wit ut its delicious moments and sly laughs.

HERALD—* * * may not exactly le the reason why, but it does give a few hu, humane and humorous sidelights to the riage relation that will be invaluable t all who are, are going to be, ought to be want to be married.

NEWS—* * * it has all the qualities on honest, wholesome entertainment; * * * it is not difficult to understand its subtle hu, * * *

RECORD—Amusing sidelights on ma life, presented in an inoffensive and bumc way, are cleverly revealed in the featu ture, "Why Men Leave Home." * * *

TIMES—This is really a clever and cha ing production. It is one of the best ch kind, in truth, since Cecil De Mille did " Change Your Wife," which in themo somewhat resembles.

Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—Those who enjoy true rea, not the tarnished, sordid so-called rea of some present-day writers, should visit Circle this week.

STAR—* * * this picturization of A y Hopwood's play is an excellent film, dea ted as it is to the great American husb and his patient, waiting wife.

No. Carolina Slumps

Industrial Conditions There and Ra- dio Cutting in on Business at the Box Office

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Lexington, N. C.—Business in North Carolina is dull at present. The textile industry in this state is one of its most important enterprises, but cotton mills are now running two and three days only with a ten per cent cut in wages because the finished market is limited.

Exhibitors are therefore having their troubles, in view of the industrial situation, and the added burden of Federal taxes. The radio is cutting in, too, and the opinion of a conservative exhibitor is that business is duller today than it has been in the past five or six years.

The Carolina exhibitors will hold their next convention at Morehead City, June 10-11-12. The theater owners from Virginia and South Carolina have been invited as well as exchange managers from Atlanta and Washington. An invitation has been extended to Will H. Hays.

On the 11th the second meeting of those states interested in the Allied state organizations discussed at Chicago last week will occur.

Roach Here Today

Hal E. Roach is expected in town today from the coast on his regular visit.

Clem's Ocean Trip

Vichy.

Dear Mr. Dannenberg:

As Clem is out looking things over I thought maybe a few lines from me regarding his actions over here would be in order.

Clem is like a new man. I have a terrible time getting him to bed nights and the first thing in the morning he is up and around. This morning he got in about half past two and I asked him where he'd been. O, looking the shows over, he said. Now I don't know much about Europe, but I do know there ain't any shows open at that time in the morning and if they are it's the kind your paper don't review unless the FILM DAILY is changed a lot since Clem sent his ten dollars in last year.

Clem seems to be suffering from having things too easv. He says he ain't had a good fight since he left home and is itching to get back and get in harness.

Radio Pictures

An English Invention—Possibilities of Development Dependent Upon Improved Apparatus

The latest issue of Kinemetograph Weekly, London, carries a most interesting article on "The Radio Kinema" by F. H. Robinson, which, in part, says:

"There is a close association between the kinema and radio, obvious when one realizes that light waves and wireless waves travel through the same medium—ether.

"A definite link has now been established between these two types of waves. It is called television, and far from being the 'dream of the future' is an established fact.

"Not so very long ago I visited one John Logie Baird at his laboratory at Hastings and saw a demonstration which proved that he has proceeded so far along the road to radio vision as to make it almost a commercial proposition, for the whole of the apparatus used in the experiment about to be described could have been purchased for £40.

"The apparatus used can be applied to wire or wireless transmitters with ease and without the alteration of anything further than the microphone, in which circuit the 'Radio Vision' machine is connected.

"This roughly is the method employed by Mr. Baird. A powerful light, either a gas-filled electric or arc lamp, is used as the prime mover. The image to be transmitted is cut out of some solid opaque material, say cardboard.

"In front of the image are two revolving discs. The first contains a number of holes

What of M.P.T.O.A.?

Speculation Over Cohen's Organization in View of Strong Line-Up of Mid-West and Southern Groups

Sydney S. Cohen on Saturday refused to make any comment on the meeting of ten Middle Western and Southern States in Chicago last week at which time an association to be known as Allied State Organizations was discussed.

An exhibitor well acquainted with the national situation pointed out that the line-up in the proposed association was a strong one since it included well organized bodies like Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, North Carolina and Virginia. The only weak link in the prospective chain, it was said, was the fact that New York was not included. It is understood that New York State leaders were not informed of the meeting and that the two day session came as a complete surprise.

Assuming that the states named above should decide to work together—and it looks very much like it—speculation is rife as to what the Cohen organization would have in its line-up.

Cohen's organization is, of course, at odds with the Hays office on matters pertaining to the uniform contract and the like. The new group, as pointed out, is inclined to work with Hays.

The Changing Times

Hugo Riesenfeld, who is rounding out his eighth year on Broadway, says that what seemed an extravagant cost for a whole program back in 1916, wouldn't pay for a two reel comedy today.

"We used to get the best pictures on the market—Douglas Fairbanks, Bill Hart, Norma Talmadge—for only three hundred a week," he says. "And we thought that price so exorbitant that we insisted on having a comedy thrown in. Now if we get our features for ten times that amount, we consider ourselves lucky, and the comedies come as teasers. On music alone at the four theaters which I direct, we are spending nearly a million a year. It costs more to operate a first class motion picture house than the most lavish musical comedy."

Naulty, Vitagraph N. Y. M'g'r

J. N. Naulty, former Eastern studio manager for Famous Players and a producer on his own, is now local exchange manager for Vitagraph.

In the Courts

A $5,000 suit against the Hygrade Amusement Co., owner of the Photoplay at 1770 Third Ave., brought in the Supreme Court by Margaret Moriarity on unusual grounds, was dismissed when she failed to appear at the trial. She alleged that on July 7, 1921, "The Wild Man of the Jungle" was being shown in the theater, and to attract attention the management had a man dressed in a lionskin, who so frightened persons in front of the theater that they trampled the plaintiff underfoot, and caused serious injuries.

Harry Houdini, as trustee of bankruptcy of the Octagon Films, has filed suit in the Supreme Court against the estate of Albert H. Fischer, former head of Octagon, for $24,722 which Fischer is alleged to have caused the corporation to advance to him for his personal use, and for $77,000 for stock alleged to have been allotted to him and unpaid for. A recent appraisal of the estate of Fischer showed that although his film ventures proved costly, he left a large net estate due to profits from a leather business.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan has granted the application of F. B. Warren to restore to the calendar for trial his suit against Associated Producers. His attorney said that an effort to settle the case has been in process for two years and for that reason it was permitted to be stricken from the calendar. It is now found that no settlement can be made and counsel for Warren asked that he have his day in court.

The application by creditors and stockholders of the New York Motion Picture Co., that a receiver be appointed to take possession of the assets and distribute them pro rata, has been granted in the Supreme Court.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"
Asso. Exhibitors
West End Lyric, St. Louis

TIMES—The film is almost everything except what the title indicates, but is sure to be enjoyed by all who witness it.

"Daughters of Today"—Selznick
Olympia, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Patsy Ruth Miller is the real star in the cast. She is the lead in the picture, but it is merely the effervescence of youth and she has a true spirit. Miss Miller acts with some charm and ability and is far better than usual.

Randolph, Chicago

POST—If you like yours spicy and with a double-barrel kick, here you are; just help yourself to any kind of wicked shimmy, potent cocktail, risqué bathing party or other ultra modern jazz entertainment. It is all re in strong—and not hard to take—doses. TRIBUNE—It will probably go big with professional reformers and would-be "peep-g Tombs."

But it should have been called "Daughters Yesterday."

The Dawn of a Tomorrow"—F.P.-L.
State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—* * * the only feeling is that the picture would have been good if had not been so very long drawn-out.

Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Not since "Broken Blossoms" has the squalid, mysterious, crime-infected London underworld been depicted as graphically as in this remarkable film.

TIMES-STAR—"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is not as dramatic a story of the old mingling of London slum and society life as "The Stranger," but nevertheless it is a vivid and absorbing photoplay.

Olympia, Pittsburgh

SUN—While the present production has much of atmosphere and excellent photographic treatment, there is an apparent lack, somewhere, of courage to make of it what Frances Hodgson Burnett evidently intended to be.

Discontented Husbands"—C. B. C.
Gifts, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Seldom have domestic problems been treated with as much sanity and humor as in the case in this enjoyable film.

TIMES-STAR—The play is only mediocre in theme and there is little in the acting and production to save it from the class of the ordinary.

Don't Doubt Your Husband"—Metro—Park—Mall, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—"Don't Doubt Your Husband," Viola Dana's latest out of the movie mill, * * * is bad propaganda for interior decorators—especially if they chance to be young, pretty and blond.

PRESS—The story itself has the merit of keeping one wondering what is going to happen next. The audience Sunday seemed to like it.

Delmonte, St. Louis

TIMES—If contemplating matrimony, see "Don't Doubt Your Husband."

"The Eagle's Feather"—Metro
New Grand, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—The picture contains much action and shows some thrilling shots of a battle stampede.

The Enchanted Cottage"—1st Nat'l
Grand, Pittsburgh

PRESS—There is that same sincerity of effort, the same fidelity to the character

(Richard Barthelmess) portrays, the same convincing poise and action that put him on a par with Lillian Gish in "Broken Blossoms."

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors
Grand Central-Capitol, St. Louis

STAR—Lots of fun, some melodrama and a touch or two of pathos combine to make Mabel Normand's latest, "The Extra Girl," undiluted amusement almost to the final fade-out.

TIMES—If your taste in movies runs toward comedy, do not miss "The Extra Girl," a full-length comedy drama.

"The Humming Bird"—F. P.-L.
Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—Miss Swanson is less of a clothes model and more of an actress in "The Humming Bird" than she has been in any other picture in which she has been starred.

HERALD—In other words, it is a much overdone thing including a satiety of cheap emotionalism, the wolves of the Montmartre, the World War, and a fine close up of Gloria Swanson's upper teeth.

JOURNAL—Not only does (Gloria Swanson) eschew fine feathers, she acts—actually acts. She abandons all restraint and throws herself whole-heartedly into the role of Toinette, the Apache girl * * *

TIMES-UNION—"The Humming Bird," * * * is a picture of such technical excellence that one overlooks the improbability of its theme * * *

"Ladies To Board"—Fox
Blackstone, Pittsburgh

CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH—Film fans who remember Tom Mix in "Soft Boiled," that placed him among the screen comedians, will like "Ladies to Board," it is said.

SUN—* * * Tom is successfully breaking away from the stereotyped "westerns," * * *

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"—Vita.
Garden, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—The picture is lavishly staged with a wedding scene, an evening at the opera, and a New Year's orgy for the producers to spend money on.

Strand, Montreal

STAR—Pauline Frederick maintains her standard of acting * * * Basil King's story is pregnant with moral teaching, despite imperfect continuity and scenes somewhat too involved.

Karlton, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Instead of being a "daring" exposition of the divorce evil, as it was heralded, "Let Not Man Put Asunder," * * * is the usual conventional presentation of the same old plot.

NORTH AMERICAN—It cannot be said that there is much inspiration or originality in the story or its treatment. Evidently the Farrar-Tellegen matrimonial episode suggested the idea of the plot, but this is worked out in a saccharine and flabby manner * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—That the acting of Pauline Frederick and the part time support of Lou Tellegen makes the picture enjoyable is without question.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The photography is excellent, the settings delightful, particularly the scenes of the old English estates, beautiful glimpses of English countryside and bits of the brighter parts of the Thames.

"The Light That Failed"—F. P.-L.
Alhambra, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—The picture is fairly interesting and has some outstanding moments but it has some dull ones as well. And somewhere—can't just put your finger on the spot!—it just misses the Kipling spirit, and a miss is as good as a mile.

SENTINEL—The staging throughout consistently carried out the atmosphere of the story and the balance of the support is capable.

"Long Live The King"—Metro
Sun, Omaha

BEE—Jackie Coogan has an unusually beautiful picture in "Long Live the King," and really lives up to the extravagant praise that has been sent out by * * * Jackie's press agent.

"Love's Whirlpool"—Hodkinson
Rivoli, St. Louis

TIMES—The interesting way in which a "fake" medium attempts to hoax a particular victim is shown in what is the best picture that has come to this Sixth street house in several months.

"Montmartre"—F. P.-L.
Missouri, St. Louis

STAR—This is by no means Negri's best picture. There are spots in it that are not even good, but, it seems, she and her famous director have wrought fairly good entertainment of unpromising material.

TIMES—If you go to the movies to see acting, rather than to be puzzled by unexpected turns of picture plots, you will enjoy "Montmartre," * * * in which Pola Negri is the star.

"Name the Man"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Capitol, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—So thickly coated with dramatic paint is "Name the Man" that it brings back fond reminiscences of those days when we used to sit up in "peanut heaven" and behold the melodramatic spectacle of the pre-movie period.

TIMES-STAR—Happily, the author's love of lurid tints has been neutralized by the efforts of a splendid cast of players, with the result that the film is a fairly gripping one, and the characters are plausibly human and real.

"Peter the Great"—F. P.-L.
Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—But, violently episodic as it is, it grips the observer. The settings are picturesque; the handling of large crowds—as in the battle scenes—well-conceived; and the mimicry of the principal personages sure and vigorous.

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l
Strand, Omaha

BEE—"Twenty-one" is a drama of youth but the story is so complicated that the spirit of the story is entangled in a mess of material that has to do with the untangling of the meshes of the plot.

"Thy Name Is Woman"—Metro
Garrick, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—Mr. Niblo has developed the theme in such a manner as to make the conclusion a stunning surprise.

"Under the Red Robe"—Gold-Cosmo
Roosevelt, Chicago

HERALD AND EXAMINER—The Cosmopolitan production starring Robert B. Mantell as Cardinal Richelieu in a Louis XIII setting won spontaneous praise from all who saw it.

"The Wanters"—1st Nat'l
Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—With such thematic material it is surprising and paradoxical that the photoplay offers a fair measure of worth while entertainment. This fact is due to the excellence of the cast, and the intelligent direction. * * *

HERALD—Somehow, one feels that these motion pictures, or the makers of them do not delve at all into the way things are done in the business of living.

JOURNAL—* * * choice bits of moral truth are also pointed out during the course of the picture, all aimed to prove to the poor working girl that her lot is far happier than that of her seemingly more fortunate sisters.

TIMES-UNION—Marie Provost is most conscientious in following out the commands of her director, though many of them verge upon the insane.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Garden, Baltimore

AMERICAN—Fear is the dominant factor of this memorable if somewhat sketchy narrative, and, realizing this, King Vidor, the director, has managed to secure some really excellent effects.

"Women Who Give"—Metro
Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending April 5)

BULLETIN—There is all the thrill and go of the old-time melodrama with a modern finish in "Women Who Give" at the Warfield this week.

CALL AND POST—Those who like their drama of the human sort—with splendid scenes of spirited adventure on the high seas—will find a great deal to applaud in "Women Who Give." * * *

CHRONICLE—* * * "Women Who Give" is a good picture and even better than that, and should fill the Warfield to its capacity during its run there.

EXAMINER—"Women Who Give," * * * will never go down into screen annals as one of the "great" pictures of the year, but it provides interesting entertainment.

HERALD—With a story of surpassing interest, a cast that challenges comparison, genuine thrills, romance and pathos, and with excellent comedy relief, "Women Who Give" * * * truly a remarkably fine production.

NEWS—If you like the sea, plenty of storm scenes, and fisher folk and old salts with your romance of true young love, here it is.

its edge, cut in series of fives so that as it revolved each hole transmits a strip of image. The light-flashes passed in this manner are picked up by the second disc, which revolves in the opposite direction to the first. This disc is a serrated edge, formed of spokes. The disc is driven at a speed sufficient to cut up the light impulses by the first disc into flashes of an irregular frequency. These flashes are then passed on to a light-sensitive, or selenium cell which effect the light impulses have been converted into audible impulses, and if a telephone were connected across the output side of the cell a high pitched note would be heard. The serrated disc has therefore overcome one of the principal difficulties, which by the way has been mentioned in these columns a short time ago; that is the very definite "lag" of the selenium cell. Although this cell is very sensitive to light it is unable to follow very rapid changes. When the impulses are of an irregular frequency, however, it is able to follow these and definite current pulses result in a regular output side.

These pulses are amplified by four stages of frequency amplifiers and one power amplifier which employs 200 volts on the plate. These amplified impulses are passed into a secondary microphone circuit of a wire or carbon transmitter and radiated in the usual manner.

For detecting the audible impulses the vacuum valve detector is employed, the resulting impulses being again enormously amplified. (It should be made clear that this does not affect transmission or reception as the zero points of each wave must be at recognized periods, no matter how irregular the waves may be.)

These amplified impulses are then passed through a revolving disc. On this in place of holes which are cut in the transmitting disc there are a number of quick-acting shutters arranged in positions corresponding to the holes in the transmitting disc.

Each of these lamps are wired up to a common circuit to which the impulses are fed. The lamps then light up in sympathy with the flashes passed by the transmitting disc and reproduce the original image. It is necessary, of course, to synchronize the transmitting and receiving discs.

When I myself saw a cross, the letter 'H,' and other characters of my own hand reproduced by this apparatus across the width of the laboratory. The images were quite sharp and clear although perhaps a little unsteady. This, however, was mostly due to mechanical defects in the apparatus and not to any fault in the system.

Moving images may be transmitted by this method, and distance is no object, merely depending on the power of the wireless transmitter and the sensitivity of the receiver employed.

It is possible that machine-made apparatus on the lines indicated above could be constructed for some £50, which would be capable of transmitting letters and words clearly many miles through the ether, and all that appears necessary in order to reproduce and transmit moving pictures is more expensive and elaborate apparatus.

The inventor is confident that no technical difficulties stand in the way of the transmission of moving images by wireless.

Francis Jenkins, a Washington correspondent, has been at work on an invention along similar lines for some time. In newspaper statements, he has made the assertion that picture by radio will be an assured fact in the not far distant future.

John Rich has been engaged to play a part in a new Vitagraph production.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Lynn, Mass.—The State Supreme Court has restrained Marcus Loew from operating theaters under his own name in Massachusetts cities where Elias M. The Court further ordered Elias M. Loew to refrain from operating theaters under his name in Massachusetts cities where Marcus Loew now has houses.

Clem's Ocean Trip

We had a hard time getting out of Venice as the porter told Clem he had a nice berth for us on a Wagon Lits and Clem refused to budge from the hotel until he found out the wagon lits was the Eytalian way of saying sleeping car. He told the porter he wanted no Covered Wagon stuff in his and was awful stubborn. He was on the point of telegraphing Washington until an American explained it to him.

A wagon is a wagon, says Clem and putting lit behind it don't change it.

One thing is certain Clem is a smart one for traveling.

He speaks pretty good French now. Of course he has a hard time making anyone understand him, but he speaks it. He says he is sorry he won't be there for the Naked Truth dinner but that the boys there haven't got anything on him for naked truth after a visit to the music hall at Monte Carlo. He lost almost 1000 francs there working a system, but I told him if he had a system at all it was all run down and that should give it a tonic before we went back there.

Well, that's about all the news. We got to change our money again which always gives Clem an excuse for refusing to give me any, as he says wait till you learn its value. By that time we are in another country and he says the same thing. So far all I got was explanations of value.

Best regards to exhibitors wives, let the producers wives take care of themselves.

Yours truly,

MRS. CLEM DENEKER.

THE PLAY

By DANNY

There are today a large number of stage plays and books in strong demand by producers. Many of these, because of plot or story, border closely on the salacious. They are—at the least—interesting. This particularly is true of certain current literature. It is natural that picture producers should desire to capitalize on these newer works. And it is on the interest they

Some of these books, or plays, have proven tremendous successes at the box office. This naturally leads producers to continue searching for such material. But the serious question arises: Even though there is a big profit in making a picture, does it, in the long run, pay?

There is, of tremendous importance in the picture business—whose vision and understanding of conditions makes his opinion authoritative, says: "There are immediate gains, huge profits, but such productions eat into the profits of established and in the long run will cost millions. Many books, plays, may do very well as they are. But they are totally unfit for the screen. When a picture is successful, it has an audience compared to the reading or speaking theater. The motion picture is a joke. The motion picture is the one real diversion for millions. It is the only entertainment for millions. For more millions, cannot absorb material without a terrific cost, regardless of the immediate

As long as such productions are profitable on the screen just so long as there is no difficulty in receiving censorship where it is—preventing it from developing elsewhere. The fact that a picture is based on a play or a book has nothing to do with the broader question of whether it is fit for the family? For the picture is the entertainment of the family, kiddies, adolescents and all.

Whether of the ills that develop in the procedure is that the advertiser

Holds Seventh Place

Pictures Rank Seventh Among Leading Industries—How Banks Look Upon Business

The Wall Street Journal is completing a series of interesting articles concerning the financial structure of the picture business and how the industry, as such, is viewed by leading banking institutions. The first article makes the interesting assertion that films stand seventh in the list of leading industries. The complete text follows:

"Motion pictures with an investment of $1,250,000,000 have already pushed up to seventh place among the nation's leading industries. Yet only a half a dozen prominent banks in the entire United States of America give them extensive credits.

"Leading bankers and motion picture promoters have given Dow, Jones & Co. their views on why it is that an industry spending more money than any other on plant enlargement gets 65% of its credit outside the banks.

Brinch, general representative with headquarters in Vienna arrived on the Aquitania on Saturday. Others here include R. E. Mac Intyre, assistant manager of the Japanese unit who, it will be recalled, was instrumental in securing pictures of the recent earthquake for later distribution by Paramount in advance of the regular news weeklies; William C. Winship, Mexican representative; Ary de Lima, in charge at Rio de Janeiro.

tising of such pictures often carries with it that which, for obvious reasons, the producer cannot put in the picture. The danger of such tactics has been demonstrated in many spots during the past six months.

It is time to seriously consider this problem.

Committee To Help Exhibitors In 258 Cities Stage Attractions That Will Draw

The National Music Week Committee at 105 West 40th St., is co-operating with exhibitors in 258 cities to make National Music Week, May 4-10, enjoyable to patrons as well as beneficial to the houses. The committee is offering excellent musical programs to exhibitors to be played with the pictures and assisting house managers to stage special numbers and enlist local talent.

Exhibitors in small communities that have no great musical resources are urged to communicate with the Committee who will use their best efforts to provide trained artists for such theaters.

It is expected that Music Week's slogan, "Give More Thought To Music," will bring clearly before the public the fact that picture houses have done a great deal in regularly providing the finest music with the showing of films.

Kerman vs. Independent Pictures

North likewise declares that when approached, he found another company had them and refused to have anything to do with the matter.

Appelgate Resigns from United

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—The resignation of S. E. Appelgate as manager for United Artists here, has caused some comment. He is succeeded by J. E. Hennessey.

An Idea

The following communication has been received from George E. Kann, formerly foreign manager for Goldwyn, and now distributing in the foreign market:

"Here is a thought which in my opinion should net some valuable comment from you.

"As you know, producers make two negatives of productions; one for domestic use, and the other for foreign. As you also know, there has been considerable criticisms from foreign sources because some of our productions have a forced 'happy ending,' when the natural outcome of the story would indicate a tragic ending. In continental Europe and elsewhere they would prefer the tragic version; and, therefore, it occurred to me that at very little additional expense, and with the probability of greatly increased returns, this second negative instead of being an exact copy, could be changed to such an extent as to conform with the psychology of foreign nations.

"At first thought this sounds like a large order, considering the many countries to which our productions are exported, but really it is not. We are only people who insist on the happy ending. Europe does not; neither do the Central and South Americas. A twist here and there, a different ending in many cases, and many of our pictures would be of considerable additional value abroad. "What do you think?"

Too big a problem, George. Many producers have their own ideas. Others don't want to think. Doubtless you are right. Perhaps these endings which you suggest would help the pictures a lot. But when Mr. Producer won't bother to learn what the American public wants—through the medium of the box-office—how do you expect him to consider what a lot of European countries want?

THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL

An Emmett Flynn Production

By Owen Davis. Written for the screen
by Carey Wilson. Adapted by H. H. Van Loan. June Mathis Editorial Director.

Claire Windsor

"I got a terrible kick out of seeing Nellie tied on the elevated tracks with the 'L' train thundering down upon her. I also found Lew Cody the last word in villains. 'Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model' is a melodrama of the first water. Claire Windsor is just as beautiful as Owen Davis described her in the original play and has everything happen to her that any heroine in any novel ever had."
—Louella Parsons, N. Y. American

"The screen has certainly done right by our Nell! 'Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model' has all the laughs and thrills of the ten-twenty-thirty and, best of all is played that way. The producers have made a frank, unashamed melodrama and the result is that they are 'eating it up' at the Capitol Theatre this week. There is a real thrill in the train wreck and the audience shrieks with delight. The cast is just what it should be."
—Aileen Brenon, Morning Telegraph

"There is a perfectly grand picture at the Capitol Theatre called 'Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model.' If we were you we should not miss Nellie for anything."
—Harriette Underhill,
N. Y. Herald-Tribune

"When Owen Davis mapped out the thrills for his old melodrama 'Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model' little did he think that people long afterward would shake their sides with laughter in a theatre like the Capitol at the sight of Nellie's hairbreadth escape in film form. Anybody can have an enjoyable time watching this picturization of the old fashioned melodrama."

VALENTINO AND MYERS

in "A SOCIETY SENSATION" which is proving booking sensation of the season!

Sensational is the only word that characterizes the tremendous flood of bookings which has poured into the Universal offices on this two-reel feature, featuring Rudolph Valentino and Carmel Myers. Valentino's name over any box office means real business and the picture's record of box office earnings is equally as noteworthy as the fast growing list of bookings.

"A Society Sensation" is the two-reel de-luxe edition of the former feature success starring Rudolph Valentino and Carmel Myers. New prints and new accessories help to make this a sure-fire bet for any showman. Now booking at all Universal Exchanges.

Just a few of the bookings on this big short feature follow:

BRAINS

By DANNY

It's often that Adolph talks publicly. He is shy, afraid of such affairs. It is a pity. When you ask what he has to say, for what he said yesterday at the McIntosh lunch. At the thought of monopoly for this can only develop in the hands of one who has not studied the industry.

Too big. Any group of banks can control the steel industry, oil, or any field where there are large deposits. But the motion picture industry deals with brains, a gray matter of our industry that cannot be put under control, because the brains will clash. Dollars don't count. If you attempt to control the industry you are retarding its progress and not advancing it.

More than anything else the success of this business depends upon the financial genius is just as important as artistic influence. Competition makes this industry whole. It would not have made the industry what it has without competition. I fully welcome competition.

At no time have I shirked my duty in bringing anyone coming into the business who would put it on the right light. I have no sympathy for the parasites. This industry is big enough to employ every group, or individual who will make it a life work. We do not welcome those parasites who get in, take their money and run away."

McIntosh is right. Every state that has made bears the hall mark of monopoly. You need not only brains in the industry, but brains in every other part of the operation of a huge industry—and unfortunately there are small machines possible in the industry—calls for expert handwork and development. The making of a great picture is but a part of the general scheme of things. After all has been made it must be marketed. It must be merchandised. Marketing is the wrong word. Advertising is the real word to

New Exhibitor Organization Plans Expansion—Frank Rembusch Explains Purposes

The Allied State Organizations will not confine its membership to those units which have already joined, but will include other territories as well. Frank J. Rembusch, who attended the first meeting and who is an important figure in Indiana exhibitor affairs is in town for a few days and explained yesterday why the association came into being.

Rembusch declared that the need became apparent for an exhibitor group in which the buyer's interest was paramount. He said that the present M. P. T. O. A. was not strictly a buyer's unit, since it had become entangled in distribution. Rembusch was evidently in favor of two operative bodies in the industry: one, like the Hays office in which producers and distributors were represented and another, in which the exhibitor or buying portion of the business held

Will Ohio Go Blue?

Supreme Court There Considering Whether or Not Sunday Shows Are Legal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Columbus—The status of Sunday shows in Ohio is now in the hands of Supreme Judge Jones. The matter rests with the decision as to whether a picture show is a dramatic or a theatrical performance. This point has been argued in every court from police court to the Supreme Court. If a picture show is a dramatic or a theatrical performance, it is prohibited on Sunday. If it is not then it is a legal Sunday exhibition. Judge Jones is expected to render a decision within the week.

Fred Desberg, of Loew's Ohio Theaters, appeared before the Supreme Court when the case against L. V. Richards of Fenley came up, and explained why a picture show is neither a dramatic nor a theatrical performance. At the conclusion of the hearing the Ohio Allied Churches,

To Properly Present English Ideals, Regardless of Where Made, Big Plan of H. D. McIntosh

Hugh D. McIntosh of Australia, well known in his native land as the owner of a string of newspapers, a promoter of important theatrical and boxing events, and who has dabbled with pictures, sails for England today, and will, while there, perfect plans for the production of British pictures which will be useable, not only as entertainment, but for the purpose of propaganda for Britain.

At a luncheon tendered in his behalf at the Ritz yesterday McIntosh spoke briefly of his plans. He said that in justice to England, and her colonies, that something should be done to properly present England and her people, to portray the ideals of England. "The average Englishman shown in pictures is an idiot with an eyeglass. He doesn't exist. This is only one of the wrongs," he said.

The pictures, McIntosh said, would in no way be competitive with American pictures.

can pictures, "which are now swamping England," but the best of American stars, the best of machinery, the best of everything would be used for the purpose of making these pictures worth while, and present English ideas and ideals in a worthy manner. "I hope they prove profitable," he said, "but the big point is not the possible revenue; rather of showing England in her true light."

It was McIntosh's belief that pictures would prove far more powerful in cementing a union between the two great English-speaking races than the League of Nations. "I feel that we two nations can do a great bit of work if we work together."

Sailing with McIntosh will be J. D. Williams of Ritz Carlton Pictures, who acted as toastmaster at the affair which was attended by Adolph Zukor, Elmer Pearson, Pathe, F. C. Monroe and Raymond Pawley of Hodkinson, and others. When McIntosh was pressed for details of his big plan he said that any statement which might be made now would be premature. representing 16 Protestant churches, presented a brief objecting to Sunday shows.

The Richards case is of vital importance. On its decision rests several other decisions placed in abeyance pending the verdict of the Supreme Court. Canton is one of the cities waiting for the final word. The Richards case has been in the courts for over two years, during which time Richards has been arrested in the neighborhood of 210 times for violations. The fact that the Supreme Court of Ohio recognized a debatable point between the statute defining illegal Sunday shows and the status of pictures under that statute, seems to argue well.

Ideas For Spring

What Exhibitors Can Do to Fight the Automobile and Outdoor Appeal in Warm Weather

Harold B. Franklin, director of theaters for Famous Players offers some ideas to hold theater patronage in the Spring. Writing on that general theme, he says in "The Close Up," this department's house organ:

Spring is a challenge to the efficiency of every exhibitor. This time of the year introduces many rivals to the theater. The lure of the great outdoors is strong. The automobile which was stored during the Winter is now ready to carry the family along the curving highways where Spring beckons. The appeal of the open spaces is an irresistible force which is a challenge that should make every exhibitor only more eager to prove it worth, when competition is toughest.

This is the season of the year that suggests the birth of new ideas, new thoughts. It therefore behooves every manager to make double his efforts to maintain a good, healthy business.

At this time a theater must be made more attractive than ever if it is to successfully combat the season. The spirit of Spring has touched every possible patron of your theater. They are all now in the mood of this new season.

Every detail of your theater should harmonize with the spirit of Spring. You must play upon the mood of the season.

In every theater there should be a visible effort to brighten up generally. Your patrons have their Spring vacation at home, and I am sure they will appreciate finding that their favorite theater is also cleaning up. Every theater should reflect the spirit of Spring. Stuffy atmosphere, dusty furniture, poor ventilation, thick, heavy draperies, dead music, sleepy attendants, yawning ushers, and that spirit.

In high grade theaters, the atmosphere of Spring is added by placing attractive flowers in the lobby and theater. Spring flowers are inexpensive and many a beautiful effect can be obtained in this respect. Where a theater is large and plays to Class patrons, greens on top of the marquee go a long way towards an inviting appearance. Electric signs should be brightened. If the electric signs are in bad shape, they should be painted and varnished. If this is not necessary, they can be washed. Bay trees at the entrance to high class theaters are always inviting.

"Hangings should be cleaned thoroughly and the dark, dingy draperies should be eliminated. In every possible way the theater should get away from Winter attire and begin to introduce the cool and inviting surroundings of Spring.

"Spring atmosphere can be suggested even in newspaper advertising through the use of proper cuts (illustrations) and where theaters have their own art departments, there is a wealth of opportunity here.

"The colors used in lobby displays should be of the lighter tones and should not have a splash of glaring colors. The whole idea of your lobby should be to Refresh. For the same reason that one dresses up in his best when he wants to make an impression, so should the theater be garbed in new Spring attire. There are countless touches which the wide-awake manager who heeds the message of Spring will introduce.

"One of the reasons the motion picture theater is so popular is because exhibitors are farther advanced in theater management than any other branch of the theater business. The great care with which most modern picture theaters are managed, the atmosphere and environment that have been instilled in these theaters, have given them first place in the heart of the American public. Novelties of all kinds are a distinct claim for patronage and the 100 per cent theater never rests on its laurels. It is continually trying something new."

dominance. He holds that individual members belonging to any exhibitor body may, as individuals, dabble in production or distribution, but that the entity must be composed of men who are primarily theater owners and nothing else.

Rembusch made the point that exhibitor interests cannot be respected and safeguarded when a national organization is interested in distribution because the other two factors in the industry can always point to the exhibitor as a producer or a distributor as well. The Allied State Organizations will work on a policy of cooperation with Will H. Hays. There may not—and probably won't—always be agreement but at least a round table conference in which all parties will participate will be held.

Newspaper Opinions
"A Boy of Flanders"—Metro
Rialto

AMERICAN—Jackie Coogan is growing. He is losing the baby expression which gets its way into a million hearts. But the loss of the baby may be compensated by the fact that if only his elders will not attempt to push him to act.

Quida's classic, will please the great army of children who look upon Jackie as their idol.

DAILY NEWS—*** He is quite unchildlike now, with all his gesturings. *** The dog is perhaps the best actor in the picture. Isn't it a pity Jackie had to be all dressed up in this fashion I'm afraid we shall never again have anything so good as "The Enchanted Cottage."

EVENING WORLD—*** as always, a remarkably appealing performance. Though there are several distinguished faces in Jackie's supporting cast, Teddy, venerable Great Dane and one of the men's most capable actors, must be given credit for a wonderful performance. ***

HERALD—*** in our estimation, it is the finest thing Jackie ever did. The child gives a remarkable performance, and we know quite well that the reason we like him better than we ever did before is because he has at last grown into his genius. He never did quite fit him before, he being too young to have any such thing. ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—*** he makes you laugh and cry. *** The locale of the story is Antwerp, and the praise is due to the scenic designer for producing not only some realistic sets, but for flooding the entire film with atmosphere.

The story is delicately handled *** and the youthful star off to admirable advantage.

POST—*** Jackie Coogan makes another hit in his new picture. *** To our way of thinking it's the best picture he's ever made in. ***

TELEGRAM—*** Picturesque scenes showing life in Holland make this new film usually attractive. Little Jackie is an unusually appealing figure as little Nello. *** In the scenes with Teddy, the dog who has much to do with the little Dutch boy's destiny, Jackie is at his best—and that is very good indeed.

TIMES—Although it may be a story for children, as told upon the screen, "A Boy of Flanders" with that clever mite, Jackie Coogan, makes quite a charming picture, provided one makes allowances for parts of the narrative. The scenic effects are beautiful and the Dutch atmosphere is entrancing.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—*** "A Boy of Flanders," *** suffers from a weak script. The youngster himself has turned in a fair enough performance, but the tale is so stereotyped to make it impressive. *** A dearth of comedy is an outstanding fault, with the picture reaching its principal entertaining capabilities in the screening of children's party. ***

WORLD—*** Jackie's new picture is one of the best. Instead of relying, as so many child pictures do, on the pitter-patter of little bare feet, baby smiles and all that sort of bunk, this film has an intelligent plot, atmosphere, humor, action and splendid acting. *** Half of the best acting is done by Jackie, the other half by his true and trusted friend, Teddy, a huge Great Dane.

"The Enchanted Cottage"—1st Nat'l Strand

AMERICAN—*** It is so well done and handled with such rare discrimination it could be a reflection against our motion picture public if they fail to appreciate it. *** Possibly *** too long. Almost any picture built on as thin a plot structure as this could seem too long if extended beyond five reels. Yet, the workmanship, down to the smallest detail, is so fine, I cannot find it in my heart to recommend the scissors.

We might say Richard is himself again.

DAILY NEWS—The sheer suspense of *** is rather wonderful. *** Yes, you will be glad to have seen "The Enchanted Cottage."

EVENING JOURNAL—*** There is a delicacy about the treatment of the theme, a sensitiveness about the direction and acting, that contains all the strength and preserves the illusions of the story.

Richard Barthelmess and May McAvoy give a gratifyingly understanding interpretation of their roles. ***

EVENING WORLD—In all our picture-going experience we have never seen a better made or more charming photo-drama. *** And we have never seen Richard Barthelmess do a better bit of acting (and this goes for dainty little May McAvoy, too).

The direction by John Robertson is well-nigh perfect and *** the story, *** is beautiful and rather intricate. ***

It is a beautiful picture, beautifully done and one that no one should miss.

HERALD-TRIBUNE—*** one of the most enchanting pictures we have seen. *** Gaze on "The Enchanted Cottage," and never again will you believe it when they tell you that pictures are in their infancy and that the surface has only been scratched. ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—A production of rare beauty. *** Richard Barthelmess has never been as forceful and interesting as he is in this picture. ***

Mr. Robertson has handled the *** play, *** with a delicate and appreciable sense of drama and beauty. *** the lighting and photography excellent.

POST—*** It has been given a fine production, and is well acted in the principal parts—but it isn't a good movie. *** For artistry, it would be hard to surpass "The Enchanted Cottage;" but art plays the lead over action, characterization tries to take the place of conviction. *** The only outstanding human feature of the film is the appealing work of May McAvoy, the one good player in the cast, excepting Mr. Barthelmess.

SUN—*** Barthelmess adds another to his series of rather fine accomplishments, and Miss McAvoy demonstrates a hitherto not fully realized ability to act. So that it is not all loss.

TELEGRAM—*** Barthelmess has never done anything more moving in motion pictures than this *** May McAvoy *** is an ideal associate.

TIMES—*** much more satisfying on the screen than it was on the stage. The director, John S. Robertson, has filmed this *** with his customary restraint, availing himself of charming double exposure effects and most attractive settings. ***

Richard Barthelmess gives a good performance.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—*** "The Enchanted Cottage," with the Pinero fantasy, isn't the sort of a picture for the average film fan. It is over their heads.

In sets, lightings, direction and advancement of the story, the utmost in artistic work is shown. The same goes for the players. ***

WORLD—*** one of the finest motion picture dramas which we have ever seen. Richard Barthelmess comes forward here in an inspired and astonishing performance. We are not even afraid to call it great. *** We want to advise every-one to go and see the beauty of this gem of intimate cinema dramatics. ***

AMERICAN—*** a melodrama of the first water. The Goldwyn Company has taken some of the curse of improbability off the film by indulging in some good comedy. *** Emmett Flynn, the director, *** does very well for himself.

EVENING JOURNAL—*** Claire Windsor, Raymond Griffith, Lew Cody and Mae Busch make "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," *** the sort of picture one hoped it would be, when one heard it was to be filmed. ***

There is a thrilling fire, a dazzling display of fashion models, a collision, and then—the elevated episode! ***

EVENING WORLD—*** It is a rank out-and-out melodrama and must be given credit for not claiming to be anything else. ***

HERALD-TRIBUNE—*** There isn't really much in the picture that one found in the play, but there are plenty of compensations. There are Claire Windsor, *** Hobart Bosworth, *** Lilyan Tash *** Mae Busch and Raymond Griffith, *** Edmund Lowe, ***

MORNING TELEGRAPH—*** has all the laughs and thrills of the ten-twenty-thirty and, best of all, it is played just that way.

The producers haven't kidded themselves into believing that they have created a work of art. They have made a frank, unashamed melodrama, and the result is that they "are eating it up" ***

The cast is just what it should be ***

POST—*** "Nellie" gives you seventy-two minutes of fast action, thrills, human interest stuff and laughs—lots of laughs—and if that isn't a good movie there never was one made.

Of course, there's nothing highbrow or very fine about the picture. It's old stuff—but so was "Way Down East." It is splendidly acted by one of the best casts of the season. ***

SUN—*** "Nellie" has returned, somewhat modernized from the original Owen Davism, but a corking and noble thriller. *** It is interesting, this revival of melodrama. ***

TIMES—*** Emmett Flynn *** gives the story in the old-fashioned way, only embellishing it with expensive settings and beautiful costumes. ***

There are some clever double-exposure photographic effects ***

Strange as it may seem, anybody can have a thoroughly enjoyable time watching this *** melodrama, in which the players appear to realize the possibilities of their parts and are happy in their screen labors.

THE H. C. MILLER AMUSEMENT CO., OF CHICAGO, HAS BEEN DISSOLVED.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—*** The picture is just as much of a rip-snorter of a meller as the play was. ***

The cast is the strongest thing about the production. ***

In the small houses this picture is going to mop up, but it isn't a prelease feature by a long shot. ***

WORLD—*** There is a thrill for you *** You have no idea how easily you can be kidded until you go ***

The H. C. Miller Amusement Co., of Chicago, has been dissolved.

Why The Noise?

E. V. Richards Asks Some Pertinent Questions Relative to the Theater Combination Report

The following wire was received yesterday from E. V. Richards, general manager of the Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans:

"The April 9 issue of THE FILM DAILY is almost entirely devoted to 'the panic of circuits and booking combines.' Why all of the noise?"

"Who are the real big circuit and buying powers but the largest producers and distributors? Let's talk about where film rentals have jumped in the past five or six years, and how Fairbanks, Chaplin and Lloyd, and numerous others, get millions in spite of all that. Let's talk about the fact of the millions invested in theater properties by these circuits that make it possible for them to multiply rentals. Let's talk about who gets the cheapest film service in relation

Clem's Ocean Trip

Aix Les Bains, France.
Dix de March

Dear Film Daily:

When I asked the porter at Venice what time I could get a train out of there for Paris, he said ten minutes after seventeen. What time do I get to Paris, I asked. At half past twenty-two was his answer. Now I leave it to you as to the conditions here. I ain't sure but I think at the present rate of exchange four o'clock in New York is about eighteen o'clock here. Anyhow, that's what time I left. I'm stopping over here for a while but am getting out on the first train. I was deceived into this stopover.

I met an American encyclopedia at Venice who said, if you want to get a good look at the French pheasants, stop over at Aix les Bains. Well I (Continued on Page 6)

Engel To Produce

May Head Unit for Metro—Louis Mayer to Handle His Duties at Studio

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Joe Engel, at present studio manager for Metro may head a producing unit of his own and release through Metro. The matter has not been definitely determined but will be settled in New York when Engel arrives there in a few weeks for a conference with Marcus Loew.

It is understood that Engel will first finish "The Human Mill" on which Allen Holubar was working when he died. Victor Schertzinger, now directing "Bread" for Metro will probably direct.

Under the terms of the Goldwyn-Metro merger, as noted, Louis B. Mayer will be in charge of Metro production. This would have left Engel without any definite duties.

Mayer and Irving Thalberg arrived from the East Monday.

Sennett-Pathe Deal

Mack Sennett has renewed his contract with Pathe. Under its terms, there will be more Sennett two-reelers than in the past. About 42 comedies are covered in the agreement, thus permitting Pathe to list about three from the Sennett studio each month.

The company's entire release schedule for 1924-1925 is about set. As noted, Hal E. Roach will supply 52 two-reelers and 52, one-reelers. There will be a total of 104 two-reelers for the year, plus the one reelers. In addition the Roach features, will, of course, be included and the other regular series now part of the program, such as the Chronicles of America, Pathe Review, Pathe News, Aesop's Fables, Topics of the Day, Sportlights and several serials.

Harold Lloyd still has several pictures to make for Pathe under his existing contract.

Box Office Check-Up

50 Exhibitors Aiding Famous Players Determine What Public Wants in Production

Officials at Famous Players declare that a production check-up carried on by exhibitors is working out in a satisfactory manner.

Fifty representative exhibitors in as many cities scattered throughout the country are working in conjunction with Henry Salisbury, Jesse L. Lasky's personal representative in the production department on what is termed an effective analysis of what goes and what does not go with the public. Reports are submitted on all Paramount Pictures on types of stories, production values, work of featured players and the like.

The information, it is said, is proving of value in the formulation of future schedules.

Harry's Latest

Harry Reichenbach worked a very effective teaser campaign on behalf of "Triumph," the De Mille picture which goes into the Rivoli next week. He prepared a series of seven ads, published in the dailies, with the following copy: "Tea," "Are," "Eye," "You," "Emm," "Pea," "Haitch." The first correct response, that of Charles W. Dudrap of Yonkers was awarded a prize of $25 and the other awards are to be second, $15; third, $10; and then one hundred passes for the Rivoli. At 11 A. M. yesterday, 3100 responses had been received. The copy appeared in confusing order and the stunt, of course, was to arrange the words so as to spell the title.

Murphy Bill a Law

The confusion over the status of the Murphy bill which regulates the use of non-inflammable film in New York has been finally cleared away. The bill was passed by the Senate, at 7:45 A.M. April 11, the morning of adjournment, but was not recorded by the Senate clerk at Albany because of pressure of business at the time. The measure is now in the hands of Governor Smith awaiting his signature.

Elliott is here with Charles Raymond Thomas, producer of educationals.

Seek Data on Film Types

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—One of the interesting matters to come up at the League of American Pen Women convention at the Shoreham on April 23 will be a canvass of film types. A general request is being made for the titles of six best films and a reason for the selection from every person interested. Replies can be sent to the above address. The information is sought by five of the large companies in an effort to gauge future production.

A Special Word

No. 380. Straight from the Shoulder Talks

by Carl Laemmle

President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

HIS talk is intended for those of you who are ruinously hammering down Universal rental prices through booking circuits, booking agencies or whatever you choose to call them.

You tell me you formed these booking combinations to defend yourselves against producers or distributors who are crushing you. You tell me your booking combination is the only weapon with which you can combat still greater circuits, whether owned by producers or not.

I don't know anything about that, because undoubtedly there are two sides to that story as to every other story. But I do know that, thoughtlessly and without intending to do so, you are hammering prices down on the very company you ought to support to the last ditch. Every time you use that booking combination against Universal, you are using it against yourself! Everything you do to weaken Universal is a good swift kick in your own pants!

I ask you to stop it and stop it now!

With all the power at my command, I ask you to realize that if you treat Universal as an enemy—as some of you are unintentionally doing—you are fighting you own future, battling your own flesh and blood!

Booking Circuits!

Do I ask special favors for Universal?

YOU BET YOUR LIFE I DO!

I ask you to treat Universal as you would treat a partner. Regardless of what your booking combination rules may be, I ask you to waive them in dealing with Universal. I ask you to quit forcing me to deal with one theatre. I ask you to quit restraining me from getting the benefit of competition among you! I ask you to quit fixing the price that I've got to accept for my pictures! I ask you to quit clubbing my prices down to a ridiculous basis!

By what earthly right do I ask these things? Simply by right of the fact that I've never done anything to warrant this sort of rough treatment from exhibitors. I am not threatening you with great chains of theatres. I never tried to force you to book "everything or nothing." I never tried any cute or devilish little tricks or schemes or devices to take you into camp. I've always played with you with every darned card on the table, face up, and not a card up my sleeve.

If you are determined to use a club in booking, don't use it where it will damage you in the end. There is no greater blow you could give yourself than to injure Universal. I know you are hurting us without realizing what you are doing. Now that you do know, will you wake up and quit fighting yourself over my shoulder?

Films Self-Financed

Of the general estimate of $200,000,000 spent on production annually, the industry itself finances 64%. Banks advance 35% and private leaders only 1% of this enormous figure. This information is embodied in the second of a series of four articles dealing with the financial texture of the industry and published in the Wall Street Journal. The second article, in full, follows:

"Although moving picture concerns take in $500,000,000 admissions a year, and spend half of this on new productions and housing, they have not a speaking acquaintance with most leading banks of the country. Of the $200,000,000 which goes into new films each year only 35% comes from the banks. Outside private lenders put up about 1%. The moving picture people put up the remainder.

"Only one movie concern gets its bills discounted by the Federal Reserve Bank. In general, bank inspectors put moving picture credits down as slow, according to C. S. Pinkerton, comptroller of the First National Co. He insists that reputable moving pictures concerns have for years been paying their bank debts promptly.

What Bankers Say

"Bankers who have to do with moving picture investments give a wide variety of answers to questions about their experiences. Boards of directors and trustees of the big banks are in general hostile to moving pictures as sound investments. One vice-president gives limited credit to movie theaters in his neighborhood where the borrowers have assets at least twice the value of the credit advanced.

"But a bank is handicapped in a number of ways in determining the solvability of a movie plant. Some of the largest assets are intangible like goodwill, or in anticipated profits from films which are in the making or finished and not released. The bank must take the company's word on their value. Estimates carry more weight when supported with statistics showing returns from previous ventures such as companies today compile.

"One big bank which has carried 28 new productions in the last six months, sometimes investing $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 a day in motion pictures, is enthusiastic over returns and is constantly enlarging the amount of credit given. The bank does business with five of the leading motion picture companies. All of the 28 pictures paid back credit advanced. The bank sent out an inspector to look over studios seeking money, just as it would have looked into the assets of any other concern. It checked over the motion picture company's notes, cash inventory, and current liabilities.

"Banks are often shocked by the high inventories motion picture companies carry, relatively much higher than those in other industries. Goldwyn, for example has enough properties and equipment to 'shoot' 11 pictures at a time. Some of this is doubtless a burdensome overhead.

"Banks also look with disapproval on the high salaries paid some of the stars. Producers shrug their shoulders and say the number of stars is small, and that salaries are fixed by competition in the market, and what the public is willing to pay for favorites.

"The principal objection bankers make to producers' methods is not so much in the sums of money they spend in staging a story as in their failure to keep within agreed limits. It is here that the producers' association is carrying on its most active agitation for more business-like methods. Most of the big concerns have already adopted a budget system.

Production Economy

"The first conspicuous move toward production economy was made last October when Famous Players-Lasky closed down their plants at Hollywood and Long Island City for a couple of months. In the last two years all the big companies have adopted the budget method, estimating their production costs when the scenario is agreed upon. The four companies with their stock listed on the Stock Exchange publish annual statements. Others prepare them for the banks, but have not adopted the policy yet of making them public. In a word the motion picture industry is being put on a business basis. Mr. Saunders, comptroller of Famous Players, said:

"It is just as well that there is not a rush of investors into the moving picture field. The big companies already have bank contacts and are getting more credit as they demonstrate that they run their business along sound, profitable lines. The plungers and hokum experts in the business are being gradually weeded out and the line is constantly more sharply drawn between legitimate and fly-by-night business."

bought a gun and a hunting outfit and here I am and what do I find? That he meant the French peasants, or poor people, like ushers and operators in America. I don't know why they call them pheasants here, but guess they call the poor people in Italy guinea hens. It's the same thing.

We had an hour stop over at Pisa where the famous tower is. One man there told me it is over 700 years old. I know what made it lean—booking pictures without seeing them. That's what made me lean last year. I met an Eytalian exhibitor at Pisa who don't know the name of any of the big film companies in America. I found out later that he is a notorious bicyclist and that he is very, very religious and that he don't want to know the names of the firms he is trimming so that his conscience won't be bothered. His brother has a couple of theaters in Tunis and bicycles his films clean across the Sahara on a camel.

It's tough enough from Pneumonia to Hives, which are only twelve miles apart let alone clean across a desert on a slow going camel.

It was a great ride from Venice to the French frontier only the food on the train wasn't so good. If you didn't happen to like what the conductor liked, you could go hungry. As far as I was concerned it was OK, but Mrs. Deneker is having a hard time finding anything that is as good as her cook, Daisy hands us at home. Daisy is part Indian and part colored and we have had her two years because I give her passes to the shows. She's good, too; for some times she helps make the joint look full when things is tough.

Well, that's all the news now but I am feeling all hotsy totsy for Paris where I'll be in about four hours more.

Wish you would send me a list of new promises for the coming season.

I want to kid myself along till I home.

receipts and proportionate cost of Is it the straight picture house, mixed vaudeville and pictures? Let's ask the bond buyers and investors if the great theaters and circuits were placed at the mercy of the capitalists and skinflint selling methods would it be possible to build and improve in the theater of this industry in cities now paying enormous rentals for film service. Let's talk about who gives life to independent features when they are produced by men of ability and merit. If it is not the circuits and exchange houses throughout America, Lloyd, Chaplin, Fairbanks and National, ask the star and producer do they create conditions chaotic as existed in legitimate field, when 90 per cent of the receipts went to the producer on guarantee and high percentage houses to decay; bankers and investors disgusted; in the majority of cities and towns no improvement, or advancement, or progress for ten years; the calibre of management of the exchange of the billposter; the musicians of the old "fiddler band" type. Would the conduct of this business be on the standards of progress to the business on this basis? It is not a fact that the real alarm of the theater "closed town or book-combine" that is paying an average of 25 to 30 per cent of his receipts for his average film service and margin on big investments is not the net results of a good bond in the exchange business? Is it not a fact that we have about too many distributing organizations; about a dozen too many traders and hypo exploiters; and a thousand too many lawyers; and a legion special advisers on that side of the industry taking its toll? Danny, boy, strike at fundamentals. Don't let sky rockets. Out of this chaos will rise, very shortly, an organization headed by men of the calibre of Loew, Lieber, and others that will calm the storm. Evolution will take care of the merit in a business that is as important and is in as great demand by the public as this industry. Quell the calamity howlers and pagandists if they don't want a free and national regulation of this business they had better leave some of the profit with the local theater owners. Closed towns and circuits matter not, the banker and investor must get his. I am not writing this from any selfish interests of my company, but everybody must have the guts to tell the facts as seen by the theater of the question. I am further harmed than the average helpless laborer.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Confidence Man"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * Thomas Meighan's latest is full of hokum * * * Whatever are its shortcomings—they were not enough to bore * * *

EVENING WORLD—In all screenedom we have yet to find a more satisfactory combination than Tommy Meighan and George Ade. * * * Their latest effort "The Confidence Man," * * * is merely another proof of the efficacy of this combination. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—We sincerely hope that "The Confidence Man" isn't as poor a picture as we think it is. * * *

Can it be possibly that any one can view that picture and not know that it is dripping with false sentimentality, that the actors are all overacting and that the thing moves at such a snail's pace that it appears to be another one of those slow motion pictures? * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * they have an undercurrent of delightfully human comedy that helps a lot. Victor Heerman directed the picture and did a workmanlike job, and the titles of George Ade add to the assets of the story material. * * *

POST—* * * This isn't a bad picture, and you wouldn't kick at all if you saw it at some suburban theater. But it's far from feature material. * * *

TELEGRAM—There is a heap of shrewd American humor with the undercurrent of applied pragmatism in "The Confidence Man." * * *

The story is told with a lot of human quality, and if the climax seems a bit hurried, probably it is owing to the need of hurrying the end lest it grow a bit preachy.

There is an abundance of interesting details and several amusing episodes. * * *

TIMES—* * * is for the most part a cheerful if improbable story, * * * If the fun and speed had been maintained throughout, it would have made quite a good entertainment.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * Just an ordinary Paramount program release, dependent 99 per cent on Meighan's popularity, gained in better stuff.

WORLD—* * * is refreshing entertainment.

But it's well done. The plot is entertaining and the situations are amusing. Meighan's part is one which gives him every opportunity to display that remarkably engaging personality he has. And he makes the most of it.

METRO-GOLDWYN

Official Statement

Details of Huge Combination—How Loew Strengthens Theater Position

Official statement issued said: Metro Pictures, Goldwyn Pictures and Louis B. Mayer Co. today forged their immense holdings into an amalgamation which will also include the distribution of Cosmopolitan. The combined company is a point of magnitude, influence, and financial scope be the peer of any other film organization in the world.

The negotiations which have been in progress for some time were initiated by F. J. Godsol, president of Goldwyn and were completed today with the signing of papers by the representatives of the companies.

The name of the merged corporation will be Metro-Goldwyn Corporation in addition to F. J. Godsol, president, and F. J. Bowes, vice president of Goldwyn, will be on the Board of Directors and actively associated with the new amalgamated company, as will also be Messrs. Kendall and William B. Mayer. Louis B. Mayer will be vice president in charge of all production matters.

The consolidation is intended to eliminate waste in production, to produce bigger and better pictures at a lower cost, to furnish better service to exhibitors, and to accomplish a tremendous saving in distribution. The new company will in no way submerge the individual companies or eliminate or curtail their producing and distributing activities.

The Goldwyn executives and the Goldwyn organization will be retained and will continue to operate. Abraham Lehr, vice president of Goldwyn, in charge of distribution, has not yet indicated whether he will remain with the Goldwyn company. This statement, issued today by Marcus Loew, president of Metro, is a denial of various unfounded rumors that Goldwyn would disappear from the field after the merger with Metro.

The amalgamation brings to the forefront the Metro-Goldwyn Company.

France Seeks Place

Making Determined Effort for Position of Importance in Production—At Work Now

A determined effort is apparently being made in France to secure for that country a definite place in the world's film markets. An interesting move is described in a special dispatch published in the New York Times from Paris and reprinted by permission.

A company has been formed there by the Duc d'Ayen, backed by private capital but apparently with considerable official support. The Times dispatch says the most brilliant minds of France seem to be collaborating.

Two Sales Meets Planned

Hodkinson will hold two sales meetings, one in New York, on April 26, and the other in Chicago, May 3. The managers of the New York, Buffalo, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta and Pittsburgh exchanges will attend the New York session, while Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City and St. Louis offices will be present at Chicago. The company's 1924-25 plans will be announced.

Metro Takes Over the Goldwyn Co.; Gives 5 Million of Preferred Stock

Louis B. Mayer Units Also Join Metro—Mayer to Have Charge of Metro Production—Metro Plant to Be Dis-mantled—Hearst Goes Along

Late yesterday afternoon final papers were signed and Metro Pictures Corp. took over Goldwyn Pictures. Stockholders of both corporations must ratify the proceedings. Loew, Inc., owns Metro, and there is a voting trust of five which controls the disposition of Goldwyn stock. These stockholders' meetings are expected to be held in the early future, and the deal ratified. There was some talk yesterday that the minority stockholders of Goldwyn might raise some objections to the proceedings, but this is not regarded seriously by those who engineered the deal, inasmuch as the voting trust trustees have ample power to close such a deal.

Prior to the official statement being issued, the voting trustees of the Goldwyn stock met and approved the merger at about 4.30 o'clock.

William R. Hearst, Cosmopolitan Prod. will continue—at least for the time being—to release through Metro-Goldwyn. The Louis B. Mayer Productions were also taken over by Metro, and Mayer will have complete charge of Metro-Goldwyn production—the extent of which can be imagined when it is realized that at present 17 directors are under contract by the several companies, all of whom will produce for next season for Metro-Goldwyn.

Metro will issue $5,000,000 of preferred stock which will be allotted to the holders of the 184,000 shares of Goldwyn stock, share for share. Assuming this stock is issued at par—$100—it would place a valuation of $27.10 for each share of Goldwyn stock. Metro preferred will carry 7 per cent. In other words Goldwyn stockholders are assured of a 7 per cent dividend—assuming dividends are declared.

The present Metro plant in Hollywood.

The Passing

By DANNY

The Goldwyn Company has passed from existence and in its passing there should be a lesson—something which should never be forgotten—when ambition steps in and pride proceeds to its ultimate fall.

In a few weeks, perhaps in a few days, what was once a tremendously important factor in this business will have been forgotten. People are prone to forget very rapidly in the rush of business.

But when all others have forgotten that a concern of this name was in existence there will remain one who will never forget. He has an office on Madison Avenue and today he is regarded as an important factor as an independent producer. His name is Samuel Goldwyn.

"The object of the company, which has adopted the name of the Society for Filmed Historical Romances" says the Times, "is to present to the world a true representation of France's difficult struggles toward her present greatness.

"The program consists of 18 films, which commence with the victory of Louis XI. over the Burgundians and ends with the great war. As a basis for each film a well-known French writer will take the great historical facts and weave romances about the principal characters. In the first film, which is to be called 'Miracle of the Wolves,' the love of Jeanne Hachette for one of Charles the Bold's commanders supplies the theme of the story.

"To assist in the first production 3,000 French poilus, at the order of the Government are taking part.

"Vanni Marcoux, the opera singer, enacts the part of Louis XI., and Yvonne Sergl of the Odeon is Jeanne Hachette. It is estimated the film will cost some 10,000,000 francs, not counting governmental assistance. The first representation is to be given at the Opera early in October."

Metro-Goldwyn

wood will be dismantled, and all production activities will be carried on at the Goldwyn lot in Culver City. The realty value of the Metro lot has been regarded by experts in Hollywood as easily worth over $1,000,000.

The official statement issued failed to indicate whether there would be any changes in the field sales forces of the two companies, but in all likelihood exchanges will be consolidated wherever possible, and in time there will be a weeding out and rehabilitation. James R. Grainger, director of sales for Goldwyn, will continue with Metro-Goldwyn. Edward M. Saunders is at present in charge of sales for Metro.

The Theater Situation

As part of the deal the Capitol theater, New York, the California, Los Angeles, and the Ascher chain in Chicago come into possession of Metro-Goldwyn. The old Goldwyn company had what amounts to a 50 per cent interest in the Capitol, owned the California and about 50 per cent of the Ascher circuit of about 12 or 14 houses in Chicago. At one time Goldwyn owned several other houses, but these have been disposed of.

Powers' Negotiations

During the past two weeks, P. A. Powers has been making efforts looking to taking over control of the Goldwyn concern. These negotiations, which started with a plan to take over the notes outstanding, amounting to about $1,300,000 to be followed by control of the company, came to naught, although only yesterday an offer in writing reached an official of the Goldwyn corporation from Powers.

Godsol Far From Well

Now that F. J. Godsol has completed the transaction and is no longer concerned with the management of the Goldwyn company, he will take a long rest. He will probably leave tomorrow for Asheville, where he will remain the greater part of the summer, leaving there to go to Lake Placid where he will remain indefinitely. Godsol is far from well. He has been suffering for over a year with a malady that for a long time defied the experts, but the consensus of opinion of a number of diagnosticians is that he must abstain absolutely from work of any kind for the greater part of a year, rest com-

The Passing

It was something like nine years ago that he left the Famous-Lasky organization which he helped perfect, with plans which sought to dominate the motion picture business. He was about thirty-two and "he knew it all." He is forty today, a much wiser man who is anxious to live and learn.

Back of the Goldwyn Corp. at its inception was an ideal—the ideal of Samuel Goldwyn.

An ideal which has meant considerable to the motion picture business. The development of authors to write for the screen and only for the screen was one of his firm beliefs. That there should be a better relationship, a cleaner business method, a finer understanding between buyer and seller was part of the Goldwyn ideal. That there should be an aristocracy of the profession and of this art was one of his beliefs.

But the producing of pictures is one thing and the marketing of them another. One can have great ideals but a dollar is, after all, a dollar. And so the relentless pursuit of the ideal was followed by a more relentless demand that dollars be furnished for these productions. This took his mind from production. And in the business affairs of the company there developed internal difficulties, which, added to his sessions with the monied men interested led to his retirement from the corporation which he had founded and built and bankers stepped in.

When they came, the DuPonts and the others, they brought with them the promise that Goldwyn was to be the Durant of the business and that Goldwyn Pictures would be another General Motors. But when the producer wanted money from these millionaire visionaries they were very busy doing something else and the pletely, after which he may regain his health.

The New Name "Metro-Goldwyn"

The name of the operating company will be "Metro-Goldwyn." Excepting for the legal department practically all of the home office staff, as well as the exchanges of Goldwyn, will be taken over by Metro. Edward J. Bowes, right hand man of Godsol, in Goldwyn will go over to Metro. Abraham Lehr, vice-president in charge of production, located in Culver City, will, in all likelihood, be invited by Metro officials, to remain with them in the production department. But those who know Lehr feel that unless he is given an executive position of importance in the production of Metro he will not accept such an opportunity.

As to Hearst

Wm. R. Hearst will have a number of productions going through Metro-Goldwyn. He will have no new product for release until September next, and during the next few months will in all likelihood determine as to his future course, although it is confidently expected by those in the know, that he will continue with Metro-Goldwyn for release of his early future product.

The Mayer offices at 383 Madison Ave., have been given up and the great dream of a General Motors in the picture business dropped out of the Fifth Avenue eighth-story window and smashed like a tea cup.

Even when he had nothing but his stock interest in the concern—before he took up producing—Goldwyn remained active in the business which he loved. He became chairman of the committee which reorganized the old National Association and secured Will Hays to head the producers and distributors organization.

You can't make Sam Goldwyn talk about the Goldwyn Pictures Corp., no matter how hard you try. But those who have known him long and know him well know how he feels—like a mother who has lost a child. Not so much for the money that has gone although that is considerable, but for the ambition that has been killed, for the ideal that has been lost.

And the end came yesterday with the official announcement of the taking over of Goldwyn by Metro.

company will move into the State Bldg., which now houses the Loew executive offices.

For the present, the Goldwyn offices will be maintained at 465 5th Ave., chiefly because the Loew quarters are rather congested.

the immense Loew chain of theaters and the large number of theaters which Goldwyn at present controls throughout the country, the most important being the Capitol Theatre, New York. Goldwyn owns a half interest in the Capitol, the other half interest being owned by the National Realty Corp., of which Eugene Kendall is president and Edward Bowes, vice president and managing director. The policy and personnel of the Capitol will remain completely unchanged. Also included in the deal are two theaters in Los Angeles, the California and Miller's; theaters in Seattle and Tacoma, Washington and Portland, Ore., of which one-half is owned by Goldwyn and one-half by W. R. Hearst; also a circuit of houses in Chicago and adjacent territory, comprising more than twenty theaters in which Goldwyn Company owns a half interest.

The Goldwyn studios at Culver City, Cal., covering 40 acres, the largest and finest studio property in the world, is also included in the merger, and will be producing center of the combined companies.

Mr. Loew, in commenting on the amalgamation and explaining the reasons of the four companies in the merger, added:

The motion picture business is going through a stabilizing process and is working itself out on sane economic principles. Through combining our forces in the best interests of all parties to the merger, Metro, Goldwyn, Cosmopolitan and the B. Mayer Company are going the right way in the right direction. In order to obtain the greatest efficiency and economy in production a step was inevitable.

Every other business has experienced the same difficulties in its beginnings, and has come to realize the economic necessity of centralization. In the railroad business, for instance, this was brought about by the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific, the Central Pacific and the Illinois Central, who gradually achieved the amalgamation of all the western roads. They were centralized, as they are today, yet all retain their individuality.

"The merger will accomplish mutual savings that will react to the benefit of the exhibitor, and through the exhibitor to the public, which is what we wish to bring about."

"Marcus Loew's position as the heaviest theater owner in the country will be greatly strengthened."

"The combined organization of Metro, Goldwyn, Cosmopolitan and Mayer will have for release the coming season, as a result of the merger, such immense productions as 'Ben Hur,' now being filmed in Italy by arrangement with A. L. Erlanger; Rex Ingram's 'The Arab,' recently filmed in North Africa; Marshall Neilan's 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles,' now being completed; and Eric Von Stroheim's 'Greed,' which has been a year in the making."

"Other celebrated directors for the new amalgamation will include Clarence Badger, Reginald Barker, Frank Borzage, Charles Brabin, Edward Cline, Alan Crosland, Scott Dunlap, Emmett Flynn, Hobart Henley, E. Mason Hopper, Rupert Hughes, Robert Z. Leonard, Fred Niblo, Harry Rapf, J. Parker Read, Jr., Victor Scherzinger, Victor Seastrom, King Vidor, Robert Vignola and others."

5 "Vernon" Runs

Engagements at $1.50 Top Start Monday—60 Showings Planned Beginning Labor Day

Hiram Abrams, who has been at the lining up special runs for "Brothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" has been successful in securing 35 extended engagements for the Pickering picture, beginning Monday. In practically every case, the admission price will be $1.50 top. Abrams also hopes to have sixty day date showings for the production, beginning Labor Day and in the nature of an opening fall smash.

The current runs are on a percentage basis. The theaters have agreed to set aside a certain block of seats which are to be sold at admissions above the regular prices, in order to lure for United Artists a revenue commensurate with the character of the picture. The purpose of the Abrams' plan, is of course, to counteract the road show situation and permit regular picture houses to play film, rather than legitimate theater auditoriums.

Murray With Metro

New Arrangement Made on Recent Visit Here—One More for Tiffany

When Mae Murray completes "Circe" for Tiffany, released through Metro, she will make her own pictures thereafter for Metro release. There has been considerable difficulty between Metro officials and executives, and Tiffany company executives with reference to contracts and other matters.

Recently Mae Murray and her husband, Robert Z. Leonard, were here from the Coast, and negotiations were finally completed with Marcus Loew for Mae Murray to continue on her own on the Metro schedule.

Zukor Gives Dinner

The local Paramount sales convention was practically terminated Friday night with a dinner tendered the home office staff and visiting sales managers by Adolph Zukor at the Pennsylvania. The Chicago meeting opens at the Drake Monday.

A film with flashes of all Paramount stars since Sarah Bernhardt was shown, while Adolph Zukor and Sydney R. Kent, although there in person delivered addresses via the De Forest Phonofilm.

50 Metro-Goldwyns

38 from Metro and 12 from Goldwyn on New Schedule—24 Ready by September

While complete plans have not been made for the 1924-1925 season, in all likelihood Metro-Goldwyn will release fifty pictures. Of that number, Metro will produce 38 and Goldwyn 12.

A number of pictures designed for fall release are either completed or in last stages of production. By Sept. 1, when the fall season opens, Metro-Goldwyn will have 24 pictures completed and in the exchanges for distribution, according to W. E. Atkinson, of Metro.

The bulk of the product will be director specials. With Louis B. Mayer in charge of production, his former units will now function as part of the Metro organization. There will be series from Fred Niblo, Reginald Barker, Hobart Henley and probably a series of Elinor Glyns. Others will come from Robert G. Vignola, Frank Borzage and star groups from Ramon Novarro, Mae Murray and Buster Keaton. Jackie Coogan has two to deliver under his present contract, "Little Robinson Crusoe" and one other. Rex Ingram has, as noted, completed "The Arab" and is scheduled to make "The Goose Man" and "Toilers of the Sea." "Romola," which Inspiration is now completing in Italy at a cost to date of about $800,000, will probably be one of the Metro specials.

The first four of the Goldwyn group will be "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," produced by Marshall Neilan; "Greed," a Stroheim picture; "The Tree in the Garden," which Victor Seastrom is making, and "Mary the Third," which King Vidor is directing. Laurette Taylor will have "One Night in Rome."

It is hoped that "Ben Hur" will be completed in time for pre-release around Christmas.

There were a number of conferences held at the Metro offices Friday, concerning details of the merger. The policy, it is understood, will be one of welding, rather than of disintegration.

Silly reports have been in circulation the past few days linking the name of Loew with that of the Capitol. Such reports are absolutely without foundation. The Capitol will continue to operate as is, without any change in name, management or policy.

Off to Join "Ben Hur" Co.

Kathleen Key sails today on the President Roosevelt to join the "Ben Hur" company in Rome.

Marcus

Not changed a bit. Marcus Loew. Even though through the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan-Mayer deal he advances his position considerably in this business. Just figures he has a lot more responsibility on his shoulders. Than yesterday. That's all. Proud of his line-up for next season. Anxious that the deal shall work out well. For all parties concerned. Modest, democratic, and insists he is an exhibitor first; and a producer-distributor last of all.

Four years ago "Al" Lichtman—then with Famous—told Loew how he was going to buy "The Miracle Man." And it didn't set well with Loew. The next day he was out in the market looking for a producing organization. And landed Metro. No one was going to tell him how to run his theaters. Or his business. Metro went pretty bad for awhile. The waves were rolling high. The ship was going badly. Then came the turn of the road. And now the Goldwyn deal places him further along the road than he has ever been.

Peculiar, isn't it; that an expression from one man to another, can work such changes. Yet if Loew had not been told how he had to buy one picture—well, the history of this business would have been materially different.

Speaking of Greece. "In Athens," said Harry, "it seems to me that everybody's name was Skouras. Sixty out of every 80 seemed to have that name. I was interested because of some gentlemen I know in St. Louis. Who know a lot about making up an expense account. When I asked a Greek if his name was Skouras he said, 'him Skouras,' pointing to someone else, 'him' pointing to another 'Skouras.' And it kept on that way until I learned later that skouras was a Greek cuss word.

"In Paris the fellow who was running 'Down to the Sea' had an exploitation stunt in front of his theater—he had a cutout whale, over which water was running. Ocean stuff. Some of those cookies over there would walk under the stunt for hours. Then sue the exhibitor for ruining their clothes. He had 77 suits filed against him in one day.

"In London they have a new game now—find the movie house. They keep the movie houses so dark no one can find them. An exhibitor in Shepherds Bush has a big sign over his house, the upper part of which advertises the London Express. He cannot understand why his business falls. I told him maybe his fans were tired of expecting to see the Daily Express play at his house. It has been there—according to the sign—about four years."

GUEST OPERATORS

They have guest conductors at symphony orchestras; guest professors from English to American universities, and guest, etc., etc. So Glenn Alvine and Reichenbach arranged to have guest operators for the opening of "Triumph" Monday at the Rivoli. The operators at the Cohan and Rivoli theaters will switch for the night.

ANOTHER NIFTY

This one from "Bux" of First National. Explaining about the Broadway showmen. "Roxy puts 'em over," he explains, "Joe P.unkett gets 'em, and Riesenfeld makes 'em."

SECRETS

Horace Judge sends a lot of postals from Lunnon. About "Secrets." One of which reads: "It's not what you put into a picture, but what you get out of it. That's why 'Secrets' will profit you handsomely no matter what you pay for it."

They tried selling exhibitors this way a long time ago. Yes. The yelp is still heard.

CONWAY'S CORPORATION

Conway Tearle has gone and incorporated himself. His wife will be treasurer of the concern, and his lawyer, the secretary.

Why incorporate, Conway? Hasn't it always been that way?

DOUG'S NEXT

May be "Baron Munchausen" or "Don Quixote." Either of which should fit him to a T. But it will be some time before either is made. So don't worry about it.

DETERMINATION

Exemplified by Madeline Brandeis. Of Omaha. Who is really responsible for "Not One to Spare," Hodkinson release. No one hears of her, so far as the picture is concerned. Renaud Hoffman gets the credit. But back of the production is Miss Brandeis; a determined, plucky woman, who for the past seven or eight years has been interested in picture production. And who was willing to finance her own efforts. I remember meeting her about seven years ago. When she was just beginning to get interested in pictures. Keep your eye on her. Anyone who can produce the kind of a picture she has will bear watching. And a lot of it.

A RECORD—AND AN ENDORSEMENT

If you know anything about pictures and Kansas City you know this. That next to breaking into the vaults of a national bank, the next easiest thing is for anything connected with pictures to break into the Kansas City Star. So when a paper takes notice of your business this way busts loose it's time to sit up and take notice. Here's what the Star said editorially about Frank Newman:

"It would be fine to be a movie critic if one could hibernate during long, dreary seasons of mediocre pictures and come to life occasionally to shout out the window and mail postal cards to the readers to be sure and see the rare good offering.

"That is what Frank L. Newman has managed to do and in so doing has made of himself a reviewer whose judgment of what people will like holds few equals. When he affixes his personal recommendation to a film it is well to cut out something at the cafeteria that week and sink your savings at the Newman. But then, Mr. Newman has endorsed just six pictures in ten years. Imagine what would happen to most reviewers with a record like that. He has never gone wrong, but just think how many times he has kept quiet."

THINK THIS OVER

Personal endorsement of any picture is something you, Exhibitor, should look out for. You don't necessarily have to follow Frank, who is overcautious in this regard. Because in the last ten years there have been a lot more than six pictures that he could easily have endorsed. But the big point is this: don't endorse a picture until you know it is right. Then go the limit on it.

We've had ideas on this subject ourselves. We don't make a habit of boosting pictures unless there's a mighty good reason. First we're emotional, and that shouldn't be. And it's like the chap who had 100 reasons for not playing poker. The first was he had no money. The rest didn't count. But when you do lay one you can endorse go to it. And use the biggest megaphone you can. Meanwhile lay off recommending a lot of pictures just because someone sold you on the idea. It's the old story. Don't open your mouth until you have something to say. Then say it.

HODKINSON RELEASE
Season 1924-1925 Thirty First-Run Pictures

Thomas Meighan in
"The Confidence Man"

Paramount
Whole.....MEIGHAN-ADE COMBINATION WORKS NICELY BUT STORY COULD HAVE MOVED ALONG MUCH FASTER AND STILL NOT BROKEN THE SPEED RECORDS. CUTTING WOULD HELP IT IMMENSELY.

...Will please his following and play a role that he knows how to play. Always seems to be convincingly regenerated by a little old lady who "believes in him."

...Virginia Valli poorly photographed. She's much prettier than she appears here and capable of a more expressive role. Laurence Heat suitable as Meighan's crook buddy. Others Charles Dow Clark, Helen Lindroth, George Nash.

Type of Story....Crook story. Here's where exhibitors can probably capitalize on the recent oil expose and get their folks interested by telling them that Thomas Meighan's latest picture contains a story in which money oil stocks play a prominent part. George Ade's yarn provides the star with another of his crook roles in which he pulls off a grand performance after doing good for a lot of small town folks, instead of doing them good" as he set out to do. There's the usual sympathetic twist and heart interest touches when the little old lady's belief in him is so strong that he just has to give up the game and reform. Hero certainly does a lot for the folks in Fairchild where he had gone to relieve the hard skinned Queritt of some of his wealth. He turns his home into a hotel for the aged, runs off a church choir and otherwise plays benefactor for the town. Of course there's a girl in the case and after hero quits his employer the man higher up, declares he's through with the game forever, etc., there's a wedding in sight.

Office Angle....Good little picture but would be better entertainment if it would step along a bit faster. Takes too long for things to happen but where the star is popular they may not mind watching him for seven reels instead of five—all the story warrants.

Exploitation.....Star's name, of course, will bring them in. Play up the Meighan-George Ade combination and mention that Ade also wrote "Our Leading Citizen," "Back Home and Broke" and "Woman Proof" for Meighan. Promise them an insight into the scandal and it might do to use this idea for a teaser campaign with titles such as: "Great Expose of the Oil Scandal at the blank theater next week." Follow up with announcements of the picture, etc.

Action....Victor Heerman; drags sequences.

Director.....George Ade
Scenario.....Paul Sloane
Cameraman.....Henry Cronjager
Photography.....Good
Locale.....New York-surburban

Hollywood Previews

As productions are invariably cut after previewing, a general idea of each picture only is given, rather than a complete analysis. The usual review will appear when the picture is shown in New York.

"The Fighting Tylers"

Hal Roach Feature—Pathe

This is a feature from the new unit Hal Roach established to produce five and six reels. He has taken a totally unknown cast, and in other ways inaugurated some new ideas in production methods.

It might be called a drama—every character and incident is played serious—but there are a million laughs in the picture. It makes fine entertainment, and should get over in good shape, regardless of the lack of names.

The story deals with a father and three sons back in Kansas around 1860. The father, the town's blacksmith, rules everyone and everything with an iron hand—in fact he is mayor, judge, jury, etc. combined. His two older sons also are fighters, but the younger son of about eighteen endeavors to go along on the family reputation. The older brothers continually pick on the kid, with the latter devising many ways of avoiding their wrath; with many humorous situations resulting.

Box Office Angle....The one big thing is to get them in to see this one at the start—then it will carry along very nicely. A big angle for exploitation can be developed along the lines "Will He Be Harold Lloyd's Successor? Glen Tryon was selected by Hal Roach, after careful investigation, to take the place of Harold Lloyd in a series of features. See 'The Fighting Tylers' and judge his possibilities yourself."

"The Signal Tower"

Clarence Brown Prod.—Universal

Here is a crackerjack railroad story, with much human interest interwoven, which gets over in fine shape. Rockliffe Fellowes has an ideal part, and the rest of the cast shows up satisfactory in their respective roles. The story is laid in the mountain country, revolving around the operators of the railroad signal tower.

Clarence Brown gets over the railroad stuff in a most convincing way, and also gives fine treatment to the human interest development. The runaway freight down the mountain, culminating in a realistic wreck, gives an abundance of thrills.

Box Office Angle...."The Signal Tower" is way out of the ordinary run of pictures, is good entertainment for all classes of audiences. Go after exploitation and promise a fine railroad yarn. There's plenty to satisfy them.

"The Inheritors"

King Baggot Prod.—Universal

King Baggot has done some very nice work with his story of England. Mary Philbin is as sweet and as charming as ever, and Grace Darmond puts over her role as a London chorus girl in fine shape.

The settings and background carry the quaintness and charm of English aristocracy; which, combined with an appealing story, will please generally.

In preview form, the picture was a little too long, and showed a tendency to drag in spots. This will be overcome before the picture is finally shipped from the studio. In all likelihood, the title will also be changed before release.

When finally edited, the picture should go out and do a most satisfactory business for all theaters.

"Sherlock, Jr."

Buster Keaton—Metro

You'll have to chalk up another hit for Buster Keaton. "Sherlock, Jr." has plenty of fine comedy material that is sure-fire.

Buster, as a moving picture operator, falls asleep in the booth, and dreaming, walks right into the picture. Laugh after laugh is developed for sure-fire audience value, with many good gags and situations. In preview form ran about 4500 feet, with apparently very little trimming to be done.

Box Office Angle....Your only trouble on this one is to get them in to see it. Buster Keaton certainly is a drawing card enough to insure good houses, but let them know this is one of his best efforts for laughs and wholesome entertainment.

"The White Moth"

Tourneur Prod.—First National

"The White Moth" radiates sex, and though skating on thin ice, never breaks through. It is a whale of a box-office picture and should get over all down the line.

Barbara La Marr has the title role, and charms the males without any particular effort. Conway Tearle, Charles de Roche and Ben Lyon are the charmed, with Tearle finishing in front at the final fade-out.

The story is laid first in Paris, where Barbara is the White Moth and then the scene moves to New York, where they have the final clinch.

Tourneur has made a fine box office picture that should draw the crowds.

"Cytherea"

Producer: Samuel Goldwyn Distributor: Asso. First National

As a Whole....SURE-FIRE AND A WHALE OF A SUCCESS AT THE BOX-OFFICE. CONTAINS MANY INGREDIENTS TO BRING THEM IN, HOLD THEM AND SEND THEM OUT SATISFIED. ADMIRABLE PRODUCTION.

Cast....Lewis Stone in another of those roles for which he has become famous—the man of forty who feels romantic. Gives excellent performance. Connie Bennett makes her screen debut and does very well. Irene Rich the somewhat nagging wife. Alma Rubens does not look the part of the fragile and exotic social leader with whom Stone has his affair. Norman Kerry in small part. Others unimportant.

Type of Story....It is almost impossible to make Joseph Hergesheimer's famous "Cytherea" for the screen and so certain changes have taken place; but unless your people have wildly enthused over the book they will not know this nor will they notice it. As it has been made for the screen "Cytherea" is a combination of another version of "The Dangerous Age," plus Hergesheimer's book and with a new ending for the purpose of avoiding censorship difficulties and sending the audiences home feeling good. It tells of how a married man over forty falls in love with a New York social leader and elopes with her to Cuba where she dies, after which he returns to the placidity and comfort of his home. Upon this story Fitzmaurice has thrown his wealth of production experience and he has made a magnificent picture pictorially.

Box Office Angle....There should be a tremendous lot of discussion about "Cytherea." Many who read the book will be anxious to see what has been done with it for the screen. This natural curiosity together with the name of the director and the well-known cast should prove extremely profitable at the box-office.

Exploitation....If you have run "The Eternal City" you can promise that Fitzmaurice outdoes himself in his latter production for Samuel Goldwyn—"Cytherea." If the book had wide-spread popularity in your community you can use this angle to advantage. You can also promise that Lewis Stone gives another excellent performance in the type of role for which he has become famous and don't overlook the fact that Alma Rubens wears some perfectly stunning and gorgeous gowns.

Direction.....George Fitzmaurice; excellent, and has given a splendid mounting including two splendid sequences in color.

Art Director.....Ben Carre
Author.....Joseph Hergesheimer
Scenario.....Frances Marion
Cameraman.....Arthur Miller
Photography.....Excellent
Locale....Philadelphia suburb; New York mansion and Cuba.

MAY 12th IS MOTHER'S DAY

By DANNY

AND what are you, Mr. Exhibitor, going to do about it? May 12 falls on a Monday. And you know what your business on Monday usually is—or isn't? Are you going to let this opportunity pass you by, or are you going to cash in on it?

There are quite a few pictures around that fit in with the celebration of Mother's Day. And you can use one of them to advantage. There haven't been a conspicuous lot of pictures with a mother love theme released of late—you will find some of them on the following pages. But if for some reason these aren't available try to make a point of it to do something for May 12 and tie it in with the national celebration.

There are a lot of old fashioned, old time songs that your mother loved to sing. Some of them have been filmed appropriately and will make a mighty fine featurette. There are enough short subjects with a mother love appeal to help a lot if you'll just dig for them.

Every man is supposed to wear a white carnation on May 12 in celebration of the event. The least you can do is to supply every one who visits your house that day with a carnation. Have a table in the lobby with a lot of carnations; give one of them to the passers by, even if they don't come in. Carnations are cheap.

Reach your ministers and see to it that they devote their sermon on May 11 to the mother theme. They will probably thank you for the suggestion. Reach your editors and try in some way to capitalize for your house what you are doing in connection with the national holiday. And above all step forward with your advertising and publicity and hammer home the idea that your house is in line with the national celebration and is doing something. Then tell them what.

Don't overlook this opportunity.

Fred Thomson in
"The Silent Stranger"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole... ANOTHER ONE OF THOSE ACTION PICTURES WHERE THE THRILLS AND STUNTS EASILY COVER UP PLOT ABSURDITIES AND FAMILIARITIES.

...A hard working hero who gives a fast and furious performance in the conventional role of secret service man for whom the lead of mail robbers is no match.

...Hazel Keener suitable lead and customary villainous band composed of appropriate types, played by George Williams, Frang Hagerty, Horace Carpenter, Bud Osborne.

Type of Story... Western. Just a matter of liking plenty of action and liking "The Silent Stranger." Fred Thomson make a first rate western hero who furnishes his audience with a lot of thrills in the way of knock-outs, dizzy leaps and stunts, rescues, chases and the usual line-up of stunts that afford suspense and excitement. And if they prefer this sort of entertainment "The Silent Stranger," should hold the bill. It doesn't matter a great deal that the plot consists of the well worn secret-service-man-in disguise who is suspected of being a desperado until he has finally rounded up the band of mail robbers and then springs his grandstand play—showing off his little edge. Naturally it affords sufficient excuse for all kinds of action. Hero is on trail of the robbers for five reels and in his various pursuits he gets over some first rate thrills. The chase is particularly good and some of Thomson's stunts are reason enough to hold your breath. The star is ably assisted by his white horse, Silver King, well trained and intelligent animal that runs Tom Mix's Tony a close run for horse honors. The picture is not long and should please the average audience for its five reels.

Box Office Angle... You know best how westerns go with your patrons. If they favor them you can count on "The Silent Stranger" to satisfy. It is a good action film.

Exploitation... The title should go nicely worked with teaser lines such as "The Silent Stranger Is Coming to Town, Watch for His Arrival." Follow it up by having a man riding about on a white horse and displaying lines reading: "The Silent Stranger is in Town. See Him at the blank theater on (date)." Secure a trailer containing some of the picture's exciting moments and you might talk about Fred Thomson and get them interested in his line of stunts.

Production... Albert Rogell; made a good western.

Director... Marion Jackson
Scenario... Marion Jackson
Cameraman... Ross Fisher
Photography... Good
Locale... The West
Length... 5,040 feet

"Nellie, The Cloak Model"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole... REGULAR OLD TIME MELODRAMA WITH ALL THE HOKUM NEATLY SERVED A LA 1924. GOOD GOOD CAST AND PRODUCTION. LIKELY TO PLEASE A GOOD MANY AT THAT.

Cast... First rate. Claire Windsor a pretty Nellie and Lew Cody a devilish villain who would put Claire out of the way and become heir to her fortune. Mae Busch and Raymond Griffith put over some taxicab comedy bits that are very amusing. Edmund Lowe an inconspicuous hero. Hobart Bosworth suitable in dual role. Others Lilyan Tashman, Dorothy Cummings, Mayme Kelso.

Type of Story... Melodrama. "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," one of the oldest of meller thrillers has found its way into the list of 1924 productions and all the hokum of Owen Davis' play is elegantly incorporated into a Goldwyn picture that, in spite of its title and dime novel reputation, looks to be a pretty good box office attraction. Emmett Flynn brings Nellie right up to date and injects the necessary bits of audience appeal that help considerably to cover up the crude improbabilities of Davis' story. There's a good looking production, first rate cast and events of interest such as a fashion show, to hold their attention. The development is good and there aren't any really slow moments in the film. Of course the thrills are pretty wild with the efforts of villain Lew Cody to put Claire out of reach of a fortune, providing most of the excitement. It wasn't considerate of the Capitol audience to laugh when Claire was tied to the "L" tracks and the express train, came within an inch of decapitating her pretty blonde head. But they seemed to enjoy the thrill of this and other bits, nevertheless.

Box Office Angle... Where you know they like plenty of excitement in their film diversion, you can get in back of "Nellie" and boost it. You can promise a fast moving story and rest assured you're not misrepresenting facts when you say it contains action and thrills galore.

Exploitation... Get your trailers busy on this one. Show them a bit of the runaway "L" Express and Nellie tied to the tracks. Use part of the wild taxi ride where Raymond Griffith chases an ambulance through the crowded thoroughfares. Tell them about the fashion show and use plenty of stills of this sequence to decorate the lobby. Use the name of the players: Claire Windsor, Mae Busch, Hobart Bosworth, Lew Cody, Raymond Griffith. Arrange for tie-ups, teaser ads and stunt exploitation to get them interested.

Direction... Raymond Griffith.
Author... Owen Davis
Scenario... Carey Wilson
Cameraman... Lucien Andriot
Photography... Good
Locale... New York
Length... 6, 598 feet.

Charles Hutchison in "Surging Seas"

Wm. Steiner—State Rights

As a Whole... GOOD ACTION PICTURE THAT OFFERS SOME NEW STUNTS AND THRILLS WHICH SHOULD MAKE IT A SUITABLE ATTRACTION FOR MAJORITY OF EXHIBITORS.

Star... Former serial star supplies plenty of excitement in role that keeps him on the jump; not a matinee idol hero but will please the action lovers immensely.

Cast... Contains prominent names but players are all more or less unimportant in comparison with star. Includes Edith Thornton, George Hackathorne, David Torrence, Earle Metcalf, Patrick Harmon and Charles Force.

Type of Story... Drama. There are a number of good action pictures on the market right now. "Surging Seas," a William Steiner production, is another that offers a fine array of stunts and thrills that should make the offering a suitable number for the majority of exhibitors. Most any audience likes a stunt hero who gives them excitement in the way of daring leaps, miraculous escapes, rescue stunts and the like. Charles Hutchison, probably the best known for his work in serials, "Hurricane Hutch" in particular, keeps the story going at a fine pace once they let him in. He's a bit late in making his appearance due to the fact that the director uses his opening scenes to lay a basis for the plot, which, really of itself is not important, but through the efforts of Hutchison offers good entertainment of its kind. The star gets over some original bits that will have them on edges, such, for instance, as where he rolls under a moving train or where he makes a getaway by climbing the rigging of a ship. No place is too tight for Hutchison to get out of. He makes all sorts of unexpected breaks and evades pursuers. Eventually he proves himself innocent of the theft of bonds from his father, exposes his guilty brother and wins the girl.

Box Office Angle... First rate number for action lovers. You know whether or not this form of entertainment draws well with your patrons.

Exploitation... You had better play this up with a trailer giving them an idea of the stunts that Hutchison performs. They won't guess the nature of the picture from the title so you'll have to do some talking about it. Promise them plenty of action and recall the star as the hero of various serials, especially "Hurricane Hutch." Talk about the stunt where he rolls under the moving train. Use the names of others in the cast who may be known to your patrons.

Direction... James Chapin; adequate
Author... J. F. Natteford
Scenario... J. F. Natteford
Cameraman... Ernest Miller
Photography... All right
Locale... San Francisco
Length... 4,700 feet

"Second Youth"

Producer: Distinctive Pictures Distributor: Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole... GROSSLY OVERDONE AND EXAGGERATED COMEDY BUSINESS THAT'S FUNNY ONLY BECAUSE IT'S SO RIDICULOUS. ARRAY OF STAGE PLAYERS NOT FAMILIAR TO SCREEN FANS. VERY POOR DIRECTION.

Cast... Contains many names of prominent stage people, all capable performers, even though you would never guess it judging from their playing in this. Alfred Lunt overacts to the point of being painful and Jobyna Howland, as the man-crazy, boarding house mistress, misses out altogether. Others, well known of the stage, but not familiar to picture patrons, are Maragaret Dale, Walter Catlett, Herbert Corthell, Lynn Fontaine, Lumsden Hare, Hugh Huntley. Mimi Palmeri and Faire Binney have done some picture work previously.

Type of Story... Comedy. Allan Updegraff's novel, from which "Second Youth" has been adapted, might possibly have served as a fairly amusing comedy number, but its material has been put to such poor use and its situations so incomprehensibly overdone, that it fails utterly as comedy. It amuses only when its situations becomes so ridiculous and are so overdone that the silliness of it is bound to bring laughs. The facial contortions that Alfred Lunt goes through are most exaggerated and why the director allowed him to go through such stretches of overacting is inconceivable. The great trouble with "Second Youth" is that there is not sufficient comedy business for feature purposes and the few good situations it does offer have been so grossly overdone and padded with so much detail that it is tedious and not a bit funny—it just fails to satisfy. Nor is the cast suitable. There is not a genuine comedian in the company. They are capable performers, no doubt, but they do not belong in this sort of picture and some do not belong in pictures at all.

Box Office Angle... Not very likely. It might be possible to improve this somewhat by liberal cutting and re-editing. In its present form it will hardly amuse even a non-critical crowd.

Exploitation... Does not warrant your playing it up to any extent. If you care to use it on a double feature program you may get by with it but at best your folks are more than apt to be bored with the long, over-detailed, unamusing sequences. There are no names to entice them in and with one or two possible exceptions they will probably never have heard any of them before. The title is misleading and certainly can't be boosted.

Direction... Albert Parker, extremely poor.

"There He Goes"—Mermaid—Educ'l New and Amusing Material

Type of production....2 reel comedy

Jack White has several new ideas in this Mermaid comedy which has its locale in the old South where hospitality and horse-racing are the principal occupations. The first half deals with the hospitality and the second half with the horse-racing. Both are funny. Some sort of a halloween party is taking place at the Colonel's home. His daughter, Dixie Belle, has invited a variety of guests among them being a golf fan. There are the usual comedy stunts but, in addition, there are a flock of hop toads which get into all sorts of mischief, jump in the punch, get covered with popcorn and raise a disturbance. They will amuse any audience. In the horse-racing sequences many stunts strange to the usual race have been incorporated. The hero's sulky is wrecked but the unconquerable man rides on the horse's tail. Should have no difficulty is pleasing any type audience.

"Going East"—Hamilton—Ed'c'l Here's One for Hamilton Fans

Type of production....2 reel comedy

Here's a Lloyd Hamilton comedy, which will probably be found very enjoyable entertainment where this comedian is a favorite. As a whole, however, it doesn't seem to quite measure up to the standard of some of the comedies he has previously made. The action takes place on a train. A couple of crooks are being taken to Sing Sing. They get loose and the sheriff deputizes Hamilton to help him. Hamilton is a sweet young thing who is afraid of his own shadow. This sequence is the most amusing in the picture. There is also the mother and her dozen children who puts several of them into Hamilton's berth, where they eat crackers and generally disturb the peace. They have used a skunk in the train to create an exciting finish.

"Out Bound"—Cameo—Educational Has Breath-Taking Thrills

Type of production....1 reel comedy

Where a fast-moving comedy with a thrill that will put their hearts in their mouths is desired, "Out Bound" will fit the bill. The thrill sequence is a wow! A doctor is sitting on a patient's bed, in front of an open window. A truck with a crane passes, the crane slides under the bed and lifts it with both men, who travel right along on it. The truck comes to a high cliff, the crane goes up in the air with the men on it. The driver endeavors to walk up the crane and save the patient. He falls, hangs over the cliff and the patient catches him by his suspenders. These stretch and stretch and finally break, but the suspense is very great and the excitement at high pitch. An excellent short reel of its type.

Pathe Review No. 17

Up to Usual Standard

Type of production...1 reel magazine

Views of Bear Creek Canyon, Colorado, with its huge boulders and crags opens this issue of Pathe Review. A glimpse of coal, both hard and soft, under the microscope gives an interesting insight as to its substance; a visit to the factory in Philadelphia where the American flag is manufactured is interesting and has a decided patriotic appeal. The Pathe color scenes which complete the issue are of the resort of Cinto, in Portugal.

"Get Busy"—Snub Pollard—Pathe Fairly Amusing

Type of production....2 reel comedy

This comedy didn't seem particularly hilarious to us, but Snub Pollard's following will no doubt find it entirely satisfactory. Paul Parrot is in the cast, and he and Snub try very hard to keep out of the clutches of a policeman, who tells them they must get to work or be arrested. They finally become life guards on the beach, where their one thought is to rescue someone or something from the waves and get rewarded. They throw a dog in and pull him out only to be told that he does not belong to the woman they thought he did. Snub finally does rescue a girl however, only to have her call the wrong man "her hero."

"Politics"—Universal Just Fair

Type of production....1 reel comedy

Slim Summerville and Bobby Dunn try very hard to make this one-reeler go over, but unless your folks are easily pleased they may not think this is so funny. The boys are rival candidates for the political office of police judge. Most of the action takes place at a political rally. The old stuff of greasing the floor and putting glue on chairs to embarrass the opponent has been included. The election vote is a tie so the candidates are fighting it out with boxing gloves when the police arrive and arrest them for disturbing the peace.

"Crossed Trails"

Independent Pictures Corp.—St. R'ts
As a Whole... RATHER WEAK MOSTLY ON ONE OR TWO IGHTS AND SOME FAST
IDING FOR ITS ACTION.
OOR IN COMPARISON WITH MANY GOOD ACTION
ICTURES AVAILABLE
IGHT NOW.

Star... Franklyn Farnum not called pon for any strenuous playing.
is is a mild hero role with the ception of an occasional scrap nd even then they don't get very xciting.

Cast... J. P. McGowan would have illed the Farnum role much more apably. McGowan outdoes Anna
Q. Nilsson when it comes to sacrificing looks. Miss Nilsson suffered male hair-cut for "Ponjola" but McGowan takes a clean shave to hide his identity in "Crossed Trails." Western types adequately played by Billie Bennett, Little Buck Black, Wm. Buehler, Mack
Wright and Alyce Mills, opposite Franklyn.

Type of Story... Western. Here's the old stage coach hold-up and the pretty heroine who turns against hero whom she had been admiring, when he tells her her father is one of the band which has been robbing the mails. Later on hero discovers that the real bandit is one called "Pepper" so out he goes after "Pepper," brings him in and when his prisoner is shot from ambush hero get a still further hunch, —"Pepper's" buddy must be the guilty one too. Out he goes again and brings in another man. Meanwhile the housekeeper in heroine's home discovers that "Pepper" is her long lost husband. Still later it is discovered that hero is her son. This is pretty poor material and there isn't enough good action to cover it up. Franklyn Farnum doesn't measure up to the expectations of hero worshippers and doesn't put enough fight into his performance. McGowan and Far-num might have switched roles to very good advantage.

Box Office Angle... Fair western.
Not enough action to satisfy the crowd that likes this type of picture. May do on a double feature bill.

Exploitation... Not much for you to talk about. Use the usual trailer and you might interest them by including in the trailer pictures of the various ones suspected of the mail robberies and ending off with the question: "Which one of these men robbed the stage coach. Take a guess, then come and see the picture and find out if you are right."
Franklyn Farnum hasn't done enough recently to warrant boosting his name. J. P. McGowan may be familiar to them.

Direction... J. P. McGowan; better actor than director.

"The Dancing Cheat"

Universal

As a Whole... SOMEWHAT BET-TER THAN THE USUAL
RAWLINSON VEHICLE.
CROOK REGENERATION
THEME THAT'S FAIRLY IM-PROBABLE BUT OFFERS PICTURE OF MEDIUM IN-TEREST.

Star... Seems to be ridding himself of inclination to overact and, while this particular role doesn't provide him with anything out of the ordinary in the way of acting opportunities, he makes the most of
of what comes his way.

Cast... Alice Lake really has the more important role. She handles it satisfactorily. Edwin Brady is usual villain type.

Type of Story... Drama. They never make Rawlinson's position clear in the story. All you are told is that he's an American, apparently of wealth, who appears to have no better reason for staying in the Mexican town than to admire the pretty cafe dancer and wish that he could reform her although he makes no outward appearance of trying to do so and even spurns her efforts to become acquainted. The main action subsequently revolves about the girl and her scheme to make the American pay for his attitude toward her, thus giving Alice Lake the more important part in the story.
Her plan offers some fair action and it holds the interest fairly well but there is a lack of suspense and force that fails to bring it above the average in entertainment value.
Nor is the development always logical. Instead of the girl avenging herself she falls in love with the American. Her worthless husband, originator of the revenge scheme, appears on the scene and takes her away. Later an enemy conveniently kills the husband leaving the way clear for the happiness of the American and the reformed dancer.

Box Office Angle... Average picture that you can use adequately on a regular daily change program. It should give medium satisfaction and where they like crook stories, should please.

Exploitation... The title may attract attention. Arrange with local victrola shops to display a small machine with one of those mechanical dancing dolls and a card announcing that "The Dancing Cheat" will be at you theater on a given date.
If it happens that the star is popular you might use his name promi-nently in your announcements and say that the story deals with hero's efforts to reform a cabaret girl, of her trick to win him and her intention to cast him aside and then her failure to complete her plan when she actually falls in love with him.

Direction... Irving Cummings; average.

"Between Friends"

Vitagraph

As a Whole... SOME NEW TWISTS IN THIS LATEST ETERNAL TRIANGLE PLOT AND THERE'S A SPLENDID PRODUCTION AND FINE CAST THAT ALSO HELP TO MAKE THE PICTURE INTER-ESTING.

Cast... Anna Q. Nilsson good in the role of wife who kills herself after her husband's best friend tires of her. Lou Tellegen suitable as the husband who lays an elaborate revenge once he learns his friend has betrayed him. Norman Kerry a regular Lew Cody he-vamp. Alice Calhoun sometimes pretty as the model and Stuart Holmes appropriate as the studio-hanger-on who pursues the pretty model with suggestions of breakfast, bankrolls, etc.

Type of Story... Domestic drama.
Robert W. Chambers' novel under the careful treatment of J. Stuart Blackton, offers what is likely to be a good box office picture in spite of the evidence of the hoary eternal triangle. There are some new angles and the unexpected does happen in "Between Friends."
Blackton tells the story smoothly, develops the plot with increased interest and provides an attractive production and a good cast to back.
There is just one exception to be taken to the director's efforts and that is his prolonged climax. He takes far too long to bring the story to a close. Once it is obvious that Tellegen is about to relent and forego his plan of revenge against his best friend, it is natural that the end is at hand. Instead of arriving at it quickly and bringing about the expected conclusion, he drags it out. This can readily be remedied, especially by eliminating the long series of close-ups of Tellegen sending a mental message to his friend in which he prevents the latter from self-destruction and the contrasting long close-ups of the friend receiving the message.

Box Office Angle... Should be a good attraction for majority of exhibitors. Enough for you to talk about and will undoubtedly satisfy most audiences.

Exploitation... You can talk about the cast, the story, the author and the production. Use the names of Lou Tellegen, Norman Kerry,
Anna Q. Nilsson, Alice Calhoun and Stuart Holmes. Tell them
Robert W. Chambers is the author and that his story is an eternal triangle with some new angles and that J. Stuart Blackton has provided a splendid production. Stills will attract attention.

Direction... J. Stuart Blackton; generally very good.

Producer: Inspiration Pictures

As a Whole... VERY SINCERE EFFORT TO PRESENT A PHASE OF LIFE NOT OFTEN TOUCHED UPON NOR TREATED. EXCELLENT HU-MAN INTEREST BUT DO PEOPLE WANT THE UN-HAPPY SIDE OF LIFE EVEN WITH THE SPLENDID MOR-AL THAT THIS STORY HOLDS?

Star... Probably has one of his best acting roles and handles it capably.
Gives an interesting performance and one that is not easy to do.

Cast... May McAvoy sacrifices beauty during most of her performance to play the ugly duckling who is the means of bringing sunshine into the crippled hero's life. Once again the question; do folks want to see a pretty girl like May Mc-Avoy made up to appear homely?
Others not important but Florence
Short manages to make herself conspicuous by flaunting herself all over the set in which she appears, by way of putting over the idea that she's "mannish."

Type of Story... Dramatic romance.
That love is blind is certainly definitely established in Richard Barthlemess' latest picture. And to give it the credit due, the picture is a charming film play, very splendently acted and beautifully done, and with a story that, while it may not appeal to the average picture patron, is decidedly different. It touches on a subject more or less sordid and not a wholly pleasant theme but it is rich in human interest and heart interest which should make up considerably for the unhappy atmosphere. John Robertson has handled it splendidly but it is another question whether or not his treatment is not over the heads of most folks. It probably fits the so called "high brow" crowd better. The deformed war veteran and his homely little bride see only beauty in each other and thereby find the happiness they thought they had missed.

Box Office Angle... A class picture.
Will not suit the masses. Richard Barthlemess, May McAvoy John
Robertson, Josephine Lovett, the Cameraman, and all the others contribute to a worth while picture but problematical as to the exhibitor's purse.

Exploitation... Of course you can count on the star's name as a drawing card. Whether or not his admirers who liked him in "Tolable David," etc. will enjoy him in such material as this, is another matter.
You had better see this one yourself to judge it properly.

Direction... John S. Robertson; effective but picture runs too long.

In The Courts

The American City Bureau Film Service has filed a mandamus suit in the Supreme Court against Comptroller Craig to compel him to pay a bill of $5,921 for exhibiting four reels entitled "Standing Room Only" in 476 picture theaters in Greater New York, at the request of the Transit Commission. The films were ordered in connection with the effort of the commission to show crowded conditions in the subway and on the elevated railroads, but the city has refused to pay the bill.

A default judgment for $980 has been filed in the Supreme Court against the Mastodon Films in a suit of Dorothy de Jagers to recover that sum under an agreement to pay her $150 a reel for editing and titling the film, "Average Woman," based on a scenario written by the plaintiff. The plaintiff was unable to serve the papers personally on Charles C. Burr, president of the Mastodon Films, and got a court order to serve them by publication.

"After the Ball" Gifts, Cincinnati

POST—The story is a good one. Spectacular dramatic moments fill the plot, which mainly concerns the life of a brother and sister, the son and daughter of a millionaire.

"April Showers"—Preferred Fay's, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Fight fans will appreciate an enthusiasm over this, while the average person will enjoy the romantic love story which is intertwined with the more sensational incidents.

"Ashes of Vengeance"—1st Nat'l Grand Central, Capitol, Lyric, St. Louis

LOBE-DEMOCRAT—It ranks with the best productions ever sponsored by Norma Tange, which is saying a great deal.
POST-DISPATCH—It is a play of emotion rather than action and it gives Miss Vining a good opportunity for her talents.
STAR—It is only occasionally that a photoplay is brought forth that really excels. Such, however, is "Ashes of Vengeance."
TIMES—"Ashes of Vengeance," a Norma Tange production, *** ranks among the best pictures of the year.

"Big Brother"—F. P.-L. Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—It is not often a power-sermon comes in the guise of popular entertainment, but that is just how it is presented at the Capitol this week ***

"Bluff"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending April 12)
EXAMINER—Unfortunately after giving us Ayres what promised to be such a real opportunity they promptly turn the story out into a sort of illustrated argument.
HERALD—Clever continuity and equally good direction is in a measure responsible for neatness and dispatch with which this old fashioned plot, *** is carried out in a good and logical ending.
ILLUSTRATED NEWS—It is somewhat surprising to find that Mr. Sam Wood's photoplay, "Bluff," is neither pretentious nor fish, and although it does not merit unusual attention, it can immediately be regarded as using.
RECORD—"Bluff" takes its place in the Pluck and Luck series that the movies have been carrying on from the point where the less elaborate paper back novel series left off.
TIMES—The story is ingenious and diting, if not inspired. But the work of Miss Ayers and Mr. Moreno is very fine indeed.

"A Boy of Flanders"—Metro Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Jackie Coogan in "The Boy of Flanders," one of the most appealing pictures this greatest of all juvenile stars has ever made, ***

"Boy of Mine"—1st Nat'l Karlton, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Though full of comedy, this picture is probably more serious in intention than any of the other screen successes of this year's life by the same author.
NORTH AMERICAN—That elusive trait of whimsical understanding and keen sympathy which marks Booth Tarkington's series of adolescence has been felicitously captured and made eloquent on the screen in "Boy of Mine." ***
PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"Boy of Mine" is the entertaining picture of juvenile life ***

"The Breaking Point"—F. P.-L. Columbia, Washington

HERALD—Love, mystery and melodrama have been wonderfully blended in Herbert Brenon's new Paramount production, "The Breaking Point," ***

STAR—Romance, mystery and the strange adventures of a wealthy clubman in New York provide the elements around which is developed from the story a picturization not only entertaining, but commanding in its appeal.

TIMES—A brilliant cast and competent direction have restored to the story its original vitality and power.

"The Dawn of A Tomorrow" F. P.-L.

McVicker's, Chicago

AMERICAN—Such stories no doubt have a "draw," *** And this one is a rather good one of its type.
London tenement atmosphere is well conveyed. Fog scenes, particularly, will catch your eye.

HERALD AND EXAMINER—The picture oozes with atmosphere, from the dirty children and lame beggars to the long-neck curate of the mission and the London policemen, ***

JOURNAL—As a relief from the frisky-flapper stories which fill our programmes, there comes "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" to McVickers, sweet, uplifting, chaste and rosy.

Palace, Washington

HERALD—Jacqueline Logan, *** brings what is easily her greatest characterization to the screen ***

STAR—"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is melodramatic, interspersed, however, with threads of comedy, philosophy, tragedy and pathos.

TIMES—"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is surely a skeleton, there is no fleshy padding, no graceful curvature of figure—bone, just bone.

"Desire"—Metro Clune Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending April 12)
EXAMINER—*** offers you a lot of genuine screen entertainment. The cast is one of the most imposing that's been assembled in any recent picture. ***
HERALD—If you like something different in the films, something that has in its basic story a real idea, a real plot, you will worship the film "Desire," ***
ILLUSTRATED NEWS—*** if it is to be at all convincing it must be made interesting and that is what "Desire" is not. It is so melodramatic that it is funny; ***
TIMES—It is warmly human throughout, its story is absorbing if naive at moments, it is very finely acted *** and it has moments that are truly great.

"The Drivin' Fool"—Hodkinson Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—On the whole, however, the story material is rather too thin to hold the attention of the spectator throughout so many thousand feet of film.

HERALD—As for acting—well, Wally Van is a fairly good speed driver, he is not much of a comedian, and, in the serious parts, he is a little ridiculous.

JOURNAL AND POST EXPRESS—*** "The Drivin' Fool" is rather weak as a feature.

TIMES-UNION—"The Drivin' Fool" is a light but cleverly constructed film play. There is nothing new in plot or in development, but there is constant action, amusing incidents, suspense, and a well worked out climax.

"The Enchanted Cottage"—1st Nat'l The Chicago, Chicago

HERALD AND EXAMINER—My advice is just this—don't miss "The Enchanted Cottage." Now you—or rather, I—can't say that about many films.

POST—The picture is one of the most enchanting fantasies you have ever beheld. It is a story which you will tuck away in the corner of your heart and keep forever.

State, Los Angeles (Week ending April 12)

EXAMINER—As delicate as the touch of Queen Mab's wand, as English as crumpets, or monocles, or gaiters, or broad "A's," is "The Enchanted Cottage." ***

HERALD—If you are a disciple at the shrine of Difference "The Enchanted Cottage," *** should stand forth as a special diety.

ILLUSTRATED NEWS—In this season of unusual photoplays, "The Enchanted Cottage" may rightly be considered the most unusual; ***

RECORD—"The Enchanted Cottage" is a fine thing to see on the screen. I only hope the Loew's State management and other exhibitors who show it can draw to their theaters people who can understand and appreciate such a picture, and thus justify Inspiration's production of it.

TIMES—For this picture summons certain charming illusions out of the nowhere into the yes, and endows the screen with a new sort of romance.

"Excitement"—Universal Rialto, Washington

HERALD—"Excitement" is a high-g geared farce-comedy in which the star assumes the role of a girl who lived and thrived on excitement and thrills.

STAR—A notable addition to the few clever motion picture farces is at the Rialto this week, in the Universal photoplay, "Excitement."

TIMES—*** "Excitement" is well named. Laura La Plante, as Nila Lyons, sees that there is plenty of it, well seasoned with fun.

"The Eternal Three"—Gold-Cosmop. New, Baltimore

AMERICAN—If you enjoy these husband-wife-lover film-plays, you'll enjoy Mr. Neilan's latest, for, in spite of its theme it is well done and sufficiently diverting.

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors Broadway Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—"The Extra Girl" is an original story of comedy and thrills from the pen of Mack Sennett and tells a story that enables Miss Normand to bring all her winning ways and clever acting ability into full play before the camera.

"The Fighting Coward"—F. P.-L. Garrick, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE (MORNING)—Not alone is the comedy excellent, but the production displays good direction, background and photography. The locations are exceptionally interesting.

TRIBUNE (EVENING)—Same.
Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—If you are fond of satire, don't miss *** "The Fighting Coward," ***

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L. Park and Mall, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—The old hokum bucket is carried to the well a good many times in "Flaming Barriers." ***

"Flaming Gold"—1st Nat'l Metropolitan, Washington

HERALD—The picture reaches a hair-raising climax when an oil well is set ablaze by a flash of lightning during a cloudburst and the high water breaks down the dam and the country is flooded with a deluge ***

STAR—*** tangles with real adventure, spiced with authentic twentieth-century romance and flavored with homely humor that is entertaining ***

TIMES—All the thrill and romance that could be packed into the bringing of a gusher with its consequent change from poverty to riches for a poor prairie nester and his family is in this picture.

"Gentle Julia"—Fox Fox, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Clean fun and lots of it, mingled with real romance, mark the production *** of "Gentle Julia," from one of Booth Tarkington's stories ***

NORTH AMERICAN—Many humorous touches are added to the picture by Florence Atwater, a niece of Julia's, a lively youngster as full of deviltry as Peck's bad boy. This role is very naturally acted by Mary Arthur.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The picture follows the famous novel by Booth Tarkington very closely and is quite interesting in that it shows clearly the difference between real love and just plain "mashing" of the man from the "big city."

"George Washington, Jr."—Warners' Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—It has everything a good picture ought not to have, including Master Barry, ***

This new one is a farce, comedy, with heavy accent on the farce, but accent it as strongly as I could, there were few laughs—and if you only knew how easily I am amused!

Strand, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—It's a pretty ticklish proposition—finding the right sort of story for a boy of Wesley's unhandsome years. And, while the kid is not just the Cohan type, both star and story might have fared a heap sight worse. The result proves at least mildly entertaining.

SENTINEL (MORNING)—Young Barry is not the type of hero the play was written about, but he does nicely and is assisted by a cast including Gertrude Olmstead, Leon Barry, Charles Conklin and Otis Harlan.

NEWS—George M. Cohan's vehicle has given Barry one of the finest chances he has had since he reached the lanky stage.

"The Heritage of the Desert" F. P.-L.

Rialto, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—If all western pictures were as good as Paramount's "The Heritage of the Desert," *** which is based on Zane Grey's novel, *** the western type of picture would never lose its popularity.

"His Darker Self"—Hodkinson
Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—"His Darker Self" is one of those rare comedies that are not only played by a good comedian, but which have in their plots real comedy situations.

STAR—Whoever directed it seems to have been unable to make up his mind to what he was trying to do.

TIMES—From those who like to go to the movies to laugh away their worries, "His Darker Self," a Ham Hamilton feature will find a hearty response.

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster"—Hod.
Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Over-emphasis is a pitfall that has snared many an actor and spoiled many an attempt to portray rural life on the screen. * * * Something of the sort happens here, * * *

"Icebound"—F. P.-L.
Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The presentation is thorough in every respect and the acting of the two principal roles exceptionally fine.

ENQUIRER—Given a play like "Icebound," a director like William deMille and two featured players like Lois Wilson and Richard Dix, what but a film masterpiece could result?

POST—"Icebound" is different. Its story is a departure from the ordinary themes, and it is presented with simple scenes and dialogue.

TIMES-STAR—"Icebound," dependent for its dramatic effect solely on character conflict and atmosphere, is the sort of picture material with which William DeMille is at his best.

Alhambra, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—For Icebound marks all who are connected with it as the foremost exponents of repressed emotions on the celluloid.

SENTINEL (MORNING)—One of the best studies in small town life ever offered is to be found in "Icebound," * * *

Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending April 12)

BULLETIN—"Icebound" is a romance of the new variety and William De Mille the producer, has given some very interesting type interpretations of "Down East" folks.

CALL AND POST—If anything, the work has gained in its transition to the screen and it stands as entertainment of the highest order.

CHRONICLE—One might call it super-fine, for De Mille has refused to fall for the usual movie hokum and has done a straight, artistic piece of work.

EXAMINER—In its film version, De Mille has succeeded in bringing a good story, filled with interesting type studies to the screen.

HERALD—William De Mille, who produced it, has done a beautiful piece of work with this story. There is not one false note in it, even down to the smallest detail absolute sincerity characterizes the picture.

"The Land of Whispering Hope" Tivoli, San Francisco

BULLETIN—With Borneo for its background, Burr Nickle has created for the screen what might be termed one of the very few great adventure pictures. * * *

CALL AND POST—"The Land of Whispering Hope," * * * gives us something that is as new and different as it is amazing and authentic.

CHRONICLE—If you would see the wild man of Borneo in his native haunts, together with his wives, aunts, uncles, cousins, sons, daughters and nephews, go to see "The Land of Whispering Hope."

EXAMINER—It is an extraordinary picture, full of interest for those who like to see the primitive folk in their native haunts and little raiment.

"The Moral Sinner"—F. P.-L.
Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—While it is another story of Paris with its wicked cafes and underworld inhabitants, it furnishes the best screen material of the year for the photoplay dramas that have the famous French underworld for their locale.

POST-DISPATCH—Miss Dalton's acting is subdued throughout but through gesture and expression, she conveys the impressions of one who has undergone a deep moral change.

STAR—It is a program picture, neither better nor worse than dozens of others.

TIMES—In "The Moral Sinner," at the Missouri, Dorothy Dalton is not shown at her best. But it seems like the role of Leah Kleschna could have been filled as well by almost anyone else.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L.
Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—"The Next Corner," well merits the classification of "a fine film." The most searching analysis discloses but one weakness, and that is of plot, * * *

INQUIRER—Why the tedious picture at the Stanley this week should be named "The Next Corner" is probably a question that not even the writer of the scenario could answer.

NORTH AMERICAN—It ought to have considerable appeal here, since it has a full-sized moral attached, * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"The Next Corner" does not display any great deal of originality, for it is based upon the threadbare triangle theme.

"The Rendezvous"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—The story of "The Rendezvous" is of no importance, since it is almost ridiculous. Lucilee Rickson, however, is excellent as the heroine, and Conrad Nagel is a substantial American hero.

STAR—Sidney Chaplin's merry-making is the joy of the somber part yMarshall Neilan has concocted in his Russian drama, "The Rendezvous," * * *

New Lyric, Minneapolis

STAR—To say that a Marshall Neilan production would ordinarily be sufficient, but this time the famous director must share honors with his cast, for the playing of Conrad Nagel, Lucilee Rickson, Sydney Chaplin, Richard Travers and Elmo Lincoln is exceptionally good.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L.
Stanton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—"The Shadows of Paris," the film play, produced under the more striking title, "The Shadows of Paris," * * * is brought forth as one of the cinema successes of the season.

INQUIRER—"The Shadows of Paris" it has a definite story to tell instead of the vague meanderings of the usual scenario.

NORTH AMERICAN—An unusually fine cast and splendid direction combine to make the "Shadows of Paris," which yesterday began a run at the Stanton, a picture of absorbing interest.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Pola Negri has at last come into her own in "Shadows of Paris." * * * Her admirers will be glad to hear that something worthy of her has at last been done.

"The Shepherd King"—Fox
Modern, Beacon, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Now the tribes of the Bostonians camp into their house of pleasant sights, which they do call the Modern or yet again the Beacon House. And when they had looked, loud was the voice of lamentation in their land.

Palace, Montreal

STAR—Moreover, there is in this film such a variety of incident, such a wealth of color and of conflicting emotions as cannot fail to satisfy even the most exacting of movie enthusiasts * * *

"Sherlock, Jr."—Metro
State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—But, in the main, the picture seems to rely on Mr. Keaton's wholly perfect and inimitable face. He never laughs; he never even smiles; but the on-looker realizes that beneath the composure of his features lies a true appreciation of the humor and the fun.

"Singer Jim McKee"—F. P.-L.
Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—"Singer Jim McKee," Will S. Hart's latest starring vehicle, will scarcely satisfy the thousands of Hart fans who go to see the erstwhile hero of the "open spaces" * * *

HERALD—"Singer Jim McKee" is a picture fraught with overdone emotion * * * Bill Hart acts well the part that seems hardly worth acting. Phyllis Haver overdoes things a bit and the rest of the cast suffices.

JOURNAL AND POST EXPRESS—These prove conclusively that the gods did not endow Mr. Hart with a sense of humor. * * * He has swallowed whole the hokum propagated by the dime novel and the early two reelers and never risen above it.

TIMES-UNION—As a picture, there is not much to be said for "Singer Jim McKee," but as a medium for keeping Bill on the screen and putting him through all his old paces * * * it scarcely could be bettered.

"A Society Scandal"—F. P.-L.
California, San Francisco

(Week ending April 12)

BULLETIN—In "A Society Scandal" there is more than the story. In a way it is a screen fashion show. Miss Swanson * * * wears a collection of the most startling gowns, hats and cloaks, * * *

CALL AND POST—"A Society Scandal" Miss Swanson combines in her characterization a rare blending of the best of her accomplishment. She is really more fascinating, more vivacious and even more dramatic than she has ever been in any one single production.

CHRONICLE—If any doubt lingered that Gloria Swanson has become an actress of first rank, her work in "A Society Scandal," * * * forever settles the matter that she can

EXAMINER—Miss Swanson's beautiful gowns do not in any way detract from the emotional power and fire she throws into the big scenes of the production. * * *

HERALD—It is a splendidly produced feature, with a role that fits the star excellently, and in which she does some very fine acting—to say nothing of her gorgeous assortment of gowns, * * *

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L.
State, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE (MORNING)—The picture is earnest, and although it is lightened by romance bringing about the regeneration of the lovers, there is no attempt at comedy. TRIBUNE (EVENING)—Same.

"The Temple of Venus"—Fox
Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending April 12)

BULLETIN—There are many spectacular scenes. The picture was made at Santa Cruz Island, and at times hundreds of bathing beauties are seen in the beach scenes.

CALL AND POST—It looks like all the bathing beauties in the world are on the screen at the Cameo this week, nymph, if you get what we mean.

"Temptation"—C. B. C.
World, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—It is founded on common sense and a theme that preaches "the more truth than poetry" theory.

"Torment"—1st Nat'l
Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—"Torment" is a dramatic film that savors somewhat of the usual detective-mystery story. The story undoubtedly will interest the average spectator because there is just enough suspense and mystery to hold the attention.

ENQUIRER—"Torment" dealing with the disappearance of the Russian crown jewels * * * That's what Maurice Tourneur has done, however, in "Torment," and so far as the critic was able to ascertain he seems to have done it well.

POST—Russian crown jewels and a Japanese earthquake lend a colorful background to "Torment," the detective melodrama * * *

TIMES-STAR—"Torment" everything considered, it provides excellent entertainment, containing just enough mystery to massage the intellect and just enough thrills to excite interest.

"Thy Name Is Woman"—Metro
Wisconsin, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—For the second time Barbara La Marr and Ramon Novarro are seen together in a passionately tragic story of consuming love in "Thy Name Is Woman," an excellent drama that is heavier fare than is usually ladled out on the celluloid.

NEWS—"You'll agree that it's one of the most beautiful pictures in some time.

"West of the Water Tower"—F. L.
Strand, Montreal

STAR—Either the passion of the director to "improve" upon the original story, or the anxiety of some censors * * * is responsible for the complete ruination of the thesis and significance of the novel in screen version.

"When A Man's A Man"—1st
State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Western melodrama, played in the customary vein, with the customary comedy antics from Arthur Hays Sulzberg as a "very" tenderfoot; pretty good entertainment. Pictorially beautiful.

PRESS—If you like western serenade, broncho busting, bulldogging steers, play, fist fights, and the like, you'll find plenty of it in "When A Man's A Man." But as to idea. You'll find little.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—"Wild Oranges" melodrama" is the verdict of the review of this paper regarding "Wild Oranges."

HERALD—All in all "Wild Oranges" strikes one as a very well done motion picture. It is well cast, well acted, a remarkably fine example of photography and it is one of the best fights that the writer has even seen on the screen.

JOURNAL AND POST EXPRESS—"Wild Oranges" bespeaks the skill of the director who by means of a decaying house, desolate surroundings, flapping shutters, a high wind and spiders has managed most successfully to create the eerie, unnatural atmosphere which the story calls for.

TIMES-UNION—"Wild Oranges" is stirring and thrilling in many of its moments; but it can't be denied, * * * that it is one of the most repulsive repellant plays that we have seen.

"Woman To Woman"—Selznick
Sun, Omaha

NEWS—Temperamental, artistic, at times vicious yet restrained, dainty Betty Compson runs the gamut of emotions in "Woman to Woman" * * *

WORLD-HERALD—Elaborately arranged, beautifully photographed and well acted by the star, Betty Compson, "Woman to Woman," * * * is an interesting production.

"Women Who Give"—Metro
Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—"Women Who Give" is smoother, because it has a more interesting story to tell, which includes the capture of swordfish, and finally because it saves its "big punch" for the climax—and the delivery a terrific wallop.

PRESS—There are interesting picture fishing schooners with their dorries of cod and sword fish. Also there are really successful scenes which show a schooner can toss in a gale.

TIMES—All in all, "Women Who Give" is one of the best pictures Cleveland has seen for some time.

"Why Men Leave Home"—1st
Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending April 12)

BULLETIN—It is not so much the story but the manner in which the screen version of the stage success, * * * is handled that makes the picture thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

CALL AND POST—"Why Men Leave Home" is fun and humor. And then, to interlard with the comedy, there are touches of pathos, interest, drama and pathos.

CHRONICLE—"Why Men Leave Home" is a very enterprising comedy picture with a serious undertone.

EXAMINER—"Why Men Leave Home" adapted from the Hopwood farce, is an entertaining from beginning to end, with a moral as the tag caption.

HERALD—The picture contains novel situations, but, unfortunately, the photography is somewhat poor.

Skillful cinematography exacts accurate reproduction—from highest light to deepest shadow the full scale of tones in the negative must be secured in the print.

SHOWMEN

By DANNY

Who are they? Where do they live? And how do they operate? For many of them, I wonder, do they follow the idea advanced by George Trendle of the Kunsky houses. And start showing big pictures beginning about July 10? One of the most important distributors of the business, has told Trendle that he can release as many of the big pictures as he wants them in any time he wants them in. There is no special preference to the Kunsky houses in this offer. Doubtless he will do this cheerfully for any other first run operator. The plan is hardly practicable in cases of other denomination.

Showing big pictures in July on a pre-release basis, is going to do a lot for the entire business. First it will keep people coming to the theater during the summer. This is most important. Everyone knows how business slumps off after audiences have seen five or six poor pictures in a row. And everyone in this business knows how late May, June and July have been used as the spot to get rid of the poorer type of picture.

When—and this is most important—distributors will not face the problem of trying to have a market absorb such a tremendous quantity of pictures for the coming season, beginning with Labor Day. There will only a limited number of first run pictures in the important cities; distributors want early play dates so they can follow through on sales to neighborhood houses and the second and third runs, and when play dates are pushed further and further back it means the capital involved in these productions is "frozen" when it could be liquid. Pre-release shows in July will mean a lot in curing this difficulty, and giving four to five millions of liquid capital for future productions.

But the biggest point of all is that instead of having your

London House

"The Capitol" Secured by Ben Blumenthal and Al Woods—Important for American Distributors

(By Cable to THE FILM DAILY)

London—It is understood that Ben Blumenthal and Al Woods have taken over the Capitol, the newest 2,500 seat house built in London, for 50 years, and will use it for extended runs for important pictures.

Ben Blumenthal admitted on Saturday that the cable was correct, and added: "The opening of this house should prove a Godsend for American producers and distributors. It is the only house in the active downtown section of London that seats 2,500 people, has a stage and will allow for the presentation of pictures in the manner and style which is known as a 'Broadway presentation.'"

"Mr. Woods has six theaters in Europe today and if the Capitol works out as we hope we may develop others of this type for other points abroad."

While Blumenthal refused to discuss the matter it is known that negotiations are on for the services of one of the best known managers in the business to take this house over.

Goldin to Europe

Sidney M. Goldin leaves for Europe on the Berengaria, Wednesday to direct the Yiddish Art Players starring Maurice Swartz, in several pictures.

Rosher Sailing

Combines and Why

H. B. Varner Tells of Their Development—Says Producers and Distributors Don't Follow Hays

The following communication has been received by this publication from Col. H. B. Varner, president of the M. P. T. O. of North Carolina:

"I have just read your issue of April 9th and I am not surprised at the alarm of the producers and distributors in the growth of booking circuits and buying combines. It is perfectly natural that such things would exist on account of the action of film boards of trade and their methods toward exhibitors especially in open towns. The distributor combines and their methods are responsible and nobody else.

Summer Schedule

George Trendle Will Carry On With Big Pictures—Pre-Release for Fall Season—Beginning July 10

One of the big operators in the business who is not deterred by the so-called summer slump is John Kunsky of Detroit. George W. Trendle, who manages the Kunsky properties, said Saturday that he was laying plans for running the biggest pictures scheduled for the Fall season beginning with July 10; just as he did last year, when the idea proved very successful.

"This policy," said Trendle "means that we have a period of about three weeks during which we cannot find the kind of pictures we would like. But that is all. In July we start showing the biggest pictures on the Fall schedules of the big companies as a pre-release, and we keep our patronage coming in fine shape. This can be done by any exhibitor with a first run house. The distributors, excepting those of independent producers, have ample product, and the only problem of course, is getting together on the price. Obviously we cannot pay as much during a summer season as in the Fall. But we can, and do, give the pictures a start, we hold up

May Work for Metro-Goldwyn—Mayer Moves Over to Goldwyn Plant Today

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Abe Lehr, for six years vice-president of Goldwyn Pictures in charge of production, will branch out as an independent producer, starting activities at once.

He states that a distributing contract with "a big organization" has been practically closed but he won't mention which one. It is understood, however, that the company is the new combination, Metro-Goldwyn.

Louis B. Mayer, the new production chief for Metro-Goldwyn, moves over to the Goldwyn studio today to assume charge.

No Foreign Changes

Planned Now By Metro-Goldwyn—Each Has Effective British Distribution

There is naturally much interest as to what—if anything—will occur in the foreign field in view of the Goldwyn merger with Metro. It can be stated authoritatively that for the present no changes will occur, and at the moment none are contemplated.

In Canada both Metro and Goldwyn have been releasing through Regal Films and no change is necessary there, except for routine and office management. In Great Britain, which represents 50 per cent of the foreign market both organizations are very strong. Metro releases through Jury's Imperial Pictures, of which Sir William Jury is the head. Metro has been very satisfied with the results obtained. On the other hand Goldwyn has its own organization in London headed by George Smith and the record established by this organization has also been very satisfactory.

Those interested in foreign fields are watching the developments with much concern.

Survey Shows Hazards Are Being Eliminated—Producers More Careful With Finances

Internal changes in the industry are tending to lift it out of the class of hazardous speculation and transforming it into a more secure investment field, according to a Wall Street Journal survey. The publication points out that the biggest stabilizer is the fact that 95%, or some $2,137,500,000 invested, is controlled by a dozen establishments. The article, the third in a series of four, then says:

Asks Protection of French Films

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Paris—The French industry is in peril, declared Pierre Taittinger, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, in an interview in "La Liberte," in which he urged the adoption of high protective tariff against foreign pictures. Claiming the motion picture as a French invention, and declaring that from an artistic point of view French productions far surpassed "cheap foreign pictures," Taittinger nevertheless admitted that "French motion picture theaters are practically becoming an American colony within the country."

Combines and Why

"I had great hopes of seeing the film industry put on a legitimate basis like other lines of business, under the leadership of Hon. Will H. Hays, who is big and broadminded and I think he has done his best to improve conditions, and he has improved a great many things in the industry, and would revolutionize this business for the common good of everybody if the people who employ him would only follow his advice.

"My observation is that the majority of the distributors of this country are only following Mr. Hays' advice purely from a short-sided, money standpoint. They are not following his advice in the broader, more far sighted policies that he advocates. The slogan of 'confidence and cooperation' has not been carried very far, I am sorry to say, and result is, today there is more bad feeling between exhibitors and distributors than in anytime during the past ten years.

"I am sorry to say that the exhibitors are not organized with few exceptions, in their respective states, and so far as a National organization is concerned, we haven't any worthy of the name, with the exception of that group of exhibitors who are cooperating with Mr. Hays for the repeal of the admission tax.

"On the other hand the distributors are thoroughly organized, and know what they want and go after it in a more intelligent manner than they ever have been before, and knowing their power under our so-called-uniform contract, and knowing the weakness of exhibitor organizations, the average small exhibitor has been catching the devil for more than a year.

"In many instances, the exchange members of the boards of arbitration with the backing of strong organized film boards, have been running rough-shod over the small exhibitor. I have in mind a recent case where the Board of Arbitration in Charlotte, in my absence, tried an exhibitor without any authority whatever in his absence, and did him a great injustice. The matter was I could get relief, and I appealed to the exchangeman who was prosecuting the exhibitor, I appealed to the Charlotte Film Board to give the exhibitor a rehearing, but they did not listen. They insisted on squeezing this man for every drop of blood and every pound of flesh. Then I felt sure that I could get relief, and I appealed to the Hays organization, and up to this good hour, I could get relief, and I appealed to the agent from either New York or Charlotte. In the meantime, we discovered that the exhibitor had not signed a uniform contract and the exchangeman failed to get his flesh or blood.

"Such conditions as this and other methods that are being used, are exactly the things that are producing booking agencies and buying combines.

"I agree with you, absolutely, that the exhibitor has no business whatsoever producing or distributing films. He should stay in his place and operate his theater. I am also just as strongly convinced that the producer and distributor should only produce and distribute and should stay out of the theater business. And that enough producers and distributors should get together and force, if possible, the industry to reform itself and do business on the same manner that any other business conducted—'Confidence and Cooperation' "I am still of the opinion that if the industry can be reformed and be made to have itself, that Hon. Will H. Hays do it, and while I have the greatest faith in Mr. Hays, I sometimes doubt his ability to do the things that I think he is striving to do.

"Personally, I don't need any booking bines. I can fight my own battles, but methods that are now being used are cut out, we are going to see exhibitors coming together in some fashion or other, have got to do it in order to protect own individual business. I am in of getting together with producers around and settling these matters. If we can't control them in that way, I favor of booking combines. In other words the only way to fight the devil is to him with fire and water, and if the producers and distributors won't be fair, then exhibitors will be compelled to fight in same manner that the film boards have fighting.

"Pardon me for writing in length, but editorial was so one-sided that I could resist expressing myself" around in the dark as was done in the past. They spend lavishly, but for larger returns. Some firms gauge public taste for a 100% success as precisely as a successful magazine editor knows a sure ringer short story.

"Hit-and-miss producers are falling by the wayside. The successful producers have the probabilities and even the purely artistic side of their business diagramed and weighed as elaborately as an insurance company.

"The financial comptrollers of several of the largest firms let Dow, Jones & Co. in behind the scenes showing how they make their budget. The most doubtful factor in the business would seem to be the future success of a film. The returns from new pictures do not come in for three years.

"Two companies interviewed were Famous Players-Lasky, whose 1923 report shows inventory $15,383,482 in negatives; rights to plays, and total assets of $47,943,454; and the First National with 26 franchise holders with motion picture theaters worth $150,000,000.

Lasky Charts Everything

"Famous Players-Lasky stands out conspicuously in the field for scientific management. Their financial comptroller was formerly cashier of the National Bank of Commerce. He has several young New York University statisticians associated with him. Dozens of charts and statistical curves were shown analyzing past business and determining cycles in that to come. In tabular form they show costs, and past and future returns of all their films. Out of the last 164 films, but nine failed to pay expenses, some by but a small margin. Four of these were films with Fatty Arbuckle. Another was a film with an English cast produced abroad to show the English that no attempt was being made to crowd out their home talent. The American public found the star too cold and rejected the picture. Two of the remaining were below the dead line by only a small margin.

"An interesting chart was what seemed to be a parallel range of mountains showing in different colors returns from each picture over the range of its life. This chart demonstrated that, irrespective of the picture, the span of its life and the high and low points of returns on it follow much the same cycle. The film barometer shows that film rentals ordinarily bring in returns over 3½ years. In three months 50% of the cash returns come in. The residual value of the film from long experience is marked down 88% in a year and 100% in two years.

"Before a picture leaves the studio the producer usually can tell whether it will be a success or a partial one. In the first few weeks of its run in New York total earnings can be gauged with surprising accuracy. It is only the rare degree of failure or success, like 'The Covered Wagon', which cannot be foreseen. This picture has already paid costs of production, brought in gross receipts of some $9,000,000, and is expected to make $3,000,000 clear profits. A picture should bring in three times its cost of production. Distribution takes an added 20-25% of cost.

Every phase of motion-picture production has been charted. There are charts showing returns from each film in terms of the stars in it, those showing earnings of pictures by producers, by total costs, by amount of publicity, by sections of the country and in foreign returns.

"Comptrollers of Famous Players, of First National and several others declare that they now make rigid budgets, and more important still keep to them. When a scenario is completed, items of cost are not left to the fertile fantasy of the producer and to chance as in the past, but are fought over item by item with the business department. When a producer threatens to overdraw, a business conference is held to determine on cutting certain scenes or, if some improvement has been made, of providing for a new appropriation. Famous Players boast that in their 60 pictures under way this year they are still well on the sunny side of their budget—an achievement unique in movie history.

Stars' Market Value

"The outsider looking into motion picture production costs is startled by the enormous sums spent on stars and on staging. Stars will continue to get salaries running as high as $10,000 a week and more producers say because the public demand them and are willing to pay for them. The presence of this or that star is at once reflected at the box office. Appearing separately, pictures of stars show steady high averages. With two stars in one film their box office returns were double what they would have been for either one of them alone. It is the public and not the producer, therefore, which in last analysis pays the star.

"The last few years the public has demanded grandiose palatial sets, vast caravans, armies, and mobs of thousands. Producers admit that this has been overdone and turn with relief from the super-film to the more intimate one. It is not overlooked, however, that the world wide success is still linked with colossal presentation such as the Covered Wagon, The Ten Commandments and the like.

No monopoly in raw stock. That's just what the Federal Trade Commission says. In its findings against the Allied Laboratories, Eastman and Brulatur. And then tells Eastman to dispose of the three big lab's about New York. Only fair to—in behalf of Eastman—at in February, 1923, he sent a letter to the members of Allied, and told them that the Kodak Company did not wish them to feel "obligated in any way to be in your laboratories only American made film."

But while the members of Allied may not have been "obligated" they certainly didn't break their necks to foreign raw stock. For, according to the report during the first eight months of 1921, foreign raw stock was sold to Allied members to the extent of over 67,500,000 feet. And from September 14, 1921, to date, neither Gavaert, Pathe or Agfa have sold enough raw stock—if any—members of the Allied—to talk out.

If these lab's used no foreign raw stock they must have used some other kind. Self-evident, isn't it. Perhaps they used Powers, or Bay State, or something else. Possibly they used Eastman stock. At all events 67 million feet of raw stock means something in dollars and cents. And the decision opens the door again—presuming the lab men want to use foreign raw stock.

Film men posted as to the situation talk like this: "Eastman isn't cozy. He doesn't want to control the market and get in hot water constantly with the Federal Government. If the foreign makers of raw stock get a certain amount the Kodak company doesn't become alarmed. Because it still does a tremendous business. Beyond that point, however, Eastman's men step in."

This is sure: the one end of the picture business that never loses is the raw stock maker. You may have a lot of it galore. But when you buy raw

And Perhaps More—Home Office Group Off for Annual Meeting at New Orleans

Definite plans for 1924-1925 will be formulated by Associated First National at the annual meeting of the 26 franchise holders which opens at New Orleans on Wednesday.

At five o'clock yesterday, the following executives left for the South where, during the life of the sessions, they, and others from different parts of the country, will be the guests of Saenger Amusement: H. O. Schwalbe, Robert Lieber, E. A. Eschmann, Herman Brunner, Marc Kellogg, E. Bruce Johnson, C. S. Pinkerton, Moe Mark, Nathan Gordon, John H. Kunsky, George Trendle and Abe Fabian. At Philadelphia, John McGuirk and Abe Sablatsky of the Stanley Co. joined the group and at Washington, Harry M. Crandall.

The organization will have a feature release weekly for next season and it is quite likely there may be more. The meetings will run from Wednesday through to Saturday. The New York delegation expects to start for home immediately after the final meeting.

Garrett Back in London

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Sydney Garrett has returned from New York.

Britain Inactive

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—There is considerable inactivity in British production at this time.

The Bromheads have three directors at work: George Pearson, Graham Cutts and George Cooper. The Stoll plant is quite busy. Aside from these two companies little is happening. Single units are making a picture here and there, but there is no attempt to turn out a program on their part. Ideal has closed its studio and Hepworth is practically shut. "The Ten Commandments" is doing a record business. "Secrets" and "Anna Christie" both proved very disappointing at the Palace theater.

Eastman To Fight

Will Oppose Federal Trade Decision—Intends Appealing to Circuit Court

The Eastman Kodak Co. announced yesterday at Rochester that it will oppose the order of monopoly filed against it and others, by the Federal Trade Commission and that it will apply to the Circuit Court of Appeals for a revue of the Commission's findings. George Blair, speaking for the company, said:

"The order does not affect the manufacture of raw film, but simply the printing of film from original negatives."

Investigation launched by the Federal Trade Commission in February 1922, terminated on Sunday with the issuance of an order citing the Eastman Kodak Co., the Allied Film Laboratories Ass'n, Inc., and Jules E. Brulatour, a monopoly in restraint of trade.

The Commission gives Eastman 120 days in which to submit a brief, indicating to what extent it has carried out the Government order to break up those practices considered monopolistic.

One of the important decisions pronounced in the findings makes it compulsory for Eastman to dispose of the Paragon, San Jacq and G. M. laboratories to parties not identified with any Eastman enterprises. The opinion was voiced yesterday that Eastman might experience some difficulty in doing this, in view of the present tendency in the laboratory field to combine plants for the purpose of reducing overhead.

Migrating Eastward

Decided Tendency Toward Production Here, Wall St. Journal States—Interesting Data

The final article of the Wall Street Journal dealing with motion pictures concerns itself with the trend in future production. The publication states that the tendency is decidedly Eastward and explains that New York banks have been "cold" to films produced on the other side of the Rockies.

Eastman To Fight

The agreement between Eastman and Allied under which members of the association were to use American-made stock is ordered dissolved. It will be recalled that on Sept. 9, 1921, Eastman and members of Allied entered upon agreement which prohibited the use of other than American raw stock. For this consideration on the part of the laboratories, Eastman agreed not to operate its three plants, the capacity of which is sufficient to accommodate the needs of practically the entire Eastern market.

However, Eastman made the point that the plants would be kept in readiness at all times, in the event that Allied members failed to keep their agreement. It is understood that Eastman maintained working forces in all three "labs" keeping the equipment up-to-date, but that in recent months, the plants have been permitted to deteriorate. On Feb. 28, 1923, Eastman sent an unsolicited letter to Allied members, advising them that stipulations of the 1921 contract were no longer obligatory. The Commission in its report declares that Eastman changed its attitude while the Government investigators were at work but before the complaint was formally issued.

Under the law the findings will be turned over to a Federal Court which will then issue the order. Eastman Kodak can appeal the decision. A telegram requesting the attitude of the company was dispatched to the Eastman Company yesterday, but at press time no response had been received.

Joseph H. San of San and Van Voorhis, attorney for Allied, declared yesterday that it was the intention of that body to obey at all times whatever regulatory measures the Government decided upon.

The reaction in the trade was one in favor of the importers of foreign raw stock. The ruling makes it illegal for any American laboratory to discriminate against imported stock and, in effect, throws the market wide open.

Jack Cosman, American representative for Agfa of Germany said:

"I have been waging this fight quietly for about two years. It is a source of gratification to me that the Government, by its decision has recognized the rights of foreign importers in this market."

Clem's Ocean Trip

The funny way the time runs here twenty-four o'clock gets Mrs. Denker puzzled but not me. I am wearing two watches and look at them both and then just add them up. I asked the porter where we could see life and he said go to Pair-ports which we did but we didn't have no dress-suits on so we couldn't get in. I got it fixed for tonight though for I made an affidavit before the American Express Company that I have a dress-suit but my trunks hadn't arrived. If this affidavit don't get us in I'm going to stick to the trousers which ain't so terrible but they are full of French mammas who give you nice dirty looks as you go by.

The money's changed again and they give me with a pocket full of Eye-lish liars and they're no good, so I guess I will give them to my wife tomorrow. Maybe she can pass 'em. I got some great ideas for exhibits when I get back. One place I passed through I see all the men sitting on a fence watching the women following so I'm thinking now of buying a farm. Especially as Mrs. Denker is taking on weight.

The ticket sellers at the movies are smart. When you go to buy a ticket they look at you and if you are an American they set you back twice as much as you were a foreign man. So here's my idea. The ticket buyers should know everyone in the towns then when anyone buys a ticket, if he's a stranger charge him double. Of course you got to be careful in case a person comes up who is moved to your town. If you get to be perfect make a tie-up with the station agent and he can tip you how many people got off the train each time one gets in.

There's an old guy in front of the hotel here who says if I give him a few franks he'll show me around after Mrs. Denker gets to sleep tomorrow but its just my luck she won't be sleepy then or the guy won't show up.

The concierge here tells me Danny is this old guy every night he was here last year. Hot dog? Look for the hot letter tomorrow if you think it is too frank (like money here) don't publish it but I'll get it for me when I get back so I remember what to tell you I saw. Ask Doc. Gianinni if he's got a check here. It looks like I'm going to need it if this old guy is on the list.

Best Ever,
CLEM.

GREENE

Migrating Eastward

"The tide of motion picture production," says the Wall Street Journal, "which until now has moved westward for California sunshine has been checked by 'good-as-sunlight' improvements in artificial lighting. The motion picture business of the next decade will be mostly within sight of the tower of the Woolworth building, except for tropical sets which can be made somewhere near Miami, Fla., 42 hours from Broadway."

"Money spent in the motion picture production has gone mostly to California, to the building of enormous studios and cities such as that of Hollywood with its permanent 15,000 colony. But managements continued to keep their main offices in New York. It is here that films receive the stamp of approval or fail. Forty per cent. of their money is invested on this side of the Alleghenies. Off in California companies have huge traveling expenses, and oftentimes work at odds with the home office. A European setting means a 2500-mile trip east and as far again to the Continent. Costs for shipping properties are large, and often mean circling half the globe. New York banks were cold to films produced on the other side of the Rockies.

Long Island Favored
Migration east has begun. In 1922 Famous Players-Lasky produced but 20% of their pictures at Long Island City, last year 40%. They also are planning to sell one of their smaller studios in California. When asked about this shift of production Famous Players said they have no intention of shifting their entire production east.

"A group of promoters have an option on a large expanse of property near Brooklyn and intend to begin constructing large studios in the near future unless blocked in court by adjoining property owners.

"Griffith continues to stage his films along the eastern coast. There are a number of studios growing up on Long Island and in the neighborhood of Jersey City.

Why East Desirable
"Now that New York banks are showing more active interest in financing moving pictures producers see advantages in being nearer their money. Most of the industries manufacturing moving picture supplies are also in the neighborhood of New York. An important consideration is in greater facilities for getting casts in New York. The choice is many times larger, mobs come cheaper, and enormous transportation charges are eliminated.

"According to Jenkins' percentage tables 42.4% of the movie public is in the states between Maine and Virginia. New York has 18.7%, New England 8.5% and Pennsylvania 8%. The largest western state is Illinois, with 9% of the total public.

"Some of the motion picture industry is firmly anchored in California. Some producers have settled down for good, and get their money from local banks. Some of the movie stars and producers have invested much of their money in California real estate. It is safe to say, however, that in the future the bulk of production will be done within easy reach of Manhattan."

Helen Ferguson will appear with Lillian Rich in "Never Say Die," featuring Douglas McLean.

A CALL

By DANNY

Add a call down. Real one. Harry Segal. Pioneer Film Boston. Who "argues" just as others were asked to do. About pictures for next summer. Says, in part, of a very interesting letter:

You make general statements that are slightly out of focus with facts. Your vision seems to be limited to the doings of the chain organizations only. You overlook the independent exchanges who buy and release pictures of merit who maintain the same standard of ethics, right along—winter or summer.

It may be that to the chain exchange systems, whose well-advertised peach orchards are plentifully watered with lemon trees, the summer, as you say, 'seems to be the cleaning-up period for all the unsatisfactory stock on the shelves.' They are apparently blind to the fact that the independent exchanges, who are in the open market the best of their money can buy, need no cleaning-up period."

No, Henry. Not blind. Maybe a trifle astigmatic. But not wholly blind. Because if all these fine pictures for the summer season are in sight, let's ask this: who has seen them? True; there are a lot of good, fair to middling pictures in sight. But they are just the kind that have always caused trouble. Because the public has been so fed on the better type of picture that the ordinary one's won't do. That's all there is to it.

Pioneer, like other good independent operators, can only furnish what the market offers them. Segal says the product for the next seven months is excellent. Good. And he also insists that before we start wailing we should be sure there is something to wail about. True. Good enough. But bear in mind, Henry; there is nothing to wail about then occupy the corner all alone.

But also bear this in mind: that if we happen to be right; and the good pictures don't show up this summer we won't occupy the wail corner. Instead there will be a lot of exhibitors doing our act. And hey, how they wail when they wail! You know, Henry, you know.

Jackie Finishing

Last Picture for Metro to Be Ready by Summer—"Dirty Hands" is Title

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Jackie Coogan's last picture for Metro will be "Dirty Hands." It will be finished by the early summer, but will probably be held for release late in the year or the early part of 1925.

What will Cecil B. De Mille's "TRIUMPH" do at the Box-Office?

Here's the Answer →

Step up to the Rivoli, New York, where "TRIUMPH" is playing this week, and take a look at the crowds lined up.

And these reviews: "A showman's picture." (N. Y. Times.) "An uncommonly high class picture, good for any kind of theatre and crowd." (Telegraph.) "A splendid box-office film." (Daily News.) "Give De Mille credit for giving the public what it wants." (American.)

YES, SIR — "TRIUMPH" IS THE SPRING'S GREATEST BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTION!

Screenplay by Jeanie Macpherson from May Edington's story. With Leatrice Joy, Rod La Roque and all-star cast.

PREVIEW IS DELIGHTFUL, SURPRISING

Cecil B. De Mille's Late Play, "Triumph" Is Well Named

"Not in the plaudits of the throng,
Not in the crowded street,
But in ourselves lies Triumph,
—and defeat."

This is the text of a sub-title and briefly states the theme of Cecil B. DeMille's newest Paramount production, "Triumph," which was previewed at the Temple theater last night.

The reaction of the audience told the story of the picture's success. Applause greeted the title on the screen as the watchers recognized the name of the great producer. Following the final fade-out, a veritable torrent of applause swept the house as the audience realized they had just viewed one of the finest screen offerings ever produced.

"Triumph" is a story of a poor man ruined by wealth, and a rich idler made into a useful man by contact with poverty. Although the elements of capital and labor enter into the story, there is no shade of antagonism to either class. Rather the angle is used to heighten the appeal of the striking plot.

Many Stars

The dramatic honors go to Rod La Roque, Victor Varconi and Leatrice Joy. Although Miss Joy's role gives little opportunity for exceptional acting, she is thoroughly capable in a prominent part.

Rod La Roque gives an impressive performance and one that will make him an even bigger favorite with picture fans.

Victor Varconi, a young Hungarian actor who has been taken under the directorial wing of Mr. De Mille, gives a portrayal that stands out in bold relief. His work stamps him as an artist whose expressions are perfectly adapted to screen work, and gives promise of developing into one of filmdom's foremost players.

William Boyd, Zasu Pitts and Charles Ogle make small roles stand out with prominence. Others in the cast include George Fawcett, Robert Edeson and others of lesser importance.

Is Real Triumph

In summary, "Triumph" is truly a triumph for Cecil B. De Mille. Although not the most spectacular, it is as fine an entertainment as he has ever sponsored, and one that is surely destined for big things when it is released.

"Keep 'Em Coming"

Says Joe Schnitzer—As the Solution For Good Shows During The Warm Weather

The following communication has been received from Joseph I. Schnitzer of F. B. O.:

"In a recent editorial—"ARGUE"—you quote a film executive as advancing the theory that exhibitors should close their theaters in the summer and not attempt to buck Old Sol and the out-door sports.

"F. B. O. is a firm believer that motion picture entertainment is an all-around-the-year proposition. We seldom find ideal weather conditions that can be coupled up with the business. In the winter time, it is too cold and blizzardy to bring them out of their homes; in the summer time it is too hot; in the spring they like to ride in automobiles, and in the fall they do something else. In order to pull them away from the various things we all think they are doing, we must furnish the exhibitor with the highest type of attraction.

"As far as the summer business is concerned, exhibitor efficiency has reached the point where the inside of any motion picture theater is cooler than it is outdoors, and on hot nights nowadays many people flock to the theaters to keep cool. The exhibitor can't afford to close his theater in the summer time unless it becomes a matter of everybody closing—which might be a good thing for the entire industry from the standpoint of creating a stronger desire on the part of the public, after being denied its entertainment for a period of weeks. Otherwise, many showmen know, to their great sorrow, that the closing of a theater means that the great portion of their patronage, who visited their shows each week, will acquire the habit of going to some other theater and, in the vernacular of the street, "try and get them back."

"Without attempting to inject any advertising into this letter, let me advise you that F. B. O. is going to release the three best pictures of its career during the summer months. If the exhibitor hasn't the type of entertainment that will offset the hot weather, it won't be our fault. We proved conclusively and to our own satisfaction last year when we released "Human Wreckage" in the middle of July, that all this talk about not being able to get satisfactory prices in the summer time is the bunk."

Ballyhoo Truck in Indianapolis
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—The "After the Ball" minstrel ballyhoo truck has reached here on its journey to the Coast. The party, in charge of Wm. Quick, has been on the road three months. Of the 860 theaters that played the picture in the Southern territory, during the time the car has been on the road, 450 of them have been able to use the ballyhoo.

New Theaters

Columbus, Ga.—Roy E. Martin will build a new $25,000 theater at 22nd Street and 2nd Ave. The house will seat 1,050.

Cameo

"Second Youth" is the feature, although there is another picture along semi-feature lines, the title of which is "The World Struggle for Oil," made by the Dept. of the Interior and the Sinclair Oil Co., which tells of the progress of oil is. The usual short reels and opening musical number makes up the balance of the program. An organ solo closes.

Rivoli

The overture is "Concerto in A Minor" (First Movement), followed by the Pictorial News Weekly. One of the series of the De Forest Phonofilms: Chauncey Depew on "My 90th Birthday" is third. The Ritz Male Quartet, rendering two selections: (a) "The Palms" and (b) "Ave Maria," precedes the feature, Cecil B. De Mille's, "Triumph."

Strand

Preston Wareorem's "American Indian Rhapsody" is the overture. The feature of the Strand's Tenth Anniversary is Harold Lloyd's "Girl Shy." Other units include: "Do You Remember," excerpts from old Pickford, Hart, Fairbanks, and other early successes; "Our Birthday," a revue, and a prologue to the feature, which is sung by Estelle Carey and Frank Mellor.

At Other Houses

"Secrets" remains at the Astor. "The White Sister" is again at a Broadway house, this time at the Capitol. The Cohan houses "The Ten Commandments," and of course the Criterion, "The Covered Wagon," for just a while longer. "America" and "The Thief of Bagdad," remain at the 44th Street and Liberty, respectively. The Rialto is playing a holdover: "The Confidence Man," at the Rivoli last week.

New York City.

Dear Sirs:

I am not ungrateful nor unappreciative, merely busy and therefore advance such an excuse for not communicating with you sooner to tell you that I think your 1924 Year Book is the most complete document of its kind ever published.

The book is actually invaluable to me and I have used it almost daily in my work since it arrived. Your statistical data is marvelous and you and your staff are to be congratulated upon the painstaking efforts portrayed upon every page. I have taken the liberty of "lifting" several items of various kinds from both the Year Book and from FILM DAILY, which I have carefully credited to the publication from which they were taken.

Again congratulating you upon your wonderful piece of work and wishing you continued success, I beg to remain,

Sincerely Yours,

Newspaper Opinions

"Triumph"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * In addition to its office appeal "Triumph" has an interesting story. * * * The de Mille workmanship, which in production, direction and photography, have only praise. Summed up as a whole, "Triumph" is a very satisfactory production. The story is out of the ordinary, and is all more than adequate and the entertainment is first class. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * Mr. De Mille has a fine Joy and Rod La Rocque acting all over the place. She seems to me too coy, and he too certain of his undeniable male charms. * * * However, it will be a splendid boxoffice success. I'm sure. It never bores you.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * the photography in staging, gowns and settings, reaches the level of Cecil B. De Mille. The story is extremely interesting. Miss Leatrice Joy is very appealing and Rod La Rocque and Victor Varconi stage a thrilling fight.

EVENING WORLD—* * * is even more appealing than some of his earlier pictures. It is a thing were possible. It is replete with ultra-modern sets and figures; gaudy and of a splendor to defy such things in life, yet withal, stringing along with all the swiftness of set and costume and revealing a right human touch. * * * Make it all in all, "Triumph" is well worth seeing, and it is Cecil De Mille at his best. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * "Triumph" is a great picture, but it is a very interesting and amusing picture, and we like the way it is written, the way it is acted and the way it is directed. Leatrice Joy never has done anything better than the heroine. * * * And Rod La Rocque never has done anything nearly so good as * * * the hero.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * not an original film, but an uncommonly high-class dramatic picture, good for any kind of a theater and appealing to any class agreeing to the proposition that "all's well that ends well." * * * There can be no criticism of the work done by the three leading players.

POST—* * * is the world's funniest picture. It was undoubtedly intended to be a very serious drama. But if it is true it's only a step from the sublime to the ridiculous, then Cecil De Mille is the champion broad jumper of the universe. He is responsible for "Triumph"—and what a terrible responsibility it is.

Frankly, it is almost impossible to say anything adequate about this picture. * * * SUN—* * * If we were to be perfectly fair to the play we would be compelled to admit that it has several incidents which are well done that they become quite entertaining. But we have no desire to be fair to the play—it dies not quite deserve fair-ness. It is stupid, ineane and ingenuous to almost inconceivable degree.

The play is from a story * * * by May Clayton. We read it, if we remember correctly, and if we do Miss Edington has hands for suit.

TELEGRAM—* * * The scenario, it seems to us, lacks sequence and in one or two places is abrupt, which was not apparent in the original. * * * The film is a model of sharp and clear photography, natural portrayal of the various roles and, withal, has enough laugh-making scenes to make it a very pleasing and diversion.

TIMES—Originality and subtlety are not shared in Cecil B. De Mille's new pictorial. * * * Mr. De Mille has bowed to what is termed a showman's idea of a picture, and the result is that one has to sit through a mile and a half of hokum. * * * It may be entertainment to those who like to gaze upon life in a can factory, but so far as the rest of it goes, it is an unreal and unconvincing story, acted in a way which reminds one of the movies of earlier days.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * looks to be one of the best program features this director has turned out in some time. Perhaps a bit too long, in that it runs 88 minutes, the film can nevertheless stand up, principally through the work of the cast. * * * It's a smooth presentation that will do Paramount, the director and the entire personnel a world of good. * * *

WORLD—"Triumph," * * * is a series of pretentiously annoying absurdities, made endurable by the magnetic personality of Rod La Rocque and a momentary glimpse of Raymond Hatton as a tramp. * * * This picture has everything but sense. * * * In reality the picture has nothing but Mr. La Rocque, his charm and his gift for comedy, all of which are good. It has Leatrice Joy, to be sure, and she makes Mr. La Rocque a likeable companion, even though the freaks of this thing's plot are a bit unfair to her.

"Girl Shy"—Pathe Strand

AMERICAN—* * * "Girl Shy" bears a remote resemblance to "The Tailor Made Man," although the kinship is not close enough to agitate the author or Charles Ray, starred in the screen version. * * *

Needless for me to suggest that a visit * * * will not be time misspent, because the Harold Lloyd fans, who are legion, will be there anyway. * * *

EVENING WORLD—We have seldom, if ever, heard more laughs per minute than * * * during the showing of * * * "Girl Shy." * * * Harold has a role absolutely to his liking, and, as always, he squeezes every bit of comedy and every laugh possible out of scores of honestly funny situations.

As far as our opinion is concerned, one cannot make a mistake in going to see a Harold Lloyd picture; and that goes double for "Girl Shy." * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * It sounds so foolish to say that Harold Lloyd's latest picture is his funniest. One just keeps on saying that after each comedy he makes, but it really does seem as though this one is the funniest. We do not care so much for the story as for "Dr. Jack" * * * but in the new picture the fact that the plot is about as minus as most comedy plots is compensated for by the fact that the picture is full of new ways of getting laughs, and getting laughs is serious business. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * "Girl Shy" is not as entertaining as some of its predecessors, due to the fact that the story structure, especially in the fifth reel, is too thin and burdened with "gags," still it is diverting enough to make * * * audiences laugh their troubles away. This is more than most comedians accomplish, even with their best productions. * * *

POST—* * * This is a very entertaining and at times amusing comedy, directed by Albert Parker. Lunt especially does some good work. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * "Girl Shy," is one of the most hilarious films that have ever been shown in this city.

"Girl Shy" surpasses all Mr. Lloyd's previous efforts. * * * TIMES—* * * filled with farcical sequences. Mr. Lloyd is a genius in obtaining and making the most of new ideas to bring happiness to audiences, and while we do not think that this particular effort is quite as subtle in its fun as "Why Worry?" there is no denying that row upon row of faces in the packed theater enjoyed it to their heart's content. * * *

WORLD—"Girl Shy" is the feeblest of the more important Lloyd film plays. At the same time it is the funniest thing in screen form in town. * * *

A sweet and talented little lady, Jobyna Ralston, has stepped gracefully and capably into the professional shoes of Mildred Davis. Miss Ralston is a worthy partner of the lad we consider to be the screen's greatest comedian.

"Second Youth"—Gold-Cosmop. Cameo

AMERICAN—It takes the mind of a mathematician and the patient soul of a Job to keep the plot unraveled. Not that plot matters a great deal in a broad farce of this kind. * * * "Second Youth" is a farce. If you have a sense of humor that includes a sense of the ridiculous, you may find "Second Youth" to your liking. * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * However, it is a comedy. * * *

* * * has a most engaging and lovely heroine in the person of Mimi Palmieri.

EVENING WORLD—* * * It is an interesting picture and one that could and would attract a line to the box office. * * *

HERALD-TRIBUNE—* * * a perfectly terrible picture—just snatches of horrible slapstick joined together by nothing. Perhaps when the picture was assembled they inadvertently used the part they had intended to throw away.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * we regret that there is little to be said about his latest effort. It is all overplayed and unfunny—the only laughs coming from such overpowering humor as seeing a few of the leading characters groveling about on the sidewalk or stretched out on the drawing-room floor. * * *

POST—* * * it's a humdinger. A very pretty little story runs through it, and there are more Al funny stunts of genuine comedy value than we ever saw in a picture of equal footage. It wouldn't be quite fair to say that this is his best film, for it is very different from any of his recent releases. * * *

SUN—* * * We enthusiastically and amid hearty guffaws recommended it as thing of unflagging delight and invention; of laughter almost uninterrupted. It has, moreover, four or five incidents of comic richness equal to the best of Chaplainia.

Harold the serious, the always expectant, the inevitable surprised, wanders in "Girl Shy" through as delicious a series of side-splitting adventures as we can remember having seen on the screen or elsewhere. It is the best Harold Lloyd movie we have ever seen. * * *

TIMES—* * * it is a farce, and as such it makes an amusing and pleasing entertainment, with capable acting and splendid photography. It is fairly well produced, nothing being overdone in the matter of scenery.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * It is a topical comedy drama that has a lot of laughs provided to a great extent by Miss Howland, who looks like a million dollars on the screen and puts over a character role with a wallop. Withell handled a comedy role effectively.

WORLD—* * * This is a silly piece of work, presented in amateurish manner despite the great names in its cast.

Alfred Lunt gives what is recognized as one of the finest performances of the current dramatic season in "Outward Bound;" in this motion picture he grimaces and overacts until it hurts.

I give up all of last night after twelve o'clock to go with the guide and what do I see? Napoleans Tomb and Notre Dame from the outside.

It is understood that Distinctive's future plans will be rounded out in the near future.

Strong Combination

One of First Developments of Metro-Goldwyn Deal to be Mae Murray in "The Merry Widow"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—Mae Murray will make "The Merry Widow" for Metro release.

This is the first significant move following the Metro-Goldwyn merger. Goldwyn owned the rights to the famous operetta and Metro have Murray under a working arrangement. Probably no one on the screen can handle this delightful role to better advantage than Mae Murray. Incidentally it will give her another opportunity to dance to Lehar's fine music, and this should be a great angle for showmanship when the picture is released.

Bob Leonard will, of course, direct.

When Goldwyn acquired the property it was regarded as highly likely that Von Stroheim would direct the picture. But the experience of Goldwyn with "Greed" has probably killed off any possibility in that direction.

Publicity Clocks in Theaters

The Publicity Clock Co., Inc., has secured the co-operation of the M. P. T. O. units in New York and Jersey in fostering the sale of a contrivance which projects a series of 12 ads on a clock face at intervals of thirty seconds. The mechanism is supplied by the company and is usually placed alongside the screen. The exhibitors pay a stipulated amount per month and the treasury of the state exhibitor unit is also swelled for the endorsement which the unit gives. The clock company, of course, gets its revenue from the advertiser.

Summer Business

What a Salesman Thinks—How the Average Small House is Run—Why It Needs Improvement

The following communication was sent in by a film salesman, well known in the territory he covers, whose name, for obvious reasons, is withheld.

"Lenny: I get your F. D. every day, and I'm very actively interested in the M. P. business in Penn., I want to add a little to the recent reports and interviews about the "summer business" etc.

The producers pass the pan to the exhibitor, then to the sales department, then to the exhibitor, and the exhibitor squirms around to cut and cut some more in the summer. All business reacts from the manufacturer to consumer and then from consumer to manufacturer, or visa versa. All this while the whole industry figures very little about the 'Dear Old Public', who, when it is all said and done, is the backbone of the business. Instead of starting a real 'Keep going to the theater' all the year round campaign to the public in April and May, they wait until hot weather hits them, then they start to 'panic themselves'. Start a campaign in April, keep it to tell the public, the good pictures that are coming in June and July and August other points of interest in the picture news' to the fore. The public believe in the truth. There is no wonder that the public gets tired especially in the summer.

"On a recent trip of six weeks down South starting from here, I stopped in most of the towns through Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and down the line. Here is what I found: theaters in eight out of ten, dirty; projection in eight out of ten, absolutely rotten; instead of congenial employees in the houses, they assumed the attitude 'we don't care a damn if you come in or not'. Seven out of ten poorly lighted; seven out of ten the music was rotten, no cue music rendered with the pictures; several places no music at all. Six out of ten, the lobby advertising was exceedingly bad; some places it was disgrace to look at.

"If the summer business is to keep within normal confines, the small and big town exhibitor must be reached and taught 'house personnel' with balanced good pictures, and the producer must kick in, too. Unless someone, or group of exhibitors and executives devise a 'standard' for all theaters, 'that need it', then theater owners can squawk until it hurts. Why not use Will Hay's office to bring these essential helps through diplomatic channels; show the exhibitor that good steady projection, obliging employees, excellent music, good lighting, clean lobby and display advertising will keep business normal winter and summer?

"All the bunk both sides of the industry expounds is of no avail unless the 'dear old public' is appealed to right.

"Just a parting shot: Exhibitors say that the automobiles hurt them.

Sure, so does a belly filled with green apples. Fight fire with fire. Have the exploitation and publicity experts get up a series of weekly slides to automobilists, give them a schedule for every evening, 'after dinner a ride until 8:30 P.M., then to the theater for a good Show at 9 P.M.' It's safer in the theater, amusing the family than risking being jammed up in collisions, etc. Let them keep the 'live news' on the screen starting in April for the summer. It can and must be done.

"Cordially,
"Just An Ordinary Film Salesman."

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

In The Courts

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich has denied the application by Kerman Films, Inc. for an injunction restraining the Independent Pictures Corp. from distributing Franklyn Farnum films in Greater New York and Northern New Jersey territory through anyone except the plaintiff. Kerman alleged that Independent was trying to compel it to pay an increased price for the film, Independent replied that Kerman broke the contract by failing to make reports in some cases and making false reports in others, and is alleged to have cancelled the agreement itself on April 3rd. Jesse J. Goldburg, president of the defendant, declared in an affidavit that Kerman misrepresented its financial ability, that checks it gave were dishonored, and that it distributed reissues representing them to be new productions.

Justice Giegerich decided that there is such "grave doubt" of the plaintiff's right to the injunction that he would not be justified in granting an injunction prior to the trial of the case.

In a suit of Gerald C. Duffy against Mastodon Films, Inc., C. C. Burr, Inc. and Charles C. Burr, to recover on an accounting for sums due, a default judgment for $1249 was filed in the Supreme Court.

Clem's Ocean Trip

After seeing "The Apaches Revenge" and "Boulevard Bertha" both of which I lost dough for me, I thought this was a live place.

Everyone wants to show me cemeteries and tombstones as if we didn't have one of the most successful cemeteries in Pneumonia that exists in the whole country and one of the largest in percentage to the population.

I met an American named Walter Viger here on the Boulevard De la Paix and asked him where I could go for lights. Well Walter, being a nice guy says, why not go up to Mose's and I said, will my wife enjoy it. Oh, says Walter, if you got your wife with you why not go to the cafe and get a good rest. Well, of course as I didn't get hep to what he meant, I asked him to have lunch with me and he did and while we were eating (by the way they eat snails over here) he says, I think you would enjoy the cheese Fisher.

Well, if there's anything Mrs. Deneker loves it is cheese, so promptly at eleven o'clock we grab one of the there condensed taxes and get out at what is spelled Chez Fisher. I goes in and sits down and as we get as we gets planted, they sticks a little of wine on the table. Well, I leaves it away and tells them to bring one straight whiskey and one chocolate soda.

The waiter keeps putting the wine bottle back and then a waiter who speaks English tells me they don't have nothing but wine there so I told him we was on the grape wagon because as they didn't sell nothing but wine, we'd just take a Cannibal sandwich and sit around. Well, we wait a pretty soon the place starts to flap and boy, talk about crowding. I kept putting tables in every corner they could till finally people was sitting on Mrs. Deneker's lap and I blew the joint. I never saw so many people crowded into one room before. It was so full a guy at the table to me was feeding another guy by mistake.

I'm disappointed at Paris but the energy here tells me he'll write the names of some places for me so if I get another night out.

Tomorrow I make make the movie scenes so look for the analysis.

Bon Soir,
CLEM.

MID-WEST

By DANNY

There is a world of significance in the news that there is some sort of a deal on between Balaban & Katz and the Midwest Theater organization in Illinois. Information at hand does not disclose to what extent B. & K. will control the Midwest houses. But some sort of a working arrangement is in effect.

Those who know Sam Katz will appreciate that this is the first of his moves in what in his opinion is a necessary part of the exhibition business. For a long time he has believed in the value of the booking office to the business. Both to the exhibitor as well as the producer and distributor. To him it is the finest of economics. And he believes sincerely in the idea that without sound economics no business can prosper.

Whether you agree with Katz is beside the question. Katz, with his associates, has proven that showmanship can be made to pay strong dividends. There are few amusement properties, indeed, throughout the world that have made the financial, as well as the artistic success that the B. & K. houses have.

Several years ago Sam Katz was one of the organizers of the National Booking Corp. Which set up offices on Broadway. And for a time looked as if it was going to get somewhere. But several obstacles arose; offices were dismantled, and the idea was abandoned. Few, however, appreciate how close to successful operation the National Booking idea was.

Down here on the little old paper have always been opposed to the idea of a booking proposition of any kind. Chiefly because unless it is operated by an infallible being it will produce the greatest distress imaginable. We have had several long talks and arguments with Sam Katz on this subject. Of course, we got nowhere. Two men looking at the same idea through different views never do.

We're going to keep an eye on the new combination. Maybe something will develop worth recording. Any time any man as smart as Sam Katz starts something it is worth watching. And Sam

Theater Merger On

Small-Straseberg Circuit Reported About to Close With Suozzo's Queens Chain

It is understood that the Small-Straseberg circuit of theaters which includes six neighborhood houses in Brooklyn is discussing a merger with Charles Suozzo who operates eight theaters in Queens.

It was stated in one quarter yesterday Suozzo had admitted that the deal was under way, but that nothing of a definite nature had been determined upon. From another source, it was learned that negotiations had reached a rather definite stage. The Small-Straseberg chain includes the Kismet, Marcy, Republic, Williamsburg, State and Sumner, all of them

Outsider as Exhibitor Head?

There is some talk about the appointment of a T. O. C. C. committee to attend the Boston M. P. T. O. convention with a plan to secure an outside figure to head a national exhibitor body. In view of the fact, that the T. O. C. C. has no affiliation with the national body, the actual carrying out of such an intention might prove rather delicate handling.

Cuts Commissions

5 Per Cent on Bookings of $5,000 and More Under Arthur Smallwood's New Schedule

Arthur N. Smallwood, president of Producers Dist. Guild, which will inaugurate a merchandising and advertising service in the fall season, announces a further reduction in the sales commissions to be charged producers on bookings exceeding $1,000.

The previously published schedule provided for a minimum charge of 10% on all bookings of $1,000 or more, with a graduating scale to cover producer costs on lesser bookings. Smallwood's revised schedule provides for a sales commission of only five per cent on bookings of $5,000 or more.

A circuit booking will be handled as one booking, regardless of the number of theaters embraced, and the rate of commission will be based on the sum total of the booking, insofar as the commission charged the producer is concerned. Following is a revised selling commission.

Bookings of $5000. or over.....	5 Per Cent
" " 4000. to $5000....	6 " "
" " 3000 to 4000....	7 " "
" " 2000 to 3000....	8 " "
" " 1500 to 2000....	9 " "
" " 1000 to 1500....	10 " "

The commission scale on bookings of $900 to $1000, and thence on down to $15 bookings remains as originally published.

These commissions cover selling costs. Physical distribution will be handled by an established organization which will handle the actual physical distribution on a small flat service charge basis for inspection and shipping of prints, collection of rentals and remittance direct to the producer of his share of the rentals. It is promised that immediate cash returns will be made direct to the producer by the physical distributor on each booking.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

"Secrets" in Cleveland

Cleveland—M. A. Malaney, publicity director of Loew's Ohio Theaters, sprang a bull's eye stunt in connection with the opening of "Secrets." Every day in the week, he mailed out five "Secret Envelopes" to five people, selected at random from the city directory.

Newspapers carried the story that they were sent at the request of Norma Talmadge. Each day were announced the contents of the envelopes of the previous day, and the names of the recipients of the next day's package. Here's a sample list of the "secret envelope"; a pair of silk stockings; a box party at the Stillman where "Secrets" is playing; check for $5; round trip ticket to Buffalo on the Secandbee; a year's subscription to the magazine called "Secrets."

The prizes varied each day, and aroused tremendous interest in the picture. The $1.65 admission price marks the first time a Norma Talmadge picture ever played here for more than seventy-five cents.

500 Exploiters for This Picture

Indianapolis—Five hundred newsboys helped exploit "When a Man's A Man", when that picture played the Circle. Ace Berry was responsible for the stunt.

The newspapers harped continually on the fact that some of America's greatest men had worked as newsboys and that often the self-made man had been a newsboy.

This idea, got the kids interested, with the result that over a thousand newsboys were advertising the picture with their papers, both before and after the showing.

Tank Divers Featured in Prologue

Paterson, N. J.—A novel idea in prologues was worked out on "The Galloping Fish" at the Garden. Behind a scrim, to give a silhouette effect, four tents were placed, each one large enough to allow a person to turn around in. The scene showed four girls in bathing suits, something along the lines of an artistic bathing review.

The four girls then moved up the ladder to a high diving plank, at the bottom of which was a tank, and jumped off.

Dates Suggested for "Sahara"

First National suggests using dates in exploiting "A Son of the Sahara". A tie-up with any fruit shop can be made with the simple reminder to the public that "a date should be kept open" for "A Son on the Sahara."

The dates can be placed in small envelopes either at the theater a week or so before the run, or else on the streets and at offices.

Odd Fellows Help "Shepherd King"

Winnipeg, Can.—The highlight of the exploitation campaign conducted for "The Shepherd King", during the run at the National, was the cooperation given by the Odd Fellows, who were in convention at the time.

A special screening was held for the delegates, which resulted in the Odd Fellows getting the National Railways to use the following indorsement in their main office window: "The Shepherd King" traveled from place to place on the backs of camels. Had he lived today, in the present age of rapid transit, his mode of travel would surely be in a Canadian National Pullman".

The Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Manitoba sent out a letter to residents in the vicinity of the theater, strongly recommending the picture.

Four Stores Stage Revue

Ashville, N. C.—Four of the big department stores cooperated in exploiting "Fashion Row", for the Imperial. E. D. Turner, manager, and C. D. Haug of Metro, were responsible for an elaborate fashion revue, the expense of which was paid by the stores.

Models of thousands of dollars worth of cloaks and suits were used, full page advertising in the dailies, a singer, a mail campaign and a large stage setting. Besides this, each clerk was instructed to mention the picture and the showing when waiting on customers.

Song and Book Tie-ups

Numerous song and book tie-ups are announced by First National for exhibitors, on the following pictures:

(By Cable to THE FILM DAILY)
London—A receiver has been appointed, and is in charge of Walturdaw's, Ltd. It is proposed to carry on and continue the business. Much depends, however, on what is possible to be done with the Preferred Pictures contract. The liabilities are heavy. Walturdaw handled, among other product, certain Selznick releases as well as the first year output of Preferred Pictures.

Details of Merger

"The preferred stock will have a par value of about $27 a share, the book value of the present Goldwyn stock, and will be distributed to Goldwyn holders share for share.

"Metro-Goldwyn common stock will be given to Loew's Inc. in exchange for its holdings of present Metro stock.

"Significance to Goldwyn stockholders—In place of a stock which has received no dividends since organization, Goldwyn stockholders will receive a new stock with an annual cumulative dividend rate of approximately $1.90 a share, or over 12% on the present market price. This stock will be the premier security of the company owning the entire assets of the present Goldwyn Pictures Corp. and Metro Pictures Corp. While official earnings figures are not available, it is estimated that the new corporation will have an earning power of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, or approximately from four to six times annual dividend requirements on the preferred, without giving effect to the economies that might be effected by the merger.

"In addition, a sinking fund of $100,000 per annum will be available, beginning 1926 to retire this preferred at about 27.

"On account of its priority to the interest of Loew's Inc. in the new corporation, which it is said involves a substantial part of Loew's earnings, this preferred will occupy a strategic position.

"Significance to Loew's, Inc., stockholders—The company will control the consolidated holdings of the two present existing corporations, and will operate 340 theaters, including the Capitol, said to be the largest theater in the country. Stockholders will benefit by the excess of present earnings of Goldwyn over the dividend requirements, which are reported to have been earned by its controlled theaters alone. Increased efficiency and material economy of operations due to the elimination of the present double overhead and the wider distributing facilities should materially add to the earning power of Loew's."

Besides there are thousands of cinema clubs—every factory has its own theater, and in many of them films are shown. The Soviet operates a number of houses through the State film organization. But through the Dufa company we are doing considerable business."

"And be it further resolved that this organization thru its officers does offer its good services in any plan that will reunite and solidify our national organization."
